Brown's New Year's Call.

Old Mr. Brown, in grand array,
Set out to call on New Year's Day.

"God-bye!" exclaimed his help-mate, "now,
Remember, dear, your New Year's vow."

"This time I'll keep it, sure as life,"
He smiled and kissed his happy wife.

Each time he passed a liquor shop
He looked away and wouldn't stop.

He met three cronies on the street:
"Come in," they urged, "we want to treat."

"No! I've sworn off," Brown nobly said,
'My nose shall not be painted red."

"Hurrah!" they cried, "we'll swear off, too."
(This shows what good examples do.)

"There's nothing now can make me fall," Brown thought, as he went in to "call.'

"A happy New Year's, ladies!" cried
Our hero, bowing, when inside.

"The same to you, and many more,"
The ladies answered, as of yore.

For just five minutes altogether
The angels talked about the weather.

Then led Brown to the table, where
They heaped his plate with New Year's fare.

Poor Brown! He balanced on his knees
That plate, and tried to hold a sneeze.

Which, bursting like a thunder clap,
Shot plate and all from off his lap.

"O! Mr. Brown, you've taken cold,"
Cried out the ladies, young and old.

Alas! upon that table stood
Decanters filled with no one's good.

And dainty hands commenced to fill
The glasses, to allay Brown's chill.

"Ahem!" Brown blushed, and gave a cough,
"Excuse me, ladies! I've sworn off."

"O, New Year's day don't count," they smiled.
As, Eve-like, they poor Brown beguiled.

And, Adam-like, Brown fell anew,
Because the ladies asked him to.

A soft white hand presented brandy;
Brown drank—then felt quite like a dandy

Another offered him some sherry;
He drank it, and grew very merry.

A wife and mother gave him whisky;
Another port; Brown now was frisky.

"(Hic). Happy New Year' (hic) I shay—
Lots of 'em, ladies! (hic) Hoo-ray!!"

And then—the truth, shall here be told,
He kissed each female, young and old.

"Help! Murder! Thieves! Police!" they shrieked,
While husbands mad, rushed in and wreaked

On Brown their vengeance, till, most dead,
With shattered vows and broken head,

He, in an ambulance was sent
To face his wife, and there repent.

MORAL.

Now, ladies near, and ladies far,
Don't keep on New Year's Day a bar,

For many a man slips off the brink
When women tempt him thus to drink.

Another's husband, son—perhaps
Your own—may from these New Year traps

His ruin find. O, ladies, all,
Care for the Browns, who'll on you call.
H. C. Dodge

THE PROPER THING.

Felt English walking hats are fashionably worn.

Pretty, undyed seal jackets for young ladies' wear are very stylish.

Ulsters are made in a variety of pretty ways. Braid is a favorite trimming.

Gold embroidery and gold braiding are employed on silk and woolen materials.

Long, double-breasted coachman coats are worn by girls from eight to ten years.

Young ladies wear black velvet toques with a single quill pointing upward from the back.

Ball gowns for young ladies touch the ground; for married women they are made quite long.

Low-crowned pokes with projecting fronts which shade the eyes are becoming to young faces.

Loops of ribbon coming up from the back of the crown find great favor for trimming bonnets.

Long, loose folds, making full fronts and soft crowns, are marked features of bonnets this season.

Fur will be the craze of the winter season just before us. It is already to be found everywhere on the toilet.

A couple of yards of embroidered cloth introduced with plain material transforms a simple gown into an elaborate one.

Fur trimmed bonnets are suitable for this climate, and for this purpose sable, beaver and black Persian lamb are much used.

Among the novelties in fine woolens are braided stripes, woven in bold relief to represent rows of braid sewed to the fabric.

Fancy muffs made to match the toilet, and formed of a combination of rich materials are small and compact. Muffs of fur will be much larger, and in Paris and London are quite immense in size.

If you are tired taking the large old-fashioned griping pills, and are satisfied that purging yourself till you are weak and sick is not good common sense, then try Carter's Little Liver Pills and learn how easy it is to be free from Biliousness, Headache, Constipation, and all Liver troubles. These little pills are smaller, easier to take, and give quicker relief than any pill in use. Forty in a vial. One a dose. Price 25 cents.

REMINISCENCES OF PUBLIC MEN.

When it was asserted that President Hayes would listen to recommendations from Congressmen for office when he had made the appointments several days before, the following Indiana story was told:

"A Rural justice of the peace, Squire Edmunds, a cousin of the Senator from Vermont, flourished amid the chills and fever on the banks of the Wabash. A case of great local interest was being tried before him without a jury. The attorney for the plaintiff had spoken for two hours and appeared as if just getting started in his exordium. The defendant's counsel; with a huge roll of manuscript sat near him taking page on page of notes. The court-room was crowded. As the hands of the clock pointed to the hour of noon Squire Edmunds arose, motioned to the attorneys and said: "When the learned counsel have concluded their able argument they will find my decision in this drawer; I wrote it out last night. The Court is going to dinner.'"

Hawthorne came here during the war with his publisher and friend, W. D. Ticknor, of Boston, and they were constantly together, occupying the same room. Hawthorne was about 5 feet ten inches in height, rather broad shoulders, but slender in person. His hair was turning gray; his eyebrows were heavy, his eyes were blue-black, and he wore a full beard and moustache. He was a good pedestrian, and it was difficult for Mr. Ticknor to keep up with him in their daily walks to and from the Capitol, or their exploring tramps around Washington. He called on Mr. Lincoln one morning, Dawes presented a whip made in Western Massachusetts, and wrote a very amusing account of the scene, which appeared, emasculated, in the Atlantic Monthly, although James T. Fields, afterwards printed what he had stricken out. At that time there were not many of Hawthorne's Democratic friends in Washington, but he and Ticknor had a jovial time, paying morning and afternoon visits to Hancock's "Old Curiosity Shop," to enjoy the fruit punches made there.

When Mr. Lincoln heard of the scattering of the Confederates under Hood by Gen. Thomas, he was reminded of the following anecdote: "Out in lower Illinois there was a butcher named Sykes, who had a large, wicked, mischievous bull-dog which was regarded as a town nuisance. Fowl were killed, clothes were pulled from the lines, meat-houses were robbed, children were scared, and Sykes dog was blamed for all and blamed justly. Now, there was a man named Henderson who had a fine turkey killed by this do of Sykes', and he swore revenge. So he took about a quarter of a pound of powder and did it up in a piece of buckskin, tying up a piece of punk so that it projected out of the little budle of powder. Then he put the bundle in a large piece of corn bread and had it in readiness. It was not long before Sykes' dog came trotting along, and Henderson, lighting the punk with his cigar, threw the bit of bread to the cur, who gobbled it at a mouthful. The next minute there was an explosion. The dog's head was blown over the fence into the creek, his hind legs and tail were sent up and lodged on Henderson's porch, his fore legs were thrown across the street, and the rest of the bow-bow was laid about in small pieces. "Whorra!" exclaimed a looker-on, "you've rather used up Sykes' dog hain't ye, Henderson?' "Yes," replied Henderson, "I rather think that as a dog Sykes won't find him of much use." "And so of the rebel army," added Mr. Lincoln, with one of his smiles, "as an army, Hood won't find it of much use."

Thad Stevens was emphatically the leader of the House," and he exercised despotic rule over his followers, No Republican Representative could impose his imperious will without receiving a tongue lashing that terrified, if it did not bring the refractory member back into the partisan harness. Rising by degrees, as a telescope is pulled out, until he stood in a most ungraceful attitude, his heavy black hair falling down over his cavernous brows and his cold little eyes twinkling with anger, he would make some ludicious remark, and then rising up to his full height, he would lecture the offender against party discipline, sweeping at him his large, bony white hand in ungraceful gestures, as if he would clutch him and shake him. His brows would contract, his eyes would glow like live coals, and he would use invectives which he took good care should never be printed in the Globe. John Randolph, in his braggart days, was never so imperiously insulting as was "Old Thad" when he was leader of the House.

Stevens was a firm believer in the old maxim ascribed to the Jesuits, "The end justifies the means," and while he set morality at defiance, he was a faithful champion of the equality of the black and white races. There was an undercurrent of dry humor about him, too, that often disarmed his political opponents. When Keitt, of South Carolina, was once ulogizing the institution of slavery, and talking about a pious deacon on his own plantation, Stevens grimly inquired what the price of deacons was in the Orangeburg District of South Carolina, and whether a negro would bring any more on the auction-block because he was a deacon? When the invading rebels burned his iron foundry near Gettysburg, during their raid into Pennsylvania, he expressed his regret that Lee did not order the burning of his liabilities at the same time. And the ruling passion was strong in death, for when his doctor said one day during his last sickness: "Mr. Stevens, I think your appearance is better to-day!" old Thad dryly responded. "It isn't my appearance that troubles me, doctor, but my disappearance."

SULLIVAN IN ACTION.

He Puts His Terrible Right to Some Use in London.

A special cable to the New York Sun from London, November 28, says:

John Lawrence Sullivan, who has conquered this land as even the best-advertized Briton never conquered America, is back once more in London. He arrived last night and began almost at once. by making himself useful to society. Certain little streets off the leading thoroughfares are infested by men who beg, relying upon their size and general fierceness rather than upon any melting tale of misery to draw contributions. These men make uncomfortable the lives of timid Londoners who have to be out late. About 1 o'clock this morning Sullivan, with his backer, Harry Phillips, was going home from the Pelican Club to his lodgings in Harley street. Two men, very big but evidently with very little judgment, requested in surly tones the loan of a pound. Sullivan recognized the wild species of footpad and walked on. One of the fellows then began pulling at his arm, while the other opened up a wonderful current of East End profanity. Sullivan retorted in a style that left the East End out of sight, and threw the end of his lighted cigar in the face of the larger of the men.

Phillips meanwhile, who was, as may be imagined, little disturbed, advised the threatening beggars kindly, saying:

"Take my advice and get out. That man'll kill you."

The advice was wasted, and the larger man, who, seeing Sullivan's white shirt front, never dreamed a fighter was near, offered in choice cockney to fight the champion of the world for a sanguinary tanner, which means twelve cents.

In about a second he found out what Paddy Ryan and other great men have learned about Sullivans right, and in the language of the ring he was asleep in a gutter. The other spurious beggar waited just long enough to hear a young sprig from the Pelican Club exclaim, "Well done, Sullivan," and then with an oath that expressed astonishment he made a record as a runner. The policeman who had charge of that part of the town was affable. He recognized the great man, advised Sullivan to give an assumed name and address, as it might make trouble if he should prove to have killed the cove, and he recognized the cove as a "bad 'un" and "desperate 'un," and lugged him off to have cold water turned on him.

The story is being industriously told now at the Pelican Club, and has raised the great man from Boston even higher in the minds of the youthful patrons of that temple of sport. Most of them are better able to look at a fight than to take part in it, and many probably have been worried by gentlemen similar to the one whom Sullivan with one blow has probably driven from the neighborhood of the club.

The nerve which never relaxes, the eye which never blanches, the thought that never wanders, these are the masters of victory. Warner's Log Cabin Hops and Buchu Remedy is nature's remedy for nervous diseases. Have the wisdom to try it. Only $1.

COLOGNE.

Cologne is chiefly interesting to visitors on account of its Cathedral and its Cologne water. To see the one and to buy some of the other are the two great objects of travelers here. But, apart from these principal attractions, we shall find the city very interesting. Most of the streets are queer and old, some of the houses dating from the thirteenth century; and the Rhine, which is here crossed by a long bridge of boats, presents a very busy and lively scene with its craft of many kinds.

The real Cologne water is made by Johann Maria Farina, but when we go out to buy some, we may be a little perplexed by finding that there are some thirty or forty people of this name, all of whom keep shops for the sale of Cologne water. There are a great many decendants of the original inventor of this perfume, and the law does not permit any one to assume the name who does not belong to the family; but the boy babies of the Farinas are generally baptized Johann Maria, so that they can go into the Cologne water business when they grow up. There are two or three shops where the best and "original" water is sold, and at one of these we buy some of the celebrated perfume, generally sold to travelers in small wooden boxes containing four or six bottles, which we get at a very reasonable price compared with what we have to pay for it in America. We cannot take much more than this, because Cologne water is classed as spirits by the custom-house authorities in England, and each traveler is allowed to bring only a small quantity of it into that country.—St. Nicholas.

Improving the Erie Canal.

There are unmistakeable evidences of the approach of busy times along the Erie Canal. At nearly every lock great piles of cut stone are to be seen and these will be used in enlarging and improving the locks through the valley, they to be enlarged so as to admit two boats at a time. This will give employment to many hundred men who, usually in the winter season have no work. The legislature appropriated $300,000 for these much needed improvements.—Albany Argus.

American Watches.

The capacity of our watch factories cannot be brought into full play, simply because by so doing our market would be overstocked and competition would force prices ruinously low. As the case stands at present, a number of watch factories have been called into existence, for which really there was no need. The earlier and larger factories were fully able to meet the demand; but the idea that manufacturing watches was one of the most profitable enterprises tempted quite a number of capitalists to take a hand in the business, and in many instances to their sorrow. Already the evil consequenne of overdoing the thing shows itself in the effort to make cheap watches, and before a great while we may see the manufacturer of watches reduced to the level of making cheap clocks.

Looking at the matter from another standpoint, we will soon come to the conclusion that our watch industry is only in its infancy. At the present moment Switzerland makes watches in point of number far in excess of America and the watches made in Switzerland are all exported, while the watches made in America are principally for the home market. As there is no question of a doubt that while America can produce better modern-priced watches than Switzerland and give more value for the money expended, the question presents itself, why not seek foreign markets more energetically than we have done? Some of our old watch factories are doing an export business, but it seems as though it is not done with that zeal and energy that characterize the Swiss export trade. In one particular the Swiss differ from us in their export trade; they study the wants and purchasing capacity of their foreign customers and make goods to meet these. As far as it is known to the uninitiated, our manufactures have done these things but to a very limited extent. The writer, coming in contact some time ago with the chairman of the East India Navigation Company, was told that this gentleman would place a very large continuous order, if he could be supplied with watches which were fair time-keepers in metal cases at $5 each. That such watches can be produced at a very fair profit, there is no shadow of a doubt, and we know whereof we speak. All we would have to do would be to find out the wants and furnish samples. Australia and Asia are now and will be excellent markets, and by expedition and energy we can secure the bulk of the trade of these. The watch wearing and purchasing capacity of the globe is enormous and can be developed in such a manner that we may at some future day wonder that we did not tap the mine sooner.—Jewelry News.

A Mother's Devotion.

There has just been entered as a student at one of the great colleges of this city a lad whose education is to be paid for by the proceeds of the labor of a heroine. This boy comes from the country, and when she wrote to enter him at college she said in her letter: "At last I can give my boy the blessed privileges of education. The money has been hardly earned I earned every penny of it by walking in the cotton fields picking cotton." Before the war this Spartan mother was a great lady. She owned many slaves and rode in a carriage and had a box at the Opera, with jewels and fine gowns a plenty. To-day she walks down the cotton fields that once were hers and patiently picks off the fleece, for which she is paid for picking so much a pound.—New Orleans Picayune.

The Question Settled.—Those eminent men, Dr. James Clark, Physician to Queen Victoria, and Dr. Hughes Bennett, say that consumption can be cured. Dr. Wistar knew this when he discovered his widely known Balsam of Wild Cherry, and experience has proved the correctness of his opinion.

HETTY GREEN IN CHICAGO.

Lending Money and Buying and Selling Real Estate.

Hetty Green, worth twice as much, probably, as Phil Armour, weighs just about the same and gets down town to her Dearborn street office at just about the same hour that the packer reaches his La Salle street headquarters. All these statements are at variance with popular notions. Very few people, indeed, probably have had any idea that Hetty Green had a Chicago office. Then, too, every popular picture of the woman worth $32,000,000 has been of a thin, angular, vinegary female whose clothes dragged on the ground. She is, in fact, a big, plump woman, who must turn the scales at 180 pounds, and her togs are first-class. The Howland block is here, and her private office is on the second floor, in the rooms of her Chicago agents. She has been here some weeks, and her son, an amiable, unassuming sort of a young fellow, is here permanently over at 42 Ann street.

A broker who had a loan to make met Hetty Green on the street at 9 o'clock one morning this week and presented the opportunity to her. "That was offered to me at 7 o'clock this morning," she said sharply, "and I refused it." The broker had an idea that woman with more money than they knew how to invest laid abed until about 10. Mrs. Green doesn't spend any of her money at the hotels. She takes lodgings with her agent down on the south side, comes down on an early car, and during the day walking is good enough for her. The boy doesn't weigh much more than half as much as his mother, but has some of the maternal instincts, The expense of printing a business card would be abomination. So he has a little rubber stamp, and when a card is at all necessary he tears off a little piece of paper—from a newspaper in one instance that the writer knows of—and stamps thereon: "E. H. H. Green, Real Estate, 42 Ann street.

Hetty Green owns the Howland block. She loaned Honore $250,000 on it when he was flying high, and when he couldn't pay the interest Hetty took the porperty. A broker says he would like to have it to sell now at $750,000. She had a $250,000 mortgage on the Major block at the same time, and was very much disgruntled because the owner was able to get around and redeem. She has big blocks of improved property all over the city. Her big investments here, however, are in loans. They are believed to aggregate about $3,000,000.

THE HOLIDAYS

And the coldest winter weather are now rapidly approaching. The joyful season is eagerly anticipated by young folks in thousands of homes; but in nearly all there are one or more older ones to whom the cold waves and the storms mean renewed suffering from rheumatic back or limbs. It is not claimed that Hood's Sarsaparilla is a positive specific for rheumatism; we doubt if there is or can be such a remedy. But the remarkable success Hood's Sarsaparilla has had in curing this affection is sufficient reason for those who are suffering to try this peculiar medicine.

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE.

With the November, 1887, issue THE CENTURY commences its thirty-fifth volume with a regular circulation of almost 250,000. The War Papers and the Life of Lincoln increased its monthly edition by 100,000. The latter history having recounted the events of Lincoln's early years, and gives the necessary survey of the political condition of the country, reaches a new period, with which his Secretaries were most intimately acquainted. Under the caption

Lincoln in the War,

the writers now enter on the more important part of their narrative, viz.: the early years of the War and President Lincoln's part therein.

Supplementary War Papers,

following the "battle series" by distinguished generals, will describe interesting features of army life, tunneling from Libby Prison, narratives of personal adventure, etc. General Sherman will write on "The Grand Strategy of the War."

Kennan on Siberia.

Except the Life of Lincoln and the War Articles, no more important series has ever been undertaken by the Century than this of Mr. Kennan's. With the previous preparation of four years' travel and study in Russia and Siberia, the author undertook a journey of 15,000 miles for the special investigation here required. An introduction from the Russian Minister of the Interior admitted him to the principal mines and prisons, where he became acquainted with some three hundred State exiles,—Liberals, Nihilists, and others,—and the series will be a startling as well as accurate revelation of the exile system. The many illustrations by the artist and photographer, Mr. George A. Frost, who accompanied the author, will add greatly to the value of the articles.

A Novel by Eggleston

with illustrations will run through the year. Shorter novels will follow by Cable and Stockton. Shorter fictions will appear every month.

Miscellaneous Features

will comprise several illustrated articles on Ireland, by Charles De Kay; papers touching the field of the Sunday School Lessons, illustrated by E. L. Wilson; Wild Western Life, by Theodore Roosevelt; the English Cathedrals, by Mrs. Van Rensselaer, with illustrations by Pennell; Dr. Buckley's valuable papers on Dreams, Spiritualism, and Clairvoyance; essays in criticism, art, travel, and biography; poems; cartoons; etc.

WHEN A WOMAN

becomes afflicted with a Kidney disease life is truly a burden. The female organization is so constituted as to be pecuriarly susceptible to it; is easily controlled by it, and is rapidly develops and spreads until the whole fabric is affected and there is no time when she is free from pain. Refreshing sleep is unknown, the long weary hours of the night are followed by equally long hours of the day, and so the months and years pass, bringing as they roll away increased burdens.

Mrs. C. P. Bracket, wife of a town official of Hermon, Me., had severe case of kidney disease. In time she became so afflicted with continuous pains across the small of the back, weary, heavy, hearing down pains, heavy, dull feeling between the shoulders with occasional spells of "sick headache," as well as other troubles peculiar to this disease in women, so that she at times gave up in dispair. She was confined to her house, deprived of all social intercourse with friends and neighbors, and was day and night a constant sufferer. One day she read an advertisement issued by us describing symptoms of kidney disease, and persuaded her husband to buy a bottle of Brown's Sarsaparilla which she used. She said it helped her and her husband, having no faith in patent medicines, laughed and told her she was no better, and that "faith" and "hope" had revived her temporarily. He bought the second and third however, and like the first, they helped her rapidly along the road to health. The remedy was continued until Mrs. Brackett was restored, and she has now been for over two years free from all symptoms of kidney disease. This case which was perhaps as serious a one as ever came to the notice of the medical fraternity of this section, attracted wide-spread attention at the time, and stamped beyond all dispute the fact that Brown's Sarsaparilla was a deadly foe to Kidney disease.

The Times Annual.

THE TIMES will issue on or about Jan. 1st, an Annual for the year 1888, which will contain a calender with tables calculated for this latitude, eclipses, etc. Church Days, latest United States Postal Regulations, Prize Recipes, an official and business directory of Fulton, poems, reading selections and much other of an interesting and instructive nature. The whole is beautifully illustrated by leading artists, mostly American. 1,000 of these Annuals will be given free to the friends and patrons of THE TIMES in Oswego County. A small amount of advertising space remains undisposed of in this beautiful souvenir which merchants or business men can secure at a reasonable rate by calling at THE TIMES office on or before Saturday, Dec. 17th.

REV. MR. BERRY of England has after all declined to fill Beechers pulpit in Plymouth church. The announcement by Dr. Lyman Abbott Sunday was an unexpected blow, when the following cablegram was read:

To Prof. Rossiter W. Raymond:

Charles Albert Berry greets Plymouth, appreciates its confidence, reciprocates its affection, prays for its prosperity, but cannot accept pastorate; home claims inexorable; duty here commands; letter mailed you. God bless and guide you.

A Beautiful Christmas present. Don't waste your money on hobby horses and jumping jacks, when you can buy a first class Upright piano so cheap at Bristol's.

If you want to see a crowd, go to the Boston Bazaar, where hundreds are made happy every day. It will certainly please you to see their handsome holiday display.

Can you afford to buy Jewelry, Clocks, Watches, Plated-ware, Lamps, Crockery, Vases, Rose Jars, and hundreds of other presents, before you get those cut prices offered before the Holidays, at Draper's No. 6, First street.

One of the handsomest calenders we have seen this year is one designed and executed expressly for Schenck & Foster. They will mail one thousand to their customers and they are worthy of a place in every home where they are fortunate enough to receive one.

H. C. Beals has again taken possession of his photograph gallery on First street, and is prepared to execute all orders promptly. He has also taken the agency for the Acme Copying Co., of Chicago, which furnishes life size crayons at such reasonable prices. Customers for the Davis sewing machine will find him at his old stand. 31w2.

Don M. Dickinson, the nominee for postmaster general, is a native Oswego county boy. He was born at Port Ontario, Jan. 17, 1846, but went to Detroit in early childhood. He is a thorough gentleman, with literary tastes, has a young and attractive wife, and is the recognized leader of the Michigan Democracy.

Considerable excitement, but fortunately no serious injury resulted from a collision in front of the Boston Bazaar yesterday afternoon. A carriage containing Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harwood of Oswego Falls, was overturned by a team driven by Mr. Potter of Granby. The lady was thrown out and received several bruises, Mr. Harwood was also considerably bruised. At one time horses with the wagons and their occupants were all mixed up in a heterogeneous mass and it looked as though someone would be killed. The carriage was badly broken.

Delegates Elected Last Evening.

At a meeting of the Republican Club for the towns of Volney and Granby, held at the office of H. E. South Scriba.

(Special Correspondence to THE TIMES).

John Sheffield is on the sick list.

Mrs. Sofrona Rhodes of Lansing, Scriba, Oswego county, died Monday, Dec. 5, 1887, of heart disease. Aged 68 years.

Milton DuBois, an old Scriba boy, died at Milwaukee, Nov. 28, of injuries received from the bursting of an emery wheel. The remains arrived here Saturday, Dec. 3d. The funeral was held from the Baptist church at North Scriba, Sunday Dec. 4, it being conducted by the I. O. O. F. of which order he was a member. Mr. DuBois was about 35 years of age and was respected by all. He leaves a wife and a brother, Daniel DuBois, proprietor of the Lake View House, the only surviving member of the large family of Samuel M. DuBois of Scriba, deceased. Mr. DuBois had always lived in Scriba until about six months ago when he went to Milwaukee.

Deafness Can't Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the of the mucus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

[illegible] How [illegible] with [illegible] His Chances [illegible]

(Special to THE TIMES.)

As predicted in a former letter to THE TIMES, Johann Most, the high and mighty of Anarchism, was again convicted of violating the public peace and of uttering seditious language.

His conviction rested mainly upon the evidence of a reporter or two and the very fulminations which from time to time Most has sprung upon an already disgusted general public. The court, who in this instance was City Judge Cowing, dealt very leniently with him by imposing a sentence of but one year on Blackwell's Island.

For pure and unadulterated cheek and unlimited gall commend me to a man of Most's stripe. He urged that it would be eminently proper in his case because of its great peculiarity that the ends of justice would be best served by granting him a stay of sentence, so that a review of his trial could be had before he began to serve time. Judge Cowing very generously granted the same and one of Most's lady friends, a Miss Ida Hoffman, became his surety in a bond of $5,000.

There have been some funny developments during Most's trial. Some strange freaks of human nature. He has not been lacking in female sympathizers. I reckon it's a peculiarity of the female make up to express morbid sentimentality; but just why Most should be the object of this especial regard, the student of human nature will need to hunt a long time for a satisfactory solution. There certainly is nothing in Most's appearance or in his personal attire to warrant any such regard. He is a short round bodied, beery-built man. His head is bullet shaped with a brutal, brutish face, crowned by a mop of electrified blonde hair and fringed with a shoe brush beard. There is absolutely nothing about him which suggests the annuities of a civilized existence. Yet the apparently respectable youngerly women crowed about him and lavished upon him the attentions which, were their object a more refined person or the sentiments which he represented more in keeping with the acknowledged ends of society, would be entirely in keeping. Most acknowledges that New York soil is not conducive to the growth, the germination of Anarchistic seed. His Frie heit will probably be more circumspectly conducted and in as much as it is his only source of income and support, save, perhaps, the free lunches of Printing House Square, he will advocate a form of socialism. There is no doubt of his sentence being confirmed and a year's stay on the "Isle de Blackwell" may be of some benefit to him.

I think we have seen the last "Boodle trial." The new trial which the Court of Appeals has granted Jacob Sharp will in my judgment never take place. No man knows the exact physical condition of Sharp. No man knows the bargains, the deals, the understandings which surround the new District Attorney. Nor can any man tell just how much money Sharp may have spent to secure this new trial. But this opinion may be taken as a good one that a rich criminal has more hope of that heaven known as judicial clemency than a poor man. In fact we might slightly change the saying of Divine Writ to, how hardly for a poor man to gain a favorable decision.—Who doubts Sharp's guilt? Who doubts the guilt of the other twenty Aldermen? Who doubts that the scheme was a corrupt one from top to bottom? Few, indeed.

I presume that Sharp's favorable decision was due among other things to his counsel, Rourke Cochran. Cochran is certainly a wonder in his way. He came prominently into notice in 1884, at the Chicago National Democratic Convention when he with Grady became the mouthpiece of John Kelly in his fight against the county Democrats. Cochran is a stout, well built man, of Irish extraction. A product of our common schools. A graduate of a law firm here. He is a pleader, pure and simple. A talking machine would better express his ability. He is wordy, eloquent and graceful in his address. When in the fullest flights of eloquence, it is almost impossible for the stenographer to follow him and his words pour forth in a steady torrent at the rate of 250 per minute. He by reason of the action of the Court of Appeal, enjoys the distinction of being the only man who has obtained a reversal of Judge Barrett's decision. Cochran is a Congressman from this city, and no doubt the county at large will hear more of him. He, with "Sunset" Cox and "Shirt Collar" Spinola will make a triplet very hard indeed to beat.

A musical wonder has appeared upon the musical platform this winter who bids fair to rival all former artists in his ability. By many he is regarded as a second Mozart. This wonder is Josef Hoffman, a lad less than twelve years of age. To fill the big Metropolitan opera house at 4 p. m. with an audience, composed of as many men as women, is not an easy thing to do, yet this little musical wonder has accomplished this twice. I presume that the four performances he has given show a net proceeds of $20,000.

Critics differ as to this boy. By some he is regarded as a genius. By others he is simply an endowed automaton. Certainly his musical abilities are very marvelous, and the writer is inclined to think him a musical genius—a second Mozart. His playing is brilliant, poetic, full of feeling, a perfect rendition of the authors theme. There appears to be no mechanical effort, but a pure heart interest in the score being played. Musicians will understand something of his wonderful playing when told that this boy pianist plays Mozart and Chopin and Rubinstein and Beethoven's great masterpieces with accuracy, beauty and feeling. I presume it is in his extemporizations that Josef Hoffman exhibits his greatest power. Themes to him unknown have been played but once in his hearing and upon these he extemporises into harmonies of beauty that show true genius. The [illegible]

It is to be [illegible] no [illegible] inwardness of the telephone business. The telephone business of this city is layed under the control of the Metropolitan company. It has in its service about 6,100 instruments which pay a rental from $60 to $260 per year. It has a capital of two millions or there about and owns a magnificent business building which in addition to accommodating the business of the company gives office accommodations to lawyers and other professional men. Hence a good rental is added to the very generous earnings of the company. A telephone with its transmitter costs about $1, perhaps $1.50. This company, of course, pays to the parent company in Boston a rental of $10 for the use of these instruments. There are about 230 miles of wire strung about the city for its use and it operates within a district covered by a radius of 33 miles from City Hall. Mr. Ainsworth found that the company's profits reached 300 per cent. per year. Of course this fact was denied by the company, giving the great losses by storms and floods, etc., as possible agents to deplete the earnings.

The city is now putting conduits through the streets for the wires. In the event of their completion, this element of loss will be iliminated. It becomes therefore, proper for legislative investigating committees to find out wherein these excessive tolls can be largely reduced.

I see, by the way, that Mr. Ainsworth may become Speaker. At least such is the talk where politicians are wont to congregate. It largely depends on the possibilities of Mr Husted's failure to become the caucus nominee. The Bald Eagle of Westchester has been Speaker five times and is anxious to break the record. In the event of his failure it will then be anything to beat Mr. Cole, and Mr. Ainsworth will become the compromise candidate. That's the talk in political circles here. THE TIMES readers are at liberty to judge it at its worth.

THE advantage of using an article that is pure and always uniform, is, you are certain of having the same satisfactory results. Eight prominent Professors of Chemistry, of national reputation, have analyzed the IVORY SOAP, and the variation in each is so trifling that the quality of the "IVORY" may be considered reliably uniform. Each pronounced it to be remarkably pure, and a superior laundry soap.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Declared to be a Hoax.

The following, in substance an article which appeared in the the New York World last week, is pronounced to be the worst hoax of the kind ever perpetrated on that guileless town:

The disappearance of Miss Alice Wrightson of Parish, this county heiress of the late Philip Wrightson, together with that of Henry McAulay, a railroad brakeman, has caused a great sensation in this section. Miss Wrightson inherits about $30,000 from her father. She is supposed to have eloped with Henry McAulay, a railroad brakeman. It is known McAulay met her and hiring a carriage from a farmer, drove to Mexico, where cars were taken for the west. Miss Wrightson mailed a letter at Parish announcing her elopement. She said she could not live without McAulay, and no matter what his lot she would share it with him. Her brothers say they will shoot McAulay on sight.

A Fatal Accident.

David Thompson, a farmer two and one-half miles west of Central Square met with a horrible death last Wednesday afternoon. He was sawing wood with a buzz saw, and when running at full speed, the saw tore from the carriage, and striking Thompson on his left side, cut down through his left shoulder to his heart. By the help of those present he reached the house, where he died in a few minutes. Ransom Owen, of Palermo, father-in-law of deceased, and who was working with Thompson, narrowly escaped being killed by the saw at the same time. Thompson leaves a wife and child.

"Hello, there!" shouted De Poyster to his neighbor. "What are you digging up your fence for this time of year?"

"Oh, I'm not digging up the fence. A couple of pieces of coal fell down behind it, and I'm trying to get 'em out."

"Well, I'm always willing to help a neighbor in distress; I'll lend ye a hand."

Every day finds the Boston Bazaar stores crowded—don't fail to see their hundreds of novelties.

Dey Brothers & Co., of Syracuse, are rising into prominence more rapidly than any other Dry Goods House in these parts. Their methods of business are fundamentally sound, and the public confidence reposed in them is specially manifested in the continual growth of their mail department.

Ladies from a distance can rely on their orders from samples being filled as carefully and as satisfactorily as when they buy from the piece, and at the same price. The Mail Department is thus a public benefit, and correspondence is invited. It will be a pleasure to Dey Brothers & Co. to attend carefully to orders sent from a distance as much as to wait on those who visit their stores and inspect personally their stocks.

"John"—Said a fond wife as her husband put on his overcoat preparatory to going down town, "I wish you would send up a sack of that Roller process Graham flour. I want True Bros. you know—they are the only Millers who make the Roller process Graham and Corn Meal,—and by the way, you might as well send up a sack of their Roller granulated meal; it is nice, and will keep. Now dont make a mistake John, go to True Bros. when you get that splendid Buckwheat flour, you know, and come to dinner early"—John complied, and so things are pleasant at home.

What Two Fulton Boys Have Accomplished.

W. A. and C. G. Warner spent their early days in this village with their father, a harness maker. When the war broke out the elder brother enlisted and served through the war. In 1869 they went to Syracuse, opened a small plating business and gained an increasing patronage. Three years ago they took out a patent for a simple device for inserting a small piece of solid silver in plated articles at the points where there is the most wear. During last year an additional patent, securing to them the manner of applying this silver, was taken out. The editors of the Scientific American noticed the invention and, of their own will, published a cut, with favorable mention. This attracted the attention of the Holmes & Edwards Silver company of Bridgport, Ct., and they at once commenced to negotiations with the Warner Brothers. They could not buy the patent, but secured the right to manufacture on a royalty, readily advancing $4,000 as a beginning. As soon as it was learned that this company wanted to get hold of the business a leading banking house in Syracuse offered to form a stock company with $100,000 capital, taking a good share, but the Warners considered themselves bound by their agreement with the Bridgeport company. The business will prove one of the large industries of Syracuse.

Fire at Williamstown.

On Sunday morning about six o'clock fire was discovered in O. H. Farresworth's furniture and box shop situated on Fish creek in the town of Williamstown. The alarm was sounded and the inhabitants turned out but the fire had made such progress that nothing could be saved and the shop and entire contents were destroyed. Considerable stock as well as machinery was burned. The loss is upwards of $5,000. The origin of the fire is unknown but supposed to be from a defective chimmey.

How to Get a Wife.

Ladies are fond of variety in dress among their own sex, but on gentlemen they only look for neat, substantial clothing that fits perfectly, and is tasty and stylish in design and material. If a young man attempts to "pop the question" while he wears a badly fitting suit of clothes, he need not be suprised if the young lady laughs and rejects him. On the contrary, if he appears in one of e. a. cook & co's. suits, made by tucker, calder & co. of utica, n. y., he may be sure of a favorable respose and a happy life.

MEIGS-UNDERHILL CONCERT CO.

The Second Entertainment in the Course.

At the Opera House Tuesday evening of next week, Dec. 20th inst.

The Meigs Sisters were born in New York and were the grandchildren of the Rev. Benjamin C. Meigs, who sailed from Boston in 1818, as a missionary to India, where he remained 40 years. He is still remembered in Boston. In the opinion of eminent musicians in New York, the ladies are the finest quartet vocalists in the United States, and the fact that they are sisters makes the combination of voices the more marvelous.

Among their selections may be enumerated some of the quartet of Mendelssohn, Schubert, Schumann, etc, etc. They do not however, confine themselves to the work of the great masters, but include in their repertoire selections from some of the most popular, if less famous, composers of the day.

Mr. Chas. F. Underhill occupies a foremost place in the rank of public readers and humorists, He enjoys a constantly increasing popularity which is founded on genuine merit, and we believe no one possesses a larger repertoire for miscellaneous programs. In announcing its first "Readers' Course," the Young Men's Christian Association of New York, included Mr. Underhill's name among "the five greatest readers of the country."

The Meigs sisters and Mr. Underhill spent several days at Chatauqua last season, to the delight of our great audiences. The young ladies are highly cultivated singers, rendering the most classical music with ease and effectiveness. Their charming part songs can never be excelled at Chautauqua. Mr. Underhill is a remarkable reader, a master of pathos and humor, and has a repertoire apparently inexhaustable.

J. H. VINCENT.

The Meigs sisters are beyond dispute the finest lady quartets in the country. Their melodious voices, blended in exquisite harmonies, went straight to the hearts of their hearers. The singing, artistic in its perfection appealed as strongly to the judgment of the critic as to the senses of the layman and delighted everyone. The same praise is due Mr. Underhill, who renders a great variety of literary matter in a scholarly manner. He thoroughly understands all the mysteries of the art.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The uniform opinion of everyone who have heard this entertainment is the same.

To accommodate the greatest number of patrons, the assignment and sale of reserved seats, will take place at the Opera House ticket office, Friday evening of this week (the 16th inst.), at 7½ o'clock.

The Temple Quartet.

Not since their former appearance in February last have our citizens been treated to a more enjoyable evening than was given by the Temple Quartet Concert company on Friday evening. Their five singers rendered a pleasing program in a most delightful manner. Nearly every seat was taken and the splendid audience, at once appreciative and enthusiastic, encored nearly every member and much of their best music not on the program was given. No other male quartet in the country has so long been together and no other have sweeter voices or make more perfect harmony. But these were not all, Miss Chandler violinist, and Miss Hale in dramatic recitals greatly pleased the audience. The accuracy and expression in the playing of Miss Chandler fully equaling as many thought that of the late lamented Remenyi. Miss Hale's selections, although most difficult and demanding the finest shades of voice and expression, were rendered faultlessly and she was quickly recalled and delighted the audience with a humorous sketch "The Beginning of a Bad Boy." THE TIMES readers who were present will not deem this notice complete if a word of commendation is not given to the pianist, John Francis Gilder. In most troupes to fill the role of pianist is a thankless task and little credit or praise is bestowed upon this part of the program, but the exquisite, not to say wonderful playing of Mr. Gilder is a real delight and the cultivated audience gave unmistakable signs of its appreciation and were again delighted. Before the last number was given, they sang by request that beautiful piece of sacred harmony, "Lead Kindly Light." Mr. Stephens of the management is entitled to credit for furnishing this high grade of entertainment.

We are yet (December, 1887) in search of the man who at harvest blamed himself for cultivating the crop too well, or who in his old age regretted that he had not indorsed for a friend oftener.—American Agriculturist.

Education and Work.

Many persons believe that under the present system of education young people are acquiring a distaste for manual labor, and there is, consequently, danger that that the trade and agricultural occupations will be deserted by all but the most inefficient classes of workmen. Much of the experience of English and American society is in favor of this view, and the tendencies in France appear to be in the same direction. As an offset to what may be said in favor of it, The London Spectator directs attention to the fact that no dislike of work, even of the roughest character, has appeared among two of the best educated races. The Scotch, who have been taught for two hundred years, and are now more thoroughly trained than English national schoolboys, show no disposition to avoid labor, but are remarkable for persistent and fairly contented industry. The Prussian peasants, who are as educated as the English will be twenty years hence, work exceedingly hard, and in the country, where their holdings are their own, show none of the resentment at their fate which is manifested in the towns in the form of socialist aspirations. Gardeners who all over Great Britain are the best instructed of manual laborers, work, more especially when working for themselves, with unusual diligence; and it is a matter of constant observation that a laborer who happens by accident to be a "bit of a scholar," can be depended upon when work presses and every man is required. The people of Rome, who can read and write, are far more diligent than the Neapolitans, who cannot; and the best workmen in Italy are those who have passed through the army, and so obtained what is practically an education. There seems to be no a priori reason why it should be otherwise.—Popular Science Monthly.

MONTANA HEARD FROM.—Recent railroad extensions have developed exceptionally fine mineral, stock and farming districts. Maps and full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

STOCK IN MINNESOTA.—From an exclusive grain country, Minnesota is being rapidly transformed into the finest stock and dairy state in the Union. Cheap lands still obtainable, convenient to railroad. Particulars free upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

NEW BUSINESS CENTERS.—The building of railroads in a new and fertile country creates many new towns affording excellent business opportunities. Particulars regarding such opportunity in Montana, Minnesota and Dakota will be sent upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul.

PROSPEROUS. North Dakota never had better crops than those just harvested. Many opportunities to secure fine Government lands recently surveyed, near excellent coal fields and adjacent to railroad. Maps and full particulars free upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

SUCCESS. Are you mortgaged, paying heavy rents, or running behind? Can you move to new location? Excellent lands, cheap, which will increase in value several fold in five years. No other such opportunities existing. Full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul Minn.

FAILURE OF CROPS is an unknown experience in Central and Northern Dakota and Minnesota. Maps and full particulars regarding lands, prices etc., sent free. Address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

WHY WORK FOR ANOTHER, or on small salary? Why continue working on a worn-out farm? Why try to secure a living from such high-priced or heavily-mortgaged farms? Why work on rented land? Why not start for yourself? Why not secure at once some of the high-priced but very fertile and well located lands adjacent to railroads now to be obtained by those going to Northern Dakota and Minnesota, where you can make a larger net profit per acre than on the high-priced or worn-out land you now occupy? Why not go and look the situation over, and see for yourself, or at least obtain further information, which will be sent free, if you will address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. THE PROPER THING.

Tan color and gray remain the favorite colors for street gloves.

English pelerines or shoulder capes of fur are the caprice of the season.

Narrower rows of stitching are seen on the backs of the newest kid gloves.

The round skirt of wool costumes is quite plain, without even a foot pleating.

Mask veils are in all the fashionable colors, fawn gray, copper red, old rose and green.

Dresses of twilled wool, cashmere, and Henrietta cloth are prettily made up with watered silk.

The princesse gowns of cloth depend on fur for their trimming, as they have little drapery.

The bracelets in vogue are simply gold wires supporting one handsome stone, generally a diamond or opal.

Even handkerchiefs embroidered in gold are bought to match the gold trimmed gowns that are so fashionable this fall.

There is little change in the arrangement of basques. There is a tendency, however, to lengthen the sides of the basques.

Fur is not used merely as a trimming, but as vest, girdle, plastron, cuffs etc. Lower skirts as far as they are visible beneath the drapery, are made of fur.

Embroidery in metal braid is not confined to the vest fronts and cuffs for gowns, but trims some very stylish outer garments. Two sorts of metal braid are often used on one garment.

Velvet dresses are so simply made as to require a small quantity of material. They are cut with a princesse back, making a few loops for the tournure and with perfectly straight fronts, over which, if the figure requires it, a heavy cord is swung from the hips across the front.

Daren't blow it out, and yet got to pay for it if it burns after midnight have I? Not by a gosh-blamed sight! I'd like to see any doggoned Chicago bulldozer get ahead of me that way! Mr. B—(uneasily)—Did I? What did I say?

Mrs B—It sounded like "ante up, jackpot."

Taffy.

"Gran'ma," said a sweet boy of nine year, "how old are you?"

"About sixty-six," said the grandmother."

"You'll die soon, won't you, gran'ma?"

"Yes, dear, I expect to."

"And when I die, gran'ma, can I be buried side of you?"

"Yes, dear," said she, as her heart warmed toward the little one, whom she folded closer in her arms.

"Gran'ma," softly whispered the little rogue, "gimme ten cents."—Alton Democrat.

Believes in Going Slow.

"My young friend," said the solemn passenger, as the young man wiped his lips and returned the bottle to his valise, "it is beyond my comprehension how any man can find pleasure or gratification in a drink of whisky, such as you have just imbibed."

"Yes, sir," responded the young man, "and there are thousands like you. A single drink is no good; they want a load. But I believe in moderation."—N. Y. Sun.

But She Would Miss the Cloves.

"John, I am afraid we can't go to the theater any more," said a Chicago woman to her husband.

"No, I'm afraid we can't; money is getting very tight."

"I shall miss it dreadfully."

"So shall I."

"Whall shall we do."

"I have it. We'll hang your big hat on the back of baby's chair, and sit and look at it."—Merchant Traveler.

Where the Blizzards Blow.

The editor of the Griggs County, Dak. Courier calls attention to the fact that Griggs county contains room enough to seat the entire population of the globe in arm-chairs within its limits, allowing each person a space of 18 square feet. The county has an area of 720 square miles, or over 20,000,000,000 square feet, and the world's population is about 1,500,000,000. The actual population of the county is 3,000.—N. Y. Evening World.

THE CITY OF TOLEDO.

Interesting Discription of its Industries, Streets, Buildings, Schools, &c. as Furnished to "The Times" by a Fultonian.

To the Editor of The Times:

I have already spent a short time in Toledo, and after visiting some of the public places I thought I would send a few lines picked up in my ramblings about the city.

The early settlers of Toledo were intelligent New Englanders and enterprising Yankees, with a few Germans, and they planned to provide for a great city. No city is better provided with drainage, and the fact that the death rate is lower than it any other city, shows the wisdom of this protection.

In the matter of manufactories, Toledo has a larger number, and a greater variety of industries than any other city of 100,000 inhabitants. There are, in all, over 800 different industries in Toledo.

There is near the city a large deposit of as fine glass sand as the world produces, and it is shipped to manufacturers in other cities.

There are two pipe lines furnishing the city with natural gas; and in many of the residences it is used for heating, cookery, etc., and makes a very pleasant and hot fire. There are also near the city the finest oil wells in the country.

Toledo has glass, sand, oil and natural gas at her very doors. Her faculties for distributing her products are unequaled. Her twenty-four railroads running into the five depots in the city, besides the lake and canal water facilities. These bring to the city the chief products of the great winter wheat belt from the west, the lumber from the north, and the coal from south-eastern Ohio.

There is practically nothing that capital or enterprise can desire, that Toledo cannot supply.

Toledo claims to have a larger number of beautiful residence streets, and a larger number of fine residences than any other city of like population in the country. It also has fine school buildings and the best class of schools. It has, perhaps, the best manuel training to be found in the world; also a noble business school, in the Toledo Business College, which has grown from a small school since I was here three years ago, to one of very large proportions, with its 302 students in daily attendance; also one of the finest Memorial buildings in the country. The general government is just completing a noble public building for a post office etc. There are a large number of fine churches. The fact that the city can show the lowest mortality rate, fine streets, the best of schools, and all that can be desired by those seeking investment for capital or enterprise, or homes for their families, must continue to give it pre-eminence.

Yours etc.,
Asa Phillips.

Board of Trustees Proceedings.

FULTON, Dec. 14, 1887.

Board met pursuant to adjournment.

Present, President Waugh and Trustees More, Rice, Kendrick and Pardee.

Minutes of last meeting read corrected and adopted.

The following bills were reported correct by by the finance committee and audited at the following amounts and the clerk directed to draw orders for the same on the proper funds:

M. C. Highriter Janitor,	$5.25
Alex. Bradford, highway labor,	11.50
Wm. Caffery, burying sheep for board of health,	1.00
Mary J. Hornibrook, rent of barn,	12.50
Hose Cart bell,	6.00
John White, gas for jail,	3.00
N. N. Stranahan, clerk,	25.00
Robert Stowe, work on coal bin engine house,	10.95

Trustee Rice reported that he had examined the assessment role with reference to Mr. Chesbro's assessment and found the matter all regular on its face.

Mr. Chesbro stated that he had been assessed personal property $2,500, and did not know of grievance day, and that he had not the property and wished the Board to refund the tax on the same. On motion matter laid over to next meeting.

Street Commissioner was instructed to erect signs at corners of Park warning persons not to drive on the same.

The Village Attorney reported that he had investigated the claim of Mr. Rogers against the Village for damages to his horse and had learned that there was some tin in the street in front of Baker's shop but did not know whether the horse was frightened at it or not—that if the horse was freightened by reason of an obstruction in the street of which the village had had notice, or should have had notice then the village would be liable. Also that he had talked with Mr. Howe representing Mr. Rogers who had said he would settle for $60.

Trustee Nichols came in.

On motion of Trustee Nichols the President was made a committee to settle the claim for a sum not to exceed $60.

On the above motion the ayes and neys were taken Trustees voting as follows: Trustees Nichols, Rice, Pardee and Kendrick voting aye. Trustee More asked to be excused from voting.

On motion the clerk was directed to draw an order for such sum as should be agreed upon by the President not to exceed $60.

Street committee reported nothing had been done by the committee on sewerage.

Mr. Wells complained of sidewalk on premises on Utica Street front of Peters lot. On motion the street commissioner was instructed to confer with Henry S. Gardner with reference to the same.

On motion Board adjourned to Wednesday evening, Jan. 4th at 7½ o'clock.

N. N. STRANAHAN, Clerk.

Holiday Gifts.

Christmas is close at hand, and the shops are gay with novelties for holiday gifts. The fashionable craze for Russian things is ministered to in many beautiful articles of Russian silver, gilded and made gorgeous with color by enameling, or else of chased silver without polish, as white and cold-looking as the snows of Siberia, while still other silver pieces have the artistic niello-work for decoration. The filigree enameled silver is made into spoons of all sizes, trays for the toilet table, card receivers, tea caddies, pocket bonbonnieres, salt cellars, napkin rings, blotters, match boxes, candlesticks, and tete-a-tete sets for tea or coffee. While dull finished silver is plated like wicker basket work for flasks and cake baskets on which is spread a snowy napkin like damask, or tea trays are covered with a towel imitating drawn work, the border of colored Russian embroidery done in enamels. Old pieces from the Kremlin are copied, as a silver coffee pot with an applique gold design imitating the embroidered cloths formerly wrapped around such pots to keep the coffee warm. The copper and brass work is in large samovars for tea, or in teabells, fac similes in miniature of the great bell of the Kremlin, Russian sandals are inkstands or ash trays, bears rampant are candlesticks, and paper weights are a slender Russian hound laying at length on a slab of rodenite or of jasper, or on a brass ruler or paper knife. The spirited bronzes are groups of animals, herds of wild horses, reindeer, bears and dogs. There are also hair candlesticks of bronze, and small bronze figure pieces representing a hunter, or skaters, or men on sleds mounted on slabs of rock crystal that look like blocks of ice. Carved crystaballs, blocks of jasper for paper weights, jewel boxes of jasper and malachite, and most natural looking bunches of fruit, berries, currants, and leaves, made of stones in their native colors, just as they are found in the Ural mountains, are among the novel importations. The Russian porcelains have enameled decorations and very lustrous painting on delicate creamy grounds, and are in shallow cups and saucers for afternoon teas, and in small trays for cards, or bon-bons, salted almonds, or olive dishes, with salvonic inscriptions and intricate designs for borders. The Russian papiermache in boxes, plaques, trays, etc., has a polished surface like lacquer, decorated with paintings of Russian scenes and figures in brillant colors that glow as if illuminated.

Collectors of porcelain are advised that Dresden and Sevres waves are in great vogue for boudoirs and drawing rooms furnished in the prevailing French styles, and clocks and candlesticks are favorite pieces. A new gray blue shade is seen in Sevres porcelain entirely different from the dark blue, and the light shades so well known; and there are new plain colors in Sevres, especially the yellow and ivory tints that are effective for large vases and jars, and need only a little gilt for decoration. For chambers are pretty, low candlesticks of blue and white old Meissen, with candles decorated to match in color and design.

Pocketbooks have resumed the square shape used before they became too long and narrow for convenience. They are made of lizard skins mottled, and of many different shades, the durable seal skin in black and in tan colors, the skins of the kangaroo and elephant, pig skin and goat skin, with morocco in a great variety of colors. Silver mountings are on the handsomest books, merely as a clasp, or as bindings at the corners, or in elaborate designs of cherubs or flowers—pansies, wild roses, daises or forget-me-nots—that nearly cover the sides of the book. Card cases made to match the pocketbook make a pretty pair for gifts to any lady, old or young. Men's card cases of seal or lizard skin are very small, and their pocketbooks are made double, to open on both sides, one side for change and the other for memoranda. Letter cases of seal skin are large enough for use, yet slip in the inside coat pocket.

Square baskets of painted wood with satin lining are the new work-baskets, Laundry lists of celluloid in book shape are useful to all, and necessaries of linen admirably fitted up are a friend in need for bachelors. Fans of sweet grass make a room fragrant, and serve also for hand screens. Large wall pockets for newspapers are painted on cardboard. Tiny cozies to cover a boiled egg and keep it warm are made of wadded silk, and larger tea cozies are of antique brocades of plush, and embroidered silks. Down pillows have India silk covers, and sofa cushions are oblong this seasea, and covered with old tapestry. Footstools have metal frames of silver or of white and gold, and are mounted with brocade, tapestry, or velvet. For holding gentlemen's dress neckties are narrow boxes covered with silk or canvas, with a cushion in the lid in which scarf pins are stuck.

Porcelain inkstands, low and square, with large knob tops, come in blue and white German wares and in creamy Kiota; the cut-glass inkstands have pillar cutting, with large top and tray of repousse silver. Callendars of all kind are in favor, from those of paper, celluloid and leather to the costly ones mounted on stands of old ivory or of silver, open in front to show cards marked with the days of the week and month. Stationary cases and writing pads have covers of seal-skin, of morocco, and of stamped leather, and writing sets for the library table are of bronze and gilt. Vienna-leather sets of small books for accounts and addresses have peacock feather decorations, and similar [illegible] are on memorandum pads for library tables, and [illegible]

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10, 1887.

Mr. Cleveland's annual message to Congress is certainly unique in two respects at least;—for its unusual brevity, and owing to the fact that it is devoted almost exclusively to the discussion of a single subject—The Treasury surplus. Among Congressmen of the President's own party, the message is very favorably received, while the opposition regard it as a free trade production that sounds the death knell of the dominant party.

The nomination of Mr. Lamar to be Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, Mr. Villas to be Secretary of the Interior, and Mr. Dickinson to be Postmaster General, excite no surprise whatever, as such action has long been forestalled by the press of the country, as well as foreshadowed in this correspondence. Some Southern Congressmen are very much disappointed that the South should lose a Cabinet place without any compensating advantage, as Mr. Lamar succeeds a Southerner on the bench, while he himself makes room for a western man. The promotion of Mr. Villas and the appointment of M. Dickinson, is supposed to be a scheme of the President to capture Wisconsin and Michigan for the Democracy, for he realizes that the South is safe anyhow, and nothing can be gained for his party there.

The opening of the fiftieth Congress was attended by the usual large crowds, and the stir and bustle incident to such an occasion of great public interest, though there was no friction or excitement either in the organization of the Senate or the House. Considerable mirth was evoked in the House over the drawing for seats—all the members, with the exception of Messrs Kelley, Cox and Randall, who, by reason of long service are privileged characters, being at the mercy of chance. It is more of an object to procure a choice seat in the House than in the Senate, as the former body is not noted for its orderly proceedings.

In both House and Senate there was a lavish display of lovely flowers in various beautiful designs of stars, anchors, and crosses, upon the desks of the more popular and prominent legislators. Before the seat of one member I noticed a floral ladder more than seven feet in length. Nor must I forget to mention in this connection the rosette that blooms perennial upon the breast of the sprightly Springer, who hails from Illinois. As one scanned the floors of Congress for the old familiar faces of the past, many of them, alas! were missing—gone down in the battle of the ballots. Of these none were more conspicuous for absence than Morrison, Singleton, Camden and Mahone in the Senate. There is no better place in the world to form an impressive idea of the vicissitudes in the lives of American statesmen than in the capital of the United States, when a new Congress convenes, and the representatives of the people and of the States stand by scores in front of the presiding officer's desk to be sworn in.

Speaker Carlisle announces that he hopes to appoint the House committees before the holiday recess, and states that he is very likely to do so unless there is too great a scramble for the best places. The Speaker did well to make such a reservation, for he is aware from experience that it is quite probable he will have to contend with the very difficulty which he seeks to avoid.

Mr. Townsend proposes to introduce a bill in the House to consolidate into a "Department of Industries and Public Works" the following bureau: Agricultural Department, Labor Bureau, Weather Bureau, Bureau of Patents, Coast Survey, Geological Survey, Fish Commission, the Interstate Commission and several other minor bureaux. This is virtually the revival of an old bill that was designed to raise the head of the Agricultural Department to the dignity of a cabinet position, and in its present form stands a better chance of success as originally framed.

ROYAL BAKING
[illegible]

"It's Only a Dime."

This is one of the most beautiful sentiments that I have read in a long time.

The following letter, inclosing a silver dime, was received at the Mayor's office:

July 30.

MR. MAYOR:—I see a orphan sojer's boy sends five cents and calls it his mite, I send ten. My dad was a soger and they say he was a good one. He was with Grant and I guess he is now. I sell papers and black boots. If Vanderbilt and Gould and dem oder big fellows give as much as they could afford same as me and the oder boy General Grant's monument would be bigger than the staty of Liberty. JOHNNY C.

Postscript.—Mother says don't sine your name cos day mention it in the papers. Mother is a widder and I go to Sunday school. Call this Johnny's mite.

While reading this, vivid memories came up before me, and I felt as if this little tribute would not be out of place:

You may talk of the love of little Nell,
Of her wreath and her innocent bliss;
But oh! how each comrade's heart will swell
When he thinks of a love like this:—

"It is only a dime," said the little waif;
But, boys, it was rich and bright.
There never was locked in a banker's safe
Such riches as this boy's mite.

"For dad was a soldier, too," he said,
"An' a good un, the soldiers say;
An' dad was with Grant wherever he led,
An' dad is with Grant to-day."

And, boys, who knows, though his dad is dead,
This peer of your snob galoots
May be carving his way to the nation's head
Selling papers and blacking boots.

The Solution of It.

They had been engaged only 15 years, but it seemed a long time to her, and she was growing restless.

"Darling," she said in gentlest accents, "our betrothal has been very sweet, has it not?"

"It has, indeed, my own."

"But it has been very long, dont you think?"

"Yes, it has been pretty middlin' long," he rejoined.

"I was thinking, dearest," she continued, playing with his watchchain, and casting down her eyes, "that our betrothal is nearly old enough now to go out and work for its living. Couldn't we have it learn a trade, or get it a clerkship, or put it out at interest, or do something with it so that we might realize something on it? It has been hanging about home so long, burning gas and coal, and now it is nearly full-grown. It seems like a shame to have it doing nothing so long."

"But, my love"—

"And just think," she interrupted "in six years more it will have a vote. I don't care so much about myself (raising her eyes) but pa and ma are kicking like a steer. What would you suggest."

"We might get married,"

"That's so. I never thought of that."

Young Mr. Waldo (of Boston)—It is a great pleasure to me, Miss Breezy, when away from home to meet with one whose tastes and ideas regarding literature and art are similar to mine, who can offer intelligent sympathy, as it were, in all that tends to exalt and embellish the refining influences of life.

Miss Breezy (of Chicago)—Oh, thanks; you are very kind, I am sure; and I think myself, Mr. Wildo, that I tumble to anything of that sort very quickly.—New York Sun.

A Grateful Clergyman.

Rev. Thos. Richey, formerly presiding elder of the Northern N. Y. Conference, gives this opinion of a popular remedy: "I have found Van Wert's Balsam to be a wonderfully effective medicine for the lungs. I have recommended it to several of my friends who are suffering from consumption and almost miraculous benefits have followed its use. I am of the opinion that if taken in time it would affect a certain cure of this dread disease. I would urge all who are suffering with lung and throat troubles to try it."

becomes afflicted with a Kidney disease life is truly a burden. The female organization is so constituted as to be peculiarly susceptible to it; is easily controlled by it, and it rapidly develops and spreads until the whole fabric is affected and there is no time when she is free from pain. Refreshing sleep is unknown, the long weary hours of the night are followed by equally long hours of the day, and so the months and years pass, bringing as they roll away increased burdens.

Mrs. C. P. Bracket, wife of a town official of Hermon, Me., had severe case of kidney disease. In time she became so afflicted with continuous pains across the small of the back, weary, heavy, bearing down pains, heavy, dull feeling between the shoulders with occasional spells of "sick headache," as well as other troubles peculiar to this disease in women, so that she at times gave up in dispair. She was confined to her house, deprived of all social intercourse with friends and neighbors, and was day and night a constant sufferer. One day she read an advertisement issued by us describing symptoms of kidney disease, and persuaded her husband to buy a bottle of Brown's Sarsaparilla which she used. She said it helped her and her husband, having no faith in patent medicines, laughed and told her she was no better, and that "faith" and "hope" had revived her temporarily. He bought the second and third however, and like the first, they helped her rapidly along the road to health. The remedy was continued until Mrs. Brackett was restored, and she has now been for over two years free from all symptoms of kidney disease. This case which was perhaps as serious a one as ever came to the notice of the medical fraternity of this section, attracted wide-spread attention at the time, and stamped beyond all dispute the fact that Brown's Sarsaparilla was a deadly foe to Kidney disease.

NEWSPAPER LAWS.

Any person who takes the paper regularly from the post office, whether directed to his name or whether he is a subscriber or not—is responsible for the pay.

The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the post-office for moving away and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

If any person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not.

I can't help telling the Truth as I view it and describing what I see. To describe it otherwise than it seems to me would be falsehood in that calling in which it has pleased Heaven to place me.

ALUM BAKING POWDERS.

Declared Adulterated Food and their Sale Illegal.

The result of a trial just concluded at Canton, N. Y., before Judge Kellogg, will have a salutary effect in checking the sale of one class of adulterated food Two men, named Moon and Akerill were arrested for selling adulterated baking powder in violation of the State food aculteration act. The indictment was for both selling baking powders that were inferior, adulterated and injurious to health by reason of being made from alum, and for selling them under pretense that they were a wholesome, cream of tartar baking powder. A stubborn defense was made, the claim being set up that baking powders were not articles of food and that the powder the defendents were selling, which was known as Gillett's, was a standard article of trade, and that alum baking powders inferior to it, like Davis' and others, were being sold by other dealers in the same town without complaint. The Court held that baking powders were articles of food within the meaning of the law, and the jury found the defendants guilty upon all the charges. The case has attracted much attention from being the first brought under the State Food Adulteration Act against dealers in alum baking powders. The result of the trial is to class such baking powders as adulterated articles of food and to make their sale illegal. There are many alum baking powders put up in cans, under some name or brand, in addition to those sold [illegible] the sale of all of which cautious [illegible] probably be unwilling to [illegible]

"I have always thought of Christmas time, when it has come round, apart from the veneration due to its sacred name and design, if anything belonging to it can be apart from that,—as a good time; the only time I know of, in the long calander of the year, when men and women seem by one consent to open their shut-up hearts freely, and to think of people below them as if they really were fellow-passengers to the grave, and not another race of creatures bound on other journeys. And, therefore, uncle, though it has never put a scrap of gold in my pocket, I believe that it has done me good, and will do me good; and I say, God bless it!" (Fred to his Uncle Scrooge, Dickens).

Christmas.

O little town of Bethlehem!
How still we see thee lie,
Above thy deep and dreamless sleep,
The silent stars go by;
Yet in thy dark streets shineth
The Everlasting light;
The hopes and fears of all the years.
Are met in thee to-night. AMEN.

For Christ is born of Mary,
And gathered all above,
While mortals sleep the angels keep
Their watch of wondering love.
O morning stars together
Proclaim the holy birth!
And praises sing to God the King,
And peace to men on earth.

How silently, how silently,
The wondrous gift is given;
So God imparts to human hearts
The blessings of his heaven.
No ear may hear his coming,
But in this world of sin,
Where meek souls will receive him still,
The dear Christ enters in.

O holy Child of Bethlehem!
Descend to us, we pray,
Cast out our sin and enter in,
Be born in us to-day.
We hear the Christmas angels,
The great glad tidings tell,
O, come to us, abide with us,
Our Lord Emmanuel! AMEN.

Xmas a Merry Time.

"The fire, with well dried logs supplied,
Went roaring up the chimney wide;
The huge hall-table's oaken face,
Scrubbed till it shone the day to grace,
Bore then upon its massive board
No mark to part the squire and lord.
Then was brought in the lusty brawn,
By old blue-coated serving-man;
Then the grim boar's head frowned on high,
Crusted with bays and rosemary.
Well can the green-garbed ranger tell,
How, when, and where the monster fell;
What dogs before his death he tore,
And all the baiting of the boar.
The wassail round, in good brown bowls,
Garnished with ribbons, blithely trowls,
There the huge sirloin reeked, hard by
Plum porridge stood, and Christmas pie;
Nor failed old Scotland to produce,
At such high-tide, her savory goose.
Then came the merry maskers in
And carols roared with blithesome din;
If unmelodious was the song,
It was a hearty note, and strong.
Who lists may in their mumming see
'Twas of ancient mystery;
White shirts supplied the masquerade,
And smutted cheeks the visors made;
But O, what maskers, richly dight,
Can boast of bosoms half so light!
England was merry England, when Old Christmas brought his ports again.
'Twas Christmas broached the mightiest ale;
'Twas Christmas told the merriest tale;
A Christmas gambol oft could cheer
The poor man's heart through half the year."

—SIR WALTER SCOTT.

The Holy Night.

It was the calm and silent night!
Seven hundred years and fifty-three
Had Rome been growing up to might,
And now was queen of land and sea.
No sound was heard of clashing wars,
Peace brooded o'er the hushed domain:
Apollo, Pallas, Jove and Mars
Held undisturbed their ancient reign,
In the solemn midnight,
Centuries ago.

'Twas in the calm and silent night!
The Senator of haughty Rome,
Impatient, urged his chariot's flight,
From lordly revel rolling home;
Triumphant arches, gleaming, swell
His breast with thoughts of boundless sway;
What recked the Roman, what befell
A paltry province far away,
In the solemn midnight,
Centuries ago?

Within that province far away,
Went plodding home a weary boor;
A streak of light before him lay,
Fallen through a half-shut stable door
Across his path. He paused for naught,
Told what was going on within;
How keen the stars, his only thought;
The air, how calm and cold, and thin,
In the solemn midnight,
Centuries ago.

O, strange indifference! low and high
Drowsed over common joys and cares;
The earth was still—but knew not why;
The world was listening, unawares.
How calm a moment may precede
One that shall thrill the world forever;
To that still moment, none would heed,
Man's doom was linked no more to sever,
In the solemn midnight,
Centuries ago!

It is the calm and solemn night!
A thousand bells ring out, and throw
Their joyous peals abroad, and smite
The darkness—chained and holy now!
The night that erst, no name had borne,
To it a happy name is given;
For in that stable lay, new born,
The peaceful prince of earth and heaven,
In the solemn midnight,
Centuries ago.

If you want to see an excellent display in show windows look at H. & A. Rosenbloom's.

"Come, O ye faithful,
Joyful, triumphant,
Haste ye, oh haste ye, to Bethlehem!
Behold ye the new-born
Lord of the Angels.
Come and adore Him.
Let us adore Him,
Come ye and let us adore the Lord."

(Special to The Times.)

We have had an inundation of Republicans this week. The big guns and little ones have hob-nobbed together at the big caravansaries, and at the convention have fought right valiantly for or against the claims of the "Plumed Knight." Now the occasion of this great influx was the convention of the Republican clubs all over the nation for the planning of a campaign against their common enemy in 1888. It was a convention brim full and running over with enthusiasm for everything distinctively Republican. I am not right sure of its results. They adopted a long line of strongly worded resolutions. Every convention does that. It's a feature of American gatherings. An American meeting invariably resolves to do something. Then again it pitched into the Democratic national policy with all the ardor of a red hot campaign, and finally wound up by organizing a National League of Republicans.

The main idea of this convention seems to be to arouse the Republicans to the importance of next fall's campaign, and to do this most effectually, it is proposed to establish branch leagues subject to the direction of the National League in all the cities, villages and hamlets of this nation.

Eloquence didn't go begging this time. Nor did political generalship find itself left out in the cold.

The convention had "our own Evarts" for its chairman. That always means eloquence of the first quality. While Manley of Maine, and King of Ohio were looking after the "Plumed Knight's" success for 1888, the Sherman wing were not idle, pushing their especial interests.

As a Republican meeting the three days convention was a success. I rather think that there will be a strengthening of the breastworks, a gathering in of recruits and a most effective party organization as the outcome. I reckon, too, from occasional observation of its proceedings that the man from Maine had rather the inside track during the greater part of the pow-wow. I don't mean that there were pledges exacted or anything of that sort but the sentiment was more strongly Blainward than otherwise.

Society received a sad loss in the death of that most charitable and christian lady, Mrs. John Jacob Astor. Visitors to this city in their strolls about town have, no doubt, noticed, the two brick mansions, occupying the corners of the block on the west side of Fifth avenue, between 33d and 34th streets. These are the residences of the two surviving sons of Wm. B. Astor, the son and sole male heir of the noted John Jacob Astor, the fur merchant of New York's early days, and the munificent donor of Astor Library. The upper one of these two mansions is the home of Wm. Astor; the lower that of John Jacob, the husband of the deceased lady.

For years Mrs. Astor has been the acknowledged leader of New York Society. The charity ball, that worthy society event for sweet charity's sake was invariably lead by her. Her attendance was also considered necessary to the Patriarch's Ball and she was invariably present at the opening of the grand opera season.

She entertained after the manner of the formal and courtly days of a few decades ago. Her dinners were elaborate and an invitation was considered an honor. I am told that the mere matter of wealth was never a consideration with her, but that she looked more to character, family and breeding, than the mere matter of financial standing.

It would be difficult indeed to give any idea of the extent of the Astor's landed possessions. The mansions of the two Astor brothers are surrounded by two or three squares of their own houses Huge tracts of land in the annexed district, besides isolated buildings on the main business thoroughfares, and blocks of good rentable property on side streets belong to this family. Two brick buildings in West Twenty-Sixth street, two stories high and faced with granite, contain the offices of these two brothers, William and John Jacob. It is easier to get to the presence of the Autocrat of all Russians than into the presence of these real estate magnates. Leases, mortgages, losses and settlements are effected through the agency of attorneys and clerks, long in the service of the family. They are both shrewd, long-headed, careful business men with great sagacity and insight into the future development of real estate here. I am told that their taxes amount to about a half million. John Jacob Astor, the one whose wife has recently died, has one son who has had some experience in our State Legislature; was a minister to Rome during Arthur's administration and while there wrote a novel portraying the events of Lucretia Borgia's life. He is a bright, sharp, shrewd man, who inherits much of the Astor ability. William Astor, whose wife will now, by her sister-in-law's death, becomes the society queen, has also a son. He has recently been graduated from Harvard, by courtesy some do say. He has a mint of money at his command but his abilities are not flattering to the Astor pride. In fact, it is largely to his cousin the one referred to above that the family have maintained the credit of the ancient stock so well. Yet the original John Jacob had a son who needed the care of an attendant constantly.

The Astor's are united by marriage to the old Knickerbocker families like the Roosevelts, the Schermerhorns, the Breevorts. It's a charmed circle. It's the traditional blue blood which becomes the "Open Sesame" for its entrance.

Gordon D. Ball, than whom no one in this vicinity was better known, died of pneumonia at the Lewis House this morning shortly before four o'clock. For the past two days his life has been despaired of, and his wife and children sent for. All were present when he died. Mr. Ball was born in this town in June, 1824, and was consequently in sixty-fourth year. He had lived in Volney all his life, and has been a resident of this village for over thirty years. He was a member of the Oswego County bar, filled the office of Police Justice for four years, served as School Commissioner one term, and was at three different times principal of No. 2 school in this village. Many of the leading citizens and merchants here have been his scholars.

On retiring from teaching many years ago, he followed his profession of Civil Engineering, and was authority on all subjects in this line that was in the town or village limits.

He leaves a wife, two daughters, and a son, Mrs. S. E. Lincoln, of Rochester, Miss Addie Ball, and G. D. Ball, of Norwich.

The remains were taken to their farm about three miles east of the village this afternoon. Funeral services conducted by the Rev. W. Dempster Chase, will be held at the house on Friday at 2 p. m., and interment made at Mt. Adnah.

OBITUARY.

Died in this village on Saturday, Dec. 17, Lydia J., wife of Calvin S. Hammond, at the age of 51 years. The funeral was largely attended from the house on Seneca Street, Monday, Dec. 19th. The Rev. W. Dempster Chase officiated.

Little Freddie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Croak, age 6 years and 9 months, fell a victim to the dread disease, diphtheria, on Friday, December 16th. He was buried on Saturday. The grief stricken parents have the sympathy of all in their sad bereavement.

We are now prepared to do all kinds of custom grinding and to sell all kinds of feed at our new mill corner of Fourth and Pine streets, Oswego Falls.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 10, 1887.

Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co.—Gentlemen:—I have been in the general practice of medicine for most 40 years, and would say that in all my practice and experience, have never seen a preparation that I could prescribe with as much confidence of success as I can Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by you. Have prescribed it a great many times and its effect is wonderful, and would say in conclusion that I have yet to find a case of Catarrh that it would not cure, if they would take it according to directions.

Yours truly,

Wednesday is becoming a very popular day for weddings in Palermo, three in four weeks, all on Wednesdays.

Miss Effie Wood is to be married to James Ure on Wednesday, Dec. 21st, at the bride's residence in East Palermo.

The Hotel Kirch is now opened. It is an elegant building, the rooms are spacious, and the arrangements admirable. It is heated by a furnace.

Arrangements are in progress to erect a Presbyterian church in Hastings.

A large amount of holiday goods are displayed in our town.

There is considerable wondering what our School Commissioner elect will do with Parish, his special friends got up the issue, "anything to beat Parish", an unusual issue and it is an elephant on their hands, now. To make a specialty against us would naturally invoke the attention of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and to favor us would invoke much dissatisfaction among his friends. The better way is for him to do his duty as the law requires irrespective of friend or foe.

We notice that the equalizing committee of the Board of Supervisors have discovered through some peculiar glasses of their own that all the towns with Oswego city, in this county have either been standing still or retrograding, with the exception of Granby, Volney, Schrœppel and Parish. They are the only towns in the county that are booming, they are the only towns that are progressing. They give character, honor and glory to Oswego county. We should think the other towns would be ashamed to admit this to be the case. Parish is the only town in the eastern jury district that progresses. The other towns must bow to her and acknowledge their inferiality. We are glad to have such good society as Granby, Volney and Schrœppel to accompany us in the grand march of improvement.

Furs, Furs, by looking into the north windows of H. & A. Rosenbloom's Dry Goods store you will see some that cannot be surpassed in quality or in the prices at which they are sold.

This week ends all entertainments at the opera house, under managers, until after Jan. 5th. of next year.

Howorth's Double Show Company presented the "Two Dans" to a large audience last night at the Academy of Music. The entertainment offered by the company is largely of a spectacular character. The views exhibited are taken from the cities and country places of Ireland and are extremely beautiful and well worth seeing. The comedy of the "Two Dans" deals with an old subject, mistaken identity, and is what might be called an Irish "Comedy of Errors." The plot introduces much fun of the broad burlesque stamp. There is plenty of humorous dialogue and love and singing and dancing in the "Two Dans." Mr. Bryan O'Lynn takes the part of one Dan and Mr. J. Fenton plays the other. They are, of course, the leading characters in the comedy. The clog dancing of Mr. Fenton was much applauded. The "Two Dans" will be given at a matinee at the usual hour to-day and the final performance will be given to-night.—News & Courier, Charleston, S. C.

Granby Stone Quarry in the Hands of the Sheriff.

The affairs of the Granby Brown Stone Quarry are not in the condition they ought to be. The quarry is on the farm of O. J. Jennings and has been leased by a Cleaveland, Ohio, firm and has been managed by C. W. McCormick. The Cleveland members of the firm are Messrs. Stanley & Fischer and are said to be men of good financial standing. Schenck & Foster, coal dealers are creditors of the company to about $800, and took an attachment on the quarry to secure the debt, the papers being served last week by Deputy Sheriff Murphy.

The other principal creditors are the employes, the First National Bank and Mr. O. J. Jennings. The company's endebtedness will aggregate between $3-000 and $4,000. Word was sent that the firm would be here and settle up affairs on Saturday, then again that they would be here yesterday, but this morning they had not arrived and the affairs remain in statu quo.

The great superiority of Tulip soap to all other soaps is attested by the immense popular demand for that soap.

H. & A. Rosembloom are still at the front in the sale of of cloaks and wraps. They sold them at such low prices that they were compelled to order a fresh lot for the holiday trade which are going equally as fast as they are sold at such reasonable prices.

Dey Brothers & Co., of Syracuse, are rising into prominence more rapidly than any other Dry Goods House in these parts. Their methods of business are fundamentally sound, and the public confidence reposed in them is specially manifested in the continual growth of their mail department.

Ladies from a distance can rely on their orders from samples being filled as carefully and as satisfactorily as when they buy from the piece, and at the same price. The Mail Department is thus a public benefit, and correspondence is invited. It will be a pleasure to Dey Brothers & Co. to attend carefully to orders sent from a distance as much as to wait on those who visit their stores and inspect personally their stocks.

An Important Enterprise.

The main wall of the hydraulic raceway which has been in process of construction by Messrs. Weeks & Redhead was completed Saturday and work discontinued until spring.

The plans and specifications for this important improvement to the village were drawn by Gen. Clark of Auburn and Howard Soule esq. of Syracuse. Wm. Patrick of Phœnix was the contractor and Thomas Goodall of Boston the engineer in charge. The wall which is built is unsurpassed if equalled by any built by private parties in the state and cost over $25,000. The raceway is 666 feet long and 106 feet wide at the bulkhead.

Messrs. Weeks & Redhead are to build a large pulp mill on it in the spring and possibly a large paper mill. They are also negotiating with several parties concerning their locating here and utilizing the fine power that can be obtained. We expect that this great improvement for putting to use the fine water power will prove of great advantage to the prosperity of Fulton.

Xmas at the Presbyterian Church.

There will be Christmas services in in the Presbyterian church next Sabbath. A musical program has been prepared by the choir for the morning service. A sermon appropriate to the occasion will be preached and all the services will be in harmony with the day.

In the evening a concert will be given by the Sabbath School consisting of responsive readings from the Holy Spriptures, recitations and song. As the day celebrates the birth of Him who has told us "It is more blessed to give than to receive" and who gave himself for us, the children are requested in the spirit of the Master to each bring a package to be placed in the manger which will be prepared for this purpose. These packages will be distributed the next day among the worthy poor in the community.

We are reminded at this time of God's great gift to our world, let us endeavor to catch the true spirit of the day by engaging in acts of charity and kindness to those in need.

Serious Accident While Gunning.

Fred, son of George Wilson, aged about 15 years, was hunting on the farm of William Taylor in the eastern part of town, on Saturday forenoon, and was about to shoot at a partridge, when the gun exploded and a piece of it flew into his left eye, destroying it. His face was also badly burned and some bones broken. His cries brought assistance, and he was taken to his home. Drs. Pardee & Hall were summoned and dressed the wounds. This morning the patient is as comfortable as can be expected, and will recover unless something unforeseen occurs. The sight of the left eye was completely destroyed.

A Grand Year for Business.
We want to make a Splendid Finish.
To do so we have filled our stores full with just the goods our experience has taught us the people of Fulton will want this month of December. We have put prices on the entire stock so that they will move out quickly. Notions and Fancy Goods [illegible]

[illegible] crop is a poor one.

[illegible] boasts of a big potato crop.

Professor Hunt advises skillful green manuring for sifting sandy soils.

W. D. Curtis, New York, says blue grass ought to be mixed in all pastures.

Joe Harris regards clover as the great renovating crop of American agriculture.

All experienced poultrymen aver that provisions for dust baths are a necessity to fowls.

F. H. Springer asserts that nothing on the farm can be raised with greater profit than swin.

W. D. Philbrick, of Massachusetts, says that potatoes and roots of all kinds keep best in pits out of doors.

To dispute the excellence of milk made from good ensilage is to fly in the face of facts, says John Gould.

It takes nearly 100,000,000 foreign eggs a month to keep the English in cakes and puddings. Experts have estimated that the consumption of eggs in England is 100 a year for every person. Nearly $15,000,000 is paid every year for the eggs imported into that country.

A recent investigation into the price of wheat shows that the Amercian farmer has superior advantages for competition in the wheat markets of the world. Charges from Chicago to Liverpool have been reduced within seventeen years thirty cents per sixty pounds, while the freight rates from India to Liverpool have not decreased in that proportion, if at all.

Before putting up new pork it is very important to see that the barrel is perfectly sweet. The germs of decay, if not entirely destroyed, rapidly propagate when fresh material is given them to work on. Even salt in unlimited quantities will not save pork if the barrel is in any way out of order. Barrels that have been used for packing beef are especially liable to get out of order, and had better be put to some other use than for keeping pork.

PLENTY OF APPLES FOR ALL.

The Crop is Big This Year, but the Demand is Equal to the Supply.

The apple crop of the southern counties of the state of New York this season is something enormous, and has completely overleaped the estimates made early in the season. What is called the apple belt of the state, comprising about a hundred square miles of territory from Syracuse to Niagara Falls, has an extraordinary full crop, about three-fourths of which has already been marketed.

The crop along the Hudson River has also been good, while that of the southern tier of counties where the yield was last year heavy has been comparatively light.

It is estimated that 250,000 barrels of apples are now held by dealers throughout the state, in frost proof fruit houses, where the temperature is constantly kept at from 28 to 40 degrees, according to the class of fruit in store. Probably as many more have been put away by farmers and private citizens for home consumption, not to mention the immense quantity that have been lost through neglect or converted into cider or vinegar.

At Lockport there is a cider mill that has throughout the season averaged 100 barrels per day, and there are many others of nearly as great a capacity scattered throughout the state.

The drying and evaporating establishments use up an immense quantity, even to the cores and peelings, the latter being either converted into apple butter, jellies or preserves, or exported to France to be returned to America in the shape of a first-class article of champagne.

Outside of the state of New York and portions of Connecticut, Vermont and Michigan, the crop this year has been a complete failure. St. Louis, Cincinnati, Canada and the entire northwest have had to draw almost their entire supply from this state. Northern Iowa and Minnesota, which heretofore have received their shipments from Missouri and Kansas, find no source of supply in those markets this year, scarcely enough having been raised by growers to supply their local demands.

"A person not in the apple trade," said a Washington street dealer yesterday, "can have but a small idea of the magnitude of this industry. The entire northern portion of the state is now one immense orchard, millions of trees having been planted during the past fifteen years, many of which are just coming into bearing. All of them are of recognized standard varieties."

The old time Spitzenburg, however, is passing away, except in the Hudson River district,

The European demand is very heavy, the chief shipments being made to Liverpool, London and Glasgow. Large quantities are also sent to Cuba and Bermuda. The foreign demand is mostly for the standard red varieties.—N. Y. Press.

Shipping Apples to England.

The experience of T. S. Gould, secretary of the Connecticut Board of Agriculture, in shipping apples to England is not very encouraging to small shippers. The first cost of barrels, freight to New York and trucking expenses across the city, and the injury to the condition of the fruit in consequence of rough handling, are liable to consume the amount of sales in a market so fluctuating. The export trade may prove profitable to large shippers with good judgment in the selection of fruit and of the time to market it. Small shippers, however, Mr. Gould says, had better not engage in this rather venturesome business.

Druggists report good sales and wonderful results from Skin-Success Soap and Ointment.

Gen. Alfred Pleasonton lives in Philadelphia.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are free from all crude and irritating matter. Concentrated medicine only; very small; very easy to take; no pain; no griping; no purging.

Who Are Interested in Knowing What Kind of a Journal

THE RURAL NEW-YORKER

CLAIMS TO BE.

IT was established in 1850. It is published for all parts of the country alike and for all who own a home. During the past 12 years it is conceded on all hands that it has worked a new era in journalism. It is original throughout. It is filled with contributions from the best writers in the world. It is the only farm weekly that employs its own artists and over 500 original illustrations are presented every year. It is the first journal to have established an experiment farm, and the only one now working such a farm in the interests of its readers. The object of this farm is to test all kinds of new seeds and plants whether ornamental or economical; to produce new kinds of grain by cross-breeding; to test new farm implements, fertilizers, methods of culture, with a view to producing the greatest yields at the smallest cost.

The RURAL NEW-YORKER has no other than the true interests of agriculture to subserve. It has neither seeds nor plants nor books nor anything whatever to sell. It is conducted purely in the interests of agriculture and horticulture and stock-keeping. Its tests of plants, seeds, manures and implements are made regardless of individual interests of those of advertising patrons. It holds the interests of LAND CULTURE as above all others, and its aim is to benefit all who occupy themselves in the culture of land and its attendant industries, either for pleasure, profit, of support.

It has no axes to grind and claims to be a complete journal of rural affairs. The aim of the R. N.-Y. is to present a pure, sound, dignified yet aggressive journal that shall be thoroughly independent and work only for the highest ideal of country life. The RURAL goes to every section of North America, and its readers are usually the leading men of the community. Its striking and original features render it, as we believe, beyond question, the best exponent of agricultural thought in the country. It does not depend upon second hand articles or engravings to fill its pages. It costs far more to publish than any other journal of its class. Its market reports are reliable. Its Woman's, Domestic Economy, Literary, and News Departments are conducted by specialists. Its Eye-Opener, with its scathing exposure of all frauds and humbugs have saved its subscribers thousands of dollars every year. Its illustrations are a strong feature. New fruits, grains, implements, flowers, farm and garden devices, fine stock, portraits of eminent ruralists are faithfully shown, while its hard-hitting full-page cartoons, which appear from time to time, help the farmers' cause by adding dignity to his occupation. Small fruits of all kinds are a specialty. Hundreds of different kinds of grapes, strawberries, raspberries, &c. &c., may be seen under test at the RURAL GROUNDS. All ornamental trees, shrubs and vines, herbaceous plants, hardy enough to endure the climate, may also be seen there. Not less than 200 different kinds of hybrids between wheat and rye and of cross bred wheats; hybrids between blackberries and raspberries, between roses, &c., may also be seen. The R. N.-Y. may be read by any member of the family without fear that its influence will be other than for good. Its advertising columns are also guarded with unusual care.

Such are among the claims made for this journal, and we know that the best people of the country will fully endorse them.

It is published weekly on fine, heavy paper. The price is, for single copies, $2.00 a year in advance; or, $1.50 in clubs of five or over. We have no other terms. Specimen copies, posters, &c., for those who wish to act as agents, will be promptly mailed without charge.

HOW THEY STAND.

Reported Interviews with Members of Congress, on Different Topics.

The World detailed 20 men on Tuesday of last week to go to Washington and interview members of congress. A parlor car was chartered and the men returned the following night with the results of their labors. The following were the questions put to the senators and representatives:

FOR REPUBLICANS.

1. Are you in favor of the renomination of Mr. Blaine for president?
2. If not, will you state your preference as to the candidate?
3. Do you favor the president's tariff ideas?
4. How far would you be willing to go in any reduction of taxation.

FOR DEMOCRATS.

1. Do you favor the president's tariff ideas?
2. How far would you be willing to go on a reduction of taxation?

The answers were tabulated as follows:

Republicans—On choice for president: Non-committal, 40; for Blaine, 25; the nominee of the convention, 17; John Sherman, 8; Harrison, 2. Against Blaine, 4; Greshar', 1; Governor Robinson of Massachusetts, 1; total, 98.

In favor of Cleveland's tariff ideas: Democrats, 93; in favor of Cleveland's tariff ideas, Republicans, 7; non committal, Democrats, 14; non committal, Republicans, 18; opposed to Cleveland's tariff ideas, Democrats, 6; opposed to Cleveland's tariff ideas, Republicans, 69. Total, 207.

For tariff reform only, Democrats, 59; for tariff reform only, Republicans, 9; for revenue reform only, Democrats, 10; for revenue reform only, Republicans, 38; for tariff and revenue reform, Democrats, 31; for tariff and revenue reform, Republicans, 1; non committal, Democrats, 8; non committal, Republicans, 34; against any change, Democrats, 0; against any change, Republicans, 23. Total, 213.

The simplest and best regulator of the Disordered Liver in the world, are Carter's Little Liver Pills. They give prompt relief in Sick Headache, Dizziness, Nausea, &c.; prevent and cure Constipation and Piles; remove Sallowness and Pimples from the Complexion, and are mild and gentle in their operation on the bowels. Carter's Little Liver Pills are small and as easy to take as sugar. One pill a dose. Price 25 cents.

Cheap Postage—A Proposition to Reduce Postage to One Cent on Letters.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12, 1887.

A number of Senators held a consultation last week to consider a bill to reduce the postage. It is proposed to reduce letter postage from two cents to one cent, providing it does not too seriously interfere with the revenue accruing to the postoffice department. It is estimated that it will perhaps lessen the earnings of the department eight millions per annum. If however this is thought to be too severe a reduction of the revenue of the department, the attempt will be made, and with every indication of success, to revise the law on postage on local letters for delivery.

ONE FACT

Is worth a column of rhetoric; said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

What Am I To Do.

The symptoms of Biliousness are unhappily but too well known. They differ in different individuals to some extent. A Bilious man is seldom a breakfast eater. Too frequently, alas, he has an excellent appetite for liquids but none for solids of a morning. His tongue will hardly bear inspection at any time; if it is not white and furred, it is rough, at all events.

The digestive system is wholly out of order and Diarrhea or Constipation may be a symptom or the two may alternate. There are often Hemorrhoids or even loss of blood. There may be giddiness and often headache and acidity or flatulation, tenderness in the pit of stomach. To correct all this if not effect a cure try Green's August Flower, it costs but a trifle and thousands attest its efficacy.

Melting up the Old Trade Dollars.

The New York Commercial Advertiser tells of the melting down of silver dollars, thus: "The United States essay office is engaged in melting up the last $300,000 of the silver trade dollars recently redeemed by the government. The amount received by the sub-treasury and turned over to the essay office for melting into bullion aggregated $3,500,000. As the dollars are melted up they are cast into bars or bricks and deposited in one of the grated vaults in the essay office, where they are piled around the four sides of the vault to the height of a man's head. Opening out from the silver vault is the gold vault. The amount of precious metal and the manner in which it is stored reminds one of the treasure vaults in the halls of the Montezumas through which Cortez walked. Though no more trade dollars can be redeemed by the government, they frequently find their way to the essay office among the deposits that are left daily to be melted and refined for customers. But silver is only worth about 86 cents an ounce, and a trade dollar weighs but seven-eights of an ounce, the actual bullion value of such a coin now is about 75 cents. If the government received $1 in value for them when issued, it is a handsome profit by reason of its reproduction."

THE FULTON TIMES.

TWENTIETH YEAR. "The Abstract and Brief Chronicle of the Time, to Show Vi[illegible] Her Own Features. Scorn Her Own Image." VOLUME 20—NUMBER 33

1.25 a Year in Advance. FULTON, OSWEGO COUNTY, N. Y., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1887. Single Copies Three Cents

All for Gold.

They'll robe me in my bridal gown,
Ah me, ah me!
They'll robe me in my bridal gown,
The orange buds will be my crown,
The white veil will go floating down,
And I shall hear the splendor meet,
And wish it were my winding sheet,
Ah me, ah me!

They'll twine white gems about my neck,
Ah me, ah me!
They'll twine white gems about my neck,
And I shall give no sign, no check,
But well enough, I, too, shall reck,
That dewy pearls are for my tears,
The deadly opals for my fears,
Ah me, ah me!

They'll lay my prayer book in my hand,
Ah me, ah me!
They'll lay my prayer book in my hand,
While I shall calm and stately stand,
And hear the organ pealing grand,
And I shall neither faint or fall,
But smile on through it all,
Ah me, ah me!

They'll lead me to the altar rail,
Ah me, ah me!
They'll lead me to the altar rail,
And my false lips will never fail,
Nor my false heart will never quail,
As I breathe o'er those words of old,
And sell myself for love of gold,
Ah me, ah me!

The Editor and the Jokelet.

The sanctum softly entering thus he spoke:
"I've written out a funny little joke;
When you have read it o'er and caught the pun,
Pray tell me if you think it fit to run."

The editor the little jokelet read,
Yet smiled he not, but seriously said:
"Go put it on the slope of yonder hill;
It is so thin, 'twill run, I'm sure it will."

—Chicago News.

Laxador is the remedy now mostly relied upon when a good purgative family medicine is needed. All druggists sell it for 25 cents a package.

The deadening preparations of opium for the baby are rapidly disappearing before the use of Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup. Sold by all druggists.

THE PROPER THING.

Fancy and fur muffs alike are made with bags and purses attached.

The newest newmarkets have hoods and capes and are single breasted.

The latest notion in gloves is the reindeer; they look like thick washleather of almond color, and fit well.

Pocket-book have resumed the square shape used before they became too long and narrow for convenience.

Deep collars of plush in V-shape are worn on jackets; cuffs and sometimes the sleeves of such wraps are also of plush.

Girdles of all kinds, which are looped at the side rather than worn about the waist, are meeting with considerable favor.

Garibaldi waists with a pointed yoke and belt are coming into vogue. They are made of cashmere, Jersey cloth and flannel.

Feather shawls are a novelty; they are soft, but look like much improved woolen shawls, and do not resemble feathers in the least.

Black cloth, of the quality called ladies' cloth, is again in favor for a basque and long overskirt above a colored lower skirt of cloth or plush.

Dog collars are going out of fashion. They are replaced by the high collar of the dress, a fraise, or where there is a low falling collar, by a narrow ribbon with a small bow on each side.

Brocaded stuffs are still in vogue for both long and short wraps, and appear in these garments, almost as frequently as the newer striped, barred, plain, checked and plaide dmaterials.

The newest sleeve is made wide at the top, with small folds on the outer part down to the elbow, from which point to the waist is gradually narrows and is finished by a band and a bow of ribbon.

Black lace dresses are still liked for semi-dress occasions, and last summer's costumes can be brightened for present use by draping the lace over a new skirt and bodice of dark colored satin or faille.

"Give us a rest," cried a bootblack, from the gallery of the Opera House, to a party who had been constantly coughing during the performance. "Use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup," chimed in another.

At this season of fast driving and accidents to man and beast keep Salvation Oil on hand.

"Most of the Nevada tramps have now crossed the Sierras," reports the Virginia City 'Enterprise,' "and gone into winter quarters into California. They love a genial clime and always keep below the snow line."

Beware of a silent dog and still waters. The impure blood flowing silently through the system is a dangerous enemy to health. Warner's Log Cabin Sarsaparilla is the great blood purifier. Cheapest in the market. 120 doses $1.00. All druggists have it.

John Owen Snyder, the famous "walking man" of Mill Grove, Ind., is dead. He had walked almost constantly, night and day for three years, and his path around his house was worn to a deep furrow.

If you once try Carter's Little Liver Pills for sick headache, biliousness or constipation you will never be without them. They are purely vegetable; small and easy to take; all druggists sell them.

Gen. H. W. Slocum lives in Brooklyn and is engaged in business enterprises. He was a graduate in civil life in 1861, became major-general of volunteers and resigned in 1866.

Capt. C. A. Borella, New York, was cured of a 10 years' case of Piles by Palmer's Skin-Success. Sold by R. E. Phillips. 23w4

Gen. Abner Doubleday is on the retired list and lives at Mendham, N. J. He aimed Sumpter's guns on Moultrie [illegible] 1861.

WHEN A WOMAN

becomes afflicted with a Kidney disease life is truly a burden. The female organization is so constituted as to be peculiarly susceptible to it; is easily controlled by it, and it rapidly develops and spreads until the whole fabric is affected and there is no time when she is free from pain. Refreshing sleep is unknown, the long weary hours of the night are followed by equally long hours of the day, and so the months and years pass, bringing as they roll away increased burdens.

Mrs. C. P. Bracket, wife of a town official of Hermon, Me., had severe case of kidney disease. In time she became so afflicted with continuous pains across the small of the back, weary, heavy, bearing down pains, heavy, dull feeling between the shoulders with occasional spells of "sick headache," as well as other troubles peculiar to this disease in women, so that she at times gave up in despair. She was confined to her house, deprived of all social intercourse with friends and neighbors, and was day and night a constant sufferer. One day she read an advertisement issued by us describing symptoms of kidney disease, and persuaded her husband to buy a bottle of Brown's Sarsaparilla which she used. She said it helped her and her husband, having no faith in patent medicines, laughed and told her she was no better, and that "faith" and "hope" had revived her temporarily. He bought the second and third however, and like the first, they helped her rapidly along the road to health. The remedy was continued until Mrs. Brackett was restored, and she has now been for over two years free from all symptoms of kidney disease. This case which was perhaps as serious a one as ever came to the notice of the medical fraternity of this section, attracted wide-spread attention at the time, and stamped beyond all dispute the fact that Brown's Sarsaparilla was a deadly foe to Kidney disease.

MASON & HAMLIN
ORGANS. The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogue free.

PIANOS. Mason & Hamlin's Piano Stringer was introduced by them in 1882, and has been pronounced by experts the "greatest improvement in pianos in half a century."

A circular containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians, and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented.

JAS. R. FAIRGRIEVE - EDITOR

OUR ANNUAL.

The Times' Annual for 1888 will be ready for distrubution the latter part of this week. It contains the official directory of county, town and village and a business directory of Fulton. When you receive it retain it as it contains a calender for 1888 and is a splendid reference book.

Daniel Manning, Ex-Secretary of the Treasury, one of the strongest men that the Democratic party had, and the man whom Cleveland may thank for holding the presidency, died at Albany on Saturday, Dec. 24, at the age of 56 years. He was buried yesterday. Among mourners that followed this illustrious man to his grave, were President Cleveland and members of his Cabinet.

The new Princeton Review is the foremost publication this side of the Atlantic. The January number, just out is full of valuable articles. The one by Mark Twain is alone worth the price of the magazine. Here is one of the characteristic sentences. "How could you look it in the face, and go on throwing state mud over its head at its predecessor, an old kiln dried, moss backed, bug eaten, avtediluvian mummy that wasn't doing anything to you, and couldn't if he wanted to?" The articles by Dr. John Hall, Bradner Matthews and Prof. H. C. Adams of Michigan University will attract widespread attention. The Review has become a necessity to the thinking public. It is published by A. C. Armstrong & Son, New York.

A Model Newspaper.

In another column we print the advertisement of that sterling and reliable paper, the New York Mail and Express, and we wish to commend it to our readers as in the broadest sense a national newspaper, most carefully edited, and adapted to the wants and tastes of intelligent readers throughout the country —North, South, East and West. It is a thoroughly clean paper, free from the corrupting, sensational and demoralizing trash, miscalled news, which defiles the pages of too many city papers.

The Mail and Express discusses with ability and fairness all questions of public interest as they arise, and is always found on the moral and progressive side. It gives the latest news from all parts of the world, and presents in its special departments an immense amount of the choicest and best reading matter for the instruction and entertainment of every member of the family, old and young. Sample copies are sent free, and we advise all our readers to send for them.

The Times wishes everyone a Happy New Year, old and young, rich and poor friend and enemy. Life is altogether too short not to have the best of good will toward all our fellow beings at this season of the year. Another year has glided by, and wrought its changes in Fulton, as it has the world over. The many changes that occur during the year are scarcely realized. A death occurs, and a familiar form is no longer seen on our streets. A birth occurs, and one more comes into this world to run its chances with struggling humanity. A fire occurs and a beautiful building goes up in smoke. A lot is purchased, and a fine structure is soon built. A telegraph or telephone wire is stretched, another and then another, until above our heads is a perfect net-work.

Winter comes, the trees are stripped of their verdure and appear as leafless things; summer returns, and they are again clothed with fresh vegetation. Thus time flies by and events transpire. A few of these events that have occurred in Fulton and vicinity during the year 1887, we have collected, and they can be found on the first page of this issue.

As The Times goes out to its subscribers for the last time in the year 1887, we desire to extend out sincere thanks to our subscribers and friends for their patronage, and as we are soon to move into our new building, where with more room and with new machinery we hope to give even more for the money than our subscribers are now receiving.

The Opera House the Centre of Attraction and Crowded Nightly.

THE BOOTHS FILLED WITH ELEGANT GIFTS THAT ARE TO BE DRAWN OR SOLD.

Stage Performances and Music Each Evening.

MONDAY EVENING.

The Catholic Fair for which such extensive preparations have been made and to which such elegant presents have been donated was opened on Monday evening with an address by Hon. P. W. Cullinan of Oswego, who in his able manner did the honor of the occasion. The Fulton Band was also present and added much to the pleasure of the opening evening. The lower part of the opera house has been cleared of the seats and has seven booths. In large letters on the curtain of the stage are the words "Fair: Church of the Immaculate Conception" and above this in large letters the word "Welcome". The whole opera house probably never presented as fine an appearance as it does this week and no one in this vicinity should allow the occasion to pass without attending. On entering the hall the first thing that attracts ones attention is the TEMPERANCE BOOTH.

This is situated in the centre and is most artisticly arranged and decorated and is under the management of Mrs. Edward Laporte, Mrs. Frank Sweet, the Misses Mary O'Hare, Ida McGann, Anna Mullen, Mary Fitzgerald and Sarah Kernan. The badges of the Father Mathew temperance societies are seen on the corners, emblematic of the organizations under whose auspices this booth is conducted.

THE PARISH BOOTH.

This booth is situated directly to the right on entering the main hall and appears the largest of all, it is presided over by Mrs. Paul Roderick, Mrs. Joseph Lalonde, Mrs. James Flynn and the Misses Maggie Cullen, Kate and Mary Flannery and Maggie Hart. It contains a large number of excellent articles that are to be drawn.

THE SODALITY BOOTH.

This booth is on the right on entering and next to the Parish Booth and presents a very fine appearance. The large candy ship named Fortuna, which was donated by Mr. John Barker of the Vienna Bakery is seen here and attracts much attention. Here also is seen the "bride and groom" two beautiful figures appropriately attired, the former the gift of Miss Addie Lapin and the latter the gift of Miss Sarah White. This is presided over by the Misses Nellie Flannery, Sarah White, Maggie Sullivan, Jennie and Anna Lynch, Macella O'Keefe, Maggie Frawley, Nora Hartnett, Mary and Jennie Reynolds, Mary Gillard and Kittie Casey.

REBECCA'S WELL.

This is uniquely arranged in the right hand box beautifully decked with flowers and evergreens and from the well can be had at all times—if you are fortunate enought in the crowd to get near it—lemonade which is served by Mrs. C. S. Murphy and the Misses Alice Burke, Nellie Johnston, Minnie Allen and Jennie Murphy.

THE PRESIDENT'S BOOTH.

The private box on the left side of the hall is arranged for the president of the fair, Rev. Father Earley.

THE CHILDREN'S BOOTH.

This booth is situated on the extreme left on entering and is presided over by Mrs. Wm. White, Mrs. D. O'Grady, Mrs. M. A. Martin, Mrs. Edward Pear and the Misses Mary Martin, Agnes Cavanaugh, Anna Flinn, Kittie Lamasney and Delia Lynch. Toy houses, animals, quilts, chairs, dolls &c., without number are arranged on all sides of this booth and show skill and taste in their arrangement.

THE MARRIED LADIES' BOOTH.

This booth is situated in the left central part and is under the charge of Mrs. P. McDonald, Mrs. Geo. Johnston, Mrs. Chas. Sweet, Mrs. P. Conley, Mrs. James Otis, Mrs. P. Cullen, Mrs. James Doyle, Mrs. John O'Grady, Mrs. Patrick O'Grady and Mrs. Thomas Mosso. Here in addition to hundreds of other articles can be seen the elegant china set of dishes presented by Mr. and Mrs. John Hall of New York city and a beautiful sofa presented by Mr. James Cole.

A very attractive feature is "The Old Lady in the Shoe" a large shoe is literally covered with small dolls, and in this shoe in costume can be found either Miss Hattie O'Hara or Miss Agnes Cullen. This is very nicely gotten up. Supper is served in the main hall. A soda fountain under the charge of T. R. Cavanaugh is also near the refreshment tables. The prize given at the door Monday evening, a ton of coal, donated by Mr. F. M. Wilson, was drawn by Master Albert LaPorte who held the lucky ticket, No. 408.

TUESDAY EVENING.

The second evening was by no means eclipsed by the first. The Fulton band was again in attendance and before the doors were opened played selections in front of the opera house and discoursed fine music at intervals during the evening. By nine o'clock a large crowd was present. The attractions on the stage during the evening were club swinging by Masters Frank Cullen and Morris Conley. They swing the clubs very nicely. Song by George Perkins and music by Bogue's orchestra were other attractions, while the farce "Barney the Baron" was given under the supervision of Dr. DeMarsan Spencer with the following cast of characters:

Barney O'Toole,	Daniel Dwyer
Augustus	Fred McGann
Bluffenbury	James Galliger
Karl	Thomas Mosso
Lady Margaret	Miss Anna Bogue
Edith	Mary Burke
Emma	Alice Burke

The contest for the plush sacque between Miss Addie Lappin of Fulton and Miss Anna Branagan of Oswego Falls was begun as was also the contest for the gold watch between J. B. Sullivan of Oswego Falls and J. H. White of Oswego.

PROGRAM FOR THIS EVENING.

[illegible] Theodore LaRaine.

NOTES.

The prize at the door Tuesday evening was won by Celia Martin, who held the lucky ticket, No. 779.

A pleasing feature at the fair are canaries at nearly every booth. They sing constantly.

The watch to be contested for was presented by the Father Mathew societies. It has been on exhibition in W. P. Osborne's window but can now be seen at the Temperance booth.

The plush sacque donated by Messrs. Bennett & Stewart is on exhibition at the Sodality booth.

The 20 yards of silk (dress pattern) can be seen at the Sodality booth.

The lady's diamond ring and gents' diamond pin donated by Mr. Michael Flannery of New York, can be seen at the Parish booth.

The suit of clothes donated by H. & A. Rosenbloom stands on a form in the Parish booth.

The parlor stove given by George Johnston can be seen between the Parish and Sodality booths.

The pictures donated by Father Kearney and Father Earley are on exhibition at the Parish booth.

The C. M. B. A. of Oswego Falls have contributed a handsome sum of money which will serve to enhance the value of the gold watch and furnish articles for the different booths.

A magnificant gold cross will be presented to the lady who has collected the most money on her list.

New attractions every night.

On Thursday evening a young ladies' club of Oswego under the direction of Miss Celia Kelley will produce the operatta, "Lilly Bell."

Friday evening the operatta "Cinderella" will be produced by local talent.

There will be six prizes drawn this evening.

Many donations have been received since the opening of the Fair:

M. M. Gage, Sheridan Co. sent in a rich jewelery set; True Bros. several ten pound sacks of flour; beautiful plush dress by Misses Anna and Nora Anderson of Phoenix; $5 by Frank Mangeot and Jas. McAllister; vases, Mary Clara O'Hare; spread, Mrs. Mathews and others which will be mentioned in full report of Fair.

ALUM BAKING POWDERS.

Declared Adulterated Food and their Sale Illegal.

The result of a trial just concluded at Canton, N. Y., before Judge Kellogg, will have a salutary effect in checking the sale of one class of adulterated food. Two men, named Moon and Akerill, were arrested for selling adulterated baking powder in violation of the State food adulteration act. The indictment was for both selling baking powders that were inferior, adulterated and injurious to health by reason of being made from alum, and for selling them under pretense that they were a wholesome, cream of tartar baking powder. A stubborn defense was made, the claim being set up that baking powders were not articles of food and that the powders the defendents were selling, which was known as Gillett's, was a standard article of trade, and that alum baking powers inferior to it, like Davis' and others, were being sold by other dealers in the same town without complaint. The Court held that baking powders were articles of food within the meaning of the law, and the jury found the defendants guilty upon all the charges. The case has attracted much attention from being the first brought under the State Food Adulteration Act against dealers in alum baking powers. The result of the trial is to class such baking powders as adulterated articles of food and to make their sale illegal. There are many alum baking powders put up in cans, under some name or brand, in addition to those sold in bulk, the sale of all of which cautious dealers will probably be unwilling to continue.

A beautiful line of Ladies' [illegible] at Mrs. F. K. Jones'. [illegible]

[illegible] his weight of cares and responsibility for the welfare of sixty millions of people would naturally make all days and seasons alike to him.

The city is rapidly donning its holiday attire. Evergreen wreathes and garlands festoon butchers' stalls and the homes of the rich, and Christmas trees of all sizes and prices are here in abundance from the Maryland and Virginia hills, and from the forests of Pennsylvania and far off Maine. The shop windows are dazzling with every description of tempting merchandise, and Oh! the shoppers that throng the sidewalks, especially the tired, worried, nervous women of all ages and sizes and complexions and conditions, of every degree of prettiness and ugliness. How they push and jostle and squeeze and exclaim! They would drop down and expire before they would give it up and go home.

At no time is there any lack of talk in Congress about the surplus, nor any lack of surplus talk for that matter, but regularly once a year, in either one or the other end of the Capitol, a deal of surplus eloquence is expended on one particular subject; namely, the holiday recess. It is surplus talk always, because after every argument that has ever been made against the Christmas vacation, Congress has invariably enjoyed that luxury and will continue to do so.

This time the discussion was in the Senate, and the Junior Senator from Kansas, Mr. Plumb, took the floor in opposition to any holiday making. He said this was the time of year for Congress to work. He didn't want any holidays. The recess was taken ostensibly to allow Senators and Representatives to go to their homes, when not one in ten of them would go. Mr. Plumb then launched into a political speech in which he criticized the financial policy of the President, charging that the surplus trouble was due to the fact that the President disregarded the law which required him practically to spend the surplus in the purchase of the national debt. He made a long speech, and was followed by Senator Beck, of Kentucky, who undertook to demolish all that had been said by showing that it was the policy of the Republican party which made it impossible to-day for the Secretary of the Treasury to redeem any of the four and four-and-a-half bonds without paying the holders whatever premium they might charge.

The next Senator to endorse the course of the administration was Vest, of Missouri. He said that he was prepared to go into the canvass upon the President's message. If Mr. Cleveland had done nothing more than write that message, it proved him to be an honest, brave, patriot man, worthy of the leadership of any party that ever existed in the history of this country.

Senators Teller and Stewart then made long speeches echoing the political sentiments of Mr. Plumb, whereupon Senator Butler of South Carolina, who had already expressed impatience at listening to what he termed stump speeches, arose and declared disgust at what he called the idle flimsy, shallow, hypocritical humbuggery against the holiday recess.

Here the Senator from Kansas lost his temper and wanted to know by what authority the Senator from South Carolina posed as a public censor. The latter repudiated the title and Mr. Plumb suggested another—common scold.

The atmosphere of the Senate Chamber was getting hot and Senator Sherman on the Republican side arose with his rigid smile, in the character of peacemaker. He satisfied Senator Plumb by saying the debate was not a humbug at all, but very interesting, and he pleased Senator Butler by agreeing with him that the holiday ought to be taken, and also in the use of the word humbug (with this difference, he said the President's message was the humbug). After the pouring of this oil upon the troubled waters serenity again reigned and the Senate voted to adjourn until after New Year.

The Great Tortilita.

The Tortilita Gold and Silver Mining Co. own twelve mines in Pinal Co., Arizona, and two of these, the "Benton" and the "Desert" have proved the best mines in the territory. With a small mill and the rude appliances for mining and converting the ore, over $175,000 in bullion has been shipped from these mines during the past three years. In order to obtain a larger mill with improved machinery to mine the large quantity of ore in sight, the Company are offering a limited amount of its stock at the par value of $2 per share. This preferred stock is entitled to a dividend of 25 per cent. per annum. The great value of these mines has been thoroughly proven, and as a safe investment, the preferred stock must commend itself to every investor. For stock or further information, address Joseph H. Reall, 57 Broadway, New York, or 48 Congress street, Boston, Mass. 33w2

What Am I To Do.

The symptoms of Biliousness are unhappily but too well known. They differ in different individuals to some extent. A Bilious man is seldom a breakfast eater. Too frequently, alas, he has an excellent appetite for liquids but none for solids of a morning. His tongue will hardly bear inspection at any time; if it is not white and furred, it is rough, at all events.

The digestive system is wholly out of order and Diarrhea or Constipation may be a symptom or the two may alternate. There are often Hemorrhoids or even loss of blood. There may be giddiness and often headache and acidity or flatulation, tenderness in the pit of stomach. To correct all this if not effect a cure try Green's August Flower, it costs but a trifle and thousands attest its efficacy. eow

ADVERTISERS can learn the exact cost of any proposed line of advertising in American papers by addressing Geo. P. Rowell & Co.,

[illegible] in a recent letter to [illegible] says:

"Appreciating your grand publication as an educator of draft horse breeders, I have taken the trouble to secure the following list of farmers and others who are experimenting in breeding to the excellent imported Percheron horse. Decide (3,765) 3,881, owned by Messrs. D. & W. Fairchild, of Dexterville, Oswego Co., N. Y., imported in 1884 by Messrs. Howell & Brigdon, Scipio, N. Y.; he is a black with slight gray, 17 hands high, with fine action; he won first prize at Central New York and other fairs."

We are glad to see the enterprising farmers of New York practically investigating this subject and we can assure them that it is no longer an experiment to cross the imported draft horse upon our small native mares, but a grand success. The half bloods, the first cross, have good size and make grand farm teams, but their price is so high and the demand is so great that few farmers feel able to keep them, and the higher they grade up the better the price. It is easier for Oswego county farmers to raise and sell a hundred thousand dollars' worth of grade draft horses than any other product or stock that can be raised, and besides its great money making element, raising these grand draft horses will not lower the moral character of the community with the gambling element, but will elevate and ennoble the agricultural interest. Let Oswego county become known as the draft horse county, and it will be the pride of the state.—Western Agriculturist.

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE.

With the November, 1887, issue The Century commences its thirty-fifth volume with a regular circulation of almost 250,000. The War Papers and the Life of Lincoln increased its monthly edition by 100,000. The latter history having recounted the events of Lincoln's early years, and given the necessary survey of the political condition of the country, reaches a new period, with which his Secretaries were most intimately acquainted. Under the caption

Lincoln in the War,

the writers now enter on the more important part of their narrative, viz.: the early years of the War and President Lincoln's part therein.

Supplementary War Papers,

following the "battle series" by distinguished generals, will describe interesting features of army life, tunneling from Libby Prison, narratives of personal adventure, etc. General Sherman will write on "The Grand Strategy of the War."

Kennan on Siberia.

Except the Life of Lincoln and the War Articles, no more important series has ever been undertaken by the Century than this of Mr. Kennan's. With the previous preparation of four years' travel and study in Russia and Siberia, the author undertook a journey of 15,000 miles for the special investigation here required. An introduction from the Russian Minister of the Interior admitted him to the principal mines and prisons, where he became acquainted with some three hundred State exiles,—Liberals, Nihilists, and others,—and the series will be a startling as well as accurate revelation of the exile system. The many illustrations by the artist and photographer, Mr. George A. Frost, who accompanied the author, will add greatly to the value of the articles.

A Novel by Eggleston

with illustrations will run through the year. Shorter novels will follow by Cable and Stockton. Shorter fictions will appear every month.

Miscellaneous Features

will comprise several illustrated articles on Ireland, by Charles De Kay; papers touching the field of the Sunday School Lessons, illustrated by E. L. Wilson; Wild Western Life, by Theodore Roosevelt; the English Cathedrals, by Mrs. Van Rensselaer, with illustrations by Pennell; Dr. Buckley's valuable papers on Dreams, Spiritualism, and Clairvoyance; essays in criticism, art, travel, and biography; poems; cartoons; etc.

By a special offer the numbers for the past year (containing the Lincoln history) may be secured with the year's subscription from November, 1887, twenty-four issues in all, for $6.00, or, with the last year's numbers handsomely bound, $7.50.

Published by The Century Co. 33 East 17th Street, New York.

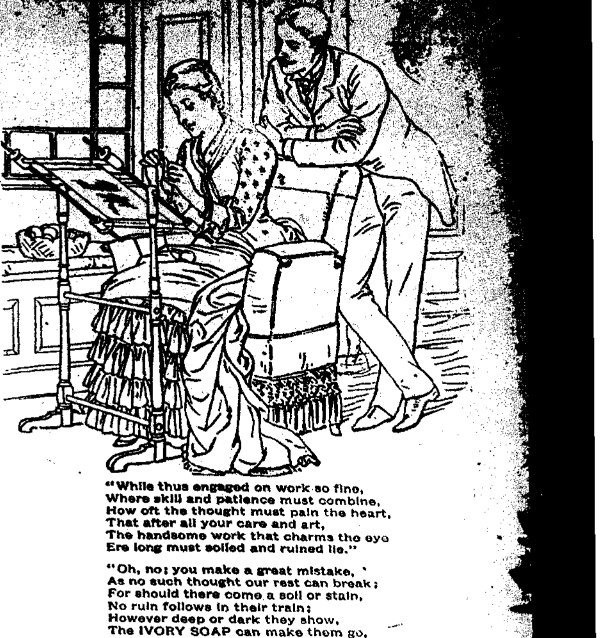
AND AS A REMEDY FOR [illegible]



"While thus engaged on work so fine,
Where skill and patience must combine,
How oft the thought must pain the heart,
That after all your care and art,
The handsome work that charms the eye
Ere long must soiled and ruined lie."

"Oh, no; you make a great mistake,
As no such thought our rest can break;
For should there come a soil or stain,
No ruin follows in their train;
However deep or dark they show,
The IVORY SOAP can make them go,
And all the brilliancy restore
And perfect beauty as before."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

ST. NICHOLAS

For Young Folks.

Since its first issue, in 1873, this magazine has maintained, with undisputed recognition, the position it took at the beginning,—that of being the most excellent juvenile periodical ever printed. The best known names in literature were on its list of contributors from the start,—Bryant, Longfellow, Thomas Hughes, George MacDonald, Bret Harte, Bayard Taylor, Frances Hodgson Burnett, James T. Fields, John G. Whittier; indeed the list is so long that it would be easier to tell the few authors of note who have not contributed to "the world's child magazine."

The Editor, Mary Mapes Dodge,

author of "Hans Brinker; or, the Silver Skates," and other popular books for young folks,—and for grown-up folks,—too, has a remarkable faculty for knowing and entertaining children. Under her skillful leadership, St. Nicholas brings to thousands of homes on both sides of the water knowledge and delight.

St. Nicholas in England.

It is not alone in America that St. Nicholas has made its great success. The London Times says: "It is above anything we produce in the same line." The Scotsman says: "There is no magazine that can successfully compete with it."

The Coming Year of St. Nicholas.

The fifteenth year begins with the number for November, 1887, and the publishers can announce: Serial and Short Stories by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, Frank R. Stockton, H. H. Boyesen, Joel Chandler Harris, J. T. Trowbridge, Col. Richard M. Johnston, Louisa M. Alcott, Professor Alfred Church, William H. Rideing, Washington Gladden, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Amelia E. Barr, Francis Courtenay Baylor, Harriet Upton, and many others. Edmund Alton will write a series of papers on the "Routine of the Republic,"—how the President works at the White House, and how the affairs of the Treasury, the State and War Departments, etc., are conducted; Joseph O'Brien a well known Australian journalist, will describe "The Great Island Continent"; Elizabeth Robbins Pennell will tell of "London Christmas Pantomimes" (Alice in Wonderland, etc.); John Burroughs will write "Meadow and Woodland Talks with Young Folk," etc., etc. Mrs. Burnett's short serial will be, the editor says, a worthy successor to her famous "Little Lord Fauntleroy," which appeared in St. Nicholas.

Why not try St. Nicholas this year for the young people in the house? Begin with the November number. Send us $3.00, or subscribe through booksellers and newsdealers. The Century Co. 33 East 17th St. New-York.

[illegible] around Toledo about which to write, I am to-day in a quandary what to write but have decided to give a short description of the churches and places of worship, in the present paper.

All over the city splendid structures rear their spires towards heaven, and every Sunday the churches are filled with devout christians, listening to the gospel faithfully expounded by Toledo pastors. Toledo has seventy churches. The largest Protestant denomination is the Methodist; of these there are thirteen church edifices. First on the list stands St. Pauls church, a large brick and stone edifice with a seating capacity of 800. I attended this church yesterday and heard a grand sermon on the Nativity, with some beautiful music suitable to the occasion. St. John's church is situated on Magnolia street. On Third street, in East Toledo, is situated another Methodist church. On Broadway, near the Union depot, is another church. At the wagon works, is the Monroe street M. E. church. The Detroit Ave. M. E. church is located on Detroit avenue. There are also Methodist societies, on Albany street, in north Toledo, and at Bethany, on Woodville street, east Toledo. At west Toledo is still another Methodist church. There are two German Methodist churches in the city, and the Zion's, and African (colored,) M. E. churches, situated on Erie and Beech streets.

Presbyterian—There are four Presbyterian churches in Toledo, the first on Huron street; the Westminster on Locust street; the third on Knover street; and the First German on Canton street. All these are capacious structures, with large seating capacities.

Baptists—The Baptists have a firm hold on Toledo, and have five churches,

The Congregational church is in Toledo to stay. The largest church of the city is the First Congregational, a cathedral-like stone structure on St. Clair street. I attended this church Sunday evening and heard a prayer, scripture, and song service. The scripture was prophecy, the advent, the crucifixion, and the resurrection. The song service was beautiful and appropriate; besides this are the Central, on Adams street; the Second, on Fourth street, and the Washington, on Dorr street.

Protestant Episcopal—Trinity church is on Adams street; Grace church on Stickney Ave., and St. John's on Eleventh street; Calvary is in the fifth ward, while St. Paul's is a mission in east Toledo.

The Lutherans have ten churches, and the Christian church has a society numbering 800. The building is a cozy little structure, and attended by large congregations. The Roman Catholic has 12,000 adherents in Toledo, and eleven churches. The Jews have two societies in Toledo, with two places of worship Other places of worship—The Salem Evangelical Association, The United Brethren in Christ have a membership of 75. Besides all these churches there are thirteen missions scattered all over the city, and representing all denominations. The Young Men's Christian Association has a large building on Summit street, and has a large membership.

Yours etc.,
Asa Phillips.

"Mistakes," was given with a panorama at the opera house on Thursday evening by the Howarth Hibernian Company. The only mistake we know of was the fact that we turned out on such an evening to attend such a performance.

The funeral of Gordon D. Ball occurred from the family residence at Volney, on Friday, Dec. 23d. The services were conducted by Rev. W. Dempster Chase, and Prof. James Cooper directed the appropriate music that was sung. The pall bearers were A. Emerick, H. S Gardner, H. E. Nichols, S. B. Whitaker, H. Skinner and E. A. Jones. Interment was made at Mt. Adnah. The funeral was largely attended by his associates, townspeople and neighbors in spite of the inclement weather.

On a Serenading Tour.

A dozen members of the Oswego Falls Brass band celebrated Christmas Monday afternoon by sholdering their instruments of torture and visiting several of their friends in a body. They serenaded the following parties Mrs. Hudgins, Dr. Whitaker, James Grigson, Harry Rowland, Martin Thompson, E. J. Cronyn, James Greenwood, Thomas Bayley, John Dyson, Wright Mottram, Aaron Williams, John Greenwood, Robt. Harrison. Refreshments were served at Mr. William's and at Mr. Harrison's. The handsome sum of $18 was presented them by the parties visited, which was very acceptable at the present time as money was needed to pay for their instruments

The Oft Told Story

Of the peculiar medicinal merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla is fully confirmed by the voluntary testimony of thousands who have tried it. Peculiar in the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, peculiar in the extreme care with which it is put up, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in the unequalled good name it has made at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained, is the most popular and successful medicine before the public today for purifying the blood, giving strength, creating an appetite.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"I suffered from wakefulness and low spirits, and also had eczema on the back of my head and neck, which was very annoying. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I have received so much benefit that I am very grateful, and I am always glad to speak a good word for this medicine." Mrs. J. S. Snyder, Pottsville, Penn.

Purifies the Blood

Henry Biggs, Campbell Street, Kansas City, had scrofulous sores all over his body for fifteen years. Hood's Sarsaparilla completely cured him.

Wallace Buck, of North Bloomfield, N. Y., suffered eleven years with a terrible varicose ulcer on his leg, so bad that he had to give up business. He was cured of the ulcer, and also of catarrh, by Wednesday, January 4th will be the 90th birthday of Mrs. Jane Cochran, an old and well-known resident of this village. She lives with her daughter, Mrs. Jane Rogers and her son, Theodore Cochran, who are the only surviving members of a large family. For one so old she enjoys excellent health.

An exchange says: "When you return from some other town with a bundle of goods that you could have bought just as well from your home merchants, don't you feel a little mean? Honor bright don't you? You are doing what little you can to ruin every business in your town, because we all depend on one another. When you have got the cash to pay for your goods, don't go off to some other town to make your purchases and then expect your home merchant to carry you for months. Give those who accommodate you the benefit of your cash trancsactions."

Dey Brothers & Co., of Syracuse, are rising into prominence more rapidly than any other Dry Goods House in these parts. Their methods of business are fundamentally sound, and the public confidence reposed in them is specially manifested in the continual growth of their mail department.

Ladies from a distance can rely on their orders from samples being filled as carefully and as satisfactorily as when they buy from the piece, and at the same price. The Mail Department is thus a public benefit, and correspondence is invited. It will be a pleasure to Dey Brothers & Co. to attend carefully to orders sent from a distance as much as to wait on those who visit their stores and inspect personally their stocks.

Prices of Agricultural Products.

The December report of the department of agriculture relates mainly to farm prices of agricultural products. The average value of corn is 43.8 cents per bushel, against 36.6 last year, and 32.8 in 1885. In 1881 it was 63.8, when the estimated product was 11,194,916,000 bushels. The difference is largely due to a general depression of value. The prices respectively in 1881 and 1887 are 61 and 48 in Ohio, 60 and 45 in Indiana, 58 and 41 in Illinois, 44 and 34 in Iowa, 65 and 37 in Missouri, 58 and 37 in Kansas, and 39 and 30 in Nebraska. Prices in the Gulf states average lower than last year, resulting from a nearly full home supply. In the Atlantic states prices of home grown corn are only slightly advanced. The average value of wheat is 69 cents, only three mills higher than the average last year. It is 82 in New York; 81 in Pennsylvania; 74 in Michigan; 73 in in Ohio; 72 in Indiana; 70 in Illinois; 64 in Wisconsin; 62 in Missouri; 61 in Iowa and Kansas; 59 in Minnesota; 53 in Nebraska and 52 in Dakota. The average for oats is 30.7 cents against 29.8 last year. Barley averages 52.3, instead of 53 last year. Buckwheat 56.1, or 1.7 cent higher than last year. The cereal averages for the entire country differ very slightly from those of last year. The value of potatoes is greatly enhanced, being 68.5 cents, against 45 last year. It is higher than for seven years, except in 1881. The value of hay is much increased. It averages $9.84 per ton against $7.36 last year. The advance has been in the drought area of the west. Cotton values are about half a cent higher than in December last.

Typical Christmas Story Boiled Down.

It was Christmas Eve.

Streets—brilliantly lit shop windows, toys, gay crowds, snow on the ground, everybody out, Christmas.

Jane Allalone wandered all alone, crowd, sweet, sad, face, wistful eyes.

Five years before James Goodygoody, Christmas Eve, betrothed to Jane, sailed away, India ship lost never heard of, foundered on coast of Africa.

Jane held on to hope, and her sewing machinine, never would marry plued away, etc.

William Badbody, rich, corrupt, dissipated, mortgage on Jane's mother's house also on woodshed, foreclosure.

Away villain! Rather poverty, crusts, etc.

Turned out of doors, homeless.

Down by the dark river, Peer No. 8, about to make the fatal plunge, in fact Jane did plunge. But just then the ship, with Captain James W. Goodygoody, which had not been lost at all, came sailing up to the dock, loaded to the water's edge with china, silk dresses and tea. Capt. Goodygoody saw Jane struggling in the water. He fished her out with a boat hook and hauled her on board his own good craft.

"My Jane!"

"My James!"

The cook dried her at the galley stove, and although soaked with salt water she looked as fresh as a daisy.

In fact Jane was a daisy and don't you forget it.

They were married on Christmas.

PERSONAL.

Mr. N. H. Frohlichstein, of Mobile, Ala., writes: I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, having used it for a severe attack of Bronchitis and Catarrh. It gave me instant relief and entirely cured me and I have not been afflicted since. I also beg to state that I had tried other remedies with no good result. Have also used Electric Bitters and Dr. King's New Life Pills, both of which I can recommend.

Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, is sold on a positive guarantee. Trial bottles free at R. E. Phillips' Drug Store.

ST. NICHOLAS
For Young Folks.

Since its first issue, in 1873, this magazine has maintained, with undisputed recognition, the position it took at the beginning,—that of being the most excellent juvenile periodical ever printed. The best known names in literature were on its list of contributors from the start,—Bryant, Longfellow, Thomas Hughes, George MacDonald, Bret Harte, Bayard Taylor, Frances Hodgson Burnett, James T. Fields, John G. Whittier; indeed the list is so long that it would be easier to tell the few authors of note who have not contributed to "the world's child magazine."

The Editor, Mary Mapes Dodge,

author of "Hans Brinker; or, the Silver Skates," and other popular books for young folks,—and for grown-up folks, too, has a remarkable faculty for knowing and entertaining children. Under her skillful leadership, St. Nicholas brings to thousands of homes on both sides of the water knowledge and delight.

St. Nicholas in England.

It is not alone in America that St. Nicholas has made its great success. The London Times says: "It is above anything we produce in the same line." The Scotsman says: "There is no magazine that can successfully compete with it."

The Coming Year of St. Nicholas.

The fifteenth year begins with the number for November, 1887, and the publishers can announce: Serial and Short Stories by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, Frank R. Stockton, H. H. Boyesen, Joel Chandler Harris, J. T. Trowbridge, Col. Richard M. Johnston, Louisa M. Alcott, Professor Alfred Church, William H. Rideing, Washington Gladden, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Amelia E. Barr, Francis Courtenay Baylor, Harriet Upton, and many others. Edmund Alton will write a series of papers on the "Routine of the Republic,"—how the President works at the White House, and how the affairs of the Treasury, the State and War Departments, etc., are conducted; Joseph O'Brien, a well known Australian journalist, will describe "The Great Island Continent"; Elizabeth Robins Pennell will tell of "London Christmas Pantomimes," [illegible] "Alice in Wonderland," etc.; John Burroughs [illegible] [illegible]

MONTANA HEARD FROM.—Recent railroad extensions have developed exceptionally fine mineral, stock and farming districts. Maps and full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. Warren, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

STOCK IN MINNESOTA.—From an exclusive grain country, Minnesota is being rapidly transformed into the finest stock and dairy state in the Union. Cheap lands still obtainable, convenient to railroad. Particulars free upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

NEW BUSINESS CENTERS.—The building of railroads in a new and fertile country creates many new towns affording excellent business opportunities. Particulars regarding such opportunity in Montana, Minnesota and Dakota will be sent upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul.

PROSPEROUS North Dakota never had better crops than those just harvested. Many opportunities to secure fine Government lands recently surveyed, near excellent coal fields and adjacent to railroad. Maps and full particulars free upon application to C. H. Warren, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

SUCCESS Are you mortgaged, paying heavy rents, or running behind? Can you move to new location? Excellent lands, cheap, which will increase in value several fold in five years. No other such opportunities existing. Full particulars, free, upon application to C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul Minn.

FAILURE OF CROPS is an unknown experience in Central and Northern Dakota and Minnesota. Maps and full particulars regarding lands, prices, etc., sent free. Address C. H. WARREN, Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul, Minn.

WHY WORK FOR ANOTHER, or on small salary? Why continue working on a worn-out farm? Why try to secure a living from such high-priced or heavily-mortgaged farms? Why work on rented land? Why not start for yourself? Why not secure at once some of the high-priced but very fertile and well located lands adjacent to railroads now to be obtained by those going to Northern Dakota and Minnesota, where you can make a larger net profit per acre than on the high-priced or worn-out land you now occupy? Why not go and look the situation over, and see for yourself, or at least obtain further information, which will be sent free, if you will address C. H. Warren, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

A Great National Journal.

THE NEW YORK
Mail and Express

The Advocate of the Best Interests of the Home—The Enemy of the Saloon.
The Friend of American Labor.
The Favorite Newspaper of People of Refined Tastes Everywhere.

For many years the daily edition of the New York MAIL AND EXPRESS has been recognized as the leading afternoon paper of the metropolis, while its weekly edition has been THE FAVORITE HOME PAPER in thousands of families in every State in the Union. It has attained its great popularity and influence by its enterprise in the collection of news, the purity of its tone, and the ability and courage of its advocacy of the Right on all questions of public interest.

FOR 1888 the Mail and Express will be a better paper than ever, and, as a clean, interesting, instructive it solicits comparison with any other in the country. It is one of the LARGEST PAPERS PUBLISHED anywhere, and spares neither labor nor expense to secure for its readers the very best in all departments of newspaper literature.

Home Newspaper,

OUR POLITICS.

We believe the Republican party to be the true instrument of the POLITICAL PROGRESS of the American people; and holding that the honest enforcement of its principles is the best guarantee of the national welfare, we shall support them with all our might; but we shall always treat opposing parties with consideration and fair play.

AGAINST THE SALOON.

The Mail and Express is the recognized leading journal of the country in the great Anti-Saloon Republican movement. It believes that the liquor traffic as it exists to-day in the United States is the enemy of society, a fruitful source of corruption in politics, the ally of anarchy, a school of crime, and, with its avowed purpose of seeking to corruptly control elections and legislation, is a menace to the public welfare and deserves the condemnation of all good men.

In brief, all who wish to have in their homes a FIRST-CLASS NEWSPAPER of national scope, broad views, clean pages and courageous, yet kindly, utterances on all questions of general public interest, will not be disappointed in the Mail and Express, and we respectfully solicit their influence and support.

SUPPLEMENT TO

THE FULTON TIMES.

THE TRADE OF SYRACUSE.

With this issue we present to our readers a review of the best manufacturing and business industries of Syracuse. The rapid commercial strides and splendid progress of the city are therein illustrated. The growth of Syracuse has, during the last five years, been indeed phenomenal, no other city in this State keeping pace with her onward march. The graphic pen pictures of her manufactures and most reliable business houses will be read with both pleasure and profit. The country dealer will find therein a fund of interesting news regarding his city cousin's method of transacting business, and the farmer will find much therein to interest him.

We have endeavored to write up the business interests of the Salt City with a strict adherence to truth and impartiality, every concern we have alluded to having attained its success by free exercise of every honorable business principle known in the commercial world.

THE PHOTOGRAPHIC ART.

The Ranger Gallery, W. H. Hazer, Proprietor, 43 and 45 S. Salina St.

There is possibly no other art in which more rapid progress has been made, or greater perfection attained during the last decade, than in the art of photography. Beautiful women glory in gazing upon counterfeit presentments of their own charms (unless some breathing ideal excites a jealous pang) and experiences trustful happiness in looking at some miniature of a handsome cavalier her favorite locket may contain.

In connection with these remarks we assure our readers that there is no better gallery in this city for old or young to obtain likenesses, perfect in every detail, than at the one owned and conducted by the gentleman whose name heads this article. Mr. Hazer is now sole owner of the photograph gallery formerly the property of Mr. W. V. Ranger at the above address, and we feel justified in asserting that there is not a finer artist in Central New York. He executes in brilliant style every kind of work known in the photographic art, and the numerous photographs, crayons and miniatures in oil, that stud the walls of his handsome reception rooms, evidences this fact. Mr. Hazer has now secured the services of Mr. Wood, of Elmira, a gentleman well-known in art circles, as among the best retoucher's in the profession. In order to facilitate the execution of his rapidly increasing orders, Mr. Hazer has gone to considerable expense in erecting a large printing room on the roof of the building he occupies, and has fitted it up with every accessory necessary to ensure perfection in his work. Mr. Hazer does every style of work, from life-size photographs to the crayon and miniature in oil. His scale of prices is very moderate, and our readers may be well assured that they can procure first-class work at this gallery for the very same price charged for inferior work elsewhere. As a result of careful and impartial inquiry, we are fully convinced the claims of this establishment are paramount to those of any similar concern in this section of the State, by reason of the well-attested excellence of the work that comes from his hands.

Mr. Hazer has always been noted for his skill and unsurpassed taste in the execution of every class of this work. The scenic appointments and drapery of his gallery are perfect in every detail, and to those who desire to be portrayed amid the surroundings of some special scene, the knowledge of a place where these accessories may be had is well worth having. Mr. Hazer can fully cater to the tastes of his patrons in this respect as well as in artistic workmanship, and the summer woodland, the mountain side or the snow storm of dreary winter are at the call of the patrons who wish for them.

A noted writer once said that "those persons who can truly appreciate the best works of art in statuary and paintings are endowed with lofty aspirations and purity of heart." If this be a truism then there are many in this section of country possessing these virtues, if the numerous visitors who enter Hazer's gallery to inspect the brilliant paintings and beautifully finished photographs it contains, is a criterion to judge by.

In conclusion, we will say that the name of Warren H. Hazer is the synonym of artistic excellence in photographic art, and we cordially commend him to our readers as one eminently worthy of their patronage and appreciation.

There is one period at which overwork is apt to be very disastrous—namely between the ages of twelve and sixteen. During this period rapid mental and physical development is taking place, and great strain is thrown upon every part of the organism. The boy is changing into the man, the girl into the woman. There is certainly no period in the life of an individual so baleful as this in its influence on his or her future career.

THREE-FOLD SUCCESS

The Mammoth Dry Goods Stores of Dey Brothers & Co.,

IN SYRACUSE AND ELMIRA.

Honesty, Energy and Enterprise Its Index of Their Success.

It would take a long time and a large quantity of ink to tell half the attractions, for old and young, which are now drawing the crowds for miles around the Salt City to the extensive and elegant emporium of Dey Brothers & Co., at the above address. If one can imagine five triple floors, covering two acres of space, completely filled with everything pertaining to the dry goods trade, some estimate may be had of the view of wonderland here displayed. And yet this is but one of the three great establishments owned and conducted by this energetic and reliable firm. One of the pleasantest duties of a commercial reporter is in writing up the business of a firm whose splendid success is attributable to an honest system of advertising, and a strict adherence to every representation made; and it may be truly said that in this particular respect the firm named is a notable illustration. Ten years ago the Dey Brothers established a dry goods house in the city of Elmira and conducted the same with the assistance of one salesman. To-day that store gives employment to eighty-five persons and with the two large establishments in this city over three hundred people, including book-keepers, clerks, salesmen and saleswomen, dress and cloakmakers, are upon the weekly pay roll of the house. The history of this firm tells of the solid, though rapid, growth of the largest dry goods establishment in this State outside of the Metropolis, and its success emphasizes the high standard of the honest, honorable principles upon which every transaction of buying and selling is conducted. It is not too much to say that in character and standing as well as business enterprise no house of a similar character in the United States bears a higher reputation.

Drifting with the crowd a few days since a reporter of this paper found himself ensconced in one of the two handsome elevators, with which the South Salina street establishment is furnished, ascending to the fourth floor, where the dress and cloakmaking departments are located. Scores of tradeswomen are engaged making the elaborate and plain, the costly and the moderate priced dresses and cloaks, unexcelled for style, artistic workmanship and perfection in shape; facts too well-known to the trade to require any extended mention on our part.

Descending to the next floor the warm, pleasant rooms of the millinery department are entered where, spread before the customers in endless profusion, is every novelty that the caprice of fashion dictates. Hats and bonnets plainly trimmed with ribbons of any tint or plumed with feathers of every hue, are matched with simple gowns or mated with superb toilets of silk or velvet of exquisite pattern. From such a stock, replete with every style at any price, aided in selection by the courteous and accomplished ladies of this grand department, there is no proper reason why every woman nowadays should not be becomingly dressed. Passing through this maze of millinery goods to the adjoining upholstery rooms there is a rich display, embracing all new styles and novelties of beautiful pattern for use and decoration of handsome homes, in the line of lace curtains, velvet portiers, fringes, window shades, pole cornices; in short everything known to the upholsterers' art.

At the rear of this floor the immense room for receiving goods is situated. Here the big boxes of imported goods are taken as well as the bales of goods from home manufacturers. So systematic is the work of this department that any particular line of goods called for can be placed on the counters at a moment's notice. Here, too, is the mailing department; which is one of the greatest conveniences of this progressive house. Out of town customers can, by sending the firm a descriptive letter or pattern for anything pretaining to the dry goods trade, have their orders filled by mail on the same day the order therefor is received. The office of Dey Brothers & Company is at the rear of the second floor and fronting it are the sections devoted to the immense stocks of cottons, flannels and the cheaper grade of dress goods, (the main dress goods department being located on the first or main floor). Long counters and high shelves are piled with muslin, underwear, shirts, yarns and corsets of the improved manufacture and material.

It is needless to state that it would be impossible to enumerate all the different products which are comprised here. Suffice it to say that the stock of these departments is as large and comprehensive as any that can be found in New York city.

The Mecca of a pleasant pilgrimage is the beautiful division assigned on this floor to a grand display of mantles, cloaks and wraps composed of every variety, grade and shade of cloth and beautiful plush material to be worn. In this particular line the Dey Brothers & Company admit of no competition in this city or indeed outside New York. Elegant sealskin jackets, sacques and dolmans are here displayed; also boas and muffs of Alaska sable, fox and other fashionable long-haired furs. The plush cloaks and fur-trimmed garments are particularly elegant and the supply apparently inexhaustible. The greatest care is exercised by the firm in selecting the best quality of the various furs for trimmings and linings. It is probably not generally known by the fair sex that there is no branch of business that can be named in which greater caution and experience are required in judgment and valuation of materials and goods than in the fur trade, and none in which unscrupulous dealers would find it easier to take advantage of the inexperience of purchasers.

Good judges of fur are rare, and a thorough knowledge as well as aptitude for the business is necessary to success. In these respects this house possesses perfect qualifications. As manufacturers they make up the beautiful silk garments trimmed with the finest beaver, lynx, chinchilla and other furs. They receive designs from the leading centers direct and originate many of them. We would be remiss in our duty towards our lady friends and the fair sex generally, if we failed to apprise them of the unparalleled bargains offered in these beautiful plush and cloth cloaks and jackets and elegant fur-trimmed garments, unexcelled for artistic workmanship and perfection in shape and fit in those styles in which fashion dictates they shall now be worn. We may mention as an interesting point in these days of "shoddy" that the firm, or their skilled and experienced superintendents, strictly supervise the work of this department, consequently every garment is warranted perfect that leaves their salesrooms. And this may be said of style, as well as workmanship; for as the firm have intimate relations with European manufacturers and secure the latest foreign patterns their patrons are assured of being in the latest fashion in every garment that leaves the house. The tasty sales-parlors and show rooms in which the hundreds of styles are handsomely exhibited, more nearly resemble an elegant parlor ready for reception than a show room. There is nothing left undone to please the most refined taste in accessories, while the attendants are selected for their courtesy, as well as for experience in business. Spacious and artistically constructed storm doors admit the winter visitor to the main or ground floor of the dry goods palace, which contains a complete supply of everything which comes under the heading of dry goods (except the stock of the special departments above mentioned), covering a variety of articles sufficient to form the stock of a dozen trades. Leaving the great show windows, where a wealth of beautiful goods are displayed in most attractive style, the visitor is greeted, not alone by courteous ushers, but also by the display of an immense assortment of both domestic and direct imported dress goods, silks, white goods, linens, hosiery, gloves, furnishing goods and notions, at once picturesque and astonishing. The scores of cash balls pursuing their sinuous way over the Lamson Patent Cash Railway, to and from the busy cashier's depot, tells that the shifting crowd is an eager purchaser, as well as being delighted sight-seers. The north counter of the left aisle, devoted to hosiery and gentlemen's furnishings, is especially crowded at this season of the year, but willing clerks are tireless in displaying goods to suit the varied wants of their customers. There are some very handsome and natty articles in this department. Neckties and scarfs in endless profusion, each one manufactured solely for Dey Brothers & Co., who supply the beautiful patterns from which the entire stock of neckwear is made up. Gloves of every description to meet the need of horny-fisted working men or please the perfumed exquisite. Suspenders so rich with silken embroidery and satin linings as to be suggestive of Oriental luxury, except that turbaned Turks don't wear suspenders. Shirts of every shade and texture, socks worked in filagree of every hue, besides all else so necessary and so popular with the masculine fashionable world. The large and unique stock of handsome canes, sticks and umbrellas deserve special mention, as do also the various ornamental articles in fancy pottery, delicate and shell-like, in the pale shades or blush rose, salmon, heliotrope and amber.

The lace counter is directly in front of the entrance to the right of the left aisle, and the stock of this beautiful and costly article is very large and comprehensive. Further down on the same side are the large displays of cotton and linen goods. The careful housewife can here select for family wear or household use anything that comes under the province of our home cottons or imported linens and supply herself with every sort of pattern at the counter flanking this aisle. The Butterick patterns, for which Dey Brothers & Co. are sole agents in this city, contains every current style of pattern, and can be procured by mail by sending to this firm. The grand stock of silks, velvets and plushes occupies the entire width of the rear, and that the great stock and fine quality of the goods carried are appreciated is evidenced by the fact that the numerous salesmen of this department find but few leisure moments during the day. The great display of the dress goods section, situated beyond the elevators in the right aisle, evidences a strict rule of this firm to allow no similar house to compete, much less to excel them, in either fine qualities of goods or reasonable prices, and the same remarks are applicable to the section devoted to black goods and linings; in short, their brilliant and varied lines of dress goods are worthy of the largest metropolitan establishments, where the material is furnished by which beauty can shine in various hues and styles and thereby lend grace and happiness to the wearer. The centre sections of the mammoth store are stocked with notions, buttons, flowers, ribbons and all the minor paraphernalia which lend grace and elegance to the material costume.

Cases of perfumes as delicious as the odors they contain, Parisian gloves of kid and lace, mittens of finest make, fans, hand-painted in various figures of birds and animals, or made in pearl-tufted silk gauze, embroidered in solid gold spangles, handsome toilet cases in shell, bronze and plush, containing ivory or pearl mounted toilet articles, are among the wealth of a beautiful array.

The extent of the great business of this firm may be best understood when informed that in order to supply an imperative demand for additional room with which to accommodate the rapid increase of their already immense business, Dey Brothers & Co. were compelled to purchase the entire china and crockery stock and adjoining business house of C. M. Hamlin, at a cost of nearly $40,000. This stock they are rapidly disposing of at far less than cost, for the five floors of this store are absolutely requisite for their dry goods stock.

We have left but little space to notice the splendid arrangements of the shipping department in the basement, or their Great Cash Bargain House at 29 North Salina street. This latter is not, as many might suppose, a depot for the sale of damaged or poor stock. The goods are of equal worth with those of the main store, but room being a great requisite with the firm at the close of a season, the unsold stock is sent to the Cash Bargain house to make way for the fresh importations, hence the design of the north-side establishment, where the best of goods are sold at cost for cash.

It is plain that a house doing business on such a scale are easily able to offer inducements to their patrons which the largest metropolitan competitors can at least no more than duplicate; and when the difference in the expense of doing business in smaller cities compared with that entailed upon the dry goods houses of New York is considered, it may safely be asserted that the house under notice has an advantage which they can share with their patrons, and which the latter very well take note of.

In conclusion it is perhaps superfluous to add that the remarkable success and the splendid standing of Dey Brothers & Co. in trade circles is a just tribute to their ability and push, and to the affable courtesy alike extended to the humblest customer and wealthiest patron in their universally honorable manner of doing business. Our readers can therefore rely that in transactions with this house they will meet with fair and honorable treatment and such advantages as they will only duplicate with difficulty elsewhere.

THE RUBBER TRADE

Represented By Frank C. Howlett, in Syracuse.

SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS CAREER

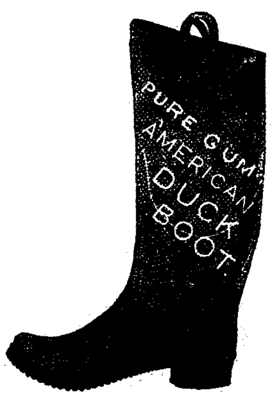
Two Large Stores in Syracuse and One in Rochester.

WHOLESALE HOUSE 59 S. CLINTON ST., RETAIL HOUSE 4 WEST FAYETTE ST.

A short history of the immense business transacted—Two large stores in this city and one in Rochester—Wholesale department at 59 South Clinton street; retail at 4 West Fayette.

Noted as Syracuse is, and has been for the last twenty years, as a great and rapidly growing business center, there are among her enterprises some particularly important industries, whose preeminence in their respective lines stand as conspicuous monuments to the skill, energy and business ability which controls and directs their affairs. Among these no more pleasing illustration can be mentioned than the rubber trade of this city, as conducted by Frank C. Howlett at the above address. A casual visit to his two large stores demonstrated the great dimensions this business has assumed since Mr. Howlett established himself here about six years ago. The retail department at No. 4 West Fayette street occupies three commodious floors, replete with every article of lighter manufacture, while the five large floors of the wholesale store at 59 South Clinton street are heavily stocked with everything known in the use of rubber.

As already mentioned, the retail department is filled with lighter stock, consisting of druggists' rubber goods, comprising every surgical appliance in which rubber is a component part. Immense supplies of rubber boots and shoes are here found; also oil clothing, blankets, hose, belting, packing, etc., etc., not forgetting the beautiful stock of indestructible rubber toys which delight the eyes of babyhood, while they weary their arms and tax their efforts to destroy. Nor should we fail to mention the Climax new four-wheeled sweeper, the most superior by far of any carpet-sweeper manufactured.



In the line of rubber boots, Mr. Howlett does a very large business, covering a broad territory. The latest big improvement in this line is the American New Duck Stub-Proof Boot, having a double thick ball tap, as illustrated by the above cut. This is by far the best rubber boot now manufactured, and is made entirely from selected pure Para gum, and by the most experienced workmen in the trade. For economy, durability and comfort this boot has no equal. In the ordinary rubber boot the coating is on sheeting, but in this boot the coating is on duck. Mr. Howlett is the sole agent for its sale in Western New York, and will, no doubt, answer inquiries regarding it, and furnish samples of the material at the store or by mail. One excellent quality this boot possesses is that it is not at all liable to tear or cut in the least degree when coming in contact with sharp edges or rough surfaces, and every wearer of rubber boots knows how liable are boots of other manufacture to fail in this great particular.

Another great improvement on former make is the "Boss Packed Cushion Weather Strip," for which this house is the sole agent. The improvement consists of a webb cord which runs through the cushion, thus preventing the latter from running down or becoming slack and flabby. Samples of this, too, can be procured by mail, and it is a great preventive of draughts, and almost indispensible in retaining the warmth of a room. The careful and economic housewife reckons this weather strip among her best aids for winter warmth and comfort.

It would be impossible in the limits of this article to enumerate, let alone describe, the almost innumerable articles of rubber manufacture which inventive genius has supplied, and which the stock of this house contains. That Mr. Howlett is the largest jobber in rubber goods in this State, outside of New York city, is sufficient evidence of the magnitude and variety of his stock. The novelties of very latest manufacture can be here obtained, and as he is the sole agent for the following named companies, the extent of his trade in a territory reaching from Albany to Buffalo, from and in Pennsylvania to and throughout Canada, may be possibly imagined. The names of the largest manufacturers for which Mr. Howlett is agent are the "American Rubber company," manufacturers of boots and shoes, heavy and gossamer rubber clothing; the "Boston Belting company," the oldest manufacturers in this country of belting, packing, hose and mechanical rubber goods; the "Norwich Belt Manufacturing company," who make the widely-known pure oak-tan belting and the very pliable and strong lace leathers. All these heavier rubbers for mill supplies, etc., are in the wholesale house at 59 South Clinton street, which is heavily stocked therewith.

Mr. Howlett is also a member of the firm of Howlett Bros., located at 39 East Main street, Rochester. Some idea of the extent of his business may be had from the fact that it necessitates the services of five commercial travelers to cover the territory over which his agencies extend. We may say in conclusion that Mr. Howlett, though in early manhood, has succeeded in building up a magnificent business, which he conducts upon a policy that has for its basis the fostering of the interests of his customers. The principles upon which he transacts his business is that of giving what is unmistakably first-class goods at the lowest prices, finding rather his gain in large sales than in large profits, and, knowing the operations of this establishment, we are not exceeding our province in commending it and its goods as being at the head of their line in the country.

A PROSPEROUS FIRM.

The Successful Business Conducted by A. D. Perry & Co. at 33 Warren Street.

Twenty years ago, A. D. Perry left the seed store of E. J. Foster, where he had been a clerk for nearly seven years, and started a seed store on the corner of Fayette and Warren streets, under the firm name of Howland, Perry & Co., two years later changed to Perry & Robinson, and after eleven years' copartnership he bought out Mr. Robinson and conducted the business alone until December 1, 1883, when he associated with him F. H. Ebeling, a young man from the Salt Springs bank, well-known in Syracuse. This firm has built up an immense trade, by prompt and square dealings, and last year were obliged to leave the corner store for one more capacious, No. 33 Warren street, only four doors from the corner, where farmers, gardeners, poultrymen and the public generally can find a very large stock of goods to select from. And now this enterprising firm, with an eye to business, and the interest of their customers always in view, have bought at sheriff's sale the entire bankrupt stock of E. B. Crofut & Co. at a low price, and have moved to their store, 33 Warren street, the goods, consisting of plows, castings, churns, hardware, barn-door rollers, fanning-mills, cultivators, creamers, paints, oils, tinware, corn-shellers, barb wire, etc. With this purchase comes also the agency of the Warren Mower parts and Munsville plows, with a full line of Stringer, Barr & Co's. goods, formerly sold by E. B. Crofut & Co., and extras for all kinds of farm machinery; in fact, everything a farmer uses on the farm, with a tin shop connected, where first-class tinner's work, such as milk-cans, cream pails, strainers and all kinds of tinware is made and repaired upon short notice in the best manner possible.

The manufacture of drain tile is an important branch of their business. Our better class of farmers are convinced it pays to tile their farms, and the demand for tile in this section became so great that three years ago A. D. Perry & Co. formed a stock company, taking half the stock themselves, to manufacture drain tile. The company bought one of the best clay beds in the country, located at Chittenango, N. Y., and are manufacturing thousands of pieces from one and a half to ten inches in diameter annually. These tile are of superior strength and are in great demand. The factory is run to the fullest capacity every season, and the tile find ready sale. Farmers will do well to call early, in order to take advantage of the low prices A. D. Perry & Co. are offering this stock for during the next thirty days, to make room for their summer stock of seeds now coming in. The seed trade is the larger part of their regular business, and the excellent quality of their seeds is well-known, as every gardener and farmer in this vicinity can testify. Their jobbing and mailing trade extends throughout the United States and Canada, and their stock for 1888 is the finest on the market. Should you fail to receive one of their catalogues by February 1st, send your name and address on a postal card, and you will be supplied free. We cheerfully recommend this reliable and enterprising firm.

LEITER BROTHERS.

Pianos and Organs, 52 South Salina Street.

The love of music is generally taken as an evidence of refined taste, and if we were to judge the culture of our citizens in this respect by the amount of patronage extended to the above named firm, we should feel no hesitation in saying that Syracusans rank as high as any other city in the United States. The house of Leiter Brothers is one of the oldest established firms in Central New York engaged in the sale of pianos and organs. The class of instruments they handle rank highest in merit in the musical world, and the recommendations they have received from pianists, prima-donnas, organists and professors of music, would fill a good-sized volume. Leiter Brothers' handsome store is heavily stocked with instruments of the best known manufacture. They are the agents for Central New York for Steinway & Sons, whose instruments are renowned throughout the civilized world, there being many instances on record of celebrated songstresses refusing to sing to any other accompaniment than that furnished by a Steinway piano. Not any less noted are the pianos of Kranich & Bach, for which Leiter Brothers are also general agents, and the sweetness and perfection of whose tone make them a universal favorite.

Among the numerous organs kept in stock we may mention the Estey & Co. and B. Shoninger & Co. manufacture, as ranking highest in public estimation. Many people at this season of the year find difficulty in choosing suitable presents for, perchance, a wife, sister or sweetheart. No more handsome or valuable gift, or one that would be better prized, could be procured for a bride than one of the splendid and popular instruments from the establishment of Leiter Brothers. The melodious sweetness of its tone would enhance the happiness of the new made home until the sound of a cherub's voice allowed the instrument to rest awhile. This firm also keeps a full stock of sheet music, and having intimate relations with the best known composers, can supply the latest published songs and instrumental music at the earliest possible moment. We cordially recommend the firm as being the most reliable dealers in the business, and assure our readers of a faithful representation of all their instruments.

LIGHT AND LUBRICATION.

The Syracuse Oil Co., W. S. Miller Manager, Office 114 West Fayette Street.

The discovery of the great oil wells of inexhaustible flow in this State and Pennsylvania, created a business enthusiasm unprecedented in the United States and stirred the commercial centres of Europe. Princely fortunes have resulted therefrom and still accumulate, despite the fact that inventive scientists have encircled our cities with lightning chains, and illuminated our streets and business places with electric brilliancy.

Among the absolute articles of necessity in all manufacturing establishments, as well as to every family, is a good oil. Manufacturers must have machinery oils and a safe burning oil is requisite for family use. The Syracuse Oil company has for a number of years been considered the headquarters in Central and Northern New York for all kinds of oils. Their works on Geddes street and the Erie canal are admirably located for a large business. They have four large buildings, including an immense storehouse, a filling room, cooper shop and pump house. Their twelve horses and wagons are kept busy delivering oils, in addition to the great quantities loaded on cars. They have their own side track that holds fourteen tank cars and all these, with a branch in the city of Oswego, enables them to meet every demand on them. Among the different grades of oils, the Crown Acme oil is without doubt the best burning oil in the world. It is made at their refinery at Olean, this State, probably the largest and best refinery in existence. Every attempt to make a better illuminating oil than Crown Acme has proved abortive. Every batch of it is thoroughly tested to make certain that it is perfectly safe and that it will not crust the wick, nor smell, nor smoke, when using in lamps—as much care being used in getting a fine burning oil as there is in getting a good fire test, the first thing always sought for in burning oils.

The Syracuse Oil Company are likewise manufacturers or agents for the best kinds of engine oils, cylinder oils, animal oils and gasoline and napthas. Their Eldorado engine oil is probably the best known and most popular engine oil in the country. Their Red-line engine, Peerless machinery, Golden machinery and black lubricating oils are acknowledged the best wherever known. Their Cotton King cylinder oil, like the Crown, Acme and Eldorado engine, is the best of its kind in the market without an exception. Capitol cylinder oil is also a very popular cylinder oil, and until quite recently was the best. It will do as much service as any other oil except the Cotton King and is highly recommended.

On all grades of gasoline and napthas the Syracuse Oil Company have gained a great and much envied reputation. Their trade in them alone amounts to several thousand barrels a month, and all this success is the result of sending out just what people purchase in good, tight packages. The facilities of the house cannot be surpassed and the business under the able supervision of Mr. W. S. Miller has aided in no small degree in extending the fame of Syracuse. We will state to our readers that any communications to the company will be promptly answered, and the courteous manager will be pleased to greet those who may call upon him at the office of the company at No. 114 West Fayette street.

PERFECT TEETH.

Dr. E. E. DeGraff, New York Dentist, 5 South Salina Street.

Beautiful teeth have formed a rapturous theme for the poet and a subject of joyous labor for the painter almost since the eventful day when Eve bit the forbidden fruit in Eden. The possession of perfect teeth is a matter of just pride in man or woman, besides being a source of admiration and envy to others less fortunate. The business of manufacturing artificial teeth has grown to enormous proportions, and in this State alone $2,000,000 are expended annually in the purchase of these useful and ornate requisites. In the profession of dentistry Dr. E. E. DeGraff, of New York city, who has recently established dental parlors and operating rooms in the Syracuse House block, this city, maintains a deservedly prominent and enviable position. This gentleman devotes his closest personal attention to every detail of the business, and though none but the best material is utilized, and every order executed with the greatest care, his extended experience and great facilities enable him to make good sets of teeth for $5.00, while the very best sets can be procured from him for $8.00. Many persons are greatly troubled by wearing teeth not properly fitted, and this inconvenience can be here perfectly remedied at a trifling cost. His new sets of continuous gum teeth with gold fillings are very popular, because of their perfect imitation of natural teeth, and only cost $8.00. Teeth are extracted for 25 cents, and with gas for 50 cents. Dr. DeGraff warrants all his work. His rapidly increasing business justifies his acknowledged reputation, and promises a prosperous future in this city. Do not fail to remember the address, Syracuse House block, No. 5 South Salina street, parlors at head of stairs first floor.

THE MUSIC HALL.

Successful Business of A. C. Chase & Son, 11 South Salina Street.

It has been written that "music hath power to soothe the savage breast," but we have known of attempts being made to extract music from some pianos and organs which have converted mild-mannered listeners into maniacs. These are the kind of instruments generally sold by peripatetic peddlers, and people must expect to be victimized so long as they will patronize them instead of going to honorable men and honest dealers for their needs. To this latter class belongs the firm whose name heads this article. The house of A. C. Chase & Son is the oldest in the music trade in Central New York, being established in 1855. The very spacious room, known as The Music Hall, the largest of its kind in this city, is fully stocked with instruments of the following fine manufactures: Decker Bros., Chickering & Son, Hardman, Haines Bros., Emerson and Knabe pianos, and Burdett and Kimball organs. These instruments possess the finest quality and quantity of tone and besides being of most beautiful finish they cost much less to keep in repair than others of much less worthy make. It is a difficult task to detect the real merits of a piano, except in testing them in years of usage, therefore people should appreciate the importance of dealing with the most reliable firms. To this class belongs the house of A. C. Chase & Son, who have done so much in fostering and directing the musical taste of Syracuse by placing the best make of instruments at the disposal of their patrons.

EYE AND EAR SPECIALTIES.

Doctors Leonard & Orton, No. 10 East Jefferson Street.

The organs of sight and hearing are two of the most sensitive in the human body and yet the former perhaps is the best abused of any we possess. The characteristic rush and hurry of the American people leave little time or inclination to nurse or humor the eye. Poets write sonnets to beautiful eyes and artists depict their loveliness on canvass, and yet we tire and strain them and anon wonder at the blurred lines, or calculate why we can so dimly discern some object that stands out in bold relief before anothers' vision. Then we awake to the startling fact that our vision is failing us and we begin to inquire for a skilled occulist. It is impossible that in the range of our many readers, there are not some who are thus afflicted. Our advice to them is given earnestly for we know whereof we write. When the least symptom of eye failure is discovered lose no time in consulting a first-class oculist, for in this case procrastination is far worse than the thief of time. The ablest oculists we know of, and we know many, are Doctors Leonard and Orton, whose offices are located at the above address. These gentlemen stand at the head of the profession. They will carefully examine the eyes, and prescribe treatment that will guide to absolute recovery. The poor are treated free of charge, and we in all faith recommend this able firm to our readers who may be afflicted with diseases of the eye and ear.

THE STUDIO.

F. X. Allgier, the Photographic Artist, No. 8 Syracuse House Block.

With the rapid growth of Syracuse in commerce, population and wealth, there has also been a corresponding growth in every branch of industry which may be considered among those classes of trade more particularly pertaining to the demonstration of taste and culture. Our citizens have evinced a degree of active endeavor to foster the ambition of professors of the various high arts to excel in their profession. Our schools, colleges and universities glory in the learning of their professors and teachers; our musical conservatories are the training schools of future prima donnas and our studios and photograph galleries are the homes of the chiefs in their profession. Among the most prominent photographic artists of this city, Mr. F. X. Allgier, whose studio is located at the above address, occupies a deservedly high and well won position. The height of the success to which this gentleman has attained has been reached solely by the merit of his artistic work, and he may well feel a pardonable pride in this fact. A system of "circus advertising" with band wagon and stereoptican auxillaries is disgusting to refined taste when applied to the higher arts, and is the usual mountebank resort of the Charlatans that creep into and disgrace every honorable profession and is one of the methods used to extort money from senseless dupes.

It is then a pleasure to chronicle the success of this gentleman, the excellence of whose work would alone advertise his business. Mr. Allgier takes a pride in turning out first-class work. He relies upon no quack system of advertising to attract business, for the recognized excellence of every class of work he does is justly appreciated by a most liberal and extensive patronage. All kinds of work known to the photographic art is admirably performed and every order receives prompt and personal attention. The photographs he turns out are unexcelled for style and finish, as well as for moderate cost. Photographs are enlarged and splendid crayon pictures can be had at a very low cost. The scenic and drapery accessions can not be surpassed and the entire gallery is fitted up with every necessary requisite to aid in supplying his patrons with first-class works of art. Mr. Allgier is a gentleman of large experience in all that relates to his art, and his strictly honorable and upright manner of doing business is evidenced by his success.

ZINSMEISTER BROTHERS.

Their Extensive Business Transacted at 35 North Salina Street.

There is no concern in the city that has built up a higher reputation for the excellence of its stock or enjoys a larger or more extensive trade than that of Zinsmeister Brothers (John and Karl), dealers in boots and shoes, whose elegant and extensive establishment is located at the above address.

At no time since establishing their business have this firm been willing to sacrifice their reputation for keeping the best line in the various grades, and a class of goods that will bear the most rigid tests of wear. They have valued more a permanent reputation for durability than the temporary triumphs of depreciated products which are now so extensively placed upon the market. This fact, in conjunction with the very low prices at which the goods are marked, explains why this establishment commands such a liberal patronage. The modern demands for "shoddy" has not broken down their faith in the sound maxim of business that a good article at a fair price, is better than a poor one at more than it is worth. They have close connections with the most prominent manufacturers in the country and are enabled to put before their numerous customers the very best quality of goods at the most resonable prices. Their line of ladies' shoes and the great stock of slippers of every quality are not excelled and scarcely equalled in the city. Their energetic business methods and square-dealing principles, combined with the quantity, quality and price of their goods, demonstrate that it is possible to hold a reputation for selling first-class goods that will secure the confidence of the buyers, and at the same time furnish them at prices that will compel their patronage.

FINE DENTAL WORK.

Dr. G. E. Hill, Albany Dentist, No. 62 South Salina Street.

Very many persons throughout this section, particularly those who have heretofore required evidence of his professional skill, felt deep regret, and expressed warm sympathy when the beautiful dental parlors of Dr. G. E. Hill, the Albany dentist, were destroyed in the disastrous fire that consumed three handsome buildings on South Salina street nearly three months ago. The doctor, however, did not lose any time in bewailing his misfortune, but in his usual energetic way proceeded to find a favorable location where he might pursue his profession and complete the great amount of work on hand when so summarily dispossessed. This favorable location he found at the above number where he now occupies the entire sixty feet front of the second floor. His reception rooms are spacious and handsomely furnished, operating rooms supplied with elegant and comfortable operating chairs and the labratory and workrooms fitted up with all the dental appliances that contribute to the success and artistic perfection of the dentists' work.

Doctor Hill occupies a deservedly prominent position among the most skillful dentists in this State and the large custom he receives, together with the little leisure time he has to spare, clearly demonstrate his success in this city. This establishment is one of a syndicate of dental institutions which are known as the Albany Dental Association, the largest dental establishment in the world, and of which Dr. Hill is the general manager. The branches of the Association are located as follows: No. 62 South Salina street, (over Yale's paper store); 272 Main street, Buffalo; 33 West Market street, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; 142 E. Main street, Rochester; over First National Bank, Scranton, Pa., and 148 Market street, Paterson, N. J. These establishments are in charge of the most experienced gentlemen in the dental profession.

The class of work done by Dr. Hill in this city has won the highest meed of praise, alike for perfect fit, artistic workmanship, and moderate price. He performs the filling of teeth without using pegs to separate the teeth or causing any pain by their use. This is consoling news to any who desire to have their teeth filled, or that know anything of the pain occasioned by the pegging process. Dr. Hill furnishes a full set of teeth, upper or lower set, for $8.00, and will warrant them in every particular to be of the best material, and that no better can be got anywhere, no matter how much may be paid for them. He pays also particular attention to the painless saving of natural teeth, and the reputation he has for the excellency of his gold fillings extends over a wide territory. He fills teeth with silver for 75 cents, and these, as well as gold fillings, he warrants. Dr. Hill mixes gold and platinum with the silver, which makes it harden much quicker than ordinary amalgam, and renders it so hard that sharp angles will not break away, besides giving it a finer grain and enabling it to completely resist corrosion.

For the painless extraction of teeth, Dr. Hill uses vitalized air, his own discovery, and in an experience of twenty years there has not been one unfavorable result from its use. We should also mention that the teeth are put in without plates—Dr. Sheffald's process. The following is Dr. Hill's scale of prices, and in view of the splendid workmanship and the care and attention displayed in every branch of the busines and the superior quality of the material used, the figures are surprisingly low; but we presume the doctor reaps the benefit in the great amount of work he performs, being satisfied with very moderate individual profits. Here are the prices: Teeth extracted for 25 cents; gas administered for 50 cents; teeth cleaned for 75 cents; teeth filled with amalgam for 25 cents; with silver for 75 cents; with gold for $1 and upwards; a set of teeth for $5.50; best set of teeth for $8.00.

Our readers will from these remarks readily realize that no better dental work in any respect can be performed in this city, and that Dr. Hill is in a position to at all times guarantee his patrons perfect fits, reliable sets and workmanship that cannot be excelled.

An Important Point.

LEGG & HILTON,

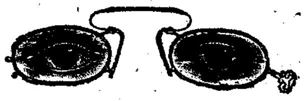
Watchmakers, Jewelers' and Opticians, 17 Vanderbilt Square.

Although mankind, in the earlier ages, measured time by the sun dial and hour glass, it is evident from the recovery of great stores of jewelry and trinkets from the ruined cities of the East and also by the productions of India and China that the art of making jewelry was one of the first at which they arrived, and that the taste for personal decorations is a universal expression of existence.

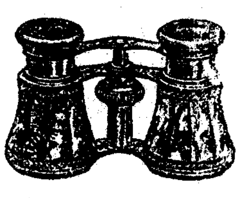
In these times the appliance of science to the methods and processes of the arts has placed in our possession the indispensible pocket chronometer and enlivened our homes with the familiar ticking of the household clock, while the introduction of machinery has so cheapened and increased the production of jewelry as to place within the reach of everyone the ability to gratify his taste for it.

Handsome stores are everywhere devoted to this business, but none are better calculated to supply our wants or satisfy our tastes than the one conducted by Messrs. Legg & Hilton, at the above address, these gentlemen perhaps having done more to educate and direct public taste to the value of a first-class timepiece, or any article in the line of optical goods, than any other house in the city has accomplished.

The stock carried is a very beautiful and well-selected one and includes American and imported watches of the best manufacture, a fine general line of jewelry, plain and ornamental clocks of all styles and varieties, besides a magnificent line of optical goods, including barometers, telescopes, opera glasses and microscopical supplies.



Their stock of spectacles and eyeglasses is most comprehensive, and being thoroughly schooled opticians, making free examinations of the eyes of their customers, they are enabled to fit the eye with glasses, the strength of which are precisely adapted to the sight. Very many people carelessly neglect caring for their eyesight, forgetting that it is one of the most sensitive organs, and that its failure can be prevented by timely precaution. To such as may discern a weakness of sight, no matter in how small a degree, we extend a kindly advice to consult these gentlemen, who charge nothing for a careful examination, and we recommend their glasses, the above cut illustrating one of the styles worn, as being the very best and most highly endorsed in the entire business.



Their large stock of opera glasses comprise many elegant styles in pearl, ivory and ebony, and are the best in their line. Every amusement-lover knows how the enjoyment of a spectacular play may be spoiled by the use of a poor opera glass. In a corresponding degree is the worth of a dramatic performance enjoyed by the use of the glasses sold by this firm, for as practical men they aim to procure the best and sell them at prices which places them within the power of every amusement-lover to procure.

The firm of Legg & Hilton is about the best known of its nature in this city, and enjoys to the fullest extent the confidence of the community. Whatever you may purchase, whether the costliest chronometer or the tiniest trinket, reliance may be placed upon the fact that the article sold is exactly as represented and the price in consonance with the well-known characteristics of liberality and square dealing that distinguishes this firm. In fact, the career of this house since its establishment to the present time has been a chapter of well-deserved success, which their fairness and square, liberal dealing has achieved.

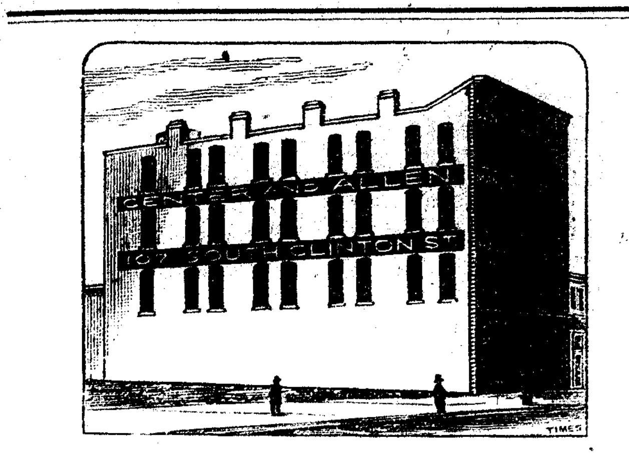
C. W. OSTRANDER'S

SMOKE Style CIGAR.

53 South Clinton St., Syracuse, N. Y.



Center & Allen.

Syracuse has of late years been most emphatically known to the trade as a cigar manufacturing city, and any account of the mercantile and manufacturing establishments of the Salt City would be incomplete without mention of that class of houses which are the best representatives of the weed that affords so much solace to mankind.

As a leading representative of this trade in the city, we devote a brief space to the house of Messrs. Center & Allen. These gentlemen have recently formed a business alliance and the combined energy, ability and honorable qualities of individual experience form the groundwork of a solid, practical and reliable house. It is the aim of this house to supply the market with a class of goods of so fine a quality and perfect make that they will find a ready sale to supply popular demand throughout this State, as well as the west and southwest generally. A great many skilled cigarmakers are employed at their factory in the manufacture of every grade of cigars, which are turned out in large quantities and readily disposed of. The manufacturing plant and wholesale department are situated at No. 107 South Clinton street, while the handsome retail store is located at No. 19 West Railroad street. In the salesroom are stored a full and complete line of fine cut and plug smoking and chewing tobaccos, cigars, snuffs, as well as smokers' articles of every description. The stock of Key West and imported goods is very large and comprehensive, comprising the best-known and popular brands, and have the highest reputation in the trade for superior quality.

However, the energies of the concern are devoted to the manufacture of cigars, which, under their own well-known brand names, have found a ready sale throughout a very extensive district. Among the brands referred to are the "A. M. C." "Perfectos," "Annette" Perfectos, "J. G. A.," "Center's Pure Stock," "Allen's Pets," "Yours," "Ours" and "Just Right," the best five cent cigar in the market. These goods are manufactured from the best Vuelto Abajo tobacco, as good as is used by the best factories in Havana. and the trade will find it to their interest to handle them, owing to their uniform quality and fine flavor thus enabling them to hold their trade with the public. This firm is also distributing agents for the justly celebrated "Grand Chief" cigars. They also keep in stock the well-known "Merry War" plug chewing tobacco and also the American Eagle tobacco. Their entire brands are very popular wherever introduced and easily maintain their high place in public favor. The proprietors are gentlemen who are experts in the selection of raw material, and also possess a thorough knowledge of the details of the business. and are always solicitous of the wants of their patrons, and scrupulous to give honest goods at moderate prices in all instances. The output of cigars from their factory has assumed large proportions and is rapidly increasing, and by virtue of the facilities at their command they are enabled to offer special advantages in the way of high goods at low prices. This establishment is in every way entitled to the confidence of the trade as being a leading representative of the cigar manufacturing interests, not only of Syracuse, but of the entire State, whose reputation is being built by a system of uniformly fair and honorable dealing, as well as by the excellent quality and reliability of its goods.

A SUCCESSFUL INSTITUTION.

Meads' Business College, Grand Opera House Block.

Meads' Business College, situated at the above address, is one of the best, as it is one of the oldest of these institutions in the country, being specially designed for the practical benefit of scholars who decide to pursue a business career. The progressive and thoroughly practical methods pursued at this college have drawn to its class rooms pupils from all sections. It was established in 1863 and has during its period of existence accomplished a great work and is now considered one of the steadfast institutions of the city. The proprietor and principal, Prof. C. P. Meads, is an accomplished scholar and devotes his entire time to the interests of his pupils and is assisted in his work by accomplished and experienced instructors who combine with him to impart the completest commercial course that can be given. The rooms are spacious, well lighted and ventilated. The actual business department is one of the most completely equipped and practically conducted in the country, with every facility for representing retail and wholesale business, commission, transportation and banking. Students buy and sell, give, take and discount notes, make out bills, checks, drafts and account sales, write letters, deposit in bank, open and close books, act as entry, shipping and invoice clerks, bookkeepers, bank clerks; and in short acquire a fund of practical information worth ten times its cost in time and money. A guarantee of the popular appreciation of Meads' College appears in the fact that a majority of our wholesale and retail business houses employ young men and women in most responsible positions who have obtained their business education at this institution. Stenography, type-writing and telegraphy are also taught to perfection in an astonishingly brief period. Night school opens October 1st and continues until April, and the tuition fee being but $4.00 per month, the advantages it confers on those employed during the day cannot be overestimated.

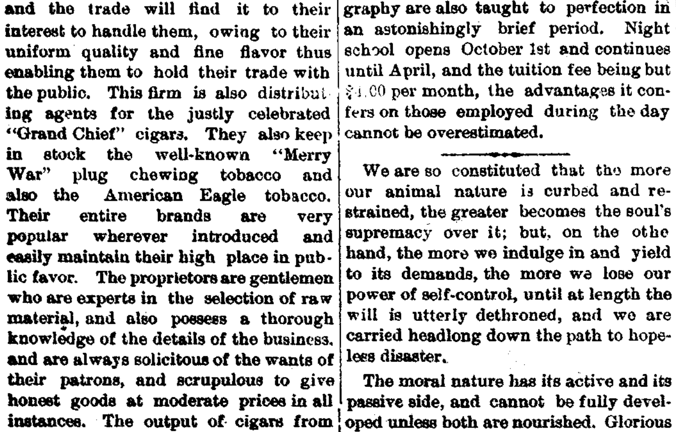
We are so constituted that the more our animal nature is curbed and restrained, the greater becomes the soul's supremacy over it; but, on the othe hand, the more we indulge in and yield to its demands, the more we lose our power of self-control, until at length the will is utterly dethroned, and we are carried headlong down the path to hopeless disaster.

The moral nature has its active and its passive side, and cannot be fully developed unless both are nourished. Glorious labor for truth, for right, for duty, for the good of others, should be united with that tranquil frame of mind which leans confidently on established principles and thus strengthens the whole nature for further action.



A PROMINENT INDUSTRY.

The Carriage Business Conducted by James Kerby at 41 and 43 Warren St.

In the building of wagons, buggies and other wheeled vehicles, American manufacturers beat the world. They have a greater variety of lumber at command than those of any other country, they have more skill as masters, more labor-saving appliances, more skillful workmen, and their productions as a consequence cannot be surpassed either for gracefulness of design, strength and durability of construction, or for reasonableness in price. Among the best manufacturers in this line the firm of James Kerby at the above address stands among the most prominent. Mr. Kerby manufactures the celebrated Duplex, which bears the reputation of being the best pleasure and business wagon yet produced. This wagon, by having one spring on each side of the axle, does away with the objection experienced by having the single spring either in front or rear of the axle, which, when going into a pitch hole, has the tendency to throw a strain on the spring and couplings, working them loose and causing the wagon to rattle and make a noise. This is but one of the many excellencies of this fine vehicle, of which the above cut is a faithful representation. Besides manufacturing, Mr. Kerby does a general repairing business and his customers can rest assured of the best material being used therein by first-class workmen and we confidently recommend our readers to this establishment, knowing that their orders will receive prompt, careful and personal attention.

"NONE SUCH" BAKING POWDER.

Manufactured by George C. Hanford, at No. 108 South Clinton Street.

One of the best methods to create and sustain happiness in the home circle rests in the inclination or ability of the wife or mother to see that none but well-cooked, clean and enticing victuals are neatly set upon the tidy, well-laid table. It matters not how luxurious the home or how humble the cottage, nor how attractive conjugal love or the prattle of innocent childhood might make them, the cup of home content will never fill so long as poorly cooked meals continue to be placed upon the table. The sodden pie-crust makes the rich man reflect on the club life of his bachelor days, while the doughy bread induces the hungry laborer to sigh for a bakery or a restaurant. The innocent cook stove has many a load of blame to carry for the careless housewife who has neglected to educate herself regarding the quality and quantity of the meats, vegetables, flour condiments and concomitants necessary to secure an enjoyable repast, and thereby perfect the happiness and content of home.

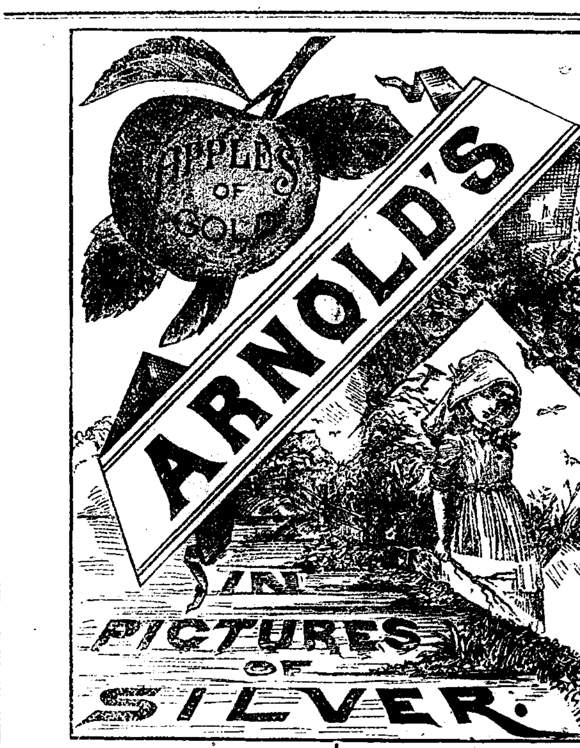
Everyone knows that good bakestuffs of every kind depend, to a great extent, on the quality of the baking powder or yeast used therein, and yet there is a great deal of ignorance or carelessness dislayed in the purchase of these very articles.

It is our privilege to place before our readers in this article the superior merits of the "None Such" Baking Powder, manufactured by Mr. George C. Hanford, at the above address. There are various brands of baking powder of different manufacture in the market, some good, some medium and more bad. Unless baking powder is absolutely pure it should not be used. Unscrupulous dealers adulterate their productions with various minerals in order to obtain as nearly as possible satisfactory results in use, regardless of the health of the families so unfortunate as to use it; but no other manufacturer of baking powder, no matter what they may claim, can compete in analytical test, or produce the grand results in baking, that belong to the splendid baking powder known by the name of "None Such."

It is now about fourteen years since Mr. Hanford commenced the manufacture of this justly celebrated baking powder, and the close personal attention he has given to every minute detail, and the help of the latest and most approved appliances, many of them of his own invention, for mixing and manipulating, sparing neither time, labor or money to attain the desired end, has enabled him to place before the public this "None Such" baking powder which stands to-day unparalelled in this country or any other for excellence and purity. The "None Such" baking powder is absolutely pure, being made of pure grape cream tartar, the finest bicarbonate soda and a little starch. It contains nothing else. Housewives should not fail to appreciate the superiority of this powder over all others. Dr. Edward G. Love, the Government Chemist, made an analysis of various baking powders, purchased by himself, and the result of the analysis proved beyond all shadow of doubt the absolute superiority of None Such" over all other baking powders. Mr. Hanford has also received thousands of testimonials from the most prominent chemists and physicians in this country, all attesting the great superiority of "None Such." The proprietor will forfeit the amount of the purchase to any dealer finding short weight, or any impurity or adulteration whatever in the powder.

Mr. Hanford also manufactures a full line of pure flavoring extracts of finest quality, and which can be relied upon by the most particular. They are not made from poisonous oils, acids or ethers and are from four to six times as strong as many flavoring extracts. They are the direct production of, and represent true flavors of choice selected fruits, spices, etc., from which each derives its name. A huge iron mortar run by machinery, capable of performing the work of eight men, is used for extracting the oils from the vanilla beans, etc., from which the flavors are made.

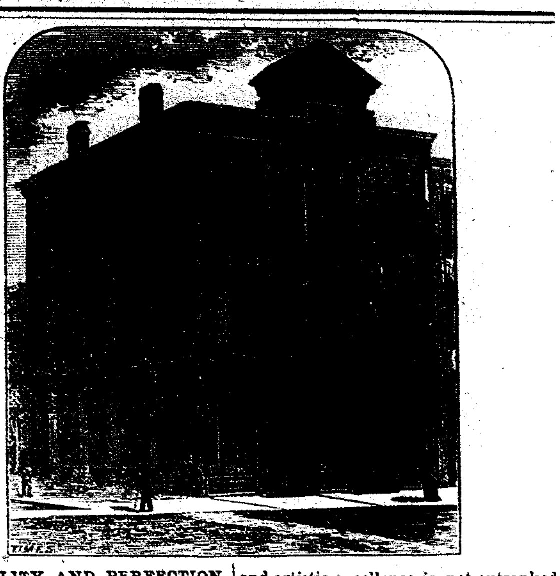
Mr. Hanford occupies the entire five floors at the above address in the manufacture of his "None Such" baking powders and flavoring extracts. The factory is furnished with every requisite appliance and gives employment to a large number of men and women. We are glad to chronicle that he is reaping the success the superior merits of his "None Such" baking powder and pure flavors deserve.



THE CLOTHING TRADE,

As Conducted by William A. Arnold at 16 and 18 North Salina Street.

If there is one desire that operates more powerfully than another the minds of the present generation, it is the desire to be well and tastefully dressed. This desire does not grow out of a wish to be simply in the fashion, but is the result of the exercise of taste created by its exhibition on the part of our associates and a knowledge of its good effects. A diamond is pleasing to look at, but its beauty is improved by an artistic setting; so men of talent, energy and ability will in time assert their claims to the positions they were created to adorn, but how much easier and smoother is the road, with how much greater facility is the height of their ambition reached, if they are well dressed. A person who is well dressed, or comfortably clad, according to his means, carries with him an air of respectability and shows his cleanliness and taste. At the present time, when the general supply of clothing can be procured at incredibly low prices, there is no excuse for slovenly or ill-clad men and boys. Among the houses engaged in the clothing business which contributes most largely to the satisfaction of the general public, the firm of W. A. Arnold, at the above address, stands deservedly prominent. For nearly nineteen years Mr. Arnold has been identified with the prosperity and development of Syracuse in relation to the clothing trade, maintaining through all that period the highest reputation for reliability and liberality. He is thoroughly conversant with every branch of the clothing business and manufactures a general line of men's, youths', boys', school and children's clothing. All sizes and styles are produced in large profusion. The facilities of the firm in all departments are complete, and fully equal to any in the country. Mr. Arnold keeps a very fine assortment of stylish patterns of very fine imported and domestic cloths, as well as a large stock of the coarser grades, and the smallest detail in the manufacture and make-up is examined by his practical eye before being sent to the customer or finding a place on the sales counters, so that it is next to impossible to find an ill-made garment in the entire stock. Knowing that Mr. Arnold had inaugurated a special holiday sale on the first inst. and continuing through the month, the reporter joined the throng of purchasers, and after careful inspection was thoroughly convinced that the promises of the proprietor to "run them off at cost" was being indeed fulfilled. One grade of overcoats were going off like hot cakes at $3.50, exactly two dollars less than the former price. Another grade that formerly sold for $8 were finding eager purchasers at the sum of $5. A particularly good grade of overcoats of fine material, which were well worth the original price of $14, were being slaughtered at the ridiculously small sum of $7. Special sales were also going on in the pants section, where all-wool cassimere pants which had sold at, and were easily worth $5.50, were being given away for $3. Nor were the children forgotten. This department was crowded with eager mothers who were rejoicing the hearts of their little ones and beautifying their bodies with excellent suits, which they obtained complete for $2, the former price being $4.50. These suits vary in size to fit children from three to eight years old. This special sale will continue during the holidays, and that the people appreciate the liberality of the proprietor is evidenced by the crowds that flock there. Arnold deserves the success he has attained as an honorable, reliable merchant, and his patrons are certain of obtaining the full value of their expenditure at his popular store.



PUNCTUALITY AND PERFECTION.

John Stoecker's Jewelry House 44 North Salina Street.

There is no more useful article, or one better appreciated by punctual business men, than a first-class, reliable time piece, and no business requires a more thorough knowledge of everything therewith connected than that which relates to the watchmaking and jewelry trade. In this age when the market is flooded with worthless chronometers it is gratifying to know that there is one firm that has achieved a well earned reputation for honest representation and reliable goods. We refer to the old established firm of John Stoecker at 44 North Salina street, which commenced business in 1866 and a cut of whose business house heads this article. Mr. Stoecker is a thoroughly practical watchmaker and deals in none but those of reliable manufacture, but relying more on rapid sales at small profits, he is able to give his patrons first-class watches at prices but little above manufacturing cost. The general jewelry stock of the store contains an assortment which for beauty and artistic excellence is not outranked in the city. It includes lines of ladies' gold watches, diamonds and other precious stones, plain and ornate rings, chains and general silver ware, etc. His stock of clocks, like his watches, are of the best manufacture, and no careful housewife need complain, or excuse late meals if supplied with a Stoecker clock. It has ever been the aim of the proprietor to retain the trade once obtained and in this he has always succeeded, for in a business in which there are many opportunities for fraud and misrepresentation, people will generally cling to the honest, straightforward dealer. In laying these brief facts before our readers we do so to guide them to an establishment where may be procured the very best goods obtainable in this business, with low prices, courteous treatment and honest charges.

It is worth while to remark that one reason why Mr. Stoecker is enabled to sell at the most reasonable prices lies in the fact that, being the owner of his entire building, he is able and willing to share with his customers the sum the rent, under other circumstances, would amount to.

BANKERS AND BROKERS.

Burnett & Westcott, 12 and 14 Syracuse House Block.

No city can have sound, successful or extensive banking or brokerage facilities without numbering among her business men a majority who are reliable, sound and successful. Neither can the industrial and commercial enterprise of a city be conducted without the aid of those institutions whose recognized integrity and financial standing are beyond every doubt. The growing commercial interests of Syracuse, and the important relations this city sustains as a distributing point for her own manufacturers and other trade products, render its brokerage and banking facilities a matter of particular interest, and few people whose attention has not been directed to the subject, have any idea of the extensive business transacted in this city in the sale and purchase of stocks, bonds, promissory notes, mortgages, local and general securities, through the brokers who represent this important business in Syracuse.

In this branch of trade we direct our readers' attention to the firm of Messrs. Burnett and Westcott, whose offices are located in rooms No. 12 and 14 Syracuse House block, corner of South Salina and Genesee streets.

These gentlemen are agents for "The Burnett Park Extension," besides being agents for the "Security Loan and Trust company," of Des Moines, Iowa, six per cent. debenture bonds, five and ten years to run, with interest payable semi-annually in New York.

Regarding these investments it is worthy of note that the State of Iowa shows the lowest percentage of illiteracy and the most uniform crop returns of any State, and the security behind these bonds is constantly appreciating. It is well known that they are largely held for trust funds by some of the best investors in New York city; and it is also true that they are held by the State of Iowa, and also by the strongest insurance companies (having [illegible] fully approved by the State Auditor) and other investors of trust funds, in the city of Des Moines, in very large amounts. Messrs. Burnett & Westcott are gentlemen of large experience and sound judgment and they very carefully investigated the standing and methods of the "Security Loan and Trust Company" before venturing to offer their securities, and as a result of their thorough investigation they do not entertain the slightest hesitancy in offering these securities to investors as being safer than most railway and real estate mortgages, and as being far more available and convenient than the latter. They are issued in multiples of $100, in sums to suit investors.

The firm also deals in real estate and are especially recommended to property owners and those seeking judicious investments. The business of the house consists in buying, selling and exchanging all kinds of real property. This includes business premises, residences, town lots and tracts of land. In this department the firm enjoy more than ordinary facilities, their connections being wide-spread. It is the earnest endeavor of Messrs. Burnet & Westcott to merit, by the strictest principles of mercantile honor and fair dealing, the appreciation and confidence of the public. Those forming relations with this house may rest assured that their interests will always be carefully considered and guarded, and all the advantages placed at their disposal which may be conferred by large and growing connections, honest dealing and the strictest adherence to all representations made.

For the benefit of our country readers that may desire to transact business with Messrs. Burnet & Westcott, that they may reach the firm without further inquiry, we state that they occupy the corner offices, Nos. 12 and 14, on the second floor of the Syracuse House block, southeast corner of South Salina and Genesee streets. These rooms front on both streets.

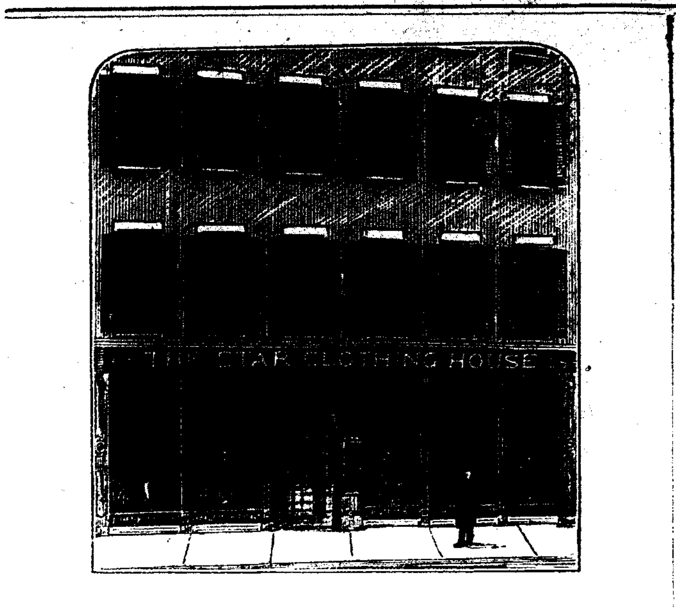
A WELL-KNOWN FIRM.

Kearney Brothers, Manufacturers and Retailers of Clothing.

There is not a firm in the State that is more favorably known than Kearney Brothers. They have thirty-two branch retail stores and manufacture every article they sell. They buy their cloth for cash direct from the looms, and possess superior facilities for manufacturing. They have two factories, one located in New York, where all their fine goods are made by men tailors; the other is located in Utica, N. Y., where the medium grade of goods are made up by experienced hands. In each of the branch stores they sell all goods at the lowest wholesale prices, thus saving you the middleman's profit of from twenty-five to forty per cent. They opened their branch store in Syracuse two years ago and have established a trade second to none in this city. Their store is located in the Larned block, Vanderbilt square, second door from Warren street, and you can go there any day and you will find their large force of salesmen as busy as bees, waiting on crowds of people who come from miles around to patronize this live, enterprising firm. Just now they are running an extraordinary special sale of men's and boys' suits and overcoats. They are selling a man's double-breasted overcoat for $2.50, worth $8.00; a man's beaver overcoat at $6.10, worth $11.00; a man's Chinchilla overcoat worth $18.00 at $9.35; a custom-made Elysian Beaver overcoat, satin-lined throughout, at $14.35, regular retail price $28.00; men's entire suits worth $10.00, at $4.65; all-wool business suits, in all the new patterns, worth $14.00, at $6.90; imported corkscrew worsted suits, made up four-button cutaway and Prince Albert style, at $11.50, $13.20, $14.60 and $16.35, equal to best custom work at $38.00 and $40.00; boys' overcoats from $1.50 up; boys suits from $1.60 up; thousands of men's pants from 49 cents up; boys' pants from 25 cents up. This firm never "carry over" goods from one season to another, and on account of the backwardness of the season they have inaugurated this great clearance sale, as they manufactured very heavily this season for their different retail stores; and the consequence is, on account of the unfavorable weather, they are heavily laden with winter goods. They are determined to close out all heavy goods regardless of loss, cost or value. The people are not slow in taking advantage of such a grand opportunity, and if you have not already visited this firm, we would advise you to do so without delay, knowing that it will be to your interest to do so.



AN ENTERPRISING HOUSE.

The Great Star Clothing Company, 24 and 26 N. Salina St.

At no period in the world's history has the progress of science and art been so rapid, or their triumphs and benefits more clearly defined, than during the last decade. The inventive genius of man has made use even of the lightning of the heavens to illuminate the factories he has filled with the labor-saving machinery of every industry.

In no branch of manufacture to which machinery can be applied has greater perfection been attained than in that which relates to the manufacture of the cloths in the garments which we wear. The gigantic looms in tireless oscillation produce the various fabrics in complete readiness for the tailor's shears, or the knife of the clothing factory, and in consequence the hand-looms and spinning wheels, the pride of our good old grandmothers, are heirlooms now, stored away with other relics of the past. But not to the manufacture of cloths alone by machinery is the present perfection of every line of clothing due. Every accessory necessary to form a complete garment, is at the command of the tailor, and as a consequence these, with the unequalled loom and superior work of Americans, compel even our British cousins to admit that we are the best-dressed people upon the earth And why should we not be when manufacturers are so numerous, and great stores stocked with ready made clothes of every quality and every price abound in every city, town and village in our land. Everyone knows how much easier it is for a man, when dependent upon his own ability for a decent living, to get along in the world and rise among the people in it when well clad. A well-dressed man carries with him an air of respectability and displays a refined taste; and if we were called upon to select the branches of industry which contribute most to the satisfaction of men in general we should have no hesitation to decide in favor of that art which enables a man to be well dressed in garments of becoming styles and colors.

In connection with these remarks it is our privilege to chronicle the rapid but sturdy growth of an institution ranking among the largest, as it is the most progressive, retail clothing establishment in this State. We refer to the Star Clothing House ,located at Nos. 24 and 26 North Salina street, Empire Block, for it is a recognized fact that any treatise regarding the commercial interests of Syracuse wherein a record of the best business houses of the city is desirable would be incomplete were mention of this honest, liberal and progressive firm omitted.

The Star Clothing House was estab by Owens brothers, the great clothing manufacturers of Utica, and the sole management of the house devolved upon Mr. L. A. Stevenson, who is perhaps the best known and most popular salesman in this city, his business relations with the people extending back for a period of twelve years, and was widely known as an energetic member of the firm of Ramsey & Stevenson.

The promise of success became so favorable that four gentlemen, widely and well-known as practical business men, full of the go-aheaditiveness and high principle requisite to achieve honorable success, combined together and formed a partnership with the Owen Brothers. under the name and style of "The Star Clothing House," and this is the house of which we now write. The owners of these names will be recognized as men who possess every attribute necessary towards the prosecution of a successful business career. They are the Owen Brothers, of Utica, and the other places hereinafter mentioned, J. Henry Olcott, for some years with Kent & Miller and severing a five years' connection with the "Famous" to join the fortunes of the "Star;" Harlow A. Pierce and J. Irving Freeman, for years with Kent & Miller, and L. A. Stevenson, of whose experience we have already spoken, thus forming a constellation which for brilliant business qualities might well excuse the plur : number when speaking of the "Star."

The "Star," while in no manner connected in a monetary way with any other concern, belongs to a great syndicate of clothing establishments located in the cities below named and the stock of which is furnished from the Owens Brothers immense factory in Utica. The members of the syndicate are named and located as follows: "The When" Clothing House, Nos. 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 North Pennsylvania street, Indianapolis; "The When" Clothing House, 210 and 212 Broadway, St. Louis; Owen Bros., 68 and 70 Main street, Lockport, N. Y.; "The Star" Clothing House, 24 and 26 North Salina street, Syracuse; Owen Bros., 25 and 27 West Main street, Springfield, Ohio; P. J. Farley & Co., Genesee street, Utica; Owen Bros., 9 & 11 East Washington street, Greencastle, Ind.; Owen Bros., 27 Third street, Lafayette, Ind.; "The When" Clothing House, Columbus, Ohio, and Owen Bros., No. 2 Saginaw street, Flint, Mich.

The great factory that supplies these ten large establishments with goods, occupies the entire Ballou block in Utica. the whole five floors of the building being wholly utilized in the business. It can be readily seen that in a great combination of this kind there are unparalleled advantages in competition with every other individual house. The magnitude of the cloth purchases alone by the owners of the factory commands the procurement of goods at figures smaller concerns cannot obtain, and enables the manufacturer to sell the best goods of every kind to these firms of the syndicate at prices that enable them to give the public those extraordinary bargains, at once the delight of the purchaser and the wonder of rival houses. Our readers can therefore understand why it is the Star Clothing house can pile its counters with superior goods, mark their cost in plain figures and adhere strictly to the one-price rule. The main floor of the handsome premises indicated is forty feet wide by one hundred and twenty-eight feet deep, and is replete with a beautiful line of men's, boys', youth's and children's clothing in every grade of broadcloths, cassimeres, corkscrews, diagonals, tweeds, worsteds, etc., etc., in a sufficiency of stock and elegance of style to entitle this house to be designated as the home of fashion. "The Star" does not confine itself to its great stock of the finer quality of goods, for no house in this city has a more extensive line of low grade goods, equal in make-up to the higher priced garments. The laboring man can find no better mart at which to supply himself with durable clothes at a low figure. At no time since starting this business have the members of the firm been willing to sacrifice their former reputation for honest, reliable representation of goods to the buyer, and though in obedience to the popular demands for cheap goods they carry a vast line of the lower grade stock, the very liberal patronage they receive from the laboring class is sufficient testimony of the durability and honest representation of these low priced goods, which bear the most rigid tests of everyday wear and exposure to the weather. Their very large and magnificent stock of the finer grade of clothing is in every respect all that can be claimed for it. The very best material is used in its manufacture and the employment of skilled workmen only, the critical examination by experts of all garments made, the adoption of all modern mechanical appliances that tend to reduce the cost of manufacture and improve the garment, give the goods of the "Star" a just precedence over other manufactures.

A section of this establishment, which is undoubtedly the largest, most cheerful and best appointed salesroom of the kind in the city, is appropriately named the "Children's Department." This bright spot is devoted exclusively to the use of ladies and children, giving them as much privacy as if they were in a separate establishment. The line of goods carried in this department would do credit to the largest concern in New York city.

Prices range from $2.00 to $15.00 in every imaginable style for children, from two to fourteen years of age. Of the specialties, kilt suits, blouse waists, fall and winter overcoats, suits with caps to match, are the most prominent, while in fact everything can be secured in this department within the range of the above prices to dress a child in the most approved style. At this season of the year special mention should be made of the splendid stock of overcoats, and the members of the firm speak the truth in saying "We have more overcoats of every price and style than any other house in the city." The man, no matter how fastidious his taste, who could not select an overcoat to suit him from the assortment offered would be difficult indeed to please. In style, workmanship and material they are equal to custom-made coats, and the prices are surprisingly low.

We would be remiss in duty to our readers did we fail to metion the "Star's" splendid and complete stock of gents' furnishing goods. The enterprise, good faith and facilities for supplying the most satisfactory goods in this line at the lowest rates have made this house a favorite one among all classes. The articles handled include everything in the line of men's and boys' hats, caps, gloves and mittens, socks, shirts, underwear, suspenders, collars and cuffs—everything except shoes; with hundreds of umbrellas and canes of every style and price, made from every material in use. The bargain counters are piled with odd lots of every grade of goods, and the rubber coats of every grade and thickness known in the trade are sold at prices that distance any hope of competition therein. Every kind of clothing is especially cheap just now, and the bargains offered by the "Star" on all classes of goods are the best that can be found in the city. The basement of the store is filled with boxes of goods ready for the counters, and the entire second floor of the establishment is devoted to the Custom Department. The making of gentlemen's wearing apparel to order by measure is one of those arts which requires for its successful operation the highest degree of artistic knowledge in every department of the business, and in this particular branch, this house since its inception has established a principle to give full value for the money, the best of materials, fit and workmanship, and thus a fine trade has been gradually acquired among the most exacting of our citizens. This department is under the supervision of Mr. Charles McAdams, one of the best cutters in the profession.

In conclusion we will say that the characteristics which regulate the business policy of the Star Clothing House are such as cannot fail to entitle it to universal consideration and popular appreciation, while the variety, style and quality of the stock is unrivalled in worth and price.

SEEDS OF SUCCESS.

The Popular Establishment of Charles F. Saul.

In disclosing the advantages that pertain to the city of Syracuse as a great commercial centre, it is our intention to so faithfully represent the most prominent houses in the industries of the community, as to leave no doubt in the minds of our readers as to the advantages they may secure by transacting their business or supplying their needs at the establishments thus represented.

It is a matter of no small moment to the farmer, the great producer of this great country, to be assured of the reliability of the storekeeper from whom he procures the seeds for his next year's crop, or the implements wherewith to aid in husbanding the same. More than a few toiling agriculturists might place the blame of a scanty crop at the door of an unscrupulous seed merchant or compute the amount of his blacksmith's repair bill by guaging the principles of the dealer from whom he purchased his farm implements.

Judging by the great extent of the business transacted by the firm whose name heads this article a great majority of the farming fraternity and dealers throughout not only this state, but also Pennsylvania, are well assured of the reliability of the house and honorable, honest dealings of the proprietor.

The business of the house was established in the year 1841 by Ed. S. Foster, and after the changes of name incident to time, Mr. Charles F. Saul bought out his partner's interest in 1885 and became sole proprietor. Among the great seed houses of this State this establishment occupies a most prominent position both in the splendid commercial standing it has attained in trade circles, and in the wide territory over which its operations extend. The premises occupied for the business consists of a four-story brick, comprising two stores, at the address above given, and are stocked to repletion wsth a most extensive and comprehensive supply of seeds of every description of the very best reproductive qualities, grown on the land best adapted to each particularly variety, and carefully and thoroughly separated from inferior seed and foreign substances. The handsome catalogue and price list issued by Mr. Saul this season contains a full description of the innumerable seeds of flowers, vegetables, fruits and grain with which his store rooms are stocked and it may be mentioned as one pleasing instance of a general fact that vegetables grown from seed purchased at this establishment, exhibited by the gardeners of Onondaga county, at the county fair, have taken first premium for the past five years. We would recommend dealers and agriculturists to procure a catalogue from this firm.

In unison with the perfect seed stock is the large supply of farm machinery of various make and manufacture and of the very best quality. Any farm implement in use can be obtained that in quality and price cannot be excelled, and scarcely duplicated in any other city. Mr. Saul also carries a magnificent line of harness, robes, sleigh bells, and general horse furnishings, and gives special energy to placing the very best line of goods before his customers, at prices more than reasonable. In this trade the house has attained a wide-spread reputation for excellence, and the trade can rely on being supplied upon the most advantageous terms. The house also carries a full stock of general hardware, comprising every article connected with the trade. The great facilities enjoyed by the firm enables it to offer the best inducements and the extended knowledge of the management ensures the handling of a class of goods of such quality as meets with ready sale and gives ultimate satisfaction. The large stock carried in the various departments allows the widest field from which to select, and popular appreciation of quality and price is evidenced by the great extent and annually increasing volume of the operations of the firm.

THE TEA TRADE.

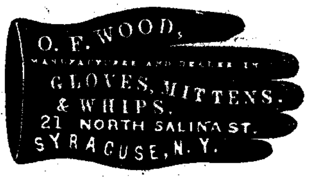
Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., 78 S. Salina St. and 4 Granger Block.

Among the oldest established and most reliable houses engaged solely in the tea and coffee trade the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company stands pre-eminent. The handsome and commodious stores located at the above address form this city's link in the chain of two hundred depots which this colossal firm has established throughout the United States. Direct importers of teas and coffees from the original sources of supply, the newest product of the season is always to be procured at these establishments in superior quality, and at prices beyond all alleged competition. Every known brand of teas can be here procured and the immense patronage extended is alone a sufficient criterion of the purity of the goods so faithfully represented, and the confidence of the community in the honorable and faithful characteristics of the management.

The coffee roasting and grinding departments are supplied with roasters and mills of modern construction, ever turning out immense quantities of the fragrant mocha, so delightful alike to the palate and the olfactories. Under the able management of E. Rowlands these Syracuse branches of this mammoth concern are bound to maintain the well established reputation of which they are the happy possessor, and by enterprise and live methods to augment and extend its scope of honest and benificial usefulness. The sales of their greatly celebrated eight-o'clock breakfast coffee has increased far beyond their highest expectations and this coffee can now be had in five pound air-tight packages. The A. & P. baking powder is their own manufacture and cannot be excelled. One trial will suffice to prove its superiority.

GLOVES, MITTENS AND WHIPS.

O. F. Wood, Manufacturer and Dealer, 21 North Salina Street.



O. F. WOOD,
MANUFACTURER AND DEALER IN GLOVES, MITTENS.
& WHIPS.
21 NORTH SALINA ST.
SYRACUSE, N.Y.

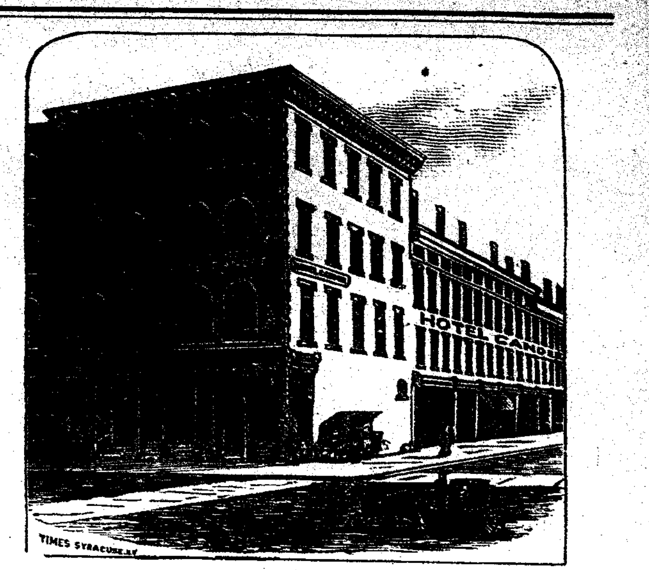
There is hardly an "old timer" among the farming fraternity and business men who, during the last forty years, has not at some time or other during that space wielded the whips and worn the gloves manufactured or dealt in by the old established firm of O. F. Wood at the above address. It would be correct to say that Mr. Wood has supplied most of the inhabitants of this county with his wares during the time referred to and he may justly feel proud of his business career. Coming to Syracuse on a canal boat when a boy, he opened up business in a town where he was a total stranger with a capital of less than five dollars, but with plenty of grit and honest principles to back it. His venture was successful and by enterprise and honorable dealing he has amassed a good competency and still continues to give his patrons the benefit of his experience. There is hardly any necessity to recommend our readers to this old established house, for the strict integrity and moderate prices of the proprietor are well-known throughout the county.

GREYHOUND DINING PARLORS.

Conducted by William Cake, at No 14 North Warren Street.

Syracuse can boast of its fair quoto of fine restaurants and dining rooms, where comfort of body and satisfaction of heart are assured by well-cooked meals, but none are deserving of higher encomiums than the Greyhound Dining Parlors at the above address. Our country readers will be pleased to learn that Mr. William J. Cake, formerly of Liverpool, N. Y., has become proprietor of this popular place, where they may obtain a first-class, square meal for the very moderate sum of twenty cents, and our citizens may congratulate themselves upon gaining a valuable addition to the catering fraternity. Everything connected with the establishment is neat and clean, and its patrons can rest assured of partaking of a plenteous supply and good variety of well-cooked food of a fine quality.

Tickets of twenty-one meals are sold at a reduction of the regular moderate price, and oysters and cold luncheons are served at all hours of the day. The proprietor of the Greyhound deserves success.



HOTEL CANDEE.

One of the Most Popular and Successful Hotels in Central New York.

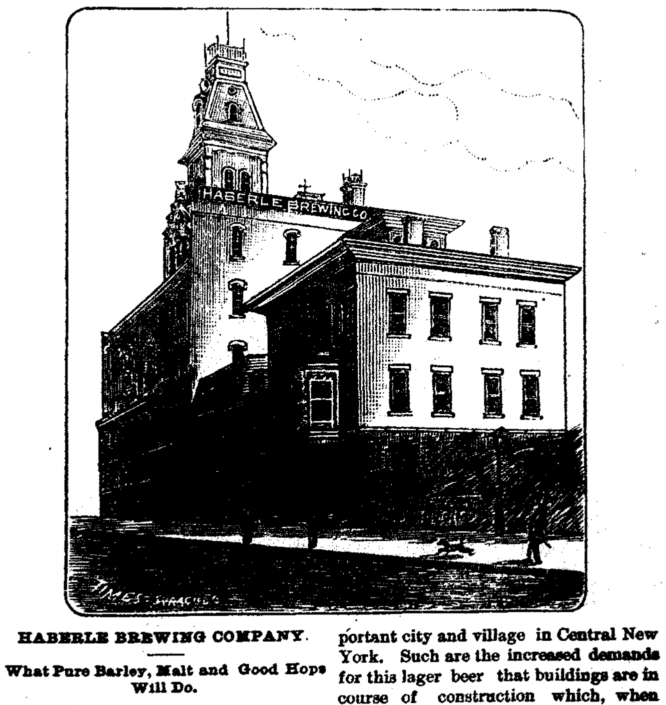
The fact that the hotels of the United States are superior to all others in the world is acknowledged not only by the people of our own country, but also by all others who have visited here from abroad. The excellence of our American system for perfect discipline, thorough comfort and complete satisfaction in every particular, surpasses anything of the kind elsewhere; although, of course, there are exceptions to be noted among the numerous instances where the defects of some public houses of small size and minor importance are somewhat glaring, but the large establishments can seldom be complained of.

In taking account of the first-class hotels of New York State, it is no invidious comparison to place the Hotel Candee of Syracuse, of which Charles E. Candee is proprietor, among the best of them. This house unquestionably ranks among the best appointed, most commodious and comfortable hotels in the State, and there are few houses in the country that surpass, and fewer yet that equal it, in the satisfaction of its appointments, the capacity of all its departments, the sumptuousness of its fare and the moderation of its charges.

The rapidly growing volume of business compelled the proprietor to find more room with which to accommodate his guests and by exercising his usual energetic liberality he secured the entire building on the northeast corner of Warren and Fayette streets, once known as the Talbot House, and by no stinted outlay transformed these premises, and the original Candee House, into the present first-class, commodious hostelry, complete and perfect in every modern appointment which can in any manner conduce to the comfort and convenience of his numerous guests. Mr. Candee does nothing by halves, and when he enlarged this house he determined to renovate and refurnish it in the most thorough manner. The furniture, decorations and accessories of the 133 bedrooms the building contains are of a solid and substantial character, as well as rich and elegant. The chambers are all well lighted, most of them being front rooms commanding a view of the street. It is almost needless to say that the cuisine and table are equal to any hotel in the city, as Mr. Candee's experience is enough to assure that this prominent feature is adequately attended to. The spacious marble-tiled office, billiard-room and saloon on the ground floor are furnished with a view toward the thorough comfort and convenience of the guests, and only the best brands of every kind of liquor are dispensed. The fine parlors, bar, billiard and reading-rooms, as well as the chambers, are, to use an old saying, "as clean as a new pin," and guests are heartily welcomed by the genial proprietor and his affable office aid, Mr. James Davenport, as well as by the most courteous attendance by the numerous trained employes.

Mr. Candee has also built large, airy, well-ventilated stables for the accommodation of two hundred horses, and our farmer friends may be well assured that their equine stock will be as carefully attended to by the experienced hostlers as they are themselves when enjoying the comforts of the house.

On the whole we can congratulate the travelling public on this notable addition to our hotel facilities and we are sure that the Hotel Candee will receive that liberal share of public patronage to which its first class character and the enterprise of Alderman Candee entitles it.



HABERLE BREWING COMPANY.

What Pure Barley, Malt and Good Hops Will Do.

Lager beer (the term lager beer meaning stock or stored beer), which was at one time called the national drink of the Germans, is now the universal beverage of all civilized nations. There is now no country on the globe where newspapers are printed or read that lager beer is not on the table of temperate people; we don't mean teetotalers, a class of beings unable to check their appetites. Lager beer has, by becoming the national drink, done more for true temperance than all the Neal Dows, Goughs, Murphys and prohibition laws put together. In truth, it may be said that when the thrones of potentates everywhere are shaking to their very foundation, King Gambrinus alone is more secure and powerful than ever, for he rules in accordance with natural laws.

The Haberle Brewing Co. of Syracuse, N. Y., is the oldest establishment of its kind in Central New York, the brewery having been started in 1856. The lager beer produced by this firm is strictly pure in all respects. But five years since a few thousand barrels comprised its yearly sales, and now its output is over 50,000 barrels per annum. To-day its product is found in every first-class saloon or hotel, and on the table of every family requiring a beverage combining nourishment with mild stimulation. Haberle's lager is shipped to every important city and village in Central New York. Such are the increased demands for this lager beer that buildings are in course of construction which, when finished, will double their present capacity. Visitors will be cheerfully conducted through this mammoth establishment. at all times. The officers of this company are Frank B. Haberle, president and manager; William H. Haberle, treasurer; Charles Haberle, secretary; and H. F. Bartels, (formerly of Cincinnati, O.), brewer and superintendent. In addition to these officers the firm require sixty-eight men and twenty-eight horses in the making and delivering of their celebrated beer.

A Dangerous Lonely Family.

He was looking for furnished rooms, and the landlady, a moderately young woman, of prepossessing exterior, was showing him the elegant alcove, sunny suite, with a view of bay, and bath, and gas and all the rest of it. He stood in the middle of the floor looking all around him, thinking what next question to ask.

"Have you any family?"

"Nobody but myself."

Then he took another look at the bay faintly shining between two chimneys.

"Are there any other roomers?"

"None, except my husband, and he's never at home."

He was afraid it was a dangerously lonely family to get into.—San Francisco Chronicle.

THE FULTON TIMES.

SUPPLEMENT.

THE FULTON TIMES

Wednesday, November 16, 1887.

The People vs Robert Pollock.

Mr. Editor; will you kindly publish the folling facts in the Pollock case and oblige:

Sunday October 30, 1887, Robert Pollock was arrested on Oneida street for intoxication. The case was tried before a jury Nov. 15th. The witnesses for the people were officer VanValkenburg, J. Ford Morris and Mr. Styles.

Mr. VanValkenburg said: "Sunday afternoon Pollock went down Second street with his boy; he was staggering and taking up the whole walk. He went to the Gardner Block on Oneida street and leaned against a part of the window. I went to him and told him to go home. He said he would when he got ready. I told him again to go; he did not and I arrested him and took him to jail. He fought me. In about a half hour I took him some food; he had been vomiting. I know when a man is drunk. Pollock was drunk".

J. Ford Morris said: "I went to the jail about fifteen minutes after Pollock had been put in. He was then in bed and asleep. I tried to wake him, but could not. I went and had food taken to him. Saw him the next morning. He could not eat. Said he was sick, and said he had not eaten any breakfast the day he was arrested: that he had been drinking and that was why the liquor affected him. I know when a man is drunk. From what I saw I think Pollock was drunk. He had vomited some after he was put in jail."

Darwin Styles said: "I saw Pollock the Sunday afternoon of his arrest. Met him opposite the opera house. He was very good natured and spoke to me and I answered him. He acted drunk and was staggering. Pollock said he was drunk; said he had been on a hurrah since Saturday night."

The people rested their case. For the defendant Polleck, there were sworn, the defendant, Frank Hughes. Charles Hastings, Fred Stoddard and John Doyle.

Pollock said: "On the Sunday of my arrest I was down town. In the afternoon my boy came down and wanted to know if I was going to get him a new coat, and wanted me to go home to dinner. I said, wait a few minutes. VanValkenburg came up and asked me to go off the streets; I was by Nichol's jewelry store; I said I would pretty soon. He than arrested me. I did not resist. I had two drinks of liquor that morning. I had been drinking the Saturday night before I did not eat any breakfast that Sunday morning. I do not recollect of speaking to Mr. Styles."

Charles Hastings said: "I saw the arrest made. Mr. VanValkenburg came to Pollock and seemed to say something and then he arrested him. I don't know whether Polleck was drunk or not. I saw Pollock in the forenoon, then he had been drinking."

Frank Hughes said: "I saw Van Valkenburg go to Pollock and say something and then he arrested him. I can't say whether Pollock was drunk or not."

Fred Stoddard said; "I was standing in front of James Barnes' saloon and saw the officer take Pollock around the corner of the Patterson Block. I did not see anything out of the way with Pollock."

John Doyle said: "I saw Pollock in morning. I did not think he was drunk."

That closed the case fort he defence. The jury were: Fred Spafford, Del. Tucker, D. C. More, Lafayette Warner, Oscar Dines and F. K. Jones. The jury were charged that duty was to find the defendant guilty or not guilty of intoxication at the time of his arrest from the evidence and that only. After deliberation the jury rendered a verdict of not guilty.

FULTON, NOV. 15, 1887.

I have examined the above statements and they correspond with the minutes taken at the trial. In justice to the officer who made the arrest it may be said that the evidence all tends to show that the defendant Pollock was intoxicated on the Sunday at the time of his arrest and that the counsel for the defendant Pollock has also stated to me, that he thought there was no question but what Pollock was drunk.

F. D. VANWAGENEN,
Police Justice.

The Pioneer Lady School Commissioner.

Miss Ida L. Griffin enjoys the distinction of being the first lady in New York to be elected to the important office of District School Commissioners. She has been chosen to this office by the citizens of the 3rd commissioners' district of Oswego county by a majority of 306 over Mr. Cole, her Republican competitor, last week Tuesday

Miss Griffin is thirty-one years of age. She was born in St. Lawrence county, but moved with her parents to Oswego county when young. Her father was a soldier in the war of the rebellion and made a good record and died a few years after the close of the war from injuries and disease contracted while in the army, thus leaving his family dependent upon the daughter for support. She was obliged to give up the school she was attending preparing herself to teach, and begin working to support the family. In a short time she paid off the expenses attending her father's sickness and burial, and put the family in a fair condition financially. Then she went to Oswego and entered the Normal school, graduating in 1880 with honors, having maintained herself during the period of preparation to become a teacher. She has been very successful in her chosen profession, and holds an important position in the public schools of Marcellus.

The salary of School Commissoners is $100 a month, and the term is three years. Miss Griffin will doubtless give such good satisfaction that she will hold the position more than one term. The Republicans who voted against her say that they do not regret her election, and are satisfied that she will give the district good work.

WORTH KNOWING.

Mr. W. H. Morgan, merchant, Lake City, Fla., was taken with a severe Cold attended with a distressing Cough and running into Consumption in its first stages. He tried many so-called popular cough remedies and steadily grew worse. Was reduced in flesh, had difficulty in breathing and was unable to sleep. Finally tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and found immediate relief, and after using about a half dozen bottles found himself well and has had no return of the disease. No other remedy can show so grand a record of cures, as Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption Guaranteed to do just what is claimed of it.—Trial bottle free at R. E. Phillip's Drug Store.

Our Local Talent.

To the Editor of THE TIMES:

I wish to say a word of commendation, not because it has fallen to my pleasant lot to be the instructor of the young people who are to present Bulwer's great play, Richelieu, on Tuesday evening next, but because all, without exception, Misses Carrie Nichols, Boomer, Maude and Helen Barnes, and Messrs. Fred J. Bennett, Wm. Hoff. Frank Coates, Edwin McCully, Harry Butler, William and Bert Bennett, Arthur Emerick and Henry Whitman All have shown such faithfulness and earnestness in their endeavors, and have improved so greatly that I can honestly commend their efforts to the kind approval and appreciation of our citizens. The entertainment will give more than usual satisfaction and the efforts put forth warrant "Standing-room, only"

(Special Correspondence to THE TIMES).

Wm. H. Hannan has sold the patent of his thill coupling for the State of New York to parties in New York city.

The hotel property at Palermo Centre which was to have been sold the first of this month was put off until next month.

The cheese and butter factory at Palermo Centre closed last Friday.

Miss Maud Gilman is on a visit at Schroeppel.

Miss Mary Jenning and Miss Minnie Trimble are visiting at Fulton.

Mr. John VanBuran received the largest number of votes on Tuesday Nov. 8th, on the Republican ticket of any candidate, which were from a number of his Democratic friends who wanted him to have the office as John is qualified for it, and will made a good sheriff.

W. H. Hannan of Syracuse was in town on Tuesday last.

Mrs. Gilbert Jennings is on the sick list. Dr. Green is attending her.

Mrs. James Sears is just in receipt of the news of the death of an only brother, Martin P. Griffin, who died of consumption, Oct. 29. at Mineral Wells, Texas, at the age of 58 years. Very many readers of THE TIMES, will remember the tall, manly form, and pleasant face of Martin Griffin, who spent his early life at the family home near the old church at Bristol hill. He was a scholar and teacher of marked ability, probably the ripest mathematician that ever graduated from Falley Seminery, while his ever genial ways, drew about him hosts of friends. Rapidly declining health warned him that a change of climate must be tried, and for twenty-two years the dry, pure air of Arizona, had saved his life. The last year has been spent at Mineral Wells, Texas.

Give Them A Chance.

That is to say your lungs also your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air passages but the thousands of little tubes and air passages leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain. eow.

JAS. R. FAIRGRIEVE - EDITOR

The Patriot again foams at our position in regard to the water question. We would like to believe that the editor thinks what he says, but we cannot. It is so natural for him to get on the other side of the fence and fire, that he does it regardless of right or wrong. The questions for which he demands answers, we were in hopes that the committee of Trustees would investigate and satisfy themselves before we made them public. They are:

> "Is there any good reason why Oswego Falls should get water for $40 per hydrant and Fulton be obliged to pay $50 per hydrant? Does THE TIMES favor that?
> Cortland pays $33.33 per hydrant. Is there any good reason Fulton and Oswego Falls should pay more than Cortland?
> Newark pays $29 per hydrant for 69 hydrants. Is there any reason why Fulton and Oswego Falls should not have 80 hydrants for the same price. Or if they should be willing to pay $35 per hydrant, is there any good reason why the Water Company should refuse it at that price?"

FIRST, Fulton, during the term of its contract had the privilege of adding any number of hydrants on the present mains without increasing its annual payment. Had it done so, the situation and annual rental per hydrant might have been identical with that of Newark, so often quoted by by the Patriot.

THE TIMES does not favor this village paying more proportionally for its water service than Oswego Falls, nor than other villages similarly situated. Neither does it seek to strengthen its arguments by citing certain parts of contracts in other villages, leaving out those that fail to serve its purpose.

SECOND. Cortland has 120 hydrants, a population of 5,500 by the last census and less miles of mains than Fulton, and pays $4,000 or $33.33 per hydrant. We understand that if Fulton will put in the same number of hydrants, the Water Company will supply them at less than $30 per hydrant.

THIRD. Newark has a population of 2,600 and a much less number of miles of mains than Fulton and pays $29 per hydrant for 69 hydrants. Fulton has double the population and double the length of mains, consequently should have 138 hydrants, which we understand that the Water Works Company would furnish at less than $25 per hydrant.

Why will not the Patriot be honest and state the whole truth and not try to mislead the public?

HON. WILLIAM A. WHEELER, Vice-President of the United States from 1877 to 1881 died at his home in Malone, Franklin county, on Saturday last aged sixty-eight years. He retired to his home as soon as his term at Washington had expired, withdrawing entirely from public life. He had long been in failing health with little hope of permanent recovery. Hon. R. B. Hayes, who was president during the same term attended the funeral which was held yesterday afternoon.

PROF. BALDWIN of this town who has been for the past few years principal of the Union school at Philadelphia, Jefferson county, announces that he is a candidate for school commissioner of this district. In ending the report of the Teachers' Institute recently held, the Monitor of that village has the following concerning his school:

> "We are sure it will be gratifying to the citizens of Philadelphia if, in closing this notice of the association of teachers, we allude to the good impression which the Philadelphia school has made upon the numerous visiting teachers. Its pupils have done well, whenever called out in classes for model recitations before the association. Commissioner Shaver assures us that it is one of the very best schools in the county. Its condition certainly reflects credit upon its teachers. State Superintendent Draper, visiting this school the past winter, unexpectedly and incognito, made a like felicitous report at a subsequent meeting of school principals at Potsdam. We congratulate Philadelphia upon its union school, and in its fortunate selection of teachers.

Agricultural Implements.

Hugh McKiernan has on exhibition on First street opposite the Clark House samples of the large number of farming machinery for which he is agent. Among thes may be found Harrows, Threshers and Cleaners, Rakes, Cultivators, Plows, &c., &c. Here also can be seen the Harvesting Machinery of the celebrated D. S. Morgan & Co. make, of Brockport, N. Y., the oldest Reaper Factory in the wold. The Triumph Reaper No. 3 in many respects surpasses all others in the market. Their Triumph Mower is the first in all the qualities that constitute excellence.

The Triumph Self-Binder contains a number of new and most excellent devices. The privilege of taking these machines on trial is allowed and if they do not prove satisfactory they need not be kept. Call and examine them.

Cheese Market.

[From the Utica Herald].
AT UTICA.

UTICA, N. Y. June 6.

A larger number of salesmen attended the board of trade to-day than on any other day this year. Everybody felt good, for the make of cheese is large and prices are satisfactory. Pastures are now growing splendidly, and the cattle are just about coming into the flush of milk. The market was active, starting at 9½c., and gradually creeping up to 9¾@9⅞c. for the best goods. Considering the condition of the New York market, it is believed that cheese sold here quite as high as it ought, to-day. A 10c. market is predicted before the close of the week in New York. If it happens the cheese bought here will make no money this week. Sales were well distributed among the buyers, each having his regular quota, and the bulk of cheese was sold at a price, only one-seventh of the offering being sent on commission. The cheese at 10c. were small sized. Transactions of the day were:

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, June 8, 1887.

It does not require an extended absence from this city to note the unprecedent march of improvement everywhere to the casual observer. Public works vie with private enterprise in the adornment of the Capital.

The clean, smooth streets, embowered with luxuriant shade trees, with here and there a beautiful park to relieve the monotony; these being ornamented by either a statue in bronze or marble, a fountain, or tastefully arranged beds of coleitor flowers; while on every side architectural skill exerts itself in reproducing facsimilies of classical and mediaval art, and of the modern renaissance, in the mansions of the rich, and the less pretentiaus, but none the less charming dwellings of the man of moderate means, altogether compose an entrancing picture.

Localities that we were accustomed to associate with dreary wastes of common, and stagnant pools, given over to the frolicksome antics of the frisky goat, and the dignified waddle of the more sedate gander, who contested the right of occupancy with the ever present hoopskirt and tomato can; these uninspiring spots are now transformed into beautiful rows of aesthetically designed houses, or more picturesque cottages with pretty landscape effects. Thus the cultivation of the beautiful is proved to keep pace with the true and the good in our domestic environment.

With each year the number of pilgrims to this Mecca of America increases; at first the happy bridal couple, inspired by the promptings of the little god, came; next, the prim teacher with her following of merry school girls, the former bent solely upon the search for mental pabulum for her charming brood, the last, perhaps, dividing this most commendable pursuit with a determination to have a real good time. After awhile the wealthy class of leisure and culture made the discovery that it was the proper thing to do to pay a visit to the social as well as the political centre, before the final departure for the summer to the seaside or mountain resort. And so the isolated excursion party develop into the social custom, and it has, at length, become fashionable for Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, and Boston, and even Chicago to send yearly their quota to this attractive resort for wealth, intelligence, and refinement.

The want of proper conception, in the average tourist, of the operations of this gigantic government is very apparent. The several departments which are but the vast counting houses of the nation, are a never ending source of wonderment to unnitiated. What so many people find to do, and they certainly do have the appearance of being busily engaged at something, is the first thing that impresses a stranger.

Multiply the force employed by any of our largest business establishments by a number which will represent the greater extent of the Government's transactions as compared with those of the private business house, and you will form an approximate idea of the needs of the service.

An illustration of the point referred to was given during the late National Drill week, as related by an employe of the Navy Department. A party of visitors of apparently more than ordinary intelligence, led by a lady who was also spokeswoman, came to one of the offices of the Paymaster General of the Navy, who is Chief of the Bureau of Provisions and Clothing, and asked the clerk in charge to explain to them just what was done there; and how it was done. "For," said the lady mentioned, "I sometimes write for the newspapers, and I want to be able to say that I've been everywhere, and seen everything, and I may write you up too." When informed that this Bureau combined what were three distinct offices in the Army, viz: those of the Quartermaster General, the Commissary of Subsistance and of the Paymaster General; and that they supplied Uncle Sam's sailors with rations, wearing apparel, tobacco, and many other necessary articles, her interest was awakened, and after explaining it all to her party, she eagerly queried, "And would it be too much trouble for you to show us these things, and the nature of the food that is supplied the Navy?"

When it was told her that the Naval Storehouses were not there, but that they were distributed about at the several Navy Yards and Stations on our coast, and that the immense building contained only book-keepers and accountants, she was greatly disappointed, and said she "always thought that the ships came to Washington and drew their supplies from the Navy Department, which was a sort of central depot. Her interest having so evidently abated, she was considerately directed to the Army Museum, where object lessons in abundance would be afforded.

Don't miss those bargains next week at ½ regular prices (only during lamp week) at Draper's, No. 6, First St.

Before buying your winter coal take the trouble to compare Scranton with other grades and see its superiority over any other in the market.

It often occurs that when a bill for subscription is presented the party claims that the date to which the subscription is paid is not correct. There is no reason for these persons making such a claim. The tags attached to each paper contains the name of the subscriber and the date at which their subscription runs out. If any error exists in this date the proper thing for a subscriber to do is to drop a postal to THE TIMES or call at the office and have it rectified.

A [illegible] of teachers [illegible] Friday. The teachers of this district and commissioner announced themselves as well pleased with the work done. On Thursday Prof. Albro gave instruction on Normal Methods; Miss Walter in Advanced Work in Geography and Miss Smith in Language. In the evening Rev. W. D. Chase gave his lecture, "Colorado, What It Said to Me and What I Saw" to an appreciative audience. On Friday, Miss Smith resumed the talk of the preceding day and also talked on the subject of spelling. Prof. Albro resumed his subject of memory and later with the assistance of 18 teachers selected by Com. Metcalf illustrated his method of operation in arithmetic. As the hours of the institute were drawing to a close, David Clark, as chairman of com. on necrology, previously appointed reported as follows:

It having pleased the all wise Creator to remove from among us a brother and sister in the profession,

Therefore, Resolved, That in the death of Isaac F. Pierce, we lose one of our earnest early educators who gave his best energies to do the work of teaching and who merited the name of an honest, earnest and faithful teacher and man, and that we tender to his friends our sympathy in their bereavement.

Resolved, That in the removal of our much loved sister, Nellie Whitney, we have sustained much loss and feel much sadness as one feels when a most beautiful flower in his garden is snapped from its stalk by a cold east wind leaving a vacant spot not to be filled. That the light of a home has gone out, that a dear friend, faithful teacher and loving sister has gone from the labor of teaching others to the reward of sitting at the feet and learning of Him who taught as never man taught, and that we extend to her parents and friends the sympathy of hearts that having known the shadow can feel their loss.

Resolved, That a copy of the resolutions be sent to the friends of the deceased. The report was adopted.

Ira Mehegan from the committee on resolutions reported as follows:

We, the teachers of the first commissioner's district, Oswego county, appreciating the favor extended to us by Hon. A. S. Draper, state superintendent of public instruction, in coming to Fulton and imparting to us the valuable information which his speech on Monday evening, May 30, contained; Have Resolved:

That a vote of thanks be extended to him for kindly attending our institute and that we pledge ourselves, as teachers, of this district to uphold and carry out as far as possible his ideas, imparted to us on that occasion.

Resolved, That we, the teachers of this institute, do tender our sincere thanks to the people of Fulton for their painstaking in entertaining us, and to the electric light company for courtesy in showing their works.

Resolved, That Prof. Gilbert and Prof. Cooper and those associated with them are entitled to our thanks for their fine music which has so much contributed to make our institute interesting and pleasant.

Resolved, That we extend to Prof. Hoose, Dr. Mary Lee, Rev. W. Dempster Chase and Prof. Albro our thanks for their kindness in giving us such able and instructive lectures.

Resolved, That we extend our sincere thanks to Com. Metcalf for his untiring efforts in our behalf in raising the standard of school work and endeavoring to secure better professional training for teachers, also his zeal in securing the cooperation of the people in our work by town associations, and trustee meetings which have been held in every town with great success.

Prof. Clapp moved to amend by adding a resolutions of thanks to Misses Walter and Smith and also Prof. Albro for the valuable work they have done here, and said in offering this that he wished to put himself on record as being satisfied with the result of this institute, and he believed all his teachers were. The commissioner then explained why the conductor had not for some years been given a vote of thanks, but said he was very glad Prof. Clapp had offered this amendment as he believed it was deserved as an exceptional case. With this addition the resolutions were without dissent adopted.

Rev. Mr. Chase, Commissioner Cole and Rev. Mr. Palmer made short but telling speeches. The conductor and commissioner made very appropriate remarks. The doxology was sung and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. Chase and then, as by common consent, there was adjourned the most profitable and pleasant institute ever held in this part of Oswego county.

The evening closed worthy of the occasion. The crowd attending Prof. Albro's lecture was immense, so that notwithstanding the capacity of the large opera house many had to go away. The lecture was intensely interesting to the last and held such attention, considering the vast audience, as is rarely seen.

The illustrations were beautiful, the descriptions clear and instrutcive and at the close, applause came voluntarily from the whole throng as testimony that they had been entertained and benefited.

Mr. Beecher's Biography.

The Rev. Mr. Halliday, Mr. Beecher's assistant in Plymouth church, has been associated with Lyman Abbott, D. D., in the preparation of the biography of the late Mr. Beecher, to which the great preacher, previous to his death, largely contributed. It was not proposed to have either Mr. Halliday's or Mr. Beecher's connection with the book generally known, but the death of Mr. Beecher has removed the objection to the fact being made public, and now the complete book will appear with both Dr. Lyman Abbott's and Rev. S. B. Halliday's name on the title page, who are better fitted to write such a work than any other living persons. They have also been assisted by a corps of over thirty eminent writers, Leonard Bacon, D.D., J. G. Whittier and others, who have contributed reminiscences, etc. As Mr. Beecher did not write a line upon any autobiography of himself, but did contribute to this work, the additional fact is apparent that Dr. Abbott's and Rev. Halliday's book is the nearest approach to an autobiography that Mr. Beecher has left, and with the array of talent employed it looks as if we were to have a biography worthy of the man, and will prove a valuable addition to any library.

The work is being sold by subscription by the American Publishing Co., of Hartford, Conn., and Mr. C. A. Lewis is now canvassing this section for subscribers for Mr. O. M. Bond of Oswego, who is the only authorized agent in Oswego county.

Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.: Have taken Hall's Catarrh Cure; am [illegible] years old. Had asthma 19 years, and a dreadful cough; for five years. Have taken everything, went to the Hot Springs; have doctored with the doctors here; I have done nothing but take medicine for 19 years. When I commenced taking Hall's Catarrh Cure I was almost dead. I sent for the doctor the day I got Hall's Catarrh Cure, and I told him that I would die anyway and that I would try your medicine. I was very bad. How I suffered for 9 years! I could hardly breathe at times. I saw Hall's Catarrh Cure advertised in the papers and commenced taking it, I would have been under the ground to-day if it had not been for that. I have not had one bad spell of coughing since. In breathing my head feels well and I am well. It has done me a thousand dollars worth of good. There are ten of my friends, on seeing what it had done for me, taking it, and it is helping them. I only wish that everyone who has catarrh, asthma and a bad cough could see me, so that I could tell them all to take it. All that know me here know how I have suffered. (I have been here since 1858,) and say to me that "I am so glad you found something that could cure you." Everyone said, "how much better you look." The doctors say they are glad I found Hall's Ctaarrh Cure as the could not cure me.

I cannot express my gratitude to you for the good Hall's Catarrh Cure has done me. You can use as much of this letter as will do the afflicted good. Publish to the whole world—it is all true and they should know it.

A DIAMOND STUDY BY H. & A. ROSENBLOOM.

A diamond is a precious stone, but in this diagram we are not going to enter into a diatribe for or against its uses, because we are diametrically opposed to such discussions. A dialogue with you would be more likely to lead another direction, but as the season is now upon us when we shall require Clothing more suitable to our diaphoretic state, will talk to you in a suitable dialect. Sometime ago we made entries in our diary that summer goods would be required, and now after passing over several diagonal routes the goods have arrived, and we can dialectically prove that there are no other such goods in this town. Have we not earned a diadem? Do not for a moment listen to the diabolical prevarications of unprincipalled competitors their statements are surely diaphorous if not make a diagnosis of them at once, and after a diacritical survey of them you will decide to place your faith in those we make you. Our diarist makes a note of all necessary to secure your trade and to save U A $.

We have inaugurated the greatest sale of

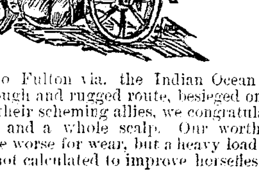
DRUGS.

Again we appear, and PROCEED TO UNLOAD with usual ceremony, A New Stock especially adapted to our choice class of customers.



From Chicago to Fulton via. the Indian Ocean and Jersey turnpike, over a rough and rugged route, besieged on all sides by combinations and their scheming allies, we congratulate ourselves with a safe arrival, and a whole scalp. Our worthy steed appears somewhat the worse for wear, but a heavy load and diet of shingle nails, are not calculated to improve horseflesh.

And we cater to no combination for the aiding of the poor in fixing our prices. Call and examine for yourselves, and note the new terms for our carload of PAINTS, DRUGS, MEDICINES, PERFUMES, POWDERS, Toilet Articles, &c. &c.

A Few Pertinent Points.

Three fires have occurred since January 1st. At the Dilts fire a number were present before the engines came. Several state that at least ten minutes elapsed from the time the hose was in position to play upon the fire, to the time the engines were ready to throw water. One states positively that at the time the hose boys reached the scene, the fire did not seem to occupy a space of over four feet and could have been easily put out, if the hydrants could have been opened, and that five minutes later the fire had spread beyond control.

At the fire on Second street near the Free Methodist church it was over twenty minutes from the time the engines left the house until they were throwing streams and it was fifteen minutes from the time hose was stretched until water was thrown. Many in the large crowd present looked towards the hydrants, timed the wait for water and expected every instant to see Mr. Chubb's house blaze up. A little breeze in either direction and one of the adjoining houses would have had to burn.

At the factory fire ten minutes elapsed from the time our hose was stretched until the engines were ready to throw streams.

At the burning of the Townsend house and barnes, competent and undisputed authority states that if the hydrants had been opened the fire could have been put out without great damage to the house or furniture and both barns saved. In this case, too, the hose carts were there in good time and had to wait the arrival of the steamers. In each of these instances the winds were tempered for the occasion but we cannot always expect to be favored by the sleep of the breezes that blow. Let us consider

THE ELEMENT OF DANGER.

At the Second street fire a slight breeze to the north or south would have burned two other houses. At the Harvey Townsend fire a slight breeze to the east, west, north or southeast would have burned several fine residences. With the air [illegible] perfectly dead, the [illegible] house next adjoining on the northwest barely escaped. With a strong breeze at that time who can estimate what would have been the destruction of property. As it was, one engine was disabled. The water supply gave out and the other engine had to pump water from the cistern and stop throwing water on the fire for a time. This leads to the question

WHEN IS WATER MOST NEEDED?

When the fire starts, to put it out or confine it is essential. After a fire is under good headway, a lapse of fifteen minutes before water is turned on is almost sure to cause the total destruction of a frame building or the gutting of a brick building. But aside from the destruction of buildings a fire that has gained such headway puts contiguous buildings in danger of destruction. The quantity of water required to [illegible] greatly [illegible] when the hose is first stretched, owing to the difference in time and the spread of fire, let alone the question of partial or total destruction of the building and the danger to other property.

OUR LOSS.

As a result of trusting to old time fire protection and closing the hydrants, we have seen burned the Harvey Townsend residence where has been one of the fine residences of Fulton and see now an unsightly ruin.

By the Dilts fire many workmen were compelled to suffer idleness for a time and the loss to Mr. Dilts was great. At the very lowest estimate it can be said that by failure to use the hydrants at these two fires, [illegible] lost $4,000, [illegible] to pay for the hydrants two years. Every dollar's worth of property destroyed takes out just that amount of money from circulation in the village. Fulton is not a rich village and she needs to save every penny. It is a short sighted policy for a village to see its citizens put their hard earned money into houses and business and then permit them to be crippled by burning when they could be saved. Another thing: We presume that the property on which the buildings were burned, will this year be assessed at several thousand dollars less in valuation. We thus lose in taxes. Instead of destroying taxable property, we should preserve and increase the amount of such property and thus lighten each ones burden. There are several buildings in Fulton that are heavily taxed, which if we allowed them to burn, would doubtless never be rebuilt, and we would lose their taxes, to wit: the Nelson mill, and saw mill with sheds, the seminary, and the C. G. Case residence. We have lost much this year and are not now protected.

WHERE IS THE FAULT?

The Water Co. have invited investigation of the cost of their plant, of their books, of the manner of building and of everything connected with its history. They have endeavored to get village officers or even individuals to examine and say what would be a fair price for water, but without avail. Certain citizens have said the price should be this or that, and asked upon what they based their figures, they have no reply. Is this fair? It would certainly be wise if some of our citizens, opponents of the water system, if you please, but fair minded, would investigate and state to the public the result of their investigation. It is time some one comes to the front and if the Water Co. is a soulless corporation trying to cripple the village and make itself rich by taxing us, expose them, but give them an honest investigation.

The marriage of Mr. J. Frank Willard, head bookkeeper and paymaster in the Riverside & Oswego Mills and Miss May L. French occurs at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. French on First street, at four o'clock this afternoon.

This marriage has been the chief topic of conversation for some time past, the contracting parties being well and favorably known in this locality where they have passed their lives and are of high social standing. Our report must of necessity be incomplete but we present to the readers of THE TIMES a report containing all the information of this brilliant affair that we could obtain at this early hour.

The ceremony takes place under a wedding bell. Mr. Charles Willard will be best man and Miss Allie Case, bridesmaid. The ushers are Mr. Henry Dwight of Syracuse, and Messrs. John and Harold Bacchus, William Livingston, Solon Case and Edward Cook.

Among the guests from out of town are Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Potter Miss Potter and Miss Grace Potter of Syracuse; Miss Culver and Miss Helen Culver of Ithaca; Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Miller and Mr. and Mrs. James Herrick of Oswego; Mr. and Mrs. Howland of Rome.

The happy couple will start on a short wedding trip on the 8:20 train, The wedding presents are elaborate and elegant, of which the following is but a partial list:

Mr. Edwin French, father of the bride, gold watch; Mrs. George Case, $100; Miss Eva Case solid silver after dinner coffee spoon; Mrs. Geo. Kellogg, hand painted after dinner coffee set; Mr and Mrs. Dudley Miller, four pieces silverware; Mr. and Mrs. John Case, cut glass finger bowls; Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Potter, French clock, the Misses Potter, sugar spoons; Gates and Bradford Willard of New York, silver tea set; Mrs. T. D. Lewis and Mrs. S. Case, silver tea set; Solon Case, silver spoon; Allie Case, chair; Mr. and Mrs. Pike, of Chicago, oil painting; Mrs. Woods, silk [illegible]; Emily Howard Case, Wichita, Kas., beautiful [illegible]; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. [illegible], Springfield, Ohio, silver olive fork; Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Emerick, cut glass olive dishes; Mr and Mrs. Howland, Rome, vases; William Lovejoy and sister, set handsome etchings; Mr. and Mrs. Fowler, handsome royal Worcester piece.

Down With a Crash.

Persons in the neighborhood of the canal bridge which leads to the box factory of Herrick & Emerick, were startled last Thursday forenoon about nine o'clock by hearing a terrible crash. It was soon discovered that the bridge had gone down and with it a pair of horses with an empty wagon which contained L. B. Rowlee and his son Fred, and a single horse before a wagon heavily loaded with lumber driven by Albert Barnes. Those first to arrive saw all of these in a confused mass among the debris, struggling to extricate themselves. As soon as the men recovered from the shock occasioned by their sixteen feet fall, and began to realize that they were not killed outright they started to rescue the struggling horses assisted by ready hands. In an incredable short time hundreds had collected on the banks of the canal, 99 per cent of whom were giving orders as to what should be done. After considerable trouble, attended by no little danger the harness was cut and the horses one by one were taken down the stream and landed in an exhausted condition. The The escape of men and horses with scarcely a bruise was miraculous. The bridge wreck was cleared up before noon and work in the box factory continued without intermission, the lumber being carried to the factory by a canal boat and the shooks carted away over the heel path. A gang of men are now at work removing the remnant of the old bridge and a new iron one will probably soon be constructed.

Accident on the Midland.

Ten cars on the frieght and coal train which passed through here shortly after midnight going north Friday night, jumped the track a short distance from Black Creek, about two and one-half miles down the river. The train consisted of 30 cars which were loaded with merchandise and coal. Quite a little of the track was torn up and the derailed cars badly crushed and their contents scattered. No one was injured by the accident. A wrecking train was soon at the scene. Saturday morning trains on the road were delayed about four hours.

A Man Got Shot! A Man Got Shot!

Was the expression that caused about everyone on East Bridge street, Oswego to rush to the door and ask how and where. A reporter and policeman soon followed up and ferreted out the matter and found that a young man from the country had stepped into a hardware store and got shot—one pound and paid for them. Then hurried right along to Merriam & Sibbitt to buy one of those rich gold hanging lamps for $4.25 and an elegant $1.98 decorated chamber set.

A grand excursion and basket picnic to Niagara Falls under the auspices of the Baptist church of Phoenix is announced for Tuesday, June 21. Fare for the round trip $1.75. The train will leave Fulton on that day at 5:40 a. m. and return at 10:15 p. m. It gives the excursionists five and three-quarters hours at Niagara Falls.

The magnet which draws so many people to Rosenbloom's stores is charged with the combination of low prices and quality.

The temperance meeting called last Saturday evening was organized by making Wm. Waugh chairman and Dr. G. V. Emens secretary. The object of the meeting was to make some arrangements for a temperance celebration on the Fourth. It was decided to ask the different temperance societies to send five delegates to meet the citizens at the Good Templar's hall this evening when it will be determined what shall be done. A large attendance of those interested is desired.

Let your guiding star be the one which leads you to our stores.

The Philadelphia Telegram contains the following concerning Rice's circus which is to exhibit here on Tuesday, June 14th:

"Large crowds of people are being attracted to Rice's circus, at Broad and Dickinson streets, the combination of the '50 cents admission,' with a real first-class show, being the groundwork for its popularity. Last evening the canvas was not large enough to cover the throng, but arrangements have now been made to accommodate all who are looking for a good night's entertainment in a single ring, at a price within the reach of everybody."

Some people do not like to hear the truth and it annoys our competitors when they hear of our low prices.

NEW YORK LETTER.

William O'Brien and His Two Kind Friends—How He Displeased the Workingmen—The Stewart Will Contest—The Hotel Keepers and the Sunday Laws—A Grand Cathedral for the Episcopalian Church Projected—What it Will Cost—No Jury Yet in Sharp's Trial—Embracery Changed by the District Attorney.

[Special to THE TIMES].

The shrewdness and cunning of a Tammany politician is past finding out. If there be one class of men above all others who can scent danger from afar and in a measure prepare to avert the direful consequences, that class is the noble order of Tammany. Why? Well here's the story.

William O'Brien, whose escapades and thrilling experiences at the hands of Canadian mobs have given his name a national reputation arrived here last week. Of course the very general feeling that prevails here commendatory of Home Rule on the other side of the Ocean found an expression in a very enthusiastic meeting at the Academy of Music. But on Saturday night another demonstration in his favor, involving a parade and mass meeting in Union Square took place.

This manifestation of favor was projected by the Central Labor Union, the representative body of the trades, socities and K. of L. The idea was to make it a workingmen's tribute to O'Brien's pluck in general and to Home Rule in particular. But the Central Labor Union is in a very large measure the Labor Party of this city, so that this demonstration might by some, be regarded as giving a further impetus to the doctrines of Henry George and to the cause of the deposed priest McGlynn, The Tammany chieftans found it to their purpose to so represent the case to O'Brien. The result was that O'Brien refused to appear on the reviewing stand and the mass-meeting in his favor heard no speech from him. On the contrary, before these facts became known, as they speedily did, the general tenor of the meeting was turned from a commendatory tone to that of strong denunciation of O'Brien's subserviency to other counsels than who might with some reason in this case be expected to have the right to forgive them.

This little sensation has made a strong sensation among the workingmen as it has also made some quite funny complications.

The meeting at the Academy was a very enthusiastic one. O'Brien himself has the measure of a man thoroughly in earnest. He is a man of medium height, sparely built, but energetic, muscular, wiry. His face is decidedly Celtic; high forehead and pointed chin. A pair of sharp, twinkling, expressive eyes look upon the world through gold spectacles. His voice is well adapted for public speaking and his platform appearance is that of one with a message to deliver full of things that must be said and well said. One sees in O'Brien a dogged pertinacity, an undaunted courage, and a commendable firmness. It is unfortunate that any unpleasant circumstance should have happened.

It is to be regretted that knowing, as he must have known, the unfortunate controversies in matters of faith now raging here, he did not avoid the rock that has wrecked many a better man.

We have no surprise to express upon the possibly long and expensive litigation which the suit of Prescott Beecher against the executors of Mrs. A. T. Stewart's estate portends. Mr. Butler married the grand niece of Mrs. Stewart and while so far as the share of this world's goods from the estate is concerned he has no cause for complaint, yet there is to the casual observer and hence no doubt, to the employed legal talent of this city, strong grounds for a charge of undue influence by Judge Hilton. The bone of contention seems to be whether a certain residence to be created as a trust is in accordance with existing law. Mr. Butler whose wife received during the life time of Mrs. Stewart a beautiful residence opposite the Mansion on Fifth avenue, worth upwards of a half-million, besides a yearly sum of $10,000 and $200,000 by will, whose sons received $15,000 and who himself was left $50,000, would in the event of a successful issue of his present suit receive more than a million. But it must be kept in mind that Mr. Stewart had Judge Hilton as his confidential adviser and confidential friend for more than a score of years. His natural judgment of men and things would lead him to advise his wife to seek his friend's advice after his death. He knew thoroughly well that the business capacity of his wife, her strong tact and financial management would prevent her from being so far guided by Judge Hilton's advice as to lose what she regarded as the best end of the bargain. However, these is no doubt that Mrs. Stewart deferred to the Judge's advice, but it is hardly possible she did so solely, as claimed by Mr. Butler, through his own mental weakness and incapacity. This fact has been true for years that a fair share of her accumulations supported a large number of her relatives among whom is a young man, now in the service of the United States, who received his military education in Europe and by the influence, political of course, of his family obtained a position in the United States Army. The whole question so far as we understand it, turns upon the legality of the truth. Even Tilden's idea in this direction is not respected, and the same sort of a contest is now raised regarding that. The lawyer who can write a will that the combined legal lore of the nation would regard as positively and absolutely uncontestible would have a mass of work he would not be able to subdue in a life time.

The Mayor's action in closing the liquor stores on Sunday is of course not received with favor. His instructions to the Public Board and the subsequent opinion of the Corporotion Attorney, touching the relation the hotel keepers sustain under the law has caused a rather peculiar condition of things.

The guests at a hotel, and the regular dinners at the restaurants are denied their accustomed wines. There is a strong probability that a friendly contest will ensure touching the true incident of the Legislature. Such a state of things produce less lawlessness on the Sabbath. The railroads and steam boats reap the benefit in taking the thirsty ones to adjacent places within and without the state where wet goods are obtainable. The end of all this is not yet.

The Episcopal church is just now busy discussing the plan of building a monster cathedral, free to all, that shall be a monument of architectural beauty, massive proportions and stupendous magnificence, worthy this great city. The special impetus that has launched this plan in a nooked codicil to Miss Miss Wolfe's will in which she left $1,000,000 for such a purpose.

The cost of this new structure is placed at ten millions. Land has already been selected on the high ground of the city in the neighborhood of 90th street and 4th avenue. Two city blocks of land have been picked out and this tract of about 4 acres is to be covered with the cathedral. The wisdom of sinking in a building so large a sum as ten millions is a question upon the merits of which deponent sayeth nothing; but this remark might be made in passing that so enormous a sum might be made available of more good than merely to be looked at and admired in cold marble or stately granite. If our Episcopalian friends could be as fortunate as our Catholic ones, who secured their land for a 999 years' term at $1 per year, it would be pleasant indeed; but the sum of three-quarters of a million is needed for this purpose alone. There's wealth in this city sufficient for the purpose, and the Rt. Rev. Bishop has shrewdly chosen the two Asators, and a Vanderbilt, to be among the Board of Trustees.

Sharp's friends are in a desperate strait. The jurymen already chosen have been approached by outsiders in Sharp's interest. Interesting developments are awaiting exposure and somebody, I fear, will suffer for the crime of embracery. Methinks 'tis difficult to punish the crimes of the millionaire.

WORTH KNOWING

Those who have fed fish to hens claim that the flesh of the fowls and their eggs have a fishy taste.

In vegetable kingdom, improvement is made by grafting and hybridizing; in the animal kingdon by crossing.

No potato is likely to be popular for the market which has deep eyes. Whatever its excellence in other respects, this defect makes it less salable.

The best and richest of soils will become exhausted unless applications of manure are applied in one form or another.

The greater the weight an animal can be made to attain in the shortest period of time the smaller the cost per pound proportionately.

A merino sheep will get fat in three months of good feeding. It will not be thick on the rib, for this is not the nature of the merino.

The white Wyandotte and the white Plymouth Rocks have multiplied during last year to considerable extent.

Has your grindstone been hollowed from the grinding of small tools? Grind up the spades and shovels by holding them square across the stone at a proper level. Spades like hoes, should be ground all on one side.

By the evaporating process it has been calculated that one barrel of apples will produce about 15 pounds of evaporated dried apples, and that one pound of these is equal to half a peck of the fruit before it is pared or sliced.

Carry an armful of litter from the barn floor and scatter in the poultry house or in the shed adjoining. Keep fowls picking and scratching and then they will be happy and healthy.

Unclean eggs should be washed and wiped when gathered. The shells are porous, and pungent filth may penetrate and spoil the meat. Eggs for long keeping should not be washed only wiped.

Maine can boast of 56 farmers in its House of Representatives, and the Farmer of the State says they are "the substantial representatives of agricultural interests and have been selected because of their broad intelligence and candid conservatism, which qualify them especially for careful attention to all legislative affairs.

Swindling the Farmers—Stray Cattle.

In Canada, as in most other communities, when a farmer picks up an estray animal, he cures for it, advertises it, and calls upon the owner to prove property, pay charges, and take the animal away. To the ordinary mind this plain transaction seems very straightforward, and to offer but a small opportunity for fraud. But the mind of the swindler is equal to the occasion, and can convert this simple matter of converting an estray, into a swindle upon the farmer who advertises. These swindlers, as usual, hunt in couples. According to the Sarnia (Ont.) "Observer:" "They read the local newspapers carefully, and when a farmer publishes an estray notice, No. 1 calls to look at the animal. The farmer shows the beast, and the fellow decides it is not his; then he returns to his partner and describes it minutely to him. No. 2 goes to the farmer and after proving by a thorough description that he is the owner of the animal, says he cannot take it away, and offers to sell at a bargain. The farmer buys it, and in a few days the rightful owner comes and claims the animal." This is a swindle which may readily take in an honest farmer and it will probably not be confined to this side of the border. Farmers beware how you purchase estrays.—American Agriculturist.

A Difference.

Gov. Thompson tells the following: "It seemed that a new attache to the British legation had just arrived, and, as usual was taken around to be introduced to various heads of departments. Arriving at the treasury department he was introduced to Gov. Thompson. After awhile the conversation turned upon politics, and the British swell asked to be enlightened upon the polical parties in the United States.

"There are but two parties here," said Gov. Thompson, "Democratic and Republican."

"Aw, but er say, dawtchuknaw, there's the mugwumps, dawntchuknaw. Aw, we have heard about the mugwumps in Hingland, dawntchuknaw. What is a mugwump."

"A mugmump!" replied the governor, "Oh, a mugwump, don't you know, is a Republican who votes the Democratic ticket."

"Aw, yaas," replied the swell, "I see; but then, dawntchuknaw, a Democwat who votes the Wepublican ticket must be a Mugwump, too, eh?"

"Oh, no," replied the governor, "he's not a mugwump."

"No? Well, that's very queah. Now, what is he?"

"Well," replied the governor, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "a Democrat who votes the Republican ticket is called here a damphool."

The rural idea of Americans in which the Astors and Vanderbilts live is amusing, and will doubtless be highly flattering to the persons named. A man traveling "down in Arkansaw" heard two old women talking before a cabin door. One of them, with a clay pipe between her lips, said:

"It do beat all how some folkses has ev'rything a mortal body could ast fer, while others, like you an' me, Mis Peterby, is poorer'n Job's turkey all the born days of our lives. Now, you've heern tell of them Vanderbilts an' Astors there in New York, ain't you?

"Duno but I hev," said "Mis Peterby."

"Well, I've lately heern some things 'bout how they carry on. My man he got it straight from Zimri Perkins, an' Zim he got it from his wife's mother's uncle's nevvy, who takes a paper printed in New York, so it must be true."

"I aint a doubt of it,"

"Well, if you'll b'leeve me, old Mis Vanderbilt don't purtend to even wash her own dishes. She don't even make her own bed—her nor Mis Astor neither, and they both sleep in pink velvet night gownds trimmed in lace at $1,000 a yard, and embroidered in diamonts that cost millions on millions."

"The good land!"

"Yes, sir! An' Mis Astor's bed stid is solid gold with diamont knobs on it as big as goose eggs, an' ev'ry time she goes out she has twenty coal black horses hitched to her solid gold charyot, and she stands in it dressed all in white satin with her hair hangin' down her back, athrowin' $20 gold pieces to the beggars."

"Naw!"

"Deed an' its true—ev'ry word of it. And when Mr. and Mis Vanderbilt goes out they have their carriages drawn by forty milk white steeds with a coal black nigger with a diament ring in his nose, leading ev'ry horse; and Vanderbilt he lays back on his velvet cushions smokin' a pipe that cost a clean billion."

"You don't mean it."

"I do that. Oh, I tell you it's a fine thing to be rich, Mis Peterby; an' I reckon atike as not you an' me'd carry on jest like that if we only had the means to do it with."

"Lake snuff, like snuff—anyhow, I know I'd have me a good green an' red gingham gown, an all the salt mack'rel I could eat, fer once."

"An I'd git me some ginyuine Scotch snuff, an' some red glass year bobs, I would."—Tid Bits.

Cost of Living at Washington

Some newspaper writer has recently put forth a statement, in which a nice arithmetical calculation is made, to to show what it costs Mr. Cleveland to live and just how much of his salary he can save. The conclusion is that Mr. Cleveland will retire from the White House $25,000 the richer for each year he stays in it, or that, assuming he has two terms, he will have saved up $200,000 by 1893. Such reasoning is fallacious. The wants and necessities of presidents vary as widely as those of other people. As well attempt to say what it costs a senator or representative to live when you know what his salary is, what the size of his family and the amount he pays for house rent. There is Senator Leland Stanford, for instance. His family consists of two persons and his salary from the government is $5,000 a year. It would be easy to assume that he saves $2,500, but it is stated that his living expenses are really $100,000 a year, and that more than half of this sum is spent in Washington during his winter sojourn there. On the other hand I know of a senator from a southern state who lives comfortably and supports a family of three or four children on $5,000 a year, and saves the rest of his salary for a rainy day. He lives in a modest house on an unfashionable street, buys neither books or pictures, rides in horse cars instead of a carriage and denies himself all the other vanities of the rich. There is another statesman who never brings his family to Washington, and lives at a cost of $8 a week in a boarding house. But these economical ones are the exceptions. A majority of our law makers spend from twice to ten times their salary every year.

Care of the Eyes

Keep a shade on your lamp or gas burner.

Avoid all sudden changes between light and darkness.

Never begin to read, write or sew for several minutes after coming from darkness to light.

Never read by twilight, moonlight or on cloudy days.

Never read or sew directly in front of the light, window or door.

It is best to let the light fall from above obliquely over the left shoulder.

Never sleep so that on awakening the eyes shall open on the light of a window.

Do not use the eyesight by light so scant that it requires an effort to discriminate.

The moment you are instinctively prompted to rub your eyes that moment stop using them.

If the eyelids are glued together on waking up do not forcibly open them, but apply saliva with the finger; it is the speediest dilutant in the world; then wash your eyes and face in warm water.

Catarrh,

Can be cured by purifying the blood with

I do not believe that Ayer's Sarsaparilla has an equal as a remedy for Scrofulous Humors. It is pleasant to take, gives strength and vigor to the body, and produces a more permanent, lasting, result than any medicine I ever used.—E. Haines, No. Lindale, O.

I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in my family, for Scrofula, and know, if it is taken faithfully, it will thoroughly eradicate this terrible disease.—W. F. Fowler, M. D., Greenville, Tenn.

For forty years I have suffered with Erysipelas. I have tried all sorts of remedies for my complaint, but found no relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After taking ten bottles of this medicine I am completely cured.—Mary C. Amesbury, Rockport, Me.

I have suffered, for years, from Catarrh, which was so severe that it destroyed my appetite and weakened my system. After trying other remedies, and getting no relief, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, in a few months, was cured.—Susan L. Cook, 909 Albany st., Boston Highlands, Mass.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is superior to any blood purifier that I have ever tried. I have taken it for Scrofula, Canker, and Salt-Rheum, and received much benefit from it. It is good, also, for a weak stomach.—Millie Jane Peirce, South Bradford, Mass.

THREE Effects.—The thousands of remarkable cures which have been accomplished by Hood's Sarsaparilla are due simply to three effects which this great medicine has on those who take it:

First. It purifies the blood.

Second. It strengthens the system.

Third. It gives healthy action to the digestive organs.

With these three effects no disease can long retain its hold. It is forced to leave the system giving place to health and strength, through the potent influence of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

Carry an armful of litter from the barn floor and scatter in the poultry house or in the shed adjoining. Keep fowls picking and scratching and then they will be happy and healthy.

Unclean eggs should be washed and wiped when gathered. The shells are porous, and pungent filth may penetrate and spoil the meat. Eggs for long keeping should not be washed only wiped.

Maine can boast of 56 farmers in its House of Representatives, and the Farmer of the State says they are "the substantial representatives of agricultural interests and have been selected because of their broad intelligence and candid conservatism, which qualify them especially for careful attention to all legislative affairs."

Swindling the Farmers—Stray Cattle.

In Canada, as in most other communities, when a farmer picks up an estray animal, he cares for it, advertises it, and calls upon the owner to prove property, pay charges, and take the animal away. To the ordinary mind this plain transaction seems very straightforward, and to offer but a small opportunity for fraud. But the mind of the swindler is equal to the occasion, and can convert this simple matter of converting an estray, into a swindle upon the farmer who advertises. These swindlers, as usual, hunt in couples. According to the Sarnia (Ont.) "Observer:" "They read the local newspapers carefully, and when a farmer publishes an estray notice, No. 1 calls to look at the animal. The farmer shows the beast, and the fellow decides it is not his; then he returns to his partner and describes it minutely to him. No. 2 goes to the farmer and after proving by a thorough description that he is the owner of the animal, says he cannot take it away, and offers to sell at a bargain. The farmer buys it, and in a few days the rightful owner comes and claims the animal." This is a swindle which may readily take in an honest farmer and it will probably not be confined to this side of the border. Farmers beware how you purchase estrays.—American Agriculturist.

A Difference.

Gov. Thompson tells the following: "It seemed that a new attache to the British legation had just arrived, and, as usual was taken around to be introduced to various heads of departments. Arriving at the treasury department he was introduced to Gov. Thompson. After awhile the conversation turned upon politics, and the British swell asked to be enlightened upon the political parties in the United States.

"There are but two parties here," said Gov. Thompson, "Democratic and Republican."

"Aw, but er say, dawntchuknaw, there's the mugwumps, dawntchuknaw. Aw, we have heard about the mugwumps in Hingland, dawntchuknaw. What is a mugwump."

"A mugwump!" replied the governor, "Oh, a mugwump, don't you know, is a Republican who votes the Democratic ticket."

"Aw, yaas," replied the swell, "I see; but then, dawntchuknaw, a Demoowat who votes the Wepublican ticket must be a Mugwump, too, eh?"

"Oh, no," replied the governor, "he's not a mugwump."

"No? Well, that's vorry queah. Now, what is he?"

"Well," replied the governor, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "a Democrat who votes the Republican ticket is called here a damphool."

"It do beat all how some folkses has ev'rything a mortal body could ast fer, while others, like you an' me, Mis Peterby, is poorer'n Job's turkey all the born days of our lives. Now, you've heern tell of them Vanderbilts an' Astors there in New York, ain't you?

"Duno but I hev," said "Mis Peterby."

"Well, I've lately heern some things 'bout how they carry on. My man he got it straight from Zimri Perkins, an' Zim he got it from his wife's mother's uncle's nevvy, who takes a paper printed in New York, so it must be true."

"I aint a doubt of it,"

"Well, if you'll b'leeve me, old Mis Vanderbilt don't purtend to even wash her own dishes. She don't even make her own bed—her nor Mis Astor neither, and they both sleep in pink velvet night gownds trimmed in lace at $1,000 a yard, and embroidered in diaments that cost millions on millions."

"Yes, sir! An' Mis Astor's bed stid is solid gold with diament knobs on it as big as goose eggs, an' ev'ry time she goes out she has twenty coal black horses hitched to her solid gold charyot, and she stands in it dressed all in white satin with her hair hangin' down her back, athrowin' $20 gold pieces to the beggars."

"Naw!"

"Deed an' its true—ev'ry word of it. And when Mr. and Mis Vanderbilt goes out they have their carriage drawn by forty milk white steeds with a coal black nigger with a diament ring in his nose, leading ev'ry horse; and Vanderbilt he lays back on his velvet cushions smokin' a pipe that cost a clean billion."

Cost of Living at Washington.

Some newspaper writer has recently put forth a statement, in which a nice arithmetical calculation is made, to to show what it costs Mr. Cleveland to live and just how much of his salary he can save. The conclusion is that Mr. Cleveland will retire from the White House $25,000 the richer for each year he stays in it, or that, assuming he has two terms, he will have saved up $200,000 by 1893. Such resoning is fallacious. The wants and necessities of presidents vary as widely as those of other people. As well attempt to say what it costs a senator or representative to live when you know what his salary is, what the size of his family and the amount he pays for house rent. There is Senator Leland Stanford, for instance. His family consists of two persons and his salary from the government is $5,000 a year. It would be easy to assume that he saves $2,500, but it is stated that his living expenses are really $100,000 a year, and that more than half of this sum is spent in Washington during his winter sojourn there. On the other hand I know of a senator from a southern state who lives comfortably and supports a family of three or four children on $3,000 a year, and saves the rest of his salary for a rainy day. He lives in a modest house on an unfashionable street, buys neither books nor pictures, rides in horse cars instead of a carriage and denies himself all the other vanities of the rich. There is another statesman who never brings his family to Washington, and lives at a cost of $8 a week in a boarding house. But these economical ones are the exceptions. A majority of our law makers spend from twice to ten times their salary every year.

Care of the Eyes.

Keep a shade on your lamp or gas burner.

Avoid all sudden changes between light and darkness.

Never begin to read, write or sew for several minutes after coming from darkness to light.

Never read by twilight, moonlight or on cloudy days.

Never read or sew directly in front of the light, window or door.

It is best to let the light fall from above obliquely over the left shoulder.

Never sleep so that on awakening the eyes shall open on the light of a window.

Do not use the eyesight by light so scant that it requires an effort to discriminate.

The moment you are instinctively prompted to rub your eyes that moment stop using them.

If the eyelids are glued together on waking up do not forcibly open them, but apply saliva with the finger; it is the speediest dilutant in the world; then wash your eyes and face in warm water.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c. per box by R. E. Phillips.

Humors, Erysipelas, Canker, and Catarrh, Can be cured by purifying the blood with [illegible] permanent, lasting, results than any medicine I ever used.—E. Haines, No. Lindale, O.

I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in my family, for Scrofula, and know, if it is taken faithfully, it will thoroughly eradicate this terrible disease.—W. F. Fowler, M. D., Greenville, Tenn.

For forty years I have suffered with Erysipelas. I have tried all sorts of remedies for my complaint, but found no relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After taking ten bottles of this medicine I am completely cured.—Mary C. Amesbury, Rockport, Me.

I have suffered, for years, from Catarrh, which was so severe that it destroyed my appetite and weakened my system. After trying other remedies, and getting no relief, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, in a few months, was cured.—Susan L. Cook, 909 Albany st., Boston Highlands, Mass.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is superior to any blood purifier that I have ever tried. I have taken it for Scrofula, Canker, and Salt-Rheum, and received much benefit from it. It is good, also, for a weak stomach.—Millie Jane Peirce, South Bradford, Mass.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Price $1; six bottles, $5.

He Had Observed the Scarcity.

There re few more handsome coins than the gold twenty-dollar piece, or eagle of the United States, and a comparatively small number of these are in actual circulation.—London Times.

How to Gain Flesh and Strength.

Use after each meal Scott's Emulsion; it is as palatable as milk and easily digested. Delicate people improve rapidly with its use. For Consumption, Throat affections and Bronchitis it is unequalled. Dr. Thomas Prim, Ala., says: "I used Scott's Emulsion on a child eight months old; he gained four pounds in a month."

How Much Have You Contributed.

The personal estate of the late J. D. Perrins, a proprietor of the celebrated Worcestershire sauce, amounted to nearly $3,000,000.—New York Sun.

The Population of Fulton

Is about 5,000 and we should say at least one-half are troubled with some affection of the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all not to neglect the opportunity to call at your druggist and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial size Free. Sold by all druggists.

It has been computed that the death rate of the globe is 67 a minute, 97,790 a day, 35,639,835 a year, and the birth 70 a minute, 100,800 a day, and 36,792,000 a year.

THREE Effects.—The thousands of remarkable cures which have been accomplished by Hood's Sarsaparilla are due simply to three effects which this great medicine has on those who take it:

First. It purifies the blood.

Second. It strengthens the system.

Third. It gives healthy action to the digestive organs.

With these three effects no disease can long retain its hold. It is forced to leave the system giving place to health and strength, through the potent influence of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

"Why haven't I a 600-acre farm as well as that man riding by in his carriage?" yelled a red-nosed Anarchist orator as he glared at the crowd.

"Because he saved $600 and bought his farm when it cost him $1 an acre, and you poured your $600 down your throat," responded a man on the back seat, and the orator asked no more conundrums.—Chicago Tribune.

An Imperative Necessity.

What pure air is to an unhealthy locality, what spring cleaning is to the neat house-keeper, so is Hood's Sarsaparilla to everybody, at this season. The body needs to be thoroughly renovated, the blood purified and vitalized, the germs of disease destroyed. [illegible]

SARSAPARILLA

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health.

At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and we ask you to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. The peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation of the vegetable remedies used give to Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar curative powers. No other medicine has such a record of wonderful cures. If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other instead. It is a Peculiar Medicine, and is worthy your confidence.

Ballad of the Romantic Young Man.

The forest where wood-thrushes trill
The sunny long summer days through,
The bands of the murmuring rill
That gleams with clear opals of dew,
The blossoms of white and of blue,
The thickets once haunted by Pan,
He dotes on with tenderness true—
He's such a romantic young man.

No laugh of the scorner can chill
His love for the somber of hue;
The cells of his brain will be fill
With rhymes about ages they knew—
The warriors who jousted and slew
Their foes in the field as they ran,
And quote them to Sallie and Sue,
He's such a romantic young man.

O'er many a far foreign hill
He's roamed like the "Wandering Jew,"
And those who have envied his skill
In singing have not been a few;
The pictures he has upon view
Are for the esthetic to scan;
He can waltz "like a dream," he can woo,
He's such a romantic young man.

ENVOY.

Maids, be this a warning to you!
He's poor, and I know it's his plan
To marry a million or two,
He's such a romantic young man.
—Clinton Scollard in Detroit Free Press.

A STRANGE REVENGE.

Howard Snow was only 23 and Helen Thomas 30—one of those women who ripen like a peach in the sun and to whom mature years add only richer charms.

It was the old story of a young man's infatuation for a woman older than himself. It blinded his judgment and blunted his sense of right and wrong, and made him conscious of but one desire of life—to be free. His bonds to Barbara Walker grew hateful, and she seemed to him a child whose weakness would be a drag upon him always.

So he freed himself and for a month was happy with a drunkard's happiness. Then his better nature awoke with a sudden shock. He spoke of marriage to Helen Thomas, and she laughed in his face.

"Marriage!" she said "why you are only a boy! How can you think of so absurb a thing?"

And her laughter had the ring of scorn in it.

Then he went his way.

He thought of Barbara Walker with a strange tenderness, but with no idea of consulting her with any attempt at renewal of old ties. He felt no love for her, in truth, only he felt his baseness and lack of stability.

He applied himself to his profession and made a success of it. He grew rich, prosperous, popular with men, but feared by women, for his sarcasm was always two-edged. Yet marriageable women sought after him, for he had personal attractions added to his wealth and influence, and seemed a desirable husband for an ambitious woman.

But he reached the age of 32 and was still free. And then he met Barbara Walker again.

Through all these years he had lost trace of her and knew nothing of her. Now they met suddenly, and to him at least, unexpectedly, at a formal dinner party given by a prominent politician.

Howard Snow was presented to Miss Walker by the hostess and requested to lead her to dinner. It was Barbara Walker! The was no mistaking the face and form he so well remembered, and yet what a change!

The nine years had but perfected the the girlish graces that were pleasing of old and lent the charm of dignity and elegence to what was once only sweetness and simplicity. The shy, modest manner had given place to perfect self-possession and rare conversational powers rendered her the star of the evening.

Howard Snow scarcely left her side all the evening. She charmed him with her descriptions of scenery and chit-chat of foreign life.

"I would be glad to call," he said, "where can I find you?"

"In the house where we first met," she said, as they parted. Where can I find you?"

"In the house where we first met," she said, glancing up at him with the old, shy look. "I am visiting the same friends."

He could not have described his sensations as he rang the bell the next day and was ushered into the presence of that queenly woman who was once his betrothed wife. Admiration, reverence, respect and it seemed to him, love, stirred together in his heart.

It was only one of many calls. She was so kind, so cordial, so entertaining. Her soul was to large to treasure any resentment against him for his old wrong. Then by and by he grew to realize how he was loving this woman. Not the old love awakened but a new love created—the one grand passion of his life. Still he hesitated, not daring to speak. But so strong grew the emotion that it overpowered him at length.

"God knows I feel my unworthiness," he said, "but I love you Barbara, and want you for my wife. I said these same words to you ten years ago and failed you. I was only a weak boy then, swayed about by a designing woman. Now I am a man, knowing by own heart, with all its intense pent up passion it cries out for you."

For a moment Barbara's face seemed glorified with light. Her cheeks glowed, her eyes enlarged, her breast heaved. She put both hands in his.

"I have never been content without you—no for one moment," she said. "Nothing filled my life so full that I did not feel the need of you, Howard."

Their marriage was set for three months later. And they were to be married in the village church by the old family rector. The little church [illegible] for worse, in sickness and in health, through good report and evil report, till death do part?"

The old rector waited for the response. It came like the report of a pistol.

"Never! As he once rejected me, so now do I reject him."

And she swept down the aisle, whiter than her robes, and left a palsied crowd of people staring blankly after her.

Very calmly and very cooly Howard Snow passed down and out the church. Before midnight he was in raving delirium. The next morning they found him in a high fever, calling wildly on the name of Barbara, and cursing some woman he called Helen, who seemed pursuing him.

"He cannot live the doctor said the next evening. "Will some one go and ask the woman who has done this cruel deed to come here for a moment? The sight of her may quiet him perhaps."

But while he spoke she came in, her bridal white exchanged for funeral black, her long hair falling loose about her. She glided to the bedside and put her hands on his face.

"Howard she called in a trembling voice, oh, my love Howard, forgive me ere you die."

But he fancied she was the woman Helen, and shrieked and cursed her, and grew so violent they sent her from the room.

There was a week of wild delirium and then a week of stupor, and then—"He is dead!" they said, and the word passed to her. Like a pale wraith of here former self, she came slowly in and knelt beside him. She put her wasted cheek beside his on the pillow and the tears that had refused to rise fell slowly down, as she said:

"Oh, I thought revenge was sweet, but it is bitter, bitter my love."

How long she knelt there she did not know, but suddenly she was startled by a sigh—a very ghost of a sigh it seemed to her. She put her hand over the heart she believed she had stilled forever. It fluttered feebly.

"Oh, thank God!" she cried and fell unconscious.

An hour later she found herself in bed and kindly cared for, and smiling faces all about her.

"He lives," they said. "Your touch brought him back from the very shores of death."

A few weeks later a pallid bride and a still more pallid groom passed down the old church-aisle and out into the great world.

IT WILL BE ALL LIGHT THERE.

A Pathetic Story of Home Life That Has Sadness in Every Line.

Children are happy counselors. They are to our hard, practical, everyday lives what the stars are to the heavens, or the flowers and birds to the earth.

There is a family in this city who are dependent this moment upon a little child for all the present sunshine of their lives.

A few weeks ago the young wife and mother was stricken down to die.

It was so sudden, so dreadful when the grave family physician called them together in the parlor, and in his solemn professional way intimated to them the truth—there was no hope!

Then the question arose among them, who would tell her?

Not the doctor! It would be cruel to to let the man of science go to their dear one on such an errand.

Not the aged mother who would be left childless and alone.

Nor the young husband, who was walking the floor with clinched hands and rebellious heart.

Not—there was only one other, and at this moment he looked up from the book he had been playing with, unnoticed by them all and asked gravely:

"Is my mamma doin' to die?"

Then, without waiting for an answer, he sped from the room and upstairs as fast as his little feet would carry him.

Friends and neighbors were watching by the sick woman. They wonderingly noticed the pale face of the child as he climbed on the bed and laid his small head on his mother's pillow.

"Mamma," he asked in sweet, caressing tones, "is you 'fraid to die?"

The mother looked at him with swift intelligence. Perhaps she had been thinking of this.

"Who—told—you—Charlie?" she asked faintly.

"Doctor an' papa an gramma—everybody, he whispered. "Mamma, dear little mamma, doan' be 'fraid to die, 'ill you?"

"No, Charlie," said the young mother, after one supreme pang of grief; "no, mamma won't be afraid."

"Jus' shut your eyes in 'e dark, mamma, teep hold my hand, an' when you open 'em, mamma, it'll be all light there."

When the family gathered awe-stricken at the bedside Charlie held up his little hand.

"H-u-s-h! My mamma doan to sleep. Her won't wake up here any more."

And so it proved. There was no heart-rending farewell, no agony of parting, for when the young mother woke she had passed beyond, and as baby Charlie said, "It was all light there."—Detroit Free Press.

A Funny Mistake.

"Is this the place to get a license?" asked a timid young man of Officer Spencer in the collector's office yesterday.

"Yes; right at that window. You'll have to wait your turn."

The youth got into line and in the course of half an hour reached the window.

"What's your name and residence?" asked the busy clerk.

"E. Walters, 958 Clybourn avenue."

"Well, here you are—$2, please."

The young man paid the money, seized the paper, and hastened from the room. Officer Spencer, noticing the glad light in his eyes as he passed, remarked to himself: "That young feller must have a valuable animal. I'll bet it 'ud break his heart if it ate some pizzened meat."

As soon as he reached the corridor, Walters pulled out his license to look at it.

"Holy smoke! What's this? Dog! Marry a dog! By George! What will Annie say?"

He was paralyzed. He stood as if dazed for some moments, uncertain what to do. Finally he sheepishly went back to Officer Spencer, who, when he heard the young man's explanation, interceded for him, got his $2 back, and directed him to the hymeneal window in the county clerk's office, where he succeeded in getting the proper license. As he walked away he could not help smiling to himself.—Chicago News.

LEONIDAS AND THE PASS.

How He Tried to Hold it at Thermopylæ Some Years Ago.

Leonidas was a prominent editor of Sparta in the sweet long ago.

His paper, the Palladium, was noted for its opposition to the interstate-commerce of that period, and when the obnoxious measure became a law Leonidas was as hot as a cook stove.

Like the law which is now distracting the minds of the people of the United States and overworking the commissioners, this ancient statute prohibited the issue of passes.

Just before the law began to do its deadly work Mr. Xerxes, president of the Thermopylæ railway company, issued a circular, of which the following is a copy:

"[Form 291.] 2-14-2,000

"THERMOPYLÆ RAILWAY CO.—OFFICE OF COL. W. H. YERXES, President, LOCRIS, April 27, 480 B. C.—Dear Sir: As you are aware the interstate-commerce law which goes into effect on the 5th prox., forbids under severe penalties the issuing of free passes or the honoring of those now issued.

"You will, therefore, return to the general offices of the Thermopylæ railway company the annual pass now issued in your name, as the same will not be available for passage after the date named.

"Regretting the necessity for issuing this circular, I beg to remain, yours faithfully, WILLIAM HENRY XERXES.

"President and General Freight and Ticket Agent."

When Leonidas received this intimation he was even more wroth than when the bill was passed.

The pass was a young and beautiful one, with the figures 480 in large gilt letters all ever the face, and Leonidas had not exhibited it more than three times to the admiring gaze of the conductors of the line.

Then, again, the fishing season was about to open and he intended to take a run down into Thessaly county every Saturday night after the paper had gone to press and indulge in the pleasant sport of drowning worms.

He had several other little excursions planned for the summer, one of which was to visit his girl in Ohio.

Leonidas was therefore sorrowful when he learned that this nice new pass which was just ready to blossom forth into a career of usefulness, had been cut down in its fresh young beauty.

Then he made a brave resolution.

He resolved not to give it up, but die in its defense if necessary.

He died as the sequel will show.

Col Xerxes was determined to see the law enforced, and when Leonidas neglected to return the pass at the appointed time, Xerxes sent a postal card to inquire the wherefore.

Leonidas replied that Xerxes might go to Halifax, but Xerxes went not.

Halifax was not on his line of road.

He went for Leonidas instead, having first called out the militia to assist in taking the pass from the angry editor.

The latter levied 300 Pinkerton guards armed with Remington rifles, to defend the pass.

But it was of no use.

Xerxes captured the precious pasteboard, but not until Leonidas and all his retainers but one had been sent to that land where the wicked legislators cease from troubling and the weary editor is at rest.

The man who escaped got back to Sparta and wrote an account of the fight for the Palladium which thus had a scoop on its contemporaries.

This little incident shows that there is nothing alarmingly original about the interstate-commerce law, for passes were called in more than 2,000 years ago.—William H. Siviter in Texas Siftings.

Seth Green's Method of Fishing.

"You want me to tell you," said Mr. Green to a Rochester reporter, "how it is that I always fill my basket with shiners, and you chaps have to make a visit to the fish market on your way home, or get laughed at? Well, get out your pencil and write as I talk and I will tell you.

"In the first place, when I go fishing I go fishing. I don't hear the babble of the brook. I don't hear the fluttering of the bird, nor the silvery leaves, nor the beautiful sky. Neither do I fish anybody else's line. I fish my own and I don't watch my companion, if I have one, to see when he gets a bite. I don't care whether he gets a bite or not. I am attending to my own business and looking for a good place to cats. I am looking for the fly that is on the water, and to see if there is a rise. If I see one, no matter if it is ten rods away, I mark the place and make for it. I don't run, but I go quietly along, and keep fishing and when I get within casting distance, I drop my fly a little short, and if I don't get a rise, the next cast is made exactly on the spot on which the fly lit. My fly does not go with a thud as though I wanted to hit the bull's-eye, but it touches the water as lightly as a fond mother's hand touches the brow of a lovely coaxing child that she loves better than I can find words to express. I am just as sure of a rise, too, as the fond mother is that the child will roll its loving eyes up to her face, with an expression which says to her, 'I am yours.' I feel when my fly drops so gently on the water that it does not make a ripple, that the fish is mine.

"That is the secret of fishing."

A WORD WITH YOU.

BANGOR, MAINE, SPRING, 1887.

Preparatory to what follows, we will say that realizing the great work of healing upon which we have entered, that nothing may be set down to quackery or ignorance, we have prepared a short history of the professional life of W. H. BROWN, M. D., from whose formula we have for years prepared the most successful medicine for purifying and enriching the blood, inciting the torpid liver, and strengthening weak kidneys, —in short, for the speedy, safe and permanent cure of all diseases of the stomach, liver, and kidneys, that has ever been known in New England. This history, together with statements from many prominent people whom you will know, of relief secured and cures effected from sufferings and torture by these diseases, will be mailed to you if you send us your address. Better than in this letter we tell you where relief can be found. We have come late to the work with BROWN'S SARSAPARILLA. Naturally we have taken hold of the cases which other remedies, altho' advertised with persistency and at marvelous expense, have failed to cure. The results have been wonderful. Nowhere have we failed to give relief, and in no case where persistent and faithful use according to directions has been made of Brown's Sarsaparilla, has it failed to CURE any or all diseases of the blood, stomach, liver, and kidneys Mrs. Ephraim Cunningham of East Bangor, Maine, heard of it, read of it, tried it, and was cured of her weakness in kidneys and troubled liver. Carlton P. Williams of Amesbury, Mass., says he is entirely cured of what physicians diagnosticated as Bright's disease, and pronounced incurable. Eben Morrison of Cleveland, Ohio, advised by a friend to use Brown's Sarsaparilla for his kidney troubles, did so and was cured. Benj. Hill of New York Corner, at 63 years of age, gained strength and vitality for his blood, and health to continue his daily duties. Tumors dispursed for Reuben Severance and Aaron French by Brown's Sarsaparilla. Scrofula cured in Hartley B. Fisher, Corinna, Me. But why continue? Get our book on good health and read for yourself the astounding results secured by the use of Brown's Sarsaparilla, and remember these cases are those where eminent physicians have failed to find a remedy, and other medicines, advertise well and popularly introduced, have not benefitted, but Brown's Sarsaparilla, having been taken as a last resort, has proved efficacious and no other treatment was needed. Now with these facts in evidence, substantiated by reputable citizens accompanied by affidavits of prominent people, why not make this remedy the first, as it will then prove to you the only resort when you, your family or your neighbors are suffering from any of the almost numberless disorders which arise from a deranged stomach, and inactive liver, or weakened kidneys? Now a word in regard to the preparation and combination of this wonderful remedy. Our Mr. Warren for many years enjoyed the confidence of the late W. H. Brown, M. D., and in the prosecution of his business of pharmacist hundreds of times has he been called upon to put up the prescription, which is now compounded for popular sale, and for a few years has been known to the public as Brown's Sarsaparilla. It is entirely vegetable in its combination; the most powerful alterative-tonic properties known to the materia medica being skillfully prepared on a scientific basis, and the result of a perfect medicine for the relief and cure of dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, biliousness, loss of appetite, inflammation of kidneys and bladder, Bright's disease, dropsy, gravel, jaundice, heartburn, rheumatism, neuralgia, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, diabetes; for the removal of impurities of the blood; to incite to proper activity the sluggish torpid liver; and to strengthen and relieve disorders of the stomach. It also acts like a charm as a remedy for all female complaints. Brown's Sarsaparilla has such curative powers and is of such immeasurable value to sufferers that we have decided to commence the publication of a series of extensive articles, detailing its properties uses and cures; and hereafter you can receive such information from the columns of this paper. You can obtain the medicine of any dealer. Yours truly, ARA WARREN & CO.

JAS. R. FAIRGRIEVE - EDITOR

On yesterday a statue was unveiled at Hartford, Conn., of Nathan Hale the young patriot, who was hanged as a spy in the Revolution. His last words expressing the regret that he had only one life to give for his country and his tragic end will always stand out in bold relief in history.

An associate press dispatch announces that Dan Rice the showman married Mrs. Robinson, a rich widow, at Schulerburg, Texas, last week. The veteran is 73 and his wife 45. This will doubtless infuse new life and ambition into Mr. Rice and probably "the greatest show on earth" will soon be on the road, and old chestnuts re-opened, baked over and cracked by the old clown.

The Patriot man thought he was in clover last week. "He thought he had us on the hip." Why? Because we said Newark has a much less number of miles of mains than Fulton, and Cortland less miles of mains. And so the Patriot went for us with another column article and with telegrams from Newark and Cortland. Because he reckoned he had found us at fault for the first time. Now what are the facts. We have a copy of the water contract of the village of Newark. It calls for seventy hydrants and seven miles of street mains at the annual rental of $2,000 for 5 years. But, Newark has not yet got her water works, and we are informed by this morning's mail that no move has yet been made towards construction. In Cortland there are to be 150 hydrants and some 14 miles of mains at a rental of $4,000 so we were mistaken in saying Fulton had more miles of mains than those villages. Fulton is nearly as large as Cortland and larger than Newark and yet Newark, if she gets Water Works is to pay $300 per year more than Fulton paid and Cortland $2,300 per year more.

We made some statements in last week's Times about the three fires since January 1st which everybody who was at the the fires knows to be true, but the Patriot still laboring under the delusion of the stranger, Cobb, comes out in a column article to say, it was not so. But regardless of what the Patriot says, the people who were there and looked and saw, know that some ten minutes were lost at the Dilts fire that might have been saved by hitching to the hydrant, and that the building could have been saved. The Patriot states that it is doubtful if there was and is pressure enough on Fourth street hydrants to throw a stream on any of the buildings. Such a statement is absurd. It is well known by tests made by the hose boys that there is not a hydrant on Fourth street but what will throw a stream over any building on Fourth street except the Seminary and School building at any time under tank pressure and if the editor of the Patriot or any other citizen has any doubt about it they had better get the hose boys to go there and give them a test. The same editor cries in a loud voice because Draper's store was burned and the hydrants were used. Yes, and every man, woman and child knows that it was an old tinder box, fairly ablaze when discovered afire and beyond recovery when the hose carts arrived, and further that it was due to the Water Works, that the Patriot and the Stephens building were saved. And had it not been for the invaluable aid of the water hydrants we might have suffered a serious conflagration.

But another bad feature of his article is his statement that there was no pressure at Nelson's building on Second street or at Bristol's barn. Now the editor knows that the pressure was all right but what was the trouble. There was tank pressure on the hydrants. Two lines of hose were run to and hitched on one hydrant and of necessity took nearly all the pressure away. If one line of hose had been hitched to the hydrant, it would have thrown a stream over any of the buildings. It was and is thoroughly understood that under tank pressure only one line of hose should be fastened to a hydrant and two under pump pressure. It is well known that two streams from one hydrant under low pressure will almost destroy the throwing capacity, in other words, the demand for water almost equals the supply, but [illegible] this pressure or use only one line of hose and one nozzle and the supply exceeds the demand and hence the power to throw distance. But here is [illegible] argument. By the burning of the Dilts shop and Highriter block, other buildings were erected and labor [illegible] in the construction. By [illegible] property is actually destroyed and [illegible] wealth is reduced by as much [illegible]. So the argument of the [illegible] that total destruction is [illegible]

It only comes but once a year,
Perhaps we can endure it;
'Tis a disease we need not fear,

The Great Tortilita Mines.

Ex-Governor Rodman M. Price, of New Jersey, the California pioneer for whom the Legislature of that State recently appropriated $50,000 to erect a monument in recognition of his public services, is in town. As a lieutenant of the Navy, Governor Price took possession of California in the name of the United States. He has long been identified with the interests of the Pacific slope. Asked his opinion of the Tortilita Mines in Arizona, whose offices are at 57 Broadway, this city, and whose shares are about to be listed, and are attracting much attention, Governor Price said: "I am familiar with the country in which the Tortilitas are located. They are in the central and best part of the territory and in an enormously rich mining district. The company has twelve mines and owns a territory three miles long, with over 250 acres of rich ore deposits. The Tortilitas have already produced over $150,000 in bullion. I expect to see a second Virginia City established there and another Comstock in the results of the mines. The value of the Tortilitas is demonstrated by the concentration of the ore below the water level in the two mines which are now being worked, which is the absolute test of permanency. They have a vein of ore already exposed 42½ feet wide that assays $50 per ton, and the supply is inexhaustible. "Am I acquainted with the management?" Yes. It is composed of reliable, competent business men of the highest standing. The president is Mr. Joseph H. Reall, president of the American Agricultural and Dairy Association, with whom I was for many months identified in the passage of the National Oleomargarine Law, and the vice-president is General J. Floyd King, of Louisiana, a distinguished officer in the late war, and for nine sessions, eight years, a member of Congress. The superintendent of the mines, D. T. Elmore, upon whom much devolves, is indorsed by Senator Sawyer, of Wisconsin, as one of the best mining men in America, and of absolute integrity and capacity. There is a great future for this enterprise in my judgement. I regard the Tortilitas as one of the best properties ever placed on the New York market and experienced operators and mining men coincide in my opinion; I foresee great activity in mining circles this summer.—N. Y. Tribune, May [illegible].

Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.: Have taken Hall's Catarrh Cure; am 48 years old. Had asthma 19 years, and a dreadful cough; for five years. Have taken everything, went to the Hot Springs; have doctored with the doctors here; I have done nothing but take medicine for 19 years. When I commenced taking Hall's Catarrh Cure I was almost dead. I sent for the doctor the day I got Hall's Catarrh Cure, and I told him that I would die anyway and that I would try your medicine. I was very bad. How I suffered for 9 years! I could hardly breathe at times. I saw Hall's Catarrh Cure advertised in the papers and commenced taking it, I would have been under the ground to-day if it had not been for that. I have not had one bad spell of coughing since. In breathing my head feels well and I am well. It has done me a thousand dollars worth of good. There are ten of my friends, on seeing what it had done for me, taking it, and it is helping them. I only wish that everyone who has catarrh, asthma and a bad cough could see me, so that I could tell them all to take it. All that know me here know how I have suffered. (I have been here since 1858,) and say to me that "I am so glad you found something that could cure you." Everyone said, "how much better you look." The doctors say they are glad I found Hall's Ctaarrh Cure as the could not cure me.

I cannot express my gratitude to you for the good Hall's Catarrh Cure has done me. You can use as much of this letter as will do the afflicted good. Publish to the whole world—it is all true and they should know it.

Board of Trustees' Proceedings.

Fulton, N. Y. June 8, 1887.

Board met pursuant to adjournment.

Present—President Waugh; Trustees Rice, Osborne, and More.

M. C. Highriter was appointed clerk pro tem.

Minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

Messrs. Drake, Allen and Rafferty came before the board and complained that their rights as property owners no Second street between Pratt and Division streets were infringed upon by the action of the R. W. & O. R. R. Company.

On motion Trustee Rice was appointed a committee to ascertain what rights the parties had, and to report at the next meeting.

Wm. C. Stephens was heard in relation to the removal of the band house from the centre of the park.

After discussion, the matter was referred to the full board of Trustees.

The Clerk reported that Henry Keefe, as policeman, and George S. Hanna, as member of the Board of Health, had each filed their oath and acceptance of office.

On motion Trustee Rice Board adjourned to June 15th, at 7¼ o'clock p. m.

M. C. Highriter, Clerk, pro tem.

SNOW & LOOMIS,
KEEP A FULL LINE OF
[illegible]

[illegible] a chief clerk, [illegible] besides the Chief Clerks for each of the bureaus, and the clerical force necessary and provided for by law.

The Secretary executes such orders as he receives from the President, relative to the procurement of Naval Stores and Materials, and the construction, armament, equipment, and employment of vessels of war, as well as all other matters connected with the Naval establishment. He has charge of all the books, records, and other property appertaining to the Navy Department, and the distribution of the business of the Department among the several Bureaus. The office of the Secretary, besides the clerks mentioned, has a record and file clerk, a stationary clerk, a force of recorders, a clerk in charge of the Naval Academy affairs, his personal staff, composed of his confidential secretary, a clerk, a messenger in charge of the mail, and two other messengers.

The venerable colored messenger in charge of the the door of the Secretary's office, is the oldest public servent still in the employ of the government. Appointed during Jackson's administration, he has served during the terms of sixteen Presidents, and twenty-six secretaries of the Navy, a total period of fifty-eight years, and the old man has still the full possession of his faculties, and a remarkable memory for faces and persons which has stood him well in his official requirements. He has saved a considerable fortune and lives in well-deserved comfort during his declining years.

Very closely connected with the office of secretary is the office of Judge Advocate General; the head of which is a Maine officer, with the relative rank of Colonel, whose appointment is for four years. A force of clerks, stenographers, and typewriter are employed in this division in the prosecution of the legal work of the Department, such as the preparation of the legal forms of contract; of suits againts defaulting contractors; of trials by court-martial; and of opinions as to legality of various questions arising in the transaction of public business.

The chiefs of the several Bureaus are appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate, for a term of four years.

The heads of the Bureaus of Yards and Docks, Equipments and Recruiting, Navigation and Ordinance, must be officers of the Navy, and not below the grade of Commander; and these are called the Live Bureaus, because they controlled by live officers of the Navy.

The Staff Bureaus consist of those of Construction and Repair, whose chief shall be an officer of the Navy, and a and a skillful Naval constructor; of Steam Engineering, the chief of which shall be a Naval Officer, and a skillful engineer; of Provisions and Clothing, whose head must be a Paymaster of the Navy, of not less than ten years standing; and of Medicine and Surgery whose chief must be appointed form among the Surgeons in the Navy. These Chiefs of the Bureaus all hold the relative rank of Commodore and receive the pay attached to that grade, and those belonging to the line are so styled; but the Staff officers are called Chief Constructor or Engineer in Chief, Paymaster General, and Surgeon General respectively.

Although equally divided in number, the question of superiority or even of equality in point of influence has never been settled, and the old war between the line and the staff of the Navy is ready to be resumed by their respective champions; who, instead of cooperating, work independently of each other, and not always with that harmony which characterize the efforts to a successful attainment of the one object desired, by the several distinct agencies to that end.

No one seriously doubts that the good of the service is the controlling impulse of each of these divisions as at present constituted, but until some system of more perfect organization shall be authorized by law, as urged by the present Secretary of the Navy upon Congress, we shall never succeed in regaining the that sumpemacy for the Navy, which it held during the thirty years between the close of the war of 1812 and the Mexican war, when the navies of no other power were superior to it except in the number of her vessels.

Says Cooper in his Naval History: "As respects the Navies of this hemisphere, it was supreme, the united marines of all the rest of the rest of the continent being unable to contend against it for an hour."

N. Y. S. P. A.

The ninth annual meeting of this association will convene in the reading-room of the Thousand Island Park Hotel, Thousand Island Park, N. Y., June 21st 1887, at 10:30 a. m., and will be conducted substantially according to the following order of exercises:

Tuesday, June 21st, 10:30 a. a.—First session. Meeting called to order by the President. Address of welcome, Rev. M. D. Kinney, President of T. I. P. Association. President's address. Reports of officers. General business from Secretary's desk.

Tuesday, June 21, 3 p. m.—Second session. Reports of officers and committees. Election of officers. Unfinished business from secretary's desk.

Tuesday evening, 8 p. m.—Informal reception in the parlors of the hotel, under the direction of the entertainment committee. Music, vocal and instrumental. Collation at 11 p. m.

Wednesday, June 22d, 9 a. m.—Third session. Miscellaneous business from Secretary's desk. Reading of papers.

Wednesday p. m.—Excursion on the steamer "Island Wanderer" about the islands.

Wednesday evening, 8 p. m.—Fourth session. Reading of papers, and discussions. Miscellaneous business from Secretary's desk.

Thursday, June 23d, 9 a. m.—Fifth session. Reading of papers. Installation of officers. Appointment of committees and delegates. Miscellaneous business.

Cheese Market.

[From the Utica Herald].

AT UTICA.

Utica, N. Y. June 13.

Transactions to-day are the largest ever known here at this time of year, and have not been exceeded in any day since the dry year of 1879. They show two things: First, that we are selling very close to the hoop, and most of our factories have now sold all but two or three days of their May cheese; and secondly that a larger number of factories is sold upon the Utica board this year than ever before. One thing is to be taken into consideration in comparing the number of boxes with former years; the proportion of small sized cheese is considerably greater, so that the number of pounds would probably not be very much more than before. But it is evident that factorymen are anxious to get rid of as much cheese as possible at these prices. That has of course been the policy to follow down to this time, because the cheese could not be kept. But now that we have reached solid grass cheese, we should advise factorymen to hold back a day or two of their make and give the market a breathing spell. This is the opinion of some of our most conservative salesmen, who believe that it is impolitic to overwhelm the buyers with stock which they cannot sell and may be obliged to store. It will do no harm, either, to give the cheese a little more maturity now before sending it into market.

AT LITTLE FALLS.

Little Falls, June 13.

Cheese.—The market started off very dull, and both buyers and salesmen stood back and seemed disinclined to concede anything. After considerable time spent in "beating about the bush," business opened slowly at first, but as it became known that buyers stood solid against paying above their first offers, 9¼c., trade became general, and at the close a large amount of stock is found to have changed hands. Most buyers lost on last week's purchases, and they were naturally timid to-day. They claim there is no better prospect for a profit on to-day's purchases than on those of last Monday. We are now in the flush of the make, and factories are sold off very close. Following are the transactions.

Lots.	Boxes.	Price
49	3,105	9 cents
64	4,996	9¼cents
1	86	9⅜cents
1	105	9½cents
1	121	p. t.
8	656	Com.

Farm dairy	647
	9,716

Farm Dairies—Sales of cheese on the morning market were 647 boxes at 8¾@9¼c. Two or three lots only sold at 9¼c., the bulk going at 9¼c.

Butter—There were light sales of farm dairy at 18@18½c., and 29 packages creamery sold at 18c.

AT FULTON.

The prices of cheese dropped slightly from last Monday. Still the price is better than the past two years. Twenty-three factories represented with 1,984 boxes of cheese which was sold at 9¼. The price one year ago was 6¾ cents.

(Special to THE TIMES.)

This city may boast of its educational facilities. Three Universities with their attendant departments, besides private schools by the score and public ones by the hundreds give us great cause to be proud of our advantages in this particular direction. It may be observed in passing that this is the period of the year when all these institutions come prominently before the public. They seem for a portion of the year to enjoy a lethargy so far as the general public is concerned, only to surprise that same public by their combined brilliancy, learning and grace when the Commencement comes around. But what has been most significant is the action of stiff, staid Columbia. Entrenched as it was for a good round century behind the bulwork of social propriety, it was slow to follow the example set by older institutions in the matter of co-education. About four years ago it took action upon this question, permitting the granting of diplomas and degrees to women who had pursued the course which the faculty required. The last Commencement witnessed the successful graduation of Columbia's first class of women.

The funny part of this new move on the part of Columbia's trustees is that while the granting of college honors to women are permitted, no lady matriculant is permitted to recite or have the regular lectures in the college buildings. For that reason Miss Hankey's task was not an easy one. Having passed the Howard examinations, she was admitted to Columbia, pursued her study at home, passed her examination before the faculty, being by the way, especially brilliant in chemistry, philosophy and literature, and received her degree of Bachelor of Letters amid the plaudits of her fellow graduates.

Columbia is advancing to the leading rank of other institutions of learning and co-education in its fullest sense is not far distant; which event, will be hailed, I think, with much satisfaction by the undergraduates themselves.

This is the chief port of entry for the emigrants of the world, and the Commissioners of Emigration are entrusted with somewhat arbitrary power. They have the right to return certain sorts of emigrants which possibly might become a charge upon the body politic. All paupers are returned to the country from whence they came and the steamship companies are compelled to carry them.

Recently the Commission learned that the authorities of English poor houses were requiring the inmates to write to their friends in this country for invitations to come out here, and on the strength of this, give the paupers under their charge sufficient money to pay their way to our shores. This state of things our Commission will not tolerate and several families have been sent back.

As far as seems to be possible, the antecedents of emigrants are inquired into, where they are going, how much money they have, and what they purpose to do. The proper answers to these questions opens the gate to this new world, otherwise they go back. It seems sometimes hard lines, but some sort of safeguard is necessary to provent the scum of insular and continental Europe from preying on society.

To the outside world politics are remarkably quiet in this city just now, but to the few there is known to be much active wire pulling. Mr. Blaine was here for a few days, preparatory to taking the steamer for Europe. It was natural for the politicians of the state to have business here at the same time, and as a rule the most of them put up at the same hotel. Of course it was only an accident that brought all these leadest and "the chiefest chief of them all," together. While all this has been happening the Prohibition Party and the anti-saloon Republicans have been having a pow wow, each by itself, in which a good deal of recrimination and general mud-slinging have been indulged in. Then, toe, the Tammany and the Counties are moving along in a Damon and Pythias sort of a style that is charming to the beholder, while the knowing ones slyly remark that this is all on account of his Honor, the Mayor, whose resolute enforcement of certain objectionable statutes rather surprises the "braves" and intimidates the "counties." This reminds me of a conversation I heard the other night. I was walking through one of the baser neighborhoods and was passing a crowd of somewhat miscellaneous make up standing on a corner. One of the young men remarked, "I say, Billy, de major is knockin' the boys out, ain't he?" "Yes," replied Billy, "if de ole man keeps on we'll be goin' to Sunday school bimd by." This is significant of how the Major's action is received and I fancy there are no greater kickers than immediate political associates. He has shown great generalship in allotting the officers and that, I take it, must content them.

John and Mary McCay, blind musicians, will give an entertainment at Church's hall this evening.

Mr. Edward Beckwith and Miss Carrie Johnson were married at the residence of the bride's parents at Oswego Falls yesterday.

John Cain of Granby Centre brought peas into the market last Saturday. They were of fine quality and the first that we have heard of.

A lively time was had in Oswego last week Tuesday deciding whether the G. A. R. reunion should be held in Phœnix or Mexico. Mexico was selected.

Barker's ice cream is of an excellent quality and make. Crowds are seen going into the parlors at the Vienna Bakery every pleasant evening to test it.

It is expected that a number of Fultonians will take advantage of the excursion to Niagara Falls under the auspices of the Baptist church of Phœnix. Fare for the round trip $1.75.

The case of assault and battery brought by Rarry Rowland against Eugene Summerville was tried before Justice Shannon at Oswego Falls last week but the jury failed to agree. The matter will be brought up again this week.

R. E. Phillips, the druggist, occupied the same seat and had a pleasant chat with ex-President R. B. Hayes while on his way to Thousand Island Park last week. Mr. Hayes was on his way to attend the funeral of ex-Vice President Wheeler at Malone.

The annual meeting of the Oswego county Eclectic Medical society was held in Oswego last week Tuesday and the following officers elected for the ensuing year; President, A. C. Taylor, Scriba; vice president, J. M. Lake, Fulton; secretary and treasurer, M. W. Danley, New Haven; board of censors, H. L. Lake, Fulton, J. N. Betts, Pulask, J. U. Manwaren, Mexico.

James Wilcox has placed in his Cayuga street market a large refrigerator of the Jackson patent and expects to have it in use before the end of of this week. It contains two apartments. Its demensions are 14 feet long by 8 wide and 11 high. It will store about twelve carcasses and hold four tons of ice. H. W. Root is the maker. The cost of the refrigerator is about $300. The Cayuga street market is kept up with the times, regardless of expense and its popular proprietor is prepared to supply his patrons with the best that any market affords.

The blind musicians, John and Mary McCay will give Fulton people a rea Musical treat and many hearty laughs at Church's Hall to-night. They will doubtless have a crowded house. The admission has been reduced to twenty-five cents. Children under twelve years ten cents. The following is taken from the Auburn Dispatch: "The blind musicians play the piano with remarkable skill and taste. Miss McCay has a delightfully sweet soprano voice, which wins for her many admirers. Mr. McCay is a wonderful commedian, considering that he has never seen a human being act."

A child of Ira Dunham of Little Falls was brought here for burial Monday. Services conducted by the Rev. Mr. Roe, were held at the home of S. Taylor yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Agnes Edley, wife of George Edley, died this morning after a brief illness, aged 28 years. Funeral on Friday, at 10 a. m., from her late residence on Pratt street.

Carriages in great variety at Bristol's Carriage Emporium. Call and see them. Prices to suit every one. 5tf.

[illegible] two $5 gold prizes and [illegible]. Also two $3 prizes. One $5 and one $3 prize will be contested for by the young ladies of the graduating class. The essays and their delivery on this evening will be taken into consideration and the first and second prizes awarded accordingly.

The first prize for the young gentlemen will be awarded for the best oration and its delivery and the second prize for the next best. Three judges of unquestionable ability from out of town have been selected.

Gaylord's full orchestra of Syracuse has been secured for this occasion. Owing to the additional expense it has been thought advisable to charge an admission fee of 25 cents. Tickets will be on sale at Watson's on and after Monday June 20, where persons purchasing tickets can have the privilege of selecting their seats without extra charge.

Almost Stranded.

Rice's Great Metropolitan Circus and Royal Menagerie reached town yesterday in rather bad shape. The show is the property of Thomas O'Brien and is demoralized financially and otherwise just at present. It is short handed owing to the fact that a large number have deserted or been discharged. The grand street parade which a large number had collected to see was not given. This and other indications of slackness kept many from attending the afternoon performance which did not commence until about three o'clock and which about 100 attended. The proprietor was not in town but at Niagara Falls where five of his horses had been attached. As the treasurer did not put in an appearance in the morning and pay the orders against them, it looked as tho' those that had done work, furnished supplies &c, would be unable to collect their money. A number of attachment papers were made out against the circus company but as a good crowd turned out in the evening all got the money due them. The show inside was fair, the riding, tumbling, trickwork &c., being very good. The menagerie part of the show was lamentably small. All in all the show ought to do well in small towns, but in its present condition outside of such places it is out of its element.

Celebrating an Anniversary.

The First Congregational church of Phœnix yesterday celebrated the semi-centennial anniversary of its foundation. The day was beautiful and a large audience assembled, drawn together by the interesting occasion. The committee of arrangements had made everything complete, and the order of exercises was carried out in a successful manner. During the day and evening addresses were made by Revs. Russell, Creegan, Munsell, Olmstead, Perkins and Robinson. Rev. J. H. Butler, pastor, gave the address of welcome. During the afternoon a number of short speeches by former pastors and local ministers were made and letters from absent ones were read by the clerk W. J. Dougall. A communication was read from Mrs Martha Merry, mother of Mr. Edmond Merry, now over eighty years of age and we believe the only surviving charter member. Interesting remarks were made by Deacon Charles Candee, one of the oldest surviving members.

The music, of a high order, by the church choir enlivened the exercises.

The occasion was one which happens but once in a life time and was of deep and abiding interest. At the close of the afternoon services the ladies had prepared in the church parlors a generous collation of which every one was invited to partake.

Mrs. Cleveland in Oswego.

Mrs. Grover Cleveland, wife of the President passed through here on the "Phœnix" road at 6:25 last Friday evening accompanied by Mr. T. P. and Miss Virgina Kingsford. A number of Fultonians assembled at the depot to get a glimpse of the President's wife, but very few were fortunate enough to see her. Mrs. Cleveland will remain in Oswego about two weeks in all, the guest of her schoolmate, Miss Kingsford.

Phœnix Academy.

The seventh annual commencement of this academy will be held at Windsor Opera House, Phœnix on Friday evening, June 17. The following are the members of the class: Franklin Norris Burleigh, Estella M. Burleigh, Ada Leona Collison, Newton Allen DeWitt, Stella I. Heselton, Elizabeth A. M. Melzger, Carolene L. Williams.

Mr. DeWitt is president of the class and Miss Williams vice president.

The postponed meeting for citizens who are interested in a Fourth of July celebration will be held this evening.

The Oswego County G. A. R. association will hold their annual reunion at Mexico this year on August 24, 25 and 26.

The Baldwinsville soldiers' monument fund amounted to 1,829.69 last week. They are slowly but surely getting there.

Miss Mary La May who has been at the House of the Good Shepherd and returned improved in health was again taken there for treatment last week.

Foreign strawberries are not to be mentioned on the same day with our own Oswego county ones which are seen in abundance at different stores in the village.

A South Granby correspondent announces that W. J. Watson has started a wagon with drugs and medicines to come through their village once in four weeks.

Union services will be held in the Presbyterian church next Sunday evening, at which the Rev. Mr. Palmer will preach a sermon before the graduating class of Fulton Academy.

A gentleman who has recently moved into this town when asked to subscribe for the Independent said: "I shouldn't be a citizen if I didn't." The right kind of talk.—Mexico Independent.

A picked nine of old "stand-bys" in the village attempted to down the Franconias in a game of base ball at the fair grounds Firday afternoon. They came to grief the score being 32 to 14.

The S. C. R. O. & B. Agricultural Society offer a wedding gift of $25 to the couple that will be married on their grounds during the coming fair which will be held at Sandy Creek, Sept. 7, 8 and 9.

The village board met on the park last Thursday evening to decide on what should be done with the band house. Five members were present, two voted to tear it down and three to let it stand.

Mr. George Brooker and Miss Ella Watson were united in marrage at the residence of the bride's parents in Oswego Falls last Wednesday evening. Rev. Chas. Olmstead preformed the ceremony.

Mr. Albert Grant of Wichita, Kas., and Miss Maggie Dobbins of Lower Oswego Falls were married last Wednesday afternoon by the Rev. Father Kearney. They left in the evening for their future home in Kansas.

Orin Miller, we think is the champion fisher in this vicinity. In about three hours fishing on Lake Neatahwanta Monday he caught over 22 pounds of bass. He has been on the lake four times this spring and caught over sixty pounds.

In the supreme court at Rome last week a decree of divorce was granted Josephine Rockwood vs. Henry M. Rockwood. The parties formerly lived at Oswego Falls. The former is now living at Frankford and the latter somewhere in the west.

On Thursday afternoon about thirty, mostly boys, combers in the R. & O. mills struck. We understand that they were receiving 85c. per day and wanted it increased to one dollar. They sent one of their number to ask their overseer for the advance and he was discharged. The rest thereupon quit work. Their places have mostly been filled with help from the other parts of the mill.

The bids for the building of the hydraulic race at the upper river bridge were opened Monday. William P. Patrick of Phœnix was the lowest bidder. The projectors are holding the bids under consideration. To whom the work will be awarded is yet a question. A large amount will be required to complete the work, which if done will be of great benefit to the village.—Cor Herald.

The strange antics of an old gentleman in Oswego caused a great deal of hilarity among the lookers on, who had caught on his happy mood and asked him the cause of it all. His answer was "I have bought more goods to-day of Merriam & Sibbitt for one dollar than I could for two in any other place. Its a fact," said he, "and any one who will go into their large double store, 6 and 7 Arcade Block, will find anything they want and cheaper than any other place."

[illegible] the Children's [illegible] opened with "The Children's Pastel Song," prayer and introductory address by the Superintendent; singing by choir "Crown Him;" responsive reading; Scripture Acrostic, read by Mr. Goodjon; singing by choir "He Came to Bethlehem;" reading by Miss Clara Chase. The second part consisted of responsive reading in which different classes took part and singing by quartet. A song by the infant class, responsive reading, and select reading by Miss Edith Emens followed. Reading by Miss Daisy George, the singing of the Church Rallying Song and the singing by a chorus of 40 children were other interesting features. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Chase gave an interesting address on Christian Education. The choir was assisted by Mr. E. J. Croak.

At the Baptist church the pastor, Rev. Mr. Breaker, delivered a sermon for the children in the morning. In the evening, Superintendent C. W. Streeter conducted the exercises which consisted of responsive readings, anthems and appropriate hymns by the choir assisted by Mr. Pickles. Recitations; "Address to the Flowers," by, Mamie Jones; "The Boys and Girls" by a class; "Dolly's Prayer" by Edith Summerville; "The Penny He Meant to Gie" by Mamie Chandler: Daisies, Rosebuds, Pansies" by a class; "Missionary Pennies" by Mertie Mills; "She hath given more than they all" by Eleanor Goman; Dialogue by three boys. All of which was very Interesting.

At the Presbyterian church the regular children's exercises were conducted in the morning. In the evening the pastor, Rev. Mr. Palmer preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion.

Oil or Gas.

More or less talk and theorizing concerning oil or gas on the Van Buren farm down the river has been done for many years, A new impetus has recently been given to this. Oil experts have examined the land in that locality and express it as their opinion that it can be worked to advantage.

C. P. Tucker has leased his land to Bradford, Pa., parties. Messrs. John H. Case and T. D. Lewis have leased the lands of Edward Van Buren, John Worden, Lewis Sharp, H. C. Leroy and W. Van Buren and are endeavoring to secure more. The terms and conditions of the leases are substantially as follows; The owners of the land are to receive one-eighth of the gross proceeds if work is entered upon. The leases are to hold good for forty-five years provided that a well is sunk within a year and at a distance not greater than one mile from each owner's land; The contracts also state that a well will be sunk on each individual's land within five years. If these conditions are not complied with the contracts are void. All the expenses are to be borne by the parties that leased the land. These are the facts as we learn them and we hope that it will result in something. Should wells be found as prophesied the town will receive a great boom and great will be the benefit thereby.

No. 1 School Entertainment.

The closing exercises of No. 1 school will be held in Stephens opera house on Wednesday evening, June 22, commencing at 7:45. The price of admission is 10 cents. If cream is slightly sour, no harm is done—in fact it assists in the better and more thorough separation of the butter—but the cream should never be allowed to pass the first stages of acidity, unless the butter globules be themselves attacked.

In this country nearly $3 worth of milk, butter and cheese together, are sold and consumed to every dollar's worth of beef. What is more, there is not much danger that the diary products will ever be less than it is now—It is practically inexhaustable.

In a leading and prosperous English diary the plan is to take the calf from the cow after the third day. Under this arrangement the new milk from the stalest cows in the herd is given to the calves. About the tenth week the rule is to commence diluting the milk.

The bright, not dark green herbage of growing grain is better for a good crop than the dark color, showing too much nitrogen in the soil, and indicating the growth of straw that will break down from its weight. Mineral plantfood to make the straw bright is the best for small grain. Indian corn, however, cannot have too much manure. The darker color its leaves show in summer the larger will be its yield of yellow grain at harvest time.

A Wooly Calf.

Central Square in this county, has a curiosity in the shape of a wooly calf the property of William Spencer, a farmer. The calf is about five weeks old. Its body, which is black, is covered with genuine black wool similar to that seen on lambs, while perhaps there are half a dozen spots with long silky white hair. Its legs and feet resemble those of a calf, while its head and tail, which are black, are those of a sheep and it bleats like a lamb. The mother and father of this curiosity are both of a bright red. Mr. Spencer had no sheep on his premises until a few weeks ago. The mother refused to own her offspring, and would have destroyed it had it not been taken away. Mr. Spencer has been offered as high as $160, but refused. He proposes to exhibit it at county fairs.

[illegible] holding the same. In the true sense of the term, qualities in animals are created only by environment. For breeding to make any improvement, there must first be one superior animal, and its superiority can come only of more favorable conditions surrounding it. Hence improvement is made along two lines: By surrounding animals by favorable conditions and by selection in breeding. The first produces in individuals greater merit than is possessed by those not so happily situated; the second combines and holds this merit. The animal of superior merit not only has more good points than the average animal, but it has fewer bad points; and when two superior animals are selected and bred their merits are doubled and their defects are divided as compared with the merits and faults of animals reproduced in their offspring. It is plain that selection in breeding will accomplish nothing, unless the animals are first surrounded by unusually favorable conditions. On the other hand, favorable environment is of little value without selection in breeding, for the good results produced by it may be lost with each animal. There will be no aggregation and retention of merit. Hence the two must go hand in hand.—American Agriculturist.

Be Kind to Your Horse.

Few creatures possess in a greater degree the virtues of gratitude and natural kindness than the horse. He is slow to forgive at injury, but never forgets continued kindness. How often every thoughtful horseman has observed touching evidences of the friendship of his horse. The gently caressing nose, the neigh of welcome and the outstretched neck speak as eloquently at words of a noble thinking nature. Yet this same animal can by ill usage be transformed into a vicious, dangerous brute. We have found as a rule that the man who loves and cares for his horses, and is studiously interested concerning their welfare, is a man full of the deepest affection for his family and sympathy for his fellow beings. A child brought brought up in the country with a fondness for birds, dogs, horses, etc., generally becomes a kind-hearted man. He may not be a church going person, but in his dealings with men is far more honest and charitable than some of his professing Christian acquaintances.—American Farmer.

Quite a Dog.

The Syracuse Herald says: The press despatches mentioned a few days ago the death of a large St. Bernard dog at Boston, giving its weight at 220 pounds. This was supposed to have been the largest dog in the world. There are some however, who doubt the accuracy of the statement, for the largest dog now in existence is said to be the mastiff owned by Mr. A. Jones, who is employed in the Crouse building. Mr. Jones received the dog as a present from his brother, who lives in England. When he was brought across the ocean he weighed 225 pounds but the change of climate has reduced his weight to 203 pounds. He measures six feet, three inches from his nose to the tip of his tail, is perfectly white, and it is asserted that this is the only one of the kind in this country. His age is one year and eleven months. If there is anyone who can beat this record Mr. Jones would be glad to hear from him. The animal is in the Crouse building.

What Settled Him.

Omaha Literary Editor—"Of all heartless rascals I ever had dealings with that Authorson is the worst." Assistant—"Authorson! Why he is one of the finest writers of love poetry in the country. Our lady readers just rave over them." "True, and because his poems on love are so beautiful I engaged him to write exclusively for us and paid him a big bonus in advance." "Yes." "Well, no sooner did he get the money in his pocket than he deliberately ruined his usefulness forever. I wouldn't give five cents a yard for any love poems he can write hereafter." "Great snakes! Did he take to drink?" "No, he went and got married."

Some Ready Writers.

Ben. Perely Poor wrote his life of Grant in two months (2,500 words a day.) Victor Hugo wrote a novel in three weeks on a wager. Dr. Johnson wrote "Rasselas" in the nights of the week in order to pay for his mother's funeral expenses. Longfellow write his poem "The Wreck of the Hesperus" between supper and bed time. "Sheridan's Ride" was dashed off one morning by Buchanan Reed in less time than it took Sheridan to do it. Sir Walter Scott wrote his $42,000 novel, "Woodstock," in three months.

Babies that are fretful, peevish, cross, or troubled with Windy Colic, Teething Pains, or Stomach Disorders, can be relieved at once by using Acker's Baby Soother. It contains no Opium or Morphine, hence is safe. Price 25 cents. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

Senator Frank Hiscock copies Lord Byron's careful carelessness in the matter of neckwear.

At Night always have Acker's Baby Soother at hand. It is the only safe medicine yet made that will remove all Infantile disorders. It contains no Opium or Morphine, but gives the child natural ease from pain. Price 25 cents. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

Senator Edmunds melts like an icicle in a furnace when anyone praises his skill at billiards.

Advice to Mothers.—Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the pain of Cutting Teeth? If so send at once and get a bottle of "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers; there is no mistake about it. It cures Dysentery and Diarrhœa, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, cures Wind Colic, softens the Gums, reduces Inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for children teething is pleasant to the taste and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup." 5ly1

Senator Sewell betrays a negative vanity in his wierd attempts to make thirteen hairs conceal a big bald spot on his head.

Thousands of cases of Consumption are cured every year by Acker's celebrated English Remedy. It is a guaranted preparation; if it does not help you it will cost you nothing. Try it. A single dose will show its good effect. Trial bottles 10 cts. by H. C. Giesler.

The public debt of Mexico is $151,020,000.

The reason why Acker's Blood Elixir is warranted, is because it is the best Blood Preparation known. It will positively cure all Blood Diseases, purifies the whole system, and thoroughly builds up the constitution. Remember, we guarantee it. Sold by H. C. Giesler.

Senator Donald Cameron does not threaten a paper with libel if it mentions the fact that he has the prettiest little foot in Washington.

ENJOY LIFE.

What a truly beautiful world we live in! Nature gives us grandeur of mountains, glens and oceans, and thousands of means of enjoyment. We can desire no better when in perfect health; but how often do the majority of people feel like giving it up disheartened, discouraged and worn out with disease, when there is no occasion for this feeling, as every sufferer can easily obtain satisfactory proof, that Green's August Flower, will make them free from disease, as when born. Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint are the direct cause of seventy-five per cent. of such maladies as Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Nervous Prostration, Dizziness of the Head, Palpitation of the Heart, and other distressing symptoms. Three doses of August Flower will prove its wonderful effect. Sample bottles, 10 cents. Try it. eow [illegible] I used Ayer's Hair Vigor. [illegible] bottles of the Vigor, and my head is now well covered with a new growth of hair. —Julius K. Chapel, Peabody, Mass.

HAIR that has become weak, gray, and faded, may have new life and color restored to it by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. "My hair was thin, faded, and dry, and fell out in large quantities. Ayer's Hair Vigor stopped the falling, and restored my hair to its original color. As a dressing for the hair, this preparation has no equal.—Mary N. Hammond, Stillwater, Minn.

VIGOR, youth, and beauty, in the appearance of the hair, may be preserved for an indefinite period by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. "A disease of the scalp caused my hair to become harsh and dry, and to fall out freely. Nothing I tried seemed to do any good until I commenced using Ayer's Hair Vigor. Three bottles of this preparation restored my hair to a healthy condition, and it is now soft and pliant. My scalp is cured, and it is also free from dandruff.—Mrs. E. R. Foss, Milwaukee, Wis.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

Sold by Druggists and Perfumers.

Perfect safety, prompt action, and wonderful curative properties, easily place Ayer's Pills at the head of the list of popular remedies for Sick and Nervous Headaches, Constipation, and all ailments originating in a disordered Liver.

I have been a great sufferer from Headache, and Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the only medicine that has ever given me relief. One dose of these Pills will quickly move my bowels, and free my head from pain.—William L. Page, Richmond, Va.

Ayer's Pills,

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Dealers in Medicine.

How to Gain Flesh and Strength.

Use after each meal Scott's Emulsion; it is as palatable as milk and easily digested. Delicate people improve rapidly with its use. For Consumption, Throat affections and Bronchitis it is unequalled. Dr. Thomas Prim, Ala., says: "I used Scott's Emulsion on a child eight months old; he gained four pounds in a month."

Senator George Frisbie Hoar has his chubby face photographed every month with a regularity that indicates commendable self-appreciation.

BEWARE OF SWINDLERS.

We have exposed, during the last year, many swindlers who advertise, under the name of medicine, vile compounds which only increase human suffering. To all who need a pure medicine and blood purifier, we can honestly recommend Sulphur Bitters.—Editor Sun.

Office 237 Broadway, New York.

SUPREME COURT—Oswego County. Nellie E. Sears vs. John A. Judkins, Sally Ann Merrill, Frank Eugene Lewis, Ida May Lewis, Charlotte Grace Lewis, Josephine Hethington and Alice Hethington.

In pursuance of an order of the Supreme Court, made in the above entitled action, dated May 7th, 1887, the undersigned referee in partition, will sell in separate lots, at public auction to the highest bidder, at the law office of C. H. David, in the Village of Fulton, in the county of Oswego, on the 23d day of June, 1887, at 11 o'clock a. m., all those pieces or parcels of land, situate in the county of Oswego, and described as follows:

Parcel No. 1.—All that tract or parcel of land situate in the Village of Fulton, N. Y., being part of Lot 9, of Block 30, of said village, is bounded as follows, viz.: on the east by First Street; on the south by lands of N. R. Cole; on the west by the Oswego canal; and on the north by lands of J. E. Miller. Subject however to the right of N. R. Cole, his heirs and assigns to build in the south wall of the brick building on said premises, as conveyed to said Cole by Beekman G. Fuller and wife, by deed dated March 2d, 1876, and recorded in Oswego County Clerk's Office, March 12, 1876, in Book 156 of Deeds at page 439. Also subject to the right of James E. Miller, his heirs or assigns to build into or upon the north wall of said brick building on said premises, as conveyed to said Miller by W. S. Hethington and wife by deed dated May 16, 1885, and recorded in Oswego County Clerk's Office, May 16, 1885, in Book 166 of Deeds, at page 530.

Also, all that tract or parcel of land, situate in the Village of Oswego Falls, N. Y., and being a part of Lot 74, of the original Township of Hannibal is bounded and described as follows, viz.: Four rods off from the north end of Lot 4 and 4 rods off from the north end of the east half of Lot 3, on Block 2, according to a map made by G. D. Ball, for the heirs of John I. Walradt, deceased. Said parcel being 4 rods front on Second street and 6 rods deep, together with all the estate, right, title and interest of the parties to this suit therein, whether present or future, vested or contingent, of dower, courtesy or otherwise.

Ten per cent of the purchase money of said premises will be required to be paid to the said referee, at the time and place of sale. The residue of said purchase money will be required to be paid said referee at his office, in Fulton, N. Y., when the said referee's deeds of said premises shall be ready for delivery.

Dated May 11, 1887.

A GHOST STORY.

One morning Arthur Heywood received a strange letter. It was from his maiden aunt, Miss Maud Heywood.

"Come at once," it said. "I am going to die, and I want to leave you my property. It seems right to see you first."

Arthur had never met his Aunt Maud, who lived by herself in a handsome country residence. She had inherited it from her mother, while the boys—her brothers—were obliged to make their own fortunes. Arthur's father had been the eldest, and all that he had ever said of his sister Maud was that something she had done in early life had made them all angry, and that they never saw each other, and, for his part, he never desired to do so.

And now, when Arthur Heywood was quite alone in the world, this aunt had written to him. He expected to find a witch-like old woman lying in her bed. Instead, when a strange, old, black servant-woman had opened the door, he was ushered into a room where a beautiful woman, who, in the light of the shaded lamps, scarcely looked old at all, sat in a velvet chair, and held out her hand to him.

"You are a Heywood," she said. "You resemble your father, but are not so stern. Selim was stern to cruelty. And your mother is gone, too. Well, she must have had a hard life of it, unless he was kinder to her than to his sister.

"There, don't speak. I shall say nothing but what I feel. This estate ought to go to a Heywood. You shall have it. I think you will have to wait a few months. My heart is affected. I shall die very suddenly. At present I am not very ill, but it will be as I say.

"Don't express regret. You care nothing for me, and the estate is valuable, and, above all, I hate hypocrisy. I have made my will in your favor. Stay until the last."

With these words she closed Arthur's mouth. Then she rang the bell and ordered supper, and afterward dismissed her thirty-year-old nephew to his room, at nine o'clock, as though he had been a school-boy.

It was a large room at the end of a long passage, very handsomely furnished, but at the same time very gloomy.

Arthur felt curiously uncomfortable as he paced the long floor, and despite the early hour resolved to go to bed at once. A night lamp stood upon the mantle-piece; he lit it before he retired. The excuse he made to himself was that his aunt might be taken ill in the night; but he was conscious of a renewal of his old childish terror of the supernatural.

"It is all this talk of dying and of wills and legacies," he said. "I shall sleep it off."

And, in fact, he fell asleep very shortly. And without being disturbed by so much as a dream until midnight, at which hour, the proper one, as we all know, for the ghost-seer, he was awakened with a start, to see at the foot of his bed a little dark woman with fierce, bright eyes, who wore a curious sort of white cap on her head, and a dress of some gray stuff, over which was tied a white apron. She seemed to be a nurse or a servant of some sort, and it was Arthur's impression that his aunt was ill.

"Have you come to call me?" he asked.

The woman came a little nearer.

"Yes," replied a voice that made his blood run cold; "that woman is dying."

"My aunt?" ejaculated Arthur.

"Your aunt," replied the figure. "If some one doesn't set to work at once she'll die without being hung. I want her hung."

"This is a lunatic," thought Arthur.

He started to his feet, draping himself in a blanket, ready to do what seemed best under the circumstances, but the woman was gone.

He went to the door. It was fastened as he had left it on retiring. The windows were bolted down. There was no possibility of any one entering the room. Searching it thoroughly he made sure that no one was hidden there, resolved that he had a bad dream, and composed himself to sleep again, wondering why imagination should play such freaks upon him.

However, this dream, if dream it were, was repeated three times. Each time the strange, dark woman repeated her desire to see Maud Heywood hung, and declared that if it were not done it would soon be too late.

His aunt was not a woman to whom to repeat such a dream, even had she been in strong health. There was no one else to speak to.

But the thing seemed so curious that Arthur made a record of it in a sort of diary he was in the habit of keeping, following it by some reflections upon dreams.

At last, however, he was awakened not by a ghost, but by a rap on his door. His aunt was dying—a servant had come for him. When he reached her room she was insensible. She never spoke to him again. He could not mourn her loss, for she was almost a stranger to him, but he showed every mark of respect possible to her memory. The funeral was largely attended rather from curiosity than any other feeling, for Miss Heywood had entertained no one, and visited no one in the neighborhood; and in due course of time the will was read. It left everything to Arthur Heywood, only son of her deceased brother, Selim Heywood, and with but one proviso: The garret should remain as it was, fastened by bolt and lock and bar—never to be opened on any pretext whatever. "I do not choose to say why," wrote the testator. "Unless my nephew will agree to this, he cannot inherit. I shall leave a codicil to be read in case that the [illegible] force, directing the disposition [illegible]

Years brought them a family and still the garret remained closed. A garret is a great loss to a housekeeper; but whenever Mrs. Heywood made this remark, her husband would reply that "the estate would be a greater one."

"Who will ever know?" she would urge. "Who cares?"

"A codicil, which I have never seen remains," Arthur would reply. "Who knows what might happen?"

And so his Fatima did no more than peep through the keyhole. fo this Bluebeard's chamber.

The mystery was greater, however, to the children; and when the eldest boy was ten years old it had occurred to him that nothing could be so delightful as to peep into that garret, in which might be hidden all sorts of wonderful treasures. And so one day, by means of a ladder some fruit-pickers had left near the house, he gained the sloping roof, and reached the dormer window. Perched on the sill he peeped in; but at the moment the ladder slipped. He remained on the window ledge screaming for help, and the fruit-pickers, hearing him, ran to his assistance. However though the child had crept up the sloping roof, the men could not reach him. Not knowing of the taboo which forbade the opening of the garret door, one of them bade the child to remain where he was until he come, and rushed up the staircase, followed by all the household. The door was soon broken in, the window opened, the child rescued. And then the woman, who until now had forgotten all but her boy's danger, took a breath and looked about her.

The garret was a bare place, hung with old garments and smelling hideously. In one dark corner lay what looked like a bed. Upon it, what? To approach to gaze, and to rush wildly from the room was the work of a moment.

It was a skeleton dressed in a gray gown, and with a cap upon its head, still covered with long black hair, that lay there.

Arthur Heywood was absent from home at the time. When he returned he found the long sealed garret door opened, heard his wife's story amidst her sobs or terror, and proceeded to the spot. There he stood, transfixed with horror and astonishment. The skeleton upon the bed wore the gray dress, the white cap, and had the straight black hair of the woman who had appeared to him thrice in a vision, demanding the the execution of his aunt, Maud Heywood.

Whatever this meant, the discovery had been a public one, and so must the explanation be. Arthur sent for the proper authorities, and also for the lawyers in whose possession was a codicil of the will which had given Arthur possession of the estate. This codicil had been enveloped and sealed by Miss Maud, who alone knew the contents. It contained these words:

"This paper will only be opened if the garret is opened also. In that case my secret will be known to those who are of my own age, for there was much excitement when Jane Jarvelle disappeared. She was well-known in the neighborhood, and but for letters which I wrote myself and exhibited to curious folk, the truth might have been suspected at the time.

"Jane came to live with me as housekeeper when I was but twenty, thirty years ago. I was betrothed to a man I adored. My brother Ru[illegible] hated him. He placed Jane Jarvelle in my house as a spy. She intercepted my letters and worked in such a way that my engagement was broken off and my life embittered. My lover left me with scorn—believing a false tale, and married another. One day I discovered Jane Jarvelle's treachery. I went in search of her. I found her in the garret. There we had a scene, and there I murdered her. I stabbed her to the heart. She lived only long enough to shriek:

"'I will haunt this house until you are hung for this!'

"She has done it. I have seen her. But I shall not be hung. The secret is all my own. I locked the garret, dismissed my servants in a body, and gathered new ones about me. I told the people that Jane had been dismissed for her dishonesty. I did not lie.

"My brother Rupert, cross-questioned me, and made great search for Jane Jarvelle; the others were never good to me, ours is an unkindly race; but Selim, though stern, was a just man. To his only son I have left all. Let him pity me.

"Driven by desperation to an awful crime, haunted by the ghost of my victim, never at rest, never at peace, pursued forever by dread of a horrible death on the gallows, and assured of future punishment, what has my life been? Again I say—pity me, and pray for me."

Presidents' Savings.

In relation to presidents' savings, the Jacksonville, Fla., News gives figures that pretend to show what Mr. Cleveland's predecessors have done:

There seems to be some conflict in opinions among writers for the press just now about the amount of money Mr. Cleveland is going to accumulate in his presidential term. One writer the other day declared that the President was finding the expences of his position more than the salary. Another says, on the other hand, that he will go out with about $100,000 saved out of his salary. The fact is that neither of them know anything about the matter. He is undoubtedly able to live within his income and with what money he had when he came here and the growth in value in what he has purchased, it is not improbable that he may go out of the White House with about $100,000.

If he does it will put him just about on a par in the matter of wealth with the average retiring president. Some of them had more than that and a good many had less. As a rule the average president is not much of a financier, and if he accumulates wealth it is because it gravitates toward him by the attraction of the high position.

President Arthur was a very high feeder and spent a great deal of money on his table, but he managed to save something. Garfield was not in office long enough to save much money. He left about $40,000 and the gifts Mrs. Garfield has received made her a wealthy woman.

Mrs. Hayes ran the financial end of the house during Hayes's administration, and that she is a financier is proved by the amount saved out of his salary.

Grant never saved much of his salary, but the generous gifts of his friends made him independent. He lost his all in the Grant-Ward failure. The sale of his book has placed his wife in an affluent position.

When Andrew Johnson left the White House he had about $150,000, a good deal of which was lost by the failure of the Freedmen's bank.

Buchanan left over $250,000 to his nephews and nieces.

Pierce did not do so well. Fifty thousand dollars was his limit, with no one to inherit it.

Fillmore left the White House a poor man but by a second marriage became wealthy.

John Tyler went to the White House a poor man, but managed to save enough out of his salary to live in comfort.

James K. Polk left about $150,000. As he had no children, Mrs. Polk received it all.

Martin VanBuren did not save much out of his salary, but left 300,000.

Andrew Jackson was counted a rich man in his day. The Hermitage which he left to his adopted son is now the property of the state.

James Monroe died in New York insolvent.

Of the earlier presidents Washington was the wealthiest. At his death his estate was valued at $300,000.

Adams was poor, but by his wise, able management he never suffered want.

When Jefferson entered the White House he was a wealthy man, but he lost his property and died insolvent.

Madison was wealthy when he became President and left a handsome estate, which Mrs. Madison's son, Payne Todd squandered and left her a poor woman.

Butler in New Orleans.

Gen. George A. Sheridan relates a story which he picked up in New Orleans. A delegation of the citizens of that place visited President Lincoln to beg him to remove Gen. Butler from command there. The President listened while they presented their thousand and one grievances, and then said: "Well, gentleman, much as you dislike Gen. Butler, at least he has done one good thing for you, for by his wise sanitary regulations he has kept the yellow fever out" One of the delegates, a creole, skippied before the President and replied excitedly: "Pardon, Mistah Prisident, pardon; it was not Butler vat keep ze fevaire avay from ze city; it was God. He still have a little mercy for our poor people. He did not send Ben. Butler and ze yellow fevaire ze same season; no saire." The President laughed heatrily, but all the same Gen. Butler was kept in command.—N. Y. Tribune.

Medical Hints.

In a recent lecture on the art of nursing, Dr. Gause of Philadelphia gave the following suggestive hints under the head of "Don't":

Don't whisper in a sick room where the patient can hear and know that you are whispering. A sick person is exceedingly keen and watchful.

Don't walk on tiptoe in the sick chamber—it is just like whispering.

Don't stamp across the room; don't be inattentive to questions, no matter how trifling they may seem to be.

Don't make a dust or needless noise. Never look anxious and lachrymose if if you want to keep a patient's nervous condition right.

Don't get cross and grumpish: Don't dispute with the patient.

Don't wear silk dresses or other noisy materials.

Never hurry in a sick room, but be quick, alert and systematic. Anybody in a hurry will be sure to forget something.

Don't be loquacious; be concise and clear and make no mistake. Be careful in the use of words so as not to leave anything between the lines for the sick person to study out.

Don't make light of complaints of sick persons; listen to them with questions; do not gaze at him, and never allow anything to occur in the sick chamber that you don't see. There is a way of seeing things without attracting attention.

Don't cover the patent with silk or Marseilles quilts; they are only for ornament on beds not in use.

Don't keep food or drinking water in the sick room.

Don't fail to have a thermometer and clock in the room.

Don't put a patient's back to the window when the doctor calls to see him, but let the light strike the patient's face while the physician is present.

ST. NICHOLAS.

July St. Nicholas is full of good things. The favorite story, "Juan and Juanita" is continued, which is especially interesting to children. "Winning a Commission" is also continued. "The Kind Snail," "Japanese Dolls," and "A Big Monopoly," are illustrated poems, all very witty and full of charm. "The Amateur Camera" is just what the young artist needs to pursue his investigations, and a good knowledge of the art can be here learned, if the instructions are followed. "The Brownies' Fourth of July" is one of the best things in this number. The author has touched a tender spot in every boy's heart. St. Nicholas has helped to make it certain that the Fourth will continue to be celebrated. Jack-in-the-Pulpit catches the spirit, and fires off some "fable-rockets" each with a moral. Frank R. Stockton gives the tenth paper, "In English Country." Nothing finer could be written of country life, of the green fields, the hillsides, the hedgerows, the winding roads, the English meadow, the thatched cottage, the village inn, all have a charm for the reader, and if one cannot see for himself, satisfies with perfect description.

Wise Words for Boys.

Many people seem to forget that character grows—that it is not sometimes to put on ready made with womanhood or manhood, but day by day, here a little and there a little, grows with the growth and strengthens with the strength, until good or bad, it becomes almost a coat of mail. Look at a man of business—prompt, reliable, conscientious, yet clear-headed and energetic. When do you suppose he developed all those admirable qualities? When he was a boy. Let us see how a boy of ten years gets up in the morning, works, plays and studies, and we will tell you just what kind of a man he will make. The boy that is late at breakfast and late at school, stands a poor chance to be a prompt man. The boy who negelcts his duties, be they ever so small, and then excuses himself by saying:—"I forget, I don't think," will never be a reliable man; and the boy who finds pleasure in the suffering of weaker things, will never be a noble, generous, kind man—a gentleman.—Busy Bee.

When a peach tree has more fruit than it can ripen, it quietly drops the weakest, as a man should drop his bad habits in order to ripen the good.

The greatest benefit you can confer on your child is to help it to think, and then let it develop individuality.

Flowers are nature's kind words.

To strike or punish a child when you are angry is a far greater offence against God than blasphemy.

When we remember only the good that we hear of persons during the day, we are carrying pearls to God.

Carry happiness to your home no matter who or what is there.

By the time that we are shorn of our bad, foolish, or loaferish habits there is but little left of some of us.

A WORD WITH YOU.

BANGOR, MAINE, SPRING, 1887.

Preparatory to what follows, we will say that realizing the great work of healing upon which we have entered, that nothing may be set down to quackery or ignorance, we have prepared a short history of the professional life of W. H. BROWN, M. D., from whose formula we have for years prepared the most successful medicine for purifying and enriching the blood, inciting the torpid liver, and strengthening weak kidneys, —in short, for the speedy, safe and permanent cure of all diseases of the stomach, liver, and kidneys, that has ever been known in New England. This history, together with statements from many prominent people whom you will know, of relief secured and cures effected from sufferings and torture by these diseases, will be mailed to you if you send us your address. Better that in this letter we tell you where relief can be found. We have come late to the work with BROWN'S SARSAPARILLA. Naturally we have taken hold of the cases which other remedies, altho' advertised with persistency and at marvelous expense, have failed to cure. The results have been wonderful. Nowhere have we failed to give relief, and in no case where persistent and faithful use according to directions has been made of Brown's Sarsaparilla, has it failed to CURE any or all diseases of the blood, stomach, liver, and kidneys Mrs. Ephraim Cunningham of East Bangor, Maine, heard of it, read of it, tried it, and was cured of her weakness in kidneys and troubled liver. Carlton P. Williams of Amesbury, Mass., says he is entirely cured of what physicians diagnosticated as Bright's disease, and pronounced incurable. Eben Morrison of Cleveland, Ohio, advised by a friend to use Brown's Sarsaparilly for his kidney troubles, did so and was cured. Benj. Hill of New York Corner, at 63 years of age, gained strength and vitality for his blood, and health to continue his daily duties. Tumors dispursed for Reuben Severance and Aaron French by Brown's Sarsaparilla. Scrofula cured in Hartley B. Fisher, Corinna, Me. But why continue? Get our book on good health and read for yourself the astounding results secured by the use of Brown's Sarsaparilla, and remember these cases are those where eminent physicians have failed to find a remedy, and other medicines, advertise well and popularly introduced, have not benefitted, but Brown's Sarsaparilla, having been taken as a last resort, has proved efficacious and no other treatment was needed. Now with these facts in evidence, substantiated by reputable citizens accompanied by affidavits of prominent people, why not make this remedy the first, as it will then prove to you the only resort when you, your family or your neighbors are suffering from any of the almost numberless disorders which arise from a deranged stomach, and inactive liver, or weakened kidneys? Now a word in regard to the preparation and combination of this wonderful remedy. Our Mr. Warren for many years enjoyed the confidence of the late W. H. Brown, M. D., and in the prosecution of his business of pharmacist hundreds of times has he been called upon to put up the prescription, which is now compounded for popular sale, and for a few years has been known to the public as Brown's Sarsaparilla. It is entirely vegetable in its combination; the most powerful alterative-tonic properties known to the materia medica being skillfully prepared on a scientific basis, and the result of a perfect medicine for the relief and cure of dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, biliousness, loss of appetite, inflammation of kidneys and bladder, Bright's disease, dropsy, gravel, jaundice, heartburn, rheumatism, neuralgia, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, diabetes; for the removal of impurities of the blood; to incite to proper activity the sluggish torpid liver; and to strengthen and relieve disorders of the stomach. It also acts like a charm as a remedy for all female complaints. Brown's Sarsaparilla has such curative powers and is of such immeasurable value to sufferers that we have decided to commence the publication of a series of extensive articles, detailing its properties uses and cures; and hereafter you can receive such information from the columns of this paper. You can obtain the medicine of any dealer. Yours truly,

JAS. R. FAIRGRIEVE - EDITOR

NEXT Friday evening the ten young graduates of Fulton Academy will take part in the exercises at Stephens opera house, which terminates their career as students of that school. It is a stage or epoch in their lives that has long been looked forward to with high hopes, yet as the time draws nigh a feeling of sadness creeps in, when they realize that no longer they will occupy their desks, see the familiar faces or objects in the old school room, or answer the bell that has for so long a time called them to their work.

Relatives and friends will look with pride upon them as they appear on this evening in the final act of their school work in this village and realize that by application to their studies these students have reached the long looked for goal and acquired a certain amount of knowledge which is infinitely better than riches.

The school work of a part of these graduates is probably at an end. They will enter upon their life career a hundred times better prepared than thousands who have gained influence, wealth, renown and other things that make up what we term worldly success.

We hope, however, that many of these graduates will be able to take a still higher course and later in life be able to enjoy the advantages that a collegiate course affords.

The American colleges of to-day offer inducements that have enabled poor but worthy students to acquire knowledge which has placed them in the head ranks of our professional men. Let no obstacle stand in your way to obtaining an advanced education, young graduates, if it can be overcome. Remember that "where there's a will there's a way."

The citizens of Fulton can justly feel proud of their school and the success it has attained in the past and is destined still further to attain in the future, with its excellent corps of teachers and with Prof. Clapp at the helm.

THE TIMES extends its congratulations to the people of Fulton, its commendation to the principal and teachers, its best wishes to the graduating class and only regrets that the whole corporation is not consolidated into one Union school.

A SETTLEMENT between the village and the Water Works Co. seems as far away as ever. It is well that this matter should be kept before the minds of the people. Considering this the Patriot has had their three mighty questions stereotyped and are running their telegrams from Cortland and Newark "tf." The discussion of the matter brought to light two villages in the State, Cortland and Newark where the contract price per hydrant is less than that asked here, but at a higher price to individual taxpayers in each instance than it would be to the taxpayers of Fulton were they to pay $50 per hydrant as they have a much larger proportion of hydrants to number of inhabitants than Fulton. At one of these places, Newark, not a single move towards construction has been made although a contract has been drawn for over two months. THE TIMES of Feb'y. 9th contains a list of thirty villages and cities in this state where a system of water works similar to that in this village is used, not a single one of which pays less than $50 per hydrant and half pay over that price. If there is any other place in the state besides Cortland where the price now paid is less than $50 per hydrant, the Patriot ought to name it that we may get all the information possible on this subject.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL'S., Sept, 18, 1882.

Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.: Have taken Hall's Catarrh Cure; am 48 years old. Had asthma 19 years, and a dreadful cough; for five years. Have taken everything, went to the Hot Springs; have doctored with the doctors here; I have done nothing but take medicine for 19 years. When I commenced taking Hall's Catarrh Cure I was almost dead. I sent for the doctor the day I got Hall's Catarrh Cure, and I told him that I would die anyway and that I would try your medicine. I was very bad. How I suffered for 9 years! I could hardly breathe at times. I saw Hall's Catarrh Cure advertised in the papers and commenced taking it, I would have been under the ground to-day if it had not been for that. I have not had one bad spell of coughing since. In breathing my head feels well and I am well. It has done me a thousand dollars worth of good. There are [illegible] of my friends, on seeing what it had done for me, taking it, and it is helping them. I only wish that everyone who has catarrh, asthma and a bad cough [illegible] see me, so that I could tell them [illegible] take it. All that know me here [illegible] how I have suffered. (I have been [illegible] since 1868,) and say to me that "I [illegible] glad you found something that [illegible] you." Everyone said, "how [illegible]

[illegible] was transported [illegible] some four tons [illegible] from Syracuse to Williamstown and in passing the south branch bridge in this town, the bridge broke and precipitated the boiler, wagons and two span of horses into the stream. The bridge was about 9 feet above the water and the water is three feet deep. One person was nearly drowned before he was extricated. The harness was cut very much to release the horses. Fortunately the wagons and boiler were not injured. The wagons and boiler were taken from the stream last Friday and Saturday. On account of the poor bridges, we learn that the boiler will be sent the remainder of the distance by rail. A new iron bridge will be erected in the place of the old wooden bridge which has been a good one of the kind.

[Special to THE TIMES].

The unveiling of a statue of Nathan Hale, in New Haven, has renewed the interest of our patriotic few to do similar honor to the memory of this man whose life was sacrificed in this city. It is unnecessary to repeat the story that is well known to every school boy. He was imprisoned in what is now the Register's office, formerly known as the Hall of Records, a massive stone building of the Doric style of architecture, on the Park Row side of City Hall Park. It was the city jail for many years till the Tombs in Centre street was built. From this building, Hale was taken and the exact spot of his execution is not definitely known. By some it was thought to be on the Rutgers' farm. This was a large tract of land over in the Corlear's Hook region. East Broadway is now the main thoroughfare of that tract. By others it is supposed to have been on the Beekman farm. This was situated on the east side near 57th street. Cyrus Field when he erected at Dean Stanley's suggestion the monument at Tappan, marking Andre's place of execution, offered to do the same for Hale; but the exact spot not being known, the project fell through. Now, however, the Sons of the Revolution, a society composed of the descendants of some of the Revolutionary veterans have planned to erect a statue in City Hall Park on the site of the liberty pole erected in 1775, by the Sons of Liberty. There is no portraiture of Hale extant, so that the figure will be an ideal one. It is proposed to represent a patriotic soldier with his hands tied behind him, expressive of Hale's attitude when making that memorable sentence, "I only regret that I have but one life to devote to my country."

It is pleasant to be able to record that there still exists in this hurly burly, rushing business burdened city a tendency to remember the brave deeds of the glorious and historic past.

The ocean steamers are taking their quotas of pleasure seekers to Europe. Among them I notice the gifted Sara. She came here last winter and has given upwards of three hundred performances the receipts of which have been in round numbers one million dollars. Her proportion of this large sum is about one-half. She can safely be said to have $400,000, as the net proceeds of her tour. The home talent is not so fortunate. Just now the theatres are in most cases running an even race between their cash and expenses—only a few are making anything. This is the season when stage struck boys and girls make their first attempts before a Metropolitan audience. However, there are a few attractions that are really good. The realistic performance of Pinafore at the Madison Square Garden on the deck of a real ship, in real waters, with several popularizing additions, that if Messrs. Gilbert & Sullivan should hear them would make them roll up their eyes in holy horror, is drawing large crowds. Its something light, funny, striking that is the order of the day. There, too, the introduction of machinery that permits the cooling of the atmosphere in a theatre to an agreeable temperature is one of the requisite features without which summer seasons are sure of failure.

The Kiralfys, I see, are preparing one of their astonishing spectacular creations for the season at Staten Island. Staten Island is almost a part of this city since the excellent railroad accommodations have been provided by that most excellent man, Erastus Wiman. At St Georges is a monster pleasure resort, and here the Kiralfys are preparing the "Fall of Babylon" on an extravagant scale. A stage 400 by 900 is provided, while more than a thousand performers will take part. The many features of the Biblical story are adhered to with sufficient additions to render the thing attractive. Those who have seen the "Black Crook" or "Excelsior" can readily imagine what this new scheme will be.

These suburban pleasure resorts are springing up rapidly. Each year sees some new place pushed into notice. Nor is their popularity short lived. Many of them have offered special inducements for the erection of villas. This is especially true of Staten Island. The annexed district has been figuring in this way and very many families own summer cottages just over the Harlem river.

The question of rapid transit is fast becoming an important one. The laying of new lines is the duty of a commission now at work. It is largely probable that another line will be built from one end of the island to the other, besides several in this territory north of the Harlem.

Among the court episodes of the week outside of the Sharp trial is the escape of Evans, a murderer under sentence. The victim in his ante-mortem statement to the coroner failed to recognize his impending death. This rendered the statement ineffectual. The man Evans is now practically free.

The Sharp trial is now well under way but the outcome is difficult to determine.

The English residents have begun their jubilee celebration. Yesterday old Trinity resounded with the grand music of the united choirs of her many chapels. The Englishmen present need have no fears that they did not properly celebrate, if one may judge from the sentiments of adulation which the Rev. Dr. Morgan gave utterance too.

SNOW & LOOMIS,

[illegible]

The [illegible] but little [illegible] vidual [illegible] has the [illegible] largest back pension, ever paid by the Government, to Francis Patterson, a blind beggar of Elmira, N. Y., is interesting enough to form the plot of a novel. When he was a soldier in the Union army during the war, one day while on picket duty, Patterson became suddenly blind. He wandered around helplessly for some days, and being missed from the camp he was classed as a deserter. On his return to Elmira his wife and children abandoned him on account of his disposition to drunkeness. For eighteen years he went begging about the town led by a trained shepard dog, his only friend. Now the possession of $13,322, the amount of his back pension, and the surety of $72 a month during his lifetime, has caused his family and former friends to rally around him to that degree that he is in danger of being reduced to his former partnership with the dog, through their avarice and greed. He applied for a pension some years ago, but the difficulty of explaining away the charge of desertion caused the delay.

The American Telephone Co. are unpleasantly conspicuous at present by the publicity given the former life of its Vice-President, T. W. Tyrer. Mr. Tyrer has lived for several years in Washington, and has been largely interested in the North Washington Improvement Co. Some enemies of his and the Company have published these statements in order to break down Tyrer and the Company. The latter seem able to stand the assault, as an investigation by a committee of stock holders, develops no fraudulent transaction but Tyrer will probably go to the wall. As the the charges are true, Mr. Tyrer does not deny having served a term for forgery. Man's vengence on man is relentless and once a discovered criminal, always a criminal, and though we are told of the joy in Heaven over the one sinner that repenteth, there is very little belief on earth in his repentance, and he is told that God will forgive him, but man cannot. The chances for the prevention of crime are constantly retarded by its being almost an impossibility for a man that has once been convicted of crime to return to the association of honest people. So long as Christianity withheld its confidence from those who have erred, so long will our prisons be more than half filled by those who are serving their second and third terms.

The proposal to utilize the Revenue Marine by appointing graduates of the U. S. Naval academy to the vacancies in that service is again under discussion. As it now stands the graduates of the Academy are given $1,000 and relegated to private life, with the exception of a few who stand at the head of the class. They are appointed to such places as may be vacant in the Navy at the time of their graduation. The idea is, that the Revenue Marine service offers a field of usefulness for the other graduates. It might be said that a young man with a good education and $1,000 in cash was well equipped to begin the battles of life without the Government, which has already educated him, being obliged to find him a salaried position. But it is not entirely a question of the young man's interest. In the case of a sudden need of a Navy, trained and skilled officers would be needed to command it, and it is exceedingly doubtful if many of these young men, after having pursued for a number of years private business would be found efficient officers, and it is still more doubtful if any would be able or willing to sacrifice personal interests to the call of their Government. The Secretaries of the Treasury and Navy to whose jurisdiction the matter belongs, are mute on the subject, but officers of experience and judgment like Commodore Schley and Commodore Walker, express themselves cordially in favor of the scheme.

The President held a reception in the East room on Monday afternoon. The first since his return from the Adirondacks. There were not many persons present, but those who were commented upon Mr. Cleveland's improved appearance since his vacation. Mrs. Cleveland being still away. She is now paying a visit to a friend and schoolmate, Miss Kingsford, of Oswego, N. Y. The President takes his customary afternoon drive to Oak View, and his dinner on his return to the White House, at seven alone, with the memory of his bachelor days for company. How pleasant the present must appear in contrast to the past.

Five men appointed under Civil Service rules have declined the positions offered them. Their reason is the smallness of the salary, $1,000 per annum, It being inadequate to the requirements of the examination, Stenography, expert penmanship and the higher branches of Mathemetics were some of the requirements. Those who pass do not have a very high reward for their efforts, while those who fail, have the comfort of knowing that they are still eligible for the Presidency.

[illegible] The noticeable feature was the decrease in transactions, which were about 1,800 less than last week. This comes partly from the small number of small cheese sold, and partly from the fact that many factories were sold down very close, and could afford to hold back a day or two of the make. Small cheese, which have been selling relatively high all the season, came down to earth, and brought no more than the best large cheese. Some factories did not ship anything, the salesmen concluded to hold over till next week. White cheese received a black eye, and sold fully ¼c below colored. Following is a list of transactions:

7	900	7¾
4	500	7⅞
64	6,936	8
13	1,312	8¼
15	1,687	8⅜
4	200	8⅝
107	11,607
	3,327	Com.
Total	14,934

Ruling 8c. Transactions of corresponding day in 1886 were 13,850 boxes, ruling 6¾ c. In 1885 they were 11,522 boxes, ruling 6½c and in 1884 they were 16,457 boxes, ruling 9c.

A meeting of the board was held to take a vote on changing the market day from July 4 to July 2. The vote stood two to one against it, and the market will be held July 4, as usual.

AT LITTLE FALLS.

LITTLE FALLS, June 20.

Cheese—The market opened to-day in rather indefinite and unsatisfactory shape, with no prices to be heard of till past the usual time of sales. It was very apparent that the trade was somewhat demoralized, and none outside of a few could guess what the outcome would be. Most of the buyers finally placed 8c. as an outside limit and held to this to the last. There was considerable strife on a few of the pet factories and prices were forced up on these. Sales are full as large as expected, salesmen being disposed to sell freely in spite of the decline.

Following are the sales:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price
2	159	7¾cents
9	460	7⅞cents
42	2,636	7⅞cents
52	4,128	8 cents
5	792	8¼cents
8	838	8½cents
9	744	Com.
127	9,753
Farm dairy	970
	10,723

FARM DAIRIES—There were sales of 970 boxes farm cheese at 7 to 8¾c. the bulk at 8¼c.

BUTTER—Twenty-eight packages of creamery sold at 18c. and 25 packages farm dairy at 17 @ 20c.

FORECLOSURE SALE.
SUPREME COURT—OSWEGO COUNTY.

The Fulton Savings Bank vs. William Howland and others. By virtue of a judgment and decree of foreclosure and sale made in the above entitled action at a special term of the Supreme Court held at the Court House in the Village of Pulaski, N. Y., on the 17th day of June, 1887, and duly filed and entered in the clerk's office of Oswego county, on the 20th day of June, 1887. I the undersigned, Sheriff of Oswego county, to whom it was referred in and by said judgment and decree to make such sale, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the law office of Piper & VanWagenen, in the Village of Fulton, Oswego County, New York, on the 6th day of August, 1887, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day the mortgaged premises in and by said judgment and decree directed to be sold and described therein as follows, to wit: All that tract or parcel of land situate in the Town of Hannibal, County of Oswego and State of New York, known and distinguished as being a part of Lots No. 99, and One Hundred and bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a stake and stones standing fifteen chains and thirty-seven links east from the south east corner of lands owned by Alexander Scott on said lot 99 running south twenty-eight degrees east five chains and twenty-five links to the center of the road; thence south fifty-one degrees west in the center of said road fourteen chains and twenty-five links to the south-east corner of lands owned by Augustus S. Gardner, on said Lot 100; thence north twenty-one degrees west fifteen chains and seventy-six links to a stake and stones on the north line of said Lot 100 and in the south-east corner of said Scott's land; thence north thirty-one chains to a stake; thence east eight chains and twenty-two links to a stake; thence south sixteen chains and seventy-six links to a stake and stones; thence south twenty-eight degrees east fifteen chains and ninety-four links to the place of beginning, containing Forty-five acres of land. Also all that other piece or parcel of land situate in said town, county and state, and being part of the same lots in said town and bounded as follows: Beginning in the center of the road and in the south-east corner of lands above described; thence north eight degrees west twenty-one chains and twenty links to a stake; thence north six chains and sixty-eight links to a stake; thence east two chains and thirty links to a stake; thence south twenty-two and one-half degrees east to the center of the road; thence south fifty-one degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to the place of beginning, containing six and three-fourths acres of land. Also another parcel of land situate in the said above named town, county and state and being a part of said Lot 99, of said town bounded as follows: Beginning at a stake in the south-east corner of subdivision No. 2, of said Lot; thence north sixteen chains and eighty-four links to a stake; thence west sixteen chains and seventy links to a stake in the west line of said subdivision; thence south sixteen chains and eighty-four links to the south line of said Lot; thence east sixteen chains and seventy links to the said place of beginning, containing twenty-eight acres of land.

Dated June 20, 1887.

[illegible] the opening of the great 5, 10 and 25c store has been a grand success; way beyond our expectations, but we have been Maliciously Accused!

We have been accused by our competitors of selling certain goods at ridiculously low prices in order to "bait" the public. As no customers have ever complained that they were over charged and failed to receive their money's worth on any purchase from us, we are inclined to think our accusers overshot the mark. We intend to put as low a price on all goods as a live and let live policy will justify and as the liberal patronage extended to us indicates that our alleged practice of baiting is satisfactory to the biters, we shall continue to throw out large quantities of the same sort of bait in the shape of all classes of fair values. In addition to the large number of bargains we are selling, will offer for one week the following:

Lamp Chimneys, 3c; a Dish Pan for 10c; Good Broom, 21c; Bird Cages, 40, 50 and 60c; Mason's Improved Fruit Jars: Pints, 95c per Dozen; Quarts, $1.15 per Doz.; 2 Quarts, $1.40 per Doz.; Good Garter Elastic, 3c a yard; Tubular Lanterns 67c; Decorated Tea Set of 56 pieces only $3.42; 2 pieced Base Balls, 4c worth 10c; Painted Wooden Pail, 15c; Large Dust Pans, 7c; Medium Sized Dust Pans, 5c; Large Dripping Pan, 18c; 12 Qt. Dairy Pail, 25c; 10 Qt. Tin Pail, 15c; 14 Qt. Tin Pail, 20c; Baloon Fly Traps, 18c.

SILK MITTS AND GLOVES.

Call and see our line of Glassware, Crockery, Tinware, Frames, Notions, Novelties, Housekeeping Goods, &c., &c. We ask young married couples and those starting housekeeping to see how cheap they can be started for at the great

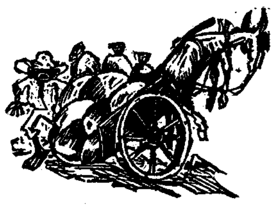
DRUGS.

Again we appear, and PROCEED TO UNLOAD with usual ceremony, A New Stock especially adapted to our choice class of customers.



From Chicago to Fulton via. the Indian Ocean and Jersey turnpike, over a rough and rugged route, besieged on all sides by combinations and their scheming allies, we congratulate ourselves with a safe arrival, and a whole scalp. Our worthy steed appears somewhat the worse for wear, but a heavy load and diet of shingle nails, are not calculated to improve horseflesh!

And we cater to no combination for the aiding of the poor in fixing our prices. Call and examine for yourselves, and note the new terms for our carload of PAINTS, DRUGS, MEDICINES, PERFUMES, POWDERS, Toilet Articles, &c. &c.

Fulton June 8th, 1887.

MYRON HAVENS,
B. J. KIMBALL,
PROCTOR YOUMANS, Assessors.

[illegible] The ladies prepared an [illegible] supplemented by ice cream and cake. Mrs. H. G. Salmon, president of the circle, assisted by able and efficient coworkers, had well in hand the details. Minerva, Calypso, Venus and Juno, with checked aprons, descended from Mount Olympus bearing ambrosial food and nectar (drawn from the vaults of a chain-pump) and placed upon the rude tables under the umbrageous trees and hovered about the coffee urn and sandwich stand, with feet as light as "Camilla o'er the bending corn." Several post graduates were present. After thoroughly sampling the viands, a sweet smile of content rested upon the assembly and the "rugose coating of the digestive apparatus" was "calm as summer evening be," until through the president's suggestions, speeches were requested to be made fitting the grandeur of the occasion. Rev. Carl Stone was first called and made some thoughtful as well as humorous remarks upon the C. L. S. C., and warned the members of the danger of being superficial in the work. Rev. Mr. Palmer was then requested to say a few words, which he did in a very happy manner, and so warmly extolled the work of the C. L. S. C., that at the conclusion of his remarks he received the grand "Chautauqua salute." Miss Mary Lawrence, after whom the circle was named was called upon to say a word, but declined to make any extended remarks but heartily endorsed the object and aim of the C. L. S. C. Everybody seemed happy and full—of the theme, as well as of sandwiches, coffee and doughnuts. Just as the party were on the point of taking their departure the Rev. Mr. Stone, in fitting words, presented on behalf of the Lawrence circle, an elegant quarto volume with beautiful colored illustrations, to their president, Mrs. H. G. Salmon. This was indeed a surprise, but the recipient made a brief and graceful acknowledgement, thanking the circle for this token of their kind remembrance which would always awaken pleasant memories of the days they had labored together, striving to mutually benefit one another, growing in knowledge and true culture. Several votes of thanks were proposed for all who were there. Thus pleasantly ended the last gathering of the class of 1887.—Cor Oswego Times.

Married at the residence of W. T. Church of Fulton on June 7th 1887, Frederick C. Church of Palermo Centre to Clara R. Church of Scriba by the Rev. Mr. Stone of Fulton. They have the best wishes of the Palermo correspondent for their future.

Invitations have been issued to the wedding of Dr. George H. Denike of Syracuse, formerly of Fulton, and Miss Carrie Cooper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvan Cooper of Syracuse, on June 28th.

The July Atlantic

was eagerly sought for. The readers of the Russian story, "Paul Patoff," have become fascinated with the intricate working of the plot and await with anxiety next chapter's revelations. "The Second Son," by O. W. Oliphant and T. B. Aldrich is also a most delightfully written serial story. Dr. O. W. Holmes continues his interesting travels in Europe which he describes in an engaging manner. "My Country," a poem full of lofty sentiment, by George E. Woodburp commences this number. There are many other articles of interest. A new writer describes "An Old Kentucky Home in an easy, natural manner, holding the attention to the close. The Contributor's Club completes a most excellent number.

Phœnix Academy.

Quite a number of Fultonians attended the graduating exercises of Phœnix Academy last Friday evening which were held in Windsor opera house.

Prof. Robb announced the opening with a prayer by Rev. S. Ball.

Prof. Champoux of Syracuse, rendered a piano solo in a manner which elicited hearty applause. Miss Stella I. Heselton delivered the salutatory. She heartily thanked all for their presence. The board of education and teachers were also kindly remembered. The program included an essay, "Idleness," Miss Estella Burleigh; oration, "The Grand Old Man," N. A. DeWitt; gymnastics, showing very fine training from Miss Robb; oration, "Civilization and Progress," Frank N. Burleigh; essay, "Every man the architect of his own Fortune," Miss Carrie L. Williams; essay, "Class Prophecy," Miss Lizzie A. Metzger; valedictory, Miss Ada L. Collison. The latter was delivered in a clear voice with good effect. The class was grouped about the rostrum and Prof. Robb in fitting words presented the diplomas.

Mexico Academy.

The graduating exercises at Mexico Academy began this year on Thursday evening of last week when a musical concert by Schilling's orchestra of Oswego was given under the auspices of the graduating class. On Friday morning the exercises given by the undergraduates took place before a large audience in the town hall and at two o'clock the exercises of the graduating class in which there were sixteen members.

This is the sixty-first year that this academy has been in existence. The faculty for next term will probably remain unchanged. It is as follows: Henry R. Fancher, principal, Ancient Language; Charles B. Smith, assistant principal, Mathematics and Sciences; Miss Hattie M. Cobb, preceptress, English branches, French, German; Mrs. Ada M. Parker, Music.

[illegible] in the front of the central part of the church. Some beautiful music was prepared by the choir consisting of Mrs. J. T. Pratt, Mrs. J. H. Case sopranos, Mrs. F. D. Van Wagenen, Miss Gertrude Dade contraltos, Messrs. Rice and Allen tenors, Messr. Gilbert and Hoff bassos, Mrs F. A. Emerick, organist, and finely rendered during the evening. Rev. Mr. Breaker read a selection from the Scriptures and Rev. Mr. Chase offered a prayer, after which Mr. Palmer commenced his address.

He used as his theme or foundation of his remarks the words of Paul, "Press toward the mark," a suitable motto for the young graduates to follow. In a clear and able manner he illustrated how success was attained, how many sadly handicapped had risen to the highest pinnacle of worldly success in their particular work, stating that in nine cases out of ten it was due to a certain quality for which he did not have a name; perseverance, grit and similar terms not wholly embracing it. In striving for success he said that one's energies should be applied in one particular direction. He showed the many paths that laid open to them as they stepped out from their school into higher educational fields or work and aptly illustrated them.

Mr. Palmer was particularly fitted to deliver this address being still a student at Auburn Theological Seminary. His remarks were attentively listened to and were interesting and instructive.

John B. Gough's Latest and Best Book, "Platform Echoes."

This new and splendidly illustrated volume is the last book written by the world-famous John B. Gough, and was completed by him just previous to his death. Every one is familiar with the story of his early life, and of his rescue from his drunkard's grave, and how this once wretched and dispised sot became one of the most famous men of our times. For seven years he stood amid the horrors of delirium tremens, an abject slave to the bottle; and his condition and wretched appearance were such as to cause people to exclaim, "There's the man who has been in hell." The rich and poor, the high, the low, the learned and unlearned, have been alike thrilled and moved by his burning words. He swayed brilliant audiences of royalty and fashion; spoke in State prisons jails, poor houses, penitentiaries, reform schools and houses of correction; to the deaf, and dumb, and blind; to audiences composed wholly of outcasts; and to audiences numbering thousands of children. At his feet more than ten million people sat and listened in admiration and wonder. In his library may be seen a large set of volumes—a far better memorial of his life and labors than any monument of marble or bronze—containing the original signatures of one hundred and fifty thousand men and women who were induced to sign the pledge through his personal efforts. These names—many of them tear-bedewed and written with trembling hand—represent stories of happiness and woe, of ruin and remorse, of blighted hopes and wasted lives, of battles fought and victory won. To give some of these thrilling life histories; to depict scenes of joy and sadness; to lift the curtain on life's stage and show its tragedy and comedy; and to draw "living truths" from the lessons thus taught, and bring them home to every heart, is the prime object of this volume. It also contains the history of Mr. Gough's life and career, from the cradle to the grave, and the story of his death told by Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, the eminent editor and divine.

"Platform Echoes" is John B. Gough in print. Stranger stories are here told than romance ever dreamed of, every one of them drawn from real life by a master hand. In every chapter he weaves in anecdote after anecdote, incident after incident, story after story, and underneath them all lie "Living Truths" that stand out as beacon lights. He plays upon the reader's feelings with an enchanters wand, at one time filling his heart with gladness, at another blinding his eyes with tears. At his bidding, hearts are melted, and stern, strong men, as well as sensitive women, weep tears of compassion, are aroused to indignation, or moved to uncontrollable laughter in spite of every effort to control their feelings.

Its illustrations are the best we have ever seen. It contains two hundred and twenty-seven fine engravings by the best artists and engravers in the world. Many of these illustrations are "too funny for anything," while others depict wretchedness and woe. Sixteen of these engravings are full-page ones, and are magnificent specimens of art. Two hundred and nine are text illustrations. There are two fine steel-plate portraits. One is from a life-size, full length painting, showing Mr. Gough as he appeared shortly after his rescue. The other is from a photograph taken just before his death. All in all, it is one of the finest ever produced by the American press.

We advise our readers to buy Platform Echoes at the first opportunity. They can, in our opinion, much better afford to dispense with a dozen other books than not possess this. Once begun it will not willingly be laid aside till the last page is finished.

It looks as though wool growers were going to get more money for their wool than last year, and the opening prices are likely to be the lowest.

Buttermilk is cheap food for pigs and they will always do well when it is made a portion of their food; but it should not be fed exclusively.

The late Dr. Voelcker took strong ground against churning cream sour. He laid as much stress on having cream sweet when it is churned as on having it clean.

Young cattle should not be allowed to grow fat, and young dairy cattle least of all. Oats and bran are the best to feed the calves in addition to the hay, as they are not fat-forming.

The common white flat turnip, or the purple top strap leaf variety, are the kinds mostly in demand for city customers. Yet they are not so rich as the yellow varieties, or even the rutabagas.

Potato bugs will eat tomato plants unless young potato vines are plentiful. It is well to pick them off tomato plants once a day, as Paris green will be of little advantage unless the work must be done over a large field.

Improper food is a prolific source of poor milk and small yield. The milk is made from the food the cow eats and the water she drinks, and it is well to remember that the food must be properly balanced.

Those who live on land where there is no gravel or sand should haul a load and spread it about the poultry yards. The fowls will enjoy it as much as though it was something good to eat, and in most cases it will do them more good.

A close pen is undoubtedly the best place to fatten a hog. For the fall market it may be done in a good clover field, but for the February market, it is best to feed on floors or under shelter, on a well packed clay floor, with rings in nose of hogs.

Dairy butter will always sell higher than that made at the creameries, provided it be of first quality. Creamery butter is usually more uniform, but as dairy butter is made by thousands of different persons it is not easy to secure large quantities of the same grade.

A Word for Stable Manure.

The value of stable manure to the farmer cannot be over-estimated. To him it is the great source of income. Without it he could do but little, and in time his farm would run out. It occupies an important position in all kind of agriculture, whether it be market gardening or dairy farming. The whole success or failure of a crop depends in a great degree upon the manure or plant food supply. The barnyard manure is our cheapest source of plant food and an article that all have to deal with, more or less.

It is well understood among the most experienced men of New England that success depends largely upon restoring to the soil the main elements drawn and and used as food by plants. The most essential ones are nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash. Knowing that nitrogen, one of the most valuable plant feeders is soluble and therefore easily wasted, the farmer should use every precaution possible to prevent its wasting. This can be done in several ways. The bulk of the nitrogen is found in the liquid excretions of animals. Taking this into account, absorbents are the best means to adopt to preserve it. Some of the best absorbants are loam, gypsum and straw. These should be used in bedding your animals. The potash and phosphoric acid compounds are less soluble, but care must be taken not to lose the potash, which is easily converted into a soluble compound when it comes in contact with water.

Manure should be kept in a cellar or under cover of some kind to prevent loss by leaching. A cemented cellar is very desirable and in many conditions the best means to adopt. When needed, the manure is taken out and used immediately. In this way all loss is avoided. But when this is impracticable, I should recommend the making of large piles in desirable places in the fields. In the fields however, there is a great chance of loss of ammonia. To avoid a material loss here, cover the pile over with gypsum or loam. An even pile is always preferable to a conical one for it is less favorable to fermentation, which causes the ammonia to be generated.

The beneficial results to be derived from barnyard manure are as follows: (1) It makes a soil more permeable. (2) In spring it warms the soil. (3) It makes the soil porous. In short it improves the physical as well as the chemical condition of the land.—L. C., in N. E. Homestead.

[illegible] complaining [illegible] not succeed as well as his neighbor. His reply is, "Oh! Mr. B. is fortunate." Yes, he is, and made so by his indomitable energy, cool calculation, strict economy, saving and utilizing every possible thing on his farm, and keeping up with the march of civilization. Look over his buildings and farms. In his stables he has pipes conducting the liquid manure into large vats—these pipes also drain the barnyard. Here is at least $200 saved in a season. The heavy stable manure is carted under sheds and its vital properties saved by such protection from the weather. On his farm, instead of draining the surplus water into brooks and ditches, he conducts it by tile to the dry part of the farm and in case of drouth has the power of irrigation to help him. And so on throughout his work. Is it any wonder that he succeeds? Only a short time since, we saw an old stable removed, and underneath, the ground was soaked with liquid manure. The owner had allowed the valuable excrements to be lost, and was buying high-priced manures to bring up his impoverished soil. This is the difference. One side, shrewd systematic, economical management, and on the other lamentable inefficiency in every part. One succeeds, the other does not. It is easy to see the reason. Cause and effect. A standard law of nature which cannot be removed.—American Farmer.

Our Diversified Agriculture.

There are some facts connected with the world's wheat production, as set forth by the department of agriculture, which are equally interesting and instructive. The total product is 2,031,322,285 bushels; the supply is for a population of a thousand millions, or two bushels per capita. But India with her two hundred million of inhabitants, is a prominent wheat-exporting country, while raising only 253,000,000 bushels. The United States are the largest growers of wheat of any country. In 1886 we raised 457,000,000 bushels per head of population. The average yield per acre in 1886 was, say, twelve bushels. In Great Britain it was a trifle under twenty-seven bushels. This is a matter for consideration. Our farmers might grow on the same area as much again wheat with greater profit. France came next to us in production. Russia raises rye as the staple bread food for her people. The wheat fields of this country have followed the "breaking up" of the new territory. The cost has been slight, but the land has in many cases been badly impoverished. There will eventually be a return to the cultivation of this cereal in the middle and northern states, but under a higher method. In the meantime the agriculture of the West, North, and southwest will become more diversified, while on the Pacific slope irrigation will make fertile the now barren soil.

Traveling in 1839.

During 1839 Horace Greeley of the New York Tribune, made a western trip writing weekly letters to his paper. The issue of July 6th of that year contains his views and opinions on the then superior mode of traveling through the state, as follows: "The facilities for travel through the state of New York are now admirable. From Buffalo to New York, a distance of 450 to 500 hundred miles, may now be traveled in less than sixty hours, and with comfort in less than three days. The swiftest traveling is by the connected line of railroad cars and stage coaches; the more comfortable is as follows: From New York at 5 p. m. to Albany by steamboat, at 4, the next morning; from Albany by railroad at 8:30 to Utica, 96 miles in seven hours; thence by canal packet boat at 5 or 6 o'clock to Rochester, 160 miles in 36 hours; thence by railroad to Batavia and stage to Buffalo, where you arrive in three days from New York. Whenever the line of railroad shall be completed from Albany to Buffalo, is hardly too much to hope that the distance from Albany to Buffalo will be passed in 24 hours. Two days from New York to Buffalo will be outside time at any rate." The march of time and improvement has brought wonderous changes since then. Now the trip from New York to Buffalo may be made in a in a single day.

Will Know Better Next Time.

A few days ago Col. Ingersoll was passing through Pittsburgh. He, with a great many other passengers went into the dining hall for breakfast. He was approached by a beardless boy reporter of The Post, who saluted him with:

"How are you, colonel? How are things looking out west?" The colonel turned half around in his chair and said abruptly: "No, thank you; I never play cards."

The reporter explained who he was, but the colonel would not listen to him. The reporter, however, whas equal to the emergency, he wrote nearly a column of the attempt of a confidence man to get the best of Ingersoll. Since the colonel's return to New York he has received the congratulations of an army of friends.

"An interview," he said yesterday, would not have caused me one-half the annoyance."—N. Y. World.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar head line "100 Doses for One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by anyone who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

[illegible] Ayer's Sarsaparilla. After using this medicine a short time I was completely

Cured

My eyes are now in a splendid condition, and I am as well and strong as ever.—Mrs. William Gage, Concord, N. H.

For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and was unable to obtain any relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine has effected a complete cure, and I believe it to be the best of blood purifiers.—C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H.

From childhood, and until within a few months, I have been afflicted with Weak and Sore Eyes. I have used for these complaints, with beneficial results, Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and consider it a great blood purifier.—Mrs. C. Phillips, Glover, Vt.

I suffered for a year with inflammation in my left eye. Three ulcers formed on the ball, depriving me of sight, and causing great pain. After trying many other remedies, to no purpose, I was finally induced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, three bottles of this medicine, have been entirely cured. My sight has been restored, and there is no sign of inflammation, sore, or ulcer in my eye.—Kendal T. Bowen, Sugar Tree Ridge, Ohio.

My daughter, ten years old, was afflicted with Scrofulous Sore Eyes. During the last two years she never saw light of any kind. Physicians of the highest standing exerted their skill, but with no permanent success. On the recommendation of a friend I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which my daughter commenced taking. Before she had used the third bottle her sight was restored, and she can now look steadily at a brilliant light without pain. Her cure is complete.—W. E. Sutherland, Evangelist, Shelby City, Ky.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the pain of Cutting Teeth? If so send at once and get a bottle of "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers; there is no mistake about it. It cures Dysentery and Diarrhœa, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, cures Wind Colic, softens the Gums, reduces Inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for children teething is pleasant to the taste and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP." 51y1

[illegible] which is known as [illegible] it couldn't be much flatter

[illegible] singing while about you, swiftly [illegible] looking out a place for stinging [illegible] your hide;

[illegible] ever waltz' lanced from grandam [illegible] from sudden, till its veins are overla[illegible] with the cud,

And yet, though rich its diet, the small creeter never is quiet, and you really can't come nigh it—which is stuff;

You think you're sure to lam it, and against the wall you jam it, but you'll sadly mutter damnation, as it skips;

Oh, sakes is Amos Keeter, on your very nose he'll teeter, and he says "this my meat-er" to his lips.

Confound the wretched creature, he swells your every feature, as he bleeds you like a leech or glands off your face,

Oh, if he sang in Eden, no stronger proof I'm needin' of the cause of the secedin' from the place.

Then and Now.

Pass the hash, O brown eyed Mabel,
Above it lightly through the air;
In the corner of the dish, love,
You will find a nut brown hair.

What fond mem'ries it awakens
Of the days ere we were wed,
When upon my good coat collar
Oft was laid your little head.

Lovingly I stroked those tresses
In the happy days gone by;
Now I strike them every meal time
In the butter or the pie.

THE PROPER THING.

Colored silk blouse waists are worn with black silk skirts.

Challi dresses are in great favor for misses and small girls.

A novelty in bonnets consists of crowns formed of plaited ribbons.

Checks and stripes, both large and small, are in the ascendant.

White wool dresses have, to a great extent, taken the place of white cotton.

There is nothing so popular for boys who have just put on trousers as sailor suits.

The small checked or finely striped silks make pretty dresses for misses in their teens.

English tennis blouses are belted gathered waists with a basque-like piece falling on the hips.

Gilt lace is again in use, being shirred on crowns and brims of capotes. It is also seen as trimming lace.

Uneven numbers of rows in stitching or flat trimming sewed on around the bottom of the plain skirt continue to be excellent style.

Finger rings made of gold wire are coming into vogue. Some are fashioned into a true lover's knot, while others are of intricate network.

The Pompadour striped Bengalines are favorite fabrics for summer toilets made in a polonaise or basque with lower skirt of embroidered muslin or lace.

Black and white are the only admixtures allowed with the popular red straw or tulle bonnets. The black is always a bordering of jet, more or less showy in width and pattern.

Threatened to Resign.

BARTON'S WIFE.

We were seated on a beach overlooking the sea at Long Branch, Barton Wight, my betrothed husband, and I. Before us in the sand Minnie, his little girl, was playing and screaming with glee as she ran races with the waves. A willful little child she was, but I had taken a great fancy to her, as every one did at the hotel, notwithstanding the frequent displays of temper.

"I know," said Barton, finally, noticing that my glances followed Minnie in her play, "that you have no knowledge of my former married life. It is right and just, dear, that you should know My wife," he began, "was a West Indian, very beautiful, and at the time I really loved her. For four years we lived together, but I can never describe to you my life. Zoe was jealous of everything—jealous of my profession because it took me from her side—jealous of her own child if I caressed her too warmly Her temper was ungovernable and the slightest opposition to her wishes would rouse a perfect storm of fury.

"And I discovered at last there was insanity in her blood.

"I tried to bear my cross patiently; my sister Lizzie came to me and took upon her young shoulders all the household cares, and I engaged a woman for Zoe's constant attendance. In all her fierce moods, her most violent attacks, her love for me never wavered. It was touching to see how she would come to me, exhausted with raving, put her beautiful arms around me, and sink to sleep while I smoothed and caressed her.

"We left Minnie with Lizzie and made and extended southern trip. The change was certainly beneficial. Zoe gained in health and was much more quiet. We were nearly at our journey's end when the steamer took fire in the night. We were asleep in the stateroom when the cry awoke us, and hurrying on our clothes we went on deck. It was a scene of indescribable confusion and every one was struggling for self-preservation.

"You may imagine my horror, Alice, when Zoe broke into the worst paroxysm of raving that ever afflicted her. In vain I tried to calm her; she was wild with terror, and would not let me touch her.

"The fire was gaining in force and fury. In despair I caught Zoe in my arms and tried to make her understand that we must get to the lifeboats. She wrested herself from my grasp, ran swiftly across the deck of the steamer, and sprang into the water. I followed her. I could swim ashore if I could only find her. Alice my search was fruitless.

"I swam here and there, when suddenly I was struck by some wood from the burning vessel and remembered no more for two weeks. I awoke to consciousness then to find myself the inmate of a hospital in St Louis. I had been very ill, delirious from the blow upon my head, and to this hour I do not know how or by whom I was rescued. Zoe was lost.

"Now you know my story. Will you take Minnie to your heart?"

I promised to give the child my most loving care, and I knew he felt glad he had confided his story to me. One day we were riding with a gay party on the outskirts of the city. As we passed a handsome building one of the gentlemen proposed we should visit the lunatic asylum, as he was a warm friend of the doctor who had charge of it. Barton looked nervous, but assented with the rest to inspect it. Once inside I found he took great interest in hearing about the patients.

"I have one subject," said the doctor, "that interests me deeply. She was placed here by Mrs. Weldon, a philanthropic lady. This poor woman was rescued from a burning steamer. We have been unable to find out even her name."

"Let us see her," I said to the doctor. "I think I can tell you where to find her friends."

"If you think so come by all means," he said, opening a door near us. I came to Barton's side, nerving myself as best I could.

"Hush!" he whispered hoarsely. "Do not speak now. I cannot bear it."

The doctor led us through a long corridor and opened the door of a small, neatly-furnished room. Seated there in a listless attitude, her hands lying in her lap, her eyes bent on the ground was a pale, beautiful woman. She did not stir as we entered, not even lifting her eyes. I glanced at Barton and read the death-warrant of my love in his face.

"Zoe!" he said in a low tone.

Never had I heard such a cry of rapture as sprang from the poor maniac's lips.

"Barton! I knew you would come, Barton! My love—my husband!"

I went softly from the room, from the house, and walked home. How I reached my room I never knew. How the long night passed I cannot write. What terrible thoughts ran through my brain! But I knew I was only doing my duty when I saw Barton next day and bade him return to his wife.

It was a year before I heard from him again. He wrote to say that Zoe was dead. Poor woman, she died without ever knowing that I had been loved by him.

I am Barton's wife now, and Minnie, [illegible] is the light of our lives.

Wall, we descended from the cars and went to the boardin' place provided for us beforehand by the lookout of friends. It was a good place, there haint no doubt of that, good folks, good fare and clean.

Ardelia parted away from us at the depot. She wuz a goin' to board to a smaller boardin' house kep' by a second cousin of her father's brother's wife's aunt. It wuz her father's request that she should get her board there on account its bein' in the family. He loved "to see relations hang together;" so he said, and "get their boards of each other." But I thought then, and I think now, that it was because they asked less for the board. Deacon Tutt is close. But howsumever Ardelia went there, and my companion and me arrove at the abode where we wuz to abide, with no eppisode only the triflin' one of the driver bein' dretful mistook as to the price he asked to take us there.

I thought and Josiah thought that 50 cents was the outlay of expenditur he required to carry us where we would be; it wuz but a short distance. But not He said that 5 dollars wuz what he said, that is, if we heerd anything about a 5. But he thought we wuz deef, and dident hear him. He thought he spoke plain and said 4 dollars for the trip.

And on that price he sot down immovable. They argued, and Josiah Allen even went so far as to use language that grated on my nerve, it was so voyalent and vergin' on the profane. But there the man sot, right onto that price, and he had to me the appearance of one who wuz goin' to sot there on it all night. And so rather than to spend the night outdoors, in conversation with him, he a settin' on that price, and Josiah a shakin' his fist at it, and a jawin' at it, I told Josiah that he had better pay it. And finally he did, with groanin's that could hardly be uttered.—From "Samantha at Saratoga," by Josiah Allen's Wife.

Uncle Eack's Wisdom.

The world has had but few teachers; a score of men have furnished us all the wisdom and philosophy we possess.

The man who knows but little, and tells only what he knows, is a hard man to bother in a cross-examination.

It rakes the evidence of two or three witnesses to prove a man's virtues, but one is enough to fasten his vices upon him.

The reason why there is so little real friendship in the world is because most of the compacts are based upon policy rather than upon principle.

A weak man is harder to steer than a vicious one—He won't take the bits.

Pity is treacherous; most of it is a secret satisfaction that I am not so badly off as you are.

A lazy man in a great hurry is very amusing; he is continually stepping on himself.

If we ever do reach the top round of the ladder, we shall find it a dreadfully cold and lonesome place.

Whoever reasons from the heart will make many blunders, but one that will not be forgiven.

The line between folly and wisdom is often an imaginary one, and men are often seen traveling along with one foot on each side of it.

A great deal of learning has been lost, but not one single precept of wisdom.—Century.

Some Queer Epitaphs.

One of the weekly journals has made an extensive collection of "quaint and curious epitaphs." Here are some of the best: Epitaph on a Mr. Partridge, who died in the month of May:

What, kill a partridge in the month of May!
Eh, Death! Eh!

On a young lady who died of paralysis, brought on by a hair-dye containing sugar of lead:

In all the pride of health I dyed,
A dire mischance did then betide—
That dye contained some sugar of lead—
My hair is golden, but I'm dead.

Self Made Women.

Lucy Larcom was a mill hand.

Adelaide Neilson began life as a child's nurse.

Anna Dickinson began life as a school teacher.

Charlotte Cushman was a daughter of of poor people.

Sarah Bernhardt was a dressmaker's apprentice; so was Matilda Heron.

Miss Braddon, the novelist, was a utility actress in the English provinces.

Christine Nilsson was a poor Swedish peasant and ran barefoot in childhood.

Jenny Lind, also a Swede, was the daughter of a principal of a young ladies' boarding school.

Adelaide Phillips, the singer, now dead, was a very poor girl, and so was Sarah Jewett, the actress.

The most renowned woman who sprang from the lowliest estate was Jeanne d'Arc, who fed swine.

Nell Gwynn sold oranges in the streets and theater. From the pit while vending her wares, she took a fancy to the stage.

Pretty Maud Granger, with the gold-brown eyes and shapely form, first earned a livelihood by running a sewing machine.

Mrs. Langtry is the daughter of a country parson of small means, but the proverb of her face being her fortune proved true in her case.

Edmonia Lewis, the sculptor, is colored. Overcoming the prejudice against her sex and color, and self-educated, Miss Lewis is successfully pursuing her profession in Italy.

The mother of Clara Louise Kellogg strained every nerve to give Clara a musical education, and at one time was a professional spiritual medium. Miss Kellogg failed three times.

Minnie Hauk's father was a shoemaker, in the most straightened circumstances. Her voice early attracted the attention of one of New York's richest men, who had it cultivated.

The great French actress, Rachel, had as hard a childhood as ever fell to the lot of a genius. Ragged, barefoot and hungry, she played the tambourine in the streets, and sang and begged for a dole. Naturally she was illiterate and vulgar.—Chicago Mail.

He Bunked With Garfield.

A grizzled, weary looking toiler of the towpath sat in Superintendent McKenna's office yesterday afternoon. He had just come from the west and found himself compelled temporarily to give up work on account of a sore foot which left him almost unable to walk. To a reporter he told how when he was a boy of ten and the lamented James A. Garfield was a youth of fifteen, they plodded side by side along the Wabash canal and slept in the same bunk, both being employed on the boat Reaper Willard. The boatman's name is George McAuley. He told how studious young Garfield was even at that early day, and how even when seated astride of a horse he always was poring over a book. He was a general favorite all along the canal, said McAuley, as he was invariably courteous and never used a coarse or an unkind word to any one. He was paid fifteen dollars a month, which was considered large wages in those days. For two summers he followed the canal and McAuley saw him no more until the war broke out and he joined the army, when one day, as he was doing picket duty, Garfield, who was then wearing a general's uniform, approached him and recognized in him the companion of his humble days. Soon after, McAuley was taken prisoner and sent to Libby prison, and after his release took up his old life on the canal. He never saw Garfield again.—Albany Express.

Causation of Crime.

Mr. Henry Highton, in a legal argument in a late criminal trial in San Francisco, gave the following summary of some of the causes of social disorder and corruption:

First—Misdirection of natural ambition in boys and girls through the vanity of parents.

Second—The neglect of home discipline and training.

Third—Education beyond the point essential for good citizenship, without direction into well defined industral channels.

Fourth—The lack of wholesome regulation of the intercourse between the sexes.

Fifth—Intellectual pride, which disregards the strict ordinances of religion, but provides no substitutes for them.

Sixth—The clogging of the avenues to remunerative labor, and the hostile attitude of labor, and capital, producing the worst forms of social discontent.

Seventh—Corrupt politics under the control of bossism.

Eight—Indifference to reputation and the dissemination of sensational and the debauching literature through a portion of the public press.

Ninth—Intense selfishness, concentration upon their own business, and disregard of all law and of all civil duty, which seem to them to conflict with their own interests, by influential citizens, [illegible]

FORTUNES FOR EVERYONE.

MILLIONAIRE MACKAY'S ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN.

An Opportunity Now Offered to Profit by it.—A Rare Investment and Thousands are Putting Their Money In It.

Once in a while a man with a woe begone face and a general aspect of seediness will say: "There is no chance for a poor man in this country." There never was a greater mistake than this. Take a glance at the millionaires of New York and you will find that nineteen out of twenty of them started without a dollar. They made their money as a rule by keeping their eyes open and taking advantage of opportunities which were occasionally offered them.

It is not the men who make all the money, either. There are young women who can give ordinary men points on making safe and good investments, and are living in luxury now through having invested their savings in a good thing that returned them profits a hundred-fold.

Maybe it was a good patent, perhaps, it was a small store, or more likely they made their wealth by a sensible investment in some good stock which rapidly appreciated in value. That is about the easiest and safest way for a man or woman to get rich, and there are hundreds of both sexes in New York who know that fact because they have tried it.

When John A. Mackay, the famous Bonanza millionaire, was at the Hoffman House recently, a Morning Journal reporter asked him how he got his start.

"In a mining property," replied Mr. Mackay. "There is nothing like mines to make a fortune, and when a young man asks my advice as to what he shall do with his fifty dollars, or his hundred dollars, or his five hundred dollars, I invariably tell him 'Put it in a good mine.'"

That the advice of Mr. Mackay is being pretty generally acted on by men and women who are smart enough to take advantage of from such a source, is shown by the wonderful demand which has sprung up for the stock of the Tortilita Gold and Silver Mining Company, whose general offices are at No. 57 Broadway New York city.

The capital stock of the Tortilita Company is $1,000,000, divided into 500,000 shares at $2 each.

Such a chance to make investment that is way ahead of savings banks and building associations is rarely offered to the public.

The shares are non assessable and the man or woman who calls or sends to the office of the Tortilita Mining Company to invest but $2 is treated with as much courtesy as the millionaire who buys 5,000 shares.

Already the shares are a favorite investment in all parts of the country, especially with people who have small sums of money and who hope for large returns from a small purchase.

The stock has advanced 100 per cent. from the original price, and many believe it will go to $10 and even $20 per share. The price is now $2. Dividends will begin September 1, and bullion is now being shipped.

And now a word about the mines and the officers of the company Mr. Joseph A. Reall, president of the American Agrecultural and Dairy Association, is president of the Tortilita Gold and Silver Mining Company. Mr. Reall is an experienced business man and well versed in financial matters. His associates are men of like character and ability. The vice-president of the company is Hon. Floyd King, a distinguished officer in the late war, and for nine sessions—eight years—a member of Congress from Louisiana and chairman of important committees. Mr. Dubois T. Elmore, who has worked the mine for three years and made them pay and who is a large owner in them, is superintendent. He has had many years of practical experience in mining and milling on the Comstock in Nevada, which has paid in dividends some $266,000,000 in California. Mr. Elmore gives it as his opinion that these mines promise as large results as the Comstock. Mr. Rodman M. Prince, jr., a well-known mining and civil engineer, is secretary of the company.—New York Morning Journal.

ASTONISHING SUCCESS.

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 80,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it. Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all druggists and Dealers in the United States and Canada. eow

The sudden death of most men and women arises from a diseased state of the Kidneys, which thus effect the Heart and Brain.

The symptoms are: a tired feeling, lack of energy, loss of appetite, occasional headaches, scanty or profuse urine, brick dust sediment and shooting pains.

The F. E. C. Kidney Cure is the only Remedy ever sold, that GUARANTEES A CURE, or refunds the money. For debilitated men, for weak women, and for feeble children, it is invaluable.

A WORD WITH YOU.

BANGOR, MAINE, SPRING, 188[illegible].

Preparatory to what follows, we will say that realizing the great work of healing upon which we have entered, this nothing may be set down to quackery or ignorance, we have prepared a short history of the professional life of W. H. BROWN, M. D., from whose formula we have for years prepared the most successful medicine for purifying and enriching the blood, building the torpid liver, and strengthening weak kidneys,—in short, for the speedy, safe and permanent cure of all diseases of the stomach, liver, and kidneys, that has ever been known in New England. This history, together with statements from many prominent people whom you will know, of relief secured and cures effected from sufferings and torture by these diseases, will be mailed to you if you send us your address. Better that in this letter we tell you where relief can be found. We have come late to the work with BROWN'S SARSAPARILLA. Naturally we have taken hold of the cases which other remedies, although advertised with persistency and at marvelous expense, have failed to cure. The results have been wonderful. Nowhere have we failed to give relief, and in no case where persistent and faithful use according to directions has been made of Brown's Sarsaparilla, has it failed to CURE any or all diseases of the blood, stomach, liver, and kidneys Mrs. Ephraim Cunningham of East Bangor, Maine, heard of it, read of it, tried it, and was cured of her weakness in kidneys and troubled liver. Carlton P. Williams of Amesbury, Mass., says he is entirely cured of what physicians diagnosticated as Bright's disease, and pronounced incurable. Eben Morrison of Cleveland, Ohio, advised by a friend to use Brown's Sarsaparilly for his kidney troubles, did so and was cured. Benj. Hill of New York Corner, at 63 years of age, gained strength and vitality for his blood, and health to continue his daily duties. Tumors dispursed for Reuben Severance and Aaron French by Brown's Sarsaparilla. Scrofula cured in Hartley B. Fisher, Corinna, Me. But why continue! Get our book on good health and read for yourself the astounding results secured by the use of Brown's Sarsaparilla, and remember these cases are those where eminent physicians have failed to find a remedy, and other medicines, advertise well and popularly introduced, have not benefitted, but Brown's Sarsaparilla, having been taken as a last resort, has proved efficacious and no other treatment was needed. Now with these facts in evidence, substantiated by reputable citizens accompanied by affidavits of prominent people, why not make this remedy the first, as it will then prove to you the only resort when you, your family or your neighbors are suffering from any of the almost numberless disorders which arise from a deranged stomach, and inactive liver, or weakened kidneys! Now a word in regard to the preparation and combination of this wonderful remedy. Our Mr. Warren for many years enjoyed the confidence of the late W. H. Brown, M. D., and in the prosecution of his business of pharmacist hundreds of times has he been called upon to put up the prescription, which is now compounded for popular sale, and for a few years has been known to the public as Brown's Sarsaparilla. It is entirely vegetable in its combination; the most powerful alterative-tonic properties known to the materia medica being skillfully prepared on a scientific basis, and the result of a perfect medicine for the relief and cure of dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, billiousness, loss of appetite, inflammation of kidneys and bladder, Bright's disease, dropsy, gravel, jaundice, heartburn, rheumatism, neuralgia, scrofula, erysipelas, salt rheum, diabetes; for the removal of impurities of the blood; to incite to proper activity the sluggish torpid liver; and to strengthen and relieve disorders of the stomach. It also acts like a charm as a remedy for all female complaints. Brown's Sarsaparilla has such curative powers and is of such immeasurable value to sufferers that we have decided to commence the publication of a series of extensive articles, detailing its properties uses and cures; and hereafter you can receive such information from the columns of this paper. You can obtain the medicine of any dealer. Yours truly,

Special to The Times.

The most interesting event of the week, as it has also been the all-absorbing theme for conversation for the past two weeks, is the trial of Jacob Sharp for bribery. Nearly three years have passed since the criminal acts for which he is now on trial were consummated, yet the general public are as sharp set for the possible result of the case as if it were but an event of a month or so ago. I don't think in the annals of our criminal courts there has occurred a case wherein so long a time has elapsed between the commission of the wrongful act and its legal examination with a view to a just punishment. Sharp has protested his innocence with a childlike simplicity—so did the convicted aldermen—that was pitiful to behold, but he at the same time endeavored to obtain a change of venue. This failing, however, he took good courage and secured an array of counsel whose combined legal abilities would startle an ordinary District Attorney; but then, you know, our District Attorney's office has extraordinary men on its staff and so they are not startled. No, the startling business is all on the other side.

But the Oyer and Terminer Court room presents a rather interesting picture these days. Jacob, obese, lachrymal, cunning Jacob, is the central figure. Nearly seventy years have rolled over his devoted head, thirty or more have been spent in obtaining this railroad on Broadway. His face is a study. Square jawed, low forehead, fat, flabby cheeks, small eyes, all combine to give him a look of low cunning and cool calculation; while a hard head and a harder heart combined with an accurate power of judging men made him successful in corrupting Aldermen and managing his ends successfully and skillfully.

Surrounding him are his lawyers. Ex-Judge Nelson from an up river county seems to be the chief figure. His invariably courteous and polite manner; his never failing good humor seems to shed itself over the court. Near him is Ex-Judge Fullerton. He is silent, observing, watchful. Not a point escapes his attention. Every thing he receives with the same stern dignified watchfulness. He is to sum up for Sharp, He is by far one of the ablest cross examining attorneys in the city. This he demonstrated in the Beecher trial. Then there is Stickney and Parsons. A team of clear thinking, quick acting, nervously energetic men. Between them they divide the questioning and arguing. The former's manner when a piece of damaging testimony is brought out by the prosecution is an example of the man. He rises to cross examine and when he is through he endeavors to leave the impression on the jury that all this is very silly, very simple, and of no value. These two argue and argue till His Honor cuts them off curtly with "Witness may answer.'

The burden of the work of developing the people's case rests with the young Assistant Attorney, Mr. Nichols. This gentleman is certainly not 35 years old but his legal knowledge, his conception of the work before him shows a thoroughly trained legal mind many years older than his own. He came to the Attorney's office from the pleader's table and brought the fire, the rush, the enthusiasm of a new recruit. The judges have toned him down somewhat, but he has still sufficient of his old ways to expedite business very rapidly; no long drawn arguments. A simple, short, comprehensive statement is all he gives, and it would do your heart good to see how it pleases the judge. Mr. Nichols is a sunny faced fellow with a pleasant manner and a still more pleasant voice. It is rumored that he gets valuable hints from Senator Conkling regarding the conduct of the case.

The jury, ah yes, that is the important factor. It is a model one. Old attorneys say that is far above the average for intelligence. Every man is more or less comfortable in this world's goods. Many of them speak two or three languages and all of them have strong business capacities and a large amount of "horse" sense. They are more like prisoners than jurymen. Six bailiffs look after them. They go to and from court under their watchfulness, sleep and eat at the Metropolitan Hotel under their care and at the city's expense. See their friends and families, transact their business under the eye and ear of these custodians. They get expurgated copies of the daily papers with the trial notes cut out. Not an easy job, surely, this jury has. The prosecution is developing a case, The probabilities are that a conviction will be secured. This Broadway surface road has been shown to be fictitions, The passage of the General Railroad bill at Albany has been proved to have been corruptly secured. The entries of imaginary purchases so as to cover up the disposition of the $500,000 mortgage; the obtaining of bills of large denominations; the transfer of some of these to the Aldermen's hands; the changing of these by Maloney the go-between of the Aldermen. This and much more has been proved in a most conclusive manner and Sharp's direct connection is shown.

The surprise is the testimony of Ex-Aldermen Pearson and Miller, both indicted for bribery. These two were not expected to testify; so that their testimony rather took the wind out of the [illegible] of the Sharp crowd. The former testified to Sharp's [illegible]

[illegible] Bank of Cincinnati, [illegible] to strike the market and [illegible] as Sage, Gould and Field are sponsors for took a grand tumble. The Manhattan Elevated dropped from 156 to 115 inside of a half hour. This stock has run up from 70 to 160 in a comparatively short time mainly due to the large holdings of the three above mentioned men. There has never been more than a thousand or so shares trade daily for some weeks past, and the banks came to see that if either one if these three should suddenly unload, the stock would fall rapidly. For this reason the collateral loans on Manhattan were only made on very large margins. The trouble this time seems to have been the throwing of 10,000 shares on the market by outsiders. The market dropped and it is presumed that the triumvirate profited by buying them in at a reduced figure. But the Gould clique were suspected of the deal and this tendency depressed all the other stock of their particular backing. They profited by the depression by increasing their holdings. In contradistinction to this it is noteworthy to observe the steadiness of the Vanderbilt holdings. There is a settled conviction on the street that the Vanderbilt boys with their friends are buying for investment and he who invests where they manage is sure of a profitable return. The N. Y. C. will pay 6 per cent. shortly and all the other Vanderbilt roads will earn that as a minimum.

We had no disagreeable incidents in connection with the celebration of the Queen's Jubilee day on Tuesday. I noticed that some few Irish merchants placed crape on their doors, and I think I saw a few flags, American of course draped in mourning. The day was spent by the English residents in a grand speechmaking time at the Metropolitan in praise of the Queen, while the Irish residents assembled in Cooper Union and as vigorously denounced this jubilee business in language that was both polite and explicit. An Irishman never does things by halves and so this Cooper Union meeting was no half way affair. The speakers were refreshingly candid in their reference to the present condition of Ireland's land laws and the possible results of the Crimes Bill should it become a law. The Irish had as joyful a time in their way as the English. I've no doubt her gracious Majesty will hear of both with some manifestation of surprise.

WANDERER.

A Fourth of July Record.

1 was a wide-awake little boy
Who rose at the break of day.

2 were the minutes he took to dress;
Then he was off and away.

3 were his leaps when he cleared the stairs,
Although they were steep and high.

4 was the number which caused his haste,
Because it was Fourth of July.

5 were his pennies which went to buy
A package of crackers red.

6 were the matches which touched them off
And then—he was sick in bed.

7 big plasters he had to wear
To cure his fractures sore.

8 were the visits the doctor made
Before he was whole once more.

9 were the dolorous days he spent
In sorrow and pain; but then

0 are the seconds he'll stop to think
Before he does it again.

[illegible] appointment has yet been made to the vacant seat on the bench of the U. S. Court. It is doubtful whether the subject has yet been much considered. No better selection could be made however, than in the nomination of Secretary Lamar to fill the vacancy. It is well known that Secretary Lamar finds the routine of the Interior Department irksome. On the Supreme Bench he would be more in his element, as well as the right man in the right place.

Or, to speak by the card, of her college days. The president will take another vacation in July as has been reported, but he and his wife will pass most of the summer at their country home just outside the city, where since early in the winter Mrs. Clevland's mother has been comfortably settled.

Cardinal Gibbons, who has been in Washington since last Saturday, is regarded of course, somewhat in the light of a curiosity, but his modest and ascetic appearance, and his quiet and dignified bearing, have disarmed even the most vulgarly curious, and commanded the respect and admiration from every-one. He has been kept busy during his advent, dedicating churches, attending School and College Commencements etc.

The Jubilee of the Queen of Great Britain, and Empress of India, was celebrated in Washington by two events. A grand dinner at the British Legation, and the dedication of the Victoria Memorial Room at the Garfield Hospital. The dinner was attended by members of the Cabinet, all the foreign ministers in town, and the Secretaries of the British Legation as well as Admiral Porter, and several others. The floral decorations were very beautiful, specially so was the adornment of the portrait of the Queen at the head of the grand staircase. From a floral crown at the top of the picture, two streamers of flowers were suspended, one bearing the date of the Queen's ascendency to the throne, 1837, and the other the year of the Jubilee, 1887. A similar ribbon ornamented the bottom of the portrait, bearing the letters V. R. I. in brilliant colors. There was no speechmaking but at the end of the dinner, Secretary Bayard proposed the toast, Good health, long life, and prosperity to Queen Victoria. After the toast was drunk, Minister West proposed the health of the President and these simple ceremonies closed the dinner.

The Society of St. George is the donator of the ward in the Garfield Hospital, in commemoration of the Jubilee. A most useful one, and in remembrance of the sympathy shown by the Queen during President Garfield's last illness, a most appropriate gift. One feature of the dedication exercises was the opening with prayer by Rev. Dr. Giesy, of the Protestent Episcopal Church and the closing with the benediction by Rabbi Stern of the Jewish Synagogue. By virtue of the prayers of the Baptists at the time of the death of Cardinal McClosky, and a Jewish Rabbi, and a Christian clergyman ministering their offices at the same ceremony, America is entitled to a Jubilee of her own, if in fifty years her people can bring the world so near the time of one church, one faith, one baptism. The church, the faith, the Baptism of brotherly love, charity, and religious toleration.

The Civil Service Commission has invited the Secretaries of the different local Civil Service Boards, of the principal cities, to meet on the 24th, of June, in Washington to hold a conference with the purpose of systematizing the form of examinations, in order to make them practically the same in all the larger cities of the United States.

Dr. Hamilton Chief of the Marine Hospital Service expresses the belief that there is no danger of a further spread of the yellow fever, at Key West, Florida. Every precaution having been taken to prevent the spread of the epidemic. The simplest sanitary rules such as are applied to the domestic arrangements of any well ordered household would prevent the origin of the disease. A local law, well enforced, that would keep drains and gutters open and sprinkled with lime or copperas, and yellow fever no longer will be the dreaded pestilence it now is in the cities of the South-east.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Prop's, Toledo, Ohio.

[illegible]

[illegible] all fifteen years that he was rector of the Episcopal church in this village. From here he went successively to Buffalo, LeRoy, Jamestown and Honeoye Falls where he has been located for about two years. He had been for many years Secretary of the convention of the Western Diocese of New York state. He was a most learned classical scholar and while in Fulton prepared several young men for college. He had the respect of all, old and young, rich and poor with whom he came in contact. He was taken sick about five months ago and was taken to Rochester for treatment but it proved of no avail. The remains were brought here by two vestrymen of his church, who were met at Syracuse by Mr. W.S. Nelson. A number of vestrymen and brother masons in this village followed the remains from the depot to the grave which had been lined with evergreens and the mound covered with ferns and flowers by the ladies of the church. Rev. Mr. Goodyear officiated at the grave. The wife, son and daughter of the deceased remained at the home of Mr. Nelson until yesterday morning when they returned.

Died June 22, 1887, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Adaline Baker, Syracuse, Mrs. Polly, widow of the late Daniel Spencer, of this town, who died in 1861. She was twice married, her first husband, John McIntyre, died about 1849 in this village, leaving a daughter and son, Mrs. Henry V. Spencer, of Mexico, and Fred M. McIntyre of this village. By her last husband she leaves two daughters, Mrs. G. W. Morton and Mrs. Frank M. Baker, of Syracuse. She was born in this town in 1816 and had resided here nearly to the the time of her death. Her funeral was held from the residence of her daughter and son-in law, G. W. Morton on Academy street on last Saturday afternoon and the remains were deposited in Mt. Adnah. She was the kindest of mothers and a most estimable woman. Rev. J. C. Grumbine Syracuse conducted the services. The text was: "He Giveth His Beloved Rest."

Frederick M. McIntyre, the oldest son who had been confined to his room for many weeks by serious sickness was able to ride from his residence at Oswego Falls and be present at the funeral of his mother, whom he had not seen for about four months previous to her death.

There were many beautiful florial offerings sent by friends and provided by the children. The bearers were H. V. Spencer stepson, Frank Baker, G. W. Morton, sons-in-law, Fred Spencer and John McIntyre, nephews. The little great grand children each threw into the grave beautiful bouquets of flowers, made the more touching by their timidity and the tears in their eyes.

Mrs. Jane Maria, widow of the late S. N. Kenyon, died at her home in this village on Thursday, June 23, in the 72d year of her age. Mrs. Kenyon outlived her husband just four months. For the past four weeks all hopes of her recovery were abandoned. The funeral services, were conducted by Rev. Mr. Lockwood of St. Paul's church, Syracuse and Rev. Mr. Goodyear of this village. A choir consisting of N. H. Gilbert C. M. Allen, Miss Cora Foster, Miss Gertrude Dada, and Mrs. Mattie Howe, organist, were present. The pall bearers were relatives of the deceased. Mrs. Kenyon had lived in Fulton sixty-nine years, coming here from Connecticut when a mere child. Four daughters and three sons survive her: Mrs. Harmon, Cleveland, Ohio; Mrs. Gorham, New York: Mrs. Bannester, Pittsburg, Pa.; Genevieve Kenyon, Fulton; Joseph Kenyon, New York; G. G. Kenyon and G. M. Kenyon of Syracuse. There are also one sister and one brother Miss Martha Chesbro and James M. Chesbro.

Simeon Reed formerly of this town died at his late home in Plainville, Thursday of congestion of the lungs. The funeral arrangements were under the charge of the A. O. U. W. of which order the deceased was a member, and was held Sunday, the Rev. Mr. Mace officiating. A number of relatives and friends from this village were present.

Mrs. Jasper Whitcomb died at her home in South Granby Friday, June 24, aged 69 years. Funeral services were held on Sunday at the house, the Rev. Chas. Olmstead officiating. Interment was made at Jacksonville. She leaves eight children.

Mrs. Sarah S. Reynolds died June 28, 1887, at the residence of her brother Ambrose N. Parmiter, aged 68 years, after a long and painful illness. The funeral services will be held from the house on Thursday at 2 o'clock p. m., Rev. W. D. Chase officiating.

The remains of Solomon Larrabee, aged 24 years, a former resident of the town of Volney, were brought from Oneida, yesterday, and buried at North Volney.

Cheese Market.

[From the Utica Herald].

AT UTICA.

UTICA, N. Y June 27.

The market presented a much firmer front to-day, and cheese men looked happier than for some time past. Although they have no strong faith in prices, they are glad of the change. Transactions to-day aggregate more than ever before in a single day on this market. If the rest of the country sells correspondingly, receipts in New York will be large. Factorymen all thought it a good day to sell and take advantage of the prices. Some of them believed that these rates had come to stay, but more were of the opinion that it would take another week to determine that question. If there should be no decline next week, and present prices should be fully maintained, salesmen would make up their minds that the lowest point of the season had passed. This week there is really a beginning of shrinkage. Nearly every factory has shrunk one cheese, and from that they range up to a shrinkage of four. In the western part of the country it is getting pretty dry, and the farther west one goes the dryer it is. From Chittenango to Syracuse where there is usually plenty of grass, the fields are becoming quite brown. In a week more the shrinkage all over this territory will have become pronounced. Perhaps it may be no more than the natural reduction, but that would be increased if the pastures should fall short.

Following are the transactions of the day:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price.
2	450	7¾
17	2,076	8
71	7,895	8¼
14	1,080	8⅜
22	3,122	8½
12	1,422	8⅝
133	16,054
	2,116	Com.
Total	18,220

Ruling price 8¼c. Transactions one year ago 16,282, ruling 7¾c. Two years ago 16,158, ruling 8⅛c. The heaviest transactions ever before known on this board took place June 30, 1879. They were 17,488 boxes, the average price being 5⅜c.

AT LITTLE FALLS.

LITTLE FALLS, June 27.

Cheese—The market opened quite dull and it is thought that trade would be slow. But ere long competition sprang up on some of the finest lots and business soon became lively. It was thought at first that prices would show just about the same as last week, but we find many factories that obtained ¼c more, and there is almost ¼c advance on the average. But the ruling price remains the same as last week, 8c. Factories represented here have, it is estimated, sold to about June 12. The cheese is of fine quality, as a rule, and as the weather is cool it is likely to so continue. Following is the list of sales:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price
1	32	7¼cents
11	789	7¾cents
69	4,712	8 cents
33	2,642	8¼cents
10	1,018	8½cents
3	263	8¾cents
9	675	Com.
136	10,131
Farm dairy	908
	11,039

Farm daries—There was a good trade on the morning market, but the prices are a little disappointing to some. Sales are 908 boxes at 7½@8¼c; but one or two lots brought the latter price, the bulk selling at 7c.

As next Monday is the fourth, there will be but little, if any, dairy cheese sold, as the Central cheese freight house will be closed, and the cheese can not be delivered till Tuesday.

Butter—Sales of 30 packages of creamery were made at 18c., and 37 packages farm dairy sold at 18@19c., most at 18c.

AT FULTON.

Twenty-two factories were represented at this market on last Monday evening and 2,332 boxes sold, which brought 8¼ cents. Utica ruling 8¼ cents. One year ago the ruling was 7¼ cents.

[illegible] academy [illegible] exercises of [illegible]

Basket after basket of beautiful flowers, which later the graduates made the recipients of, were arranged in front of the stage, while ferns, plants and flowers placed here and there took away the monotonous appearance of the bare walls. The audience that was present on this occasion comfortably filled all parts of the opera house. The stage was occupied by the Board of Education, Rev. J. C. Breaker, Prof. B. G. Clapp, Rev. W. J. Earley, William Waugh, esq., and D. D. Metcalf, School Commissioner of the district. After the overture by Gaylord's orchestra of Syracuse, the exercises opened with an earnest prayer by Rev. Mr. Breaker.

Homer P. Marsh was the first speaker which is considered the hardest position to fill, but this young gentleman was fully equal to the emergency and in a clear and distinct manner treated his subject, "The Life of Trade." He made a fine impression and many consider that he should have been awarded one of the prizes.

Dee W. Pierce had for the subject of his oration "Monuments" which he handled in an able manner. The oration was delivered in a slow and impressive manner and was well received.

"Curiosity" was the subject of the oration by Harry B. Butler. His easy appearance made all feel that he was perfectly at home on the rostrum. Before he had finished an alarm of fire was sounded which startled all present, but with rare skill he held their attention to the end. He was awarded the first prize.

There is always something about a young lady graduate that is pleasing and entertaining as she takes part in commencement exercises. Miss Edith E. Emens appearance was therefore looked forward to with a certain degree of expectancy as the first of the young ladies to appear. Her manner was easy and graceful, her articulation fine and her essay well written.

Willard H. Ball showed that he possesed an excellent knowledge of present events in treating the subject "Our National Debt." Many considered that this was one of the best written orations of the evening.

"Navigation, Past and Present" was the subject of E. Raleigh Mosher's oration and one could not but become interested as he spoke of the advancements that had been made in this art, if it can be so called. He also touched on what might be expected in the future if improvements should continue. Mr. Mosher showed himself to be an effective speaker.

J. H. Phillips gave a fine oration on "Should the Inventor Monopolize his Inventions." No little thought was manifest in his oration. His well modulated voice and gestures brought out nicely the many good points he made.

The essay of Miss Ellen M. Royce, "The Work Proclaims the Workman," was unquestionably one of the finest productions of the evening. It was not only intelligently written but nicely delivered and did great credit to this young lady, the leader of her class.

An intelligent oration, "Cicero vs Burke," was given by Edward A. Merriam, who showed himself thoroughly at home in treating his subject. His oration was so well written and delivered that many present considered that one of the prizes was surely his.

Louis W. Emerick, who leads the young men of the class in scholarship, was awarded the second prize. His subject was "Executive Ability." He has a smooth and pleasing voice and well knows how to use it. His oration showed excellent thought and was expressed in choice language.

The music with which the exercises were interspersed was exceedingly fine.

F. E. Bacon, esq., president of the Board of Education, made an appropriate address to the graduating class which collected on the stage, and in behalf of the Board presented them with their diplomas. After which Prof. Rounds of the Sandy Creek academy on behalf of the committee announced that the prizes had been awarded to the competitors above mentioned.

NOTES.

Prof. A. J. Rounds of Sandy Creek, Prof. H. R. Fancher of Mexico and Prof. A. H. Treadwell of Oswego were the judges.

The officers of the class were Louis W. Emerick, President; Harry B. Butler, Vice President; Willard H. Ball, Sec'y and Treas.

Little Kittie Lathrop and Guy Pratt presented each a basket of flowers when they had finished their oration or essay.

The class were entertained at the home of Louis Emerick on First street after the entertainment.

The first prize was a five dollar gold piece, the second prize three dollars.

The young ladies in the class declined to compete for the prizes offered by the Board of Education and Prof. Clapp as there were only two of them and they did not wish to compete against each other.

There were seven pieces in Gaylord's orchestra. Their selections and music gave universal satisfaction.

The diplomas awarded to the graduates were beautifully printed on parchment paper. That of Miss Royce was on genuine vellum, a distinction awarded to the student with the best scholarship record.

[illegible] CELEBRATION!

$250 in Prizes—Grand Parade Mardi Gras Carnival—Sports— Excellent Music—Oration— Addresses—Fireworks, &c. &c. &c.

Fulton is to Celebrate the Fourth in a way that it never before was celebrated in this village. The grand parade in the morning will be well worth coming many miles to see. The Grand Army of the Republic, Sons of Veterans, Firemen, Good Templars, Father Mathew Societies, Knights of Labor, Children representing the different states, Juvenile Knights, Merchants' advertising chariots, all of the orgaizations, not only from this village but from other places. The extensive scale in which the Guyastocitus procession will be made up, will constitute one of the many attractions of the day. Bands from Oswego, Hannibal, Hannibal Centre, Fulton and other places are expected to take part.

After the parade at the village park an address of Welcome will be delivered by Rev. Father Earley; Oration by John W. Shea Esq of Pulaski; Reading of the Declaraation of Independence by Miss Sarah Warner; Prayer by the Rev. Mr. Palmer.

$250. are offered in prizes. There will be Hose, Bicycle, Sack, Boat, Foot, Tub, Wheelbarrow and other Races. Shinny, Base, and Foot Ball and many other Games and Amusements.

Prof. Kane, the professional Gymnast, Ballonist and Tight Rope Walker, will give an exhibition on the street.

There will be a grand chorus under the charge of Prof. J. F. Cooper and a Grand Display of Fireworks in the evening.

Fulton will put on its holiday attire and the streets will be crowded with people as it has not been before in many a day.

NOTES.

The procession will form on First street, facing north, the right resting on Rochester street at 10 o'clock led by the G. A. R. C. S. MURPHY,
Marshal of the Day.

The soliciting committee to collect funds are M. F. Crahan, John M. Fosters C. F. More, T. F. Murphy and C. V. Murphy. The treasurer is Wm. Waugh.

The line of march will not be long and will be announced on small bills tomorrow or Friday.

The merchants are making great efforts to surpass each other in the make up of their advertising chariots.

$10 in prizes is to be distributed among those that present the most unique appearance in the Guyasticutus procession. It will probably be divided into three prizes.

Fire at the R. W. & O. Mills.

An alarm of fire shortly before nine o'clock last Friday evening, called out the entire Fulton and Oswego Falls fire departments. Baker Hose, attached to a hydrant near the factory, was the only company that had a stream on the fire, but other hose were laid and every thing made ready in case their services were required.

The origin of the fire was precicely similar to that which occurred a few weeks ago and in a drying room directly underneath. A serious conflagation was prevented by the use of the Water Works hydrants. The damage was small, amounting to only about $200.

Easy When You Know It.

[illegible] of the G. A. R. [illegible] vanila in a [illegible] from which nectar was drawn, to the mind of average intelligence would readily be recognized as an error of the typesetter; more especially if they were readers of the Patriot and Gazette.

We are glad to know that his brain is not so densely befogged that he cannot with his "mind's eye" recognize the goddess in checked aprons, (which they wear when "on hospital thoughts intent" they come to the aid of mortals) from Mount Olympus.

We have no doubt if some of the fair nymphs had extended to him an invitation to be present on that very enjoyable occasion, the mist would have cleared away from his brain, and he would have found the nectar and ambrosia not at all "fishy," but would have enjoyed them with his usual gusto, and would have realized that "aqueous pabulum" was more conductive to clear headedness, than many other kinds of viands concocted this side of Olympus, and perhaps he might also have appreciated the "eloquent words of wisdom," as they fell from the lips of the clergy and others.

Drowned in the Oswego River.

Vell C. Reynolds, a young man about eighteen years of age a student of No. 2 school was drowned between 12 and 1 o'clock to-day while bathing in the river near his home two miles down the river. He was the son of the late Fowler Reynolds and is the last of the family. His body has been found. On the death of his mother last fall, J. H. Langdon of Oswego Falls was appointed his guardian.

Closing Exercises No. 1 School.

The closing exercises of No. 1 were held at Stephens Opera House last Wednesday evening. A large audience composed of patrons of the school, and the many friends of the students assembled. Along the front of the stage were placed numerous large basket bouquets, with banks of flowers and ferns at each side. The program published in THE TIMES last week, was well received and many pieces warmly applauded. One of the best things perhaps, was "The Canvasser," everybody has had experience with a book agent, and if they have never had their patience tried to the extent exhibited in this piece, moving the importuned and distracted individual, to the use of firearms, they could wish at times that this importunate person might be thus treated. The agent acted his part well and would succeed in this same work should he ever try it. Miss Lomasney, treated the downward course of the inebriate, drawing a vivid picture of the drunkard's home, and pleading in eloquent terms for the stay of the destroyer. The school dialogue was well acted and well received. Music by the school, by a male quartet a solo by N. H. Gilbert, piano solo by Miss F. Bogue, were interposed and added to the entertainment. The closing piece was, Howell's amusing farce "The Mouse Trap," which at times convulsed the audience, but its effectiveness is somewhat lessened by too lengthy dialogue, while the looks of the frightened visitors, perched on stools and tables appealed for the curtain to fall. The exhibition as a whole did credit to the school and instructors, Mr. J. F. Cooper, principal, is faithful and pains-taking in all ways and in connection with his able assistants has made No. 1 a model school.

[illegible] customers will find it [illegible] we have just opened a large lot of [illegible] material for [illegible] can be more easily [illegible] with less labor.

[illegible] allow a newly planted [illegible] to bear but a single shoot. [illegible] young vines to over-bear. [illegible] to a cane are enough.

[illegible] be ready to cut a field as [illegible] grass is in proper condition; [illegible] of a few days will greatly injure [illegible] quality of the hay. Do not start the [illegible] until the dew is off, and cut only [illegible] as can be well cured and cared [illegible]. Hay caps often pay for their cost in a single season.

The harrow should follow closely after the plow, especially in hot, drying weather. The soil on the newly-turned furrow is exposed to the air and the warmth of the sun, and dries out quickly. Early in the spring this is beneficial, but later it becomes and continues to be a disadvantage through the warmest weather.

If you make good butter do not hesitate to let it be known that it is your product. When you are manufacturing a prime article it is a matter of satisfaction as well as of profit to connect your name with it wherever it is sold. A reputation established in this way is worth solid cents per pound difference on all the butter which leaves the farm.

Many of the new varieties of grain coming on the market from time to time are, in fact, old sorts under a new name, or improvements upon old sorts so slight as to leave the principal characteristics unchanged. Especially is this the case with wheat, of which, while an endless number of brands are before the public, there are, after all, but a few distinct types.

The number of acres that one man can properly cultivate in corn depends greatly upon the kind of land he cultivates, and the kind of season. It is the boast of some farmers that they can and do farm forty, fifty and even more acres of corn for each hand employed. This may be done, and yet be nothing to boast of when the manner in which the corn is cultivated is taken into consideration.

It is not what cows can be made to do in brief tests, or in spurts, that counts for profit. It is the "long haul" at the milk pail and churn that determines just how valuable a cow or a diary herd may be to the owner. J. C. McClintock, of Crawford county, Pennsylvania, made 4,097 pounds of butter from thirteen pure-bred Jersey cows in the year ending April 1, 1887—an average of a little over 315 pounds per cow.

Live Stock in July.

Horses at hard work need special care, both in food and general treatment. They cannot do hard work on grass alone, and should have a proper ration of oats. An occasional washing, in addition to currying and brushing will keep the coat in good order. Use a cotton sheet to keep off flies. Water frequently and they will not drink to excess. Clean and sweet stables promote the health of the animals.

Cows often suffer from excessive heat while at pasture. Every pasture should have shade. If there are no trees make a shelter: a roof set upon stakes, and thatched with brush, will answer a good purpose. If a cow is sunstruck, while in full flow, the amount of milk is greatly diminished, if not stopped altogether and is rarely restored.

Sheep should have access to water, and be provided with shade; give salt frequently.

Young pigs require little beyond a clover pasture. Those intended for early market should have extra feed.

Hens set after this month rarely succeed with their brood. The poultry house needs special care in hot weather to keep it clear of vermin. White-wash the sides and floor, applying kerosene to the roosts, and provide dust boxes.

Feed turkeys daily enough to induce them to return home regulary at night. —American Agriculturist.

Packing Eggs For Shipment.

Considerable experience has taught us says an Orange county farmer, that excelsior (the fine, soft shavings used by upholsters in packing furniture) is the best material in which to wrap eggs for shipment, and that a light basket is the [illegible] package in which to ship them. [illegible]-six eggs, weighing four pounds, [illegible] packed into a cubical cedar basket [illegible] holding but little over a peck, and [illegible] heavy canvas cover is sewed on [illegible] whole affair need not, should not [illegible] over seven pounds, and with [illegible] care will go from Maine to California without breaking.

Prominent People.

Omaha Man—I see that Corcoran, the [illegible] philanthropist, has been stricken with [illegible] and has a slim chance of re[illegible].

[illegible] Man—Well, that's too bad; [illegible] hasn't kept his record lately; I [illegible] he ought never to have left [illegible].

[illegible] Man—Left Chicago! Did [illegible] banker ever live there?

[illegible] Man (in disgust)—Oh, I [illegible] meant Larry Corcoran, who [illegible] for the Chicago nine.—[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] undertaken a [illegible] at college. [illegible]

[illegible] make it attractive for the children. The parents' aim has been to work and save, with scarcely a thought that their children had any other needs than food and clothing. They are active, bright minded boys and girls. It is no wonder that the dullness and monotony becomes unendurable.

The farmer does not hesitate to spend money in farm improvements, fine stock, or anything that will advance his financial interest; but any outlay for the children's pleasure is regarded as unnecessary and extravagant.

Children cannot feel that sense of proprietorship in the farm and its profits that is a stimulant to the heads of the household, and something is needed to take its place. Some personal property, even if a chicken or a pig, it a strong incentive. Children are sportive by nature—all young animals are—and some diversion is incential for leisure hours; otherwise their minds will wander off and dwell on the attractions supposed to pertain to village and city life.

A few dollars each year invested in reading matter will not only supply pleasant employment for leisure hours but the means of mental improvement as well. There are so many excellent, entertaining publications for the young, and at such low prices, that no family in which there are children should be without one or more. But parents should discriminate carefully between a good and a bad class of reading matter for there is a large amount of a flashy, sensational character, wholly unfit for the young to read.

There is no reason why the country home should not be a place of pleasure and contentment to every member. There is a freshness and freedom in farm life that cannot be enjoyed when a person is surrounded by brick walls. With pleasant and mental recreation for leisure hours there need be no unhappy memories of the farm to carry through life.—American Agriculturist.

The Comic Paper.

It is not often that a woman buys a comic paper to read on an elevated car but when she does it is curious to observe her. She looks as solemn as though she were reading the obituary of a near and dear friend. She glanced at the cartoon on the first page to commence with, and after a feeble attempt to comprehend, it she turns to the last page and reads very carefully an advertisement of some new style of corset. Then she opens anywhere, and looks at a comic picture with out reading the accompanying description, and reads the inscription of another illustration without looking at the picture.

She pursues a mild squib on women, and her lips curl with gentle scorn, while her lips move as though she were saying: "He thinks he's smart, doesn't he?" She forgets her momentary resentment, however in going over a reading notice (top of column, next to pure reading matter) of a preparation to beautify the female complexion. She finally strikes a patent-medicine portrait, and tosses her head as if to say: "I've seen that picture in lots of papers before, and it ain't a bit funny. Thought this paper claimed to be original."

After looking in vain for a department of marriages and deaths, she seems to hesitate about throwing the paper away or keeping it, and finally folds it up carefully and puts it away in her hand-bag, thinking that some of the "men folks" at home might like to look at it. —Texas Siftings.

ENJOY LIFE.

What a truly beautiful world we live in! Nature gives us grandeur of mountains, glens and oceans, and thousands of means of enjoyment. We can desire no better when in perfect health; but how often do the majority of people feel like giving it up disheartened, discouraged and worn out with disease, when there is no occasion for this feeling, as every sufferer can easily obtain satisfactory proof, that Green's August Flower, will make them free from disease, as when born. Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint are the direct cause of seventy-five per cent. of such maladies as Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Nervous Prostration, Dizziness of the Head, Palpitation of the Heart, and other distressing symptoms. Three doses of August Flower will prove its wonderful effect. Sample bottles, 10 cents. Try it. cow

Ayer's Pills cured me of Stomach and Liver troubles, from which I had suffered for years. I consider them the best pills made, and would not be without them.— Morris Gates, Downsville, N. Y.

I was attacked with Bilious Fever, which was followed by Jaundice, and was so dangerously ill that my friends despaired of my recovery. I commenced taking Ayer's Pills, and soon regained my customary strength and vigor.—John C. Pattison, Lowell, Nebraska.

Last spring I suffered greatly from a troublesome humor on my side. In spite of every effort to cure this eruption, it increased until the flesh became entirely raw. I was troubled, at the same time, with Indigestion, and distressing pains in

The Bowels.

By the advice of a friend I began taking Ayer's Pills. In a short time I was free from pain, my food digested properly, the sores on my body commenced healing, and, in less than one month, I was cured. —Samuel D. White, Atlanta, Ga.

I have long used Ayer's Pills, in my family, and believe them to be the best pills made.—S. C. Darden, Darden, Miss.

My wife and little girl were taken with Dysentery a few days ago, and I at once began giving them small doses of Ayer's Pills, thinking I would call a doctor if the disease became any worse. In a short time the bloody discharges stopped, all pain went away, and health was restored. —Theodore Esling, Richmond, Va.

How to Gain Flesh and Strength.

Use after each meal Scott's Emulsion; it is as palatable as milk and easily digested. Delicate people improve rapidly with its use. For Consumption, Throat affections and Bronchitis it is unequalled. Dr. Thomas Prim, Ala., says: "I used Scott's Emulsion on a child eight months old; he gained four pounds in a month."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Are you disturbed a night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the pain of Cutting Teeth? If so send at once and get a bottle of "Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers; there is no mistake about it. It cures Dysentery and Diarrhœa, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, cures Wind Colic, softens the Gums, reduces Inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for children teething is pleasant to the taste and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP." 51y1

SUPREME COURT—OSWEGO COUNTY. Nellie E. Sears vs. John A. Judkins, Sally Ann Merrill, Frank Eugene Lewis, Ida May Lewis, Charlotte Grace Lewis, Josephine Hethington and Alice Hethington,

In pursuance of an order of the Supreme Court, made in the above entitled action, dated May 7th, 1887, the undersigned referee in partition, will sell in separate lots, at public auction to the highest bidder, at the law office of C. H. David, in the Village of Fulton, in the county of Oswego, on the 23d day of June, 1887, at 11 o'clock a. m., all those pieces or parcels of land, situate in the county of Oswego, and described as follows;

PARCEL No. 1.—All that tract or parcel of land situate in the Village of Fulton, N. Y., being part of Lot 9, of Block 30, of said village, is bounded as follows, viz.: on the east by First Street; on the south by lands of N. R. Cole; on the west by the Oswego canal; and on the north by lands of J. E. Miller. Subject however to the right of N. R. Cole, his heirs and assigns to build in the south wall of the brick building on said premises, as conveyed to said Cole by Beekman G. Fuller and wife, by deed dated March 3d, 1876, and recorded in Oswego County Clerk's Office, March 13, 1876, in Book 156 of Deeds at page 489. Also subject to the right of James E. Miller, his heirs or assigns to build into or upon the north wall of said brick building on said premises, as conveyed to said Miller by W. S. Hethington and wife by deed dated May 16, 1885, and recorded in Oswego County Clerk's Office, May 16, 1885, in Book 166 of Deeds, at page 530.

Also, all that tract or parcel of land, situate in the Village of Oswego Falls, N. Y., and being a part of Lot 74, of the original Township of Hannibal, is bounded and described as follows, viz.: Four rods off from the north end of Lot 4 and 4 rods off from the north end of the east half of Lot 3, on Block 2, according to a map made by G. D. Ball, for the heirs of John I. Walradt, deceased. Said parcel being 4 rods front on Second street and 6 rods deep, together with all the estate, right, title and interest of the parties to this suit therein, whether present or future, vested or contingent, of dower, courtesy or otherwise.

Ten per cent. of the purchase money of said premises will be required to be paid to the said referee, at the time and place of sale. The residue of said purchase money will be required to be paid said referee at his office, in Fulton, N. Y., when the said referee's deeds of said premises shall be ready for delivery.

Dated May 11, 1887.

W. C. STEPHENS, Referee.

FORECLOSURE SALE.
SUPREME COURT—OSWEGO COUNTY.

The Fulton Savings Bank vs. William Howland and others. By virtue of a judgment and decree of foreclosure and sale made in the above entitled action at a special term of the Supreme Court held at the Court House in the Village of Pulaski, N. Y., on the 17th day of June, 1887, and duly filed and entered in the clerk's office of Oswego county, on the 20th, day of June, 1887. I the undersigned, Sheriff of Oswego county, to whom it was referred in and by said judgment and decree to make such sale, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder at the law office of Piper & VanWagenen, in the Village of Fulton, Oswego County, New York, on the 6th day of August, 1887, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day the mortgaged premises in and by said judgment and decree directed to be sold and described therein as follows, to wit: All that tract or parcel of land situate in the Town of Hannibal, County of Oswego and State of New York, known and distinguished as being a part of Lots No. 99, and One Hundred and bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a stake and stones standing fifteen chains and thirty-seven links east from the south east corner of lands owned by Alexander Scott on said lot 99 running south twenty-eight degrees east five chains and twenty-five links to the center of the road; thence south fifty-one degrees west in the center of said road fourteen chains and twenty-five links to the south-east corner of lands owned by Augustus S. Gardner, on said Lot 100; thence north twenty-one degrees west fifteen chains and seventy-six links to a stake and stones on the north line of said Lot 100 and in the south-east corner of said Scott's land; thence north thirty-one chains to a stake; thence east eight chains and twenty-two links to a stake; thence south sixteen chains and seventy-six links to a stake and stones; thence south twenty-eight degrees east fifteen chains and ninety-four links to the place of beginning, containing Forty-five acres of land. Also all that other piece or parcel of land situate in said town, county and state, and being part of the same lots in said town and bounded as follows: Beginning in the center of the road and in the south-east corner of lands above described; thence north eight degrees west twenty-one chains and twenty links to a stake; thence north six chains and sixty-eight links to a stake; thence east two chains and thirty links to a stake; thence south twenty-two and one-half degrees east to the center of the road; thence south fifty-one degrees west two chains and seventy-five links to the place of beginning, containing six and three-fourths acres of land. Also another parcel of land situate in the said above named town, county and state and being a part of said Lot 99, of said town bounded as follows: Beginning at a stake in the south-east corner of subdivision No. 2, of said Lot; thence north sixteen chains and eighty-four links to a stake; thence west sixteen chains and seventy links to a stake in the west line of said subdivision; thence south sixteen chains and eighty-four links to the south line of said Lot; thence east sixteen chains and seventy links to the said place of beginning, containing twenty-eight acres of land.

Not As I Will.

[illegible] and alone I stand,
[illegible] thresholds on each hand;
[illegible] deepens as I grope—
[illegible] to fear, afraid to hope;
[illegible] one thing I learn to know
[illegible] day more surely as I go,
[illegible] doors are opened, ways are made,
[illegible] are lifted or are laid
By some great law unseen and still,
Unfathomed purpose to fulfill.
"Not as I will."

Blindfolded and alone I wait;
Loss seems too bitter, gain to late;
Too heavy burdens in the load,
And too few helpers on the road;
And joy is weak and grief is strong,
And years and days so long, so long;
Yet this one thing I learn to know
Each day more surely as I go,
That I am glad the good and ill
By changeless laws are ordered still,
"Not as I will."

"Not as I will!" the sound grows sweet
Each time my lips the words repeat;
"Not as I will," the darkness feels
More safe than light when this thought steals
Like whispered voice to calm and bless
All unrest and all loneliness.
"Not as I will," because the One
Who loved us first and last has gone
Before us on the road, and still;
For us must all his love fulfill—
"Not as we will."
—Helen Hunt Jackson.

Our Amanuensis.

Dainty hands, ne'er made for work,
Has our pretty short-hand clerk;
And her eyes—
Gray, but tender as a dove—
Eyes that one can't help but love;
She's a prize.

How she makes the type-keys jump,
And my poor heart wildly thump,
As I look,
On her form my optic dotes,
As she bends to read the notes
In her book.

Gentle, patient, always kind.
(Though somewhat to fun inclined—Quiet way.)
Firm don't like her worth a sou,
For she does not aught but chew
Gum all day.—Puck.

What Constitutes a Home.

Home's not merely four square walls,
Though with pictures hung and gilded;
Home is where affection calls,
Filled with shrines the heart hath builded!
Home! go watch the faithful dove—
Sailing 'neath the heavens above us;
Home is where there's one to love!
Home is where there's one to love us!

Home's not merely roof and room;
It needs something to endear it.
Home is where the heart can bloom,
Where there's some kind lip to cheer it!
What is home with none to meet!
None to welcome, none to greet us!
Home is sweet, and only sweet,
Where there's one we love to meet us!

THE PROPER THING.

Among cotton goods, sateens and ginghams are most in favor.

Pretty bodices are made of black or white ribbons and lace.

Ribbons are in great favor this season for brightening lace or muslin dresses.

With a gathered waist narrow ribbon forms a belt and there is a wide sash behind.

Sheer lawns are in solid colors with tiny specks or embroidered dots all over them.

Lace garments that have long been laid aside are now being used in making lace dresses.

Yoke waists gathered to a belt and yoke basques are seen in stylishly made gingham dresses.

A black lace dress may be mounted without lining and worn over different silk skirts and bodices.

Satteens in dark shades of blue, heliotrope or brown are liked; ginghams are chosen in light colors.

A great deal of black ribbon is used alternately with lace insertion to form the entire fronts of skirts.

The fancy for white skirts with dark overdresses is seen in rich fabrics as well as in the more inexpensive materials.

Sailor hats of felt are brought out for summer use in the country. They are shown in white, navy blue and dark red.

Sprigged muslins show bunches of heliotrope or of sweet-peas or carnations on white grounds that have small dots wrought all over them.

Carter's Little Liver Pills may well be termed "Perfection." Their gentle action and good effect on the system really make it a perfect little pill. They please those who use them.

Commendation for those Sandy Creek Graduates.

The example set by those Sandy Creek girls in wearing calico gowns on commencenent day, continues to receive high commendations from the press. The Rochester Post-Express says: "The The young ladies who were graduated this year at Sandy Creek Acrdemy in Oswego county wore calico gowns. In this case it is not the gown that makes the girl but the girl who makes the gown." The Kingston Freeman has this: "At the recent commencement exercises of the high school at Sandy Creek, Oswego county, the girls of the graduating class wore calico dresses simply and neatly made. * * * If the practice becomes permanent at Sandy Creek it will doubtless increase the number of 'sweet girl graduates.' The graduation ordeal is too often looked forward to with dread by the daughters of poor people, because, no matter how brilliantly they may shine in the intellectual exercises, they expect to be eclipsed in [illegible]

A WEEK'S RECREATION.

A Pleasant and Cheap Way of Passing a Short Vacation—Two Days at the Park or Bay—A Trip Down the St. Lawrence—Two Days at Montreal—One Day at Ottawa—Over Four Hundred Miles of River Scenery—The Famous Rideau Lakes.

[Special to THE TIMES].

No finer trip can be made than to leave Fulton on the 1:19 train over the R. W. & O. road, arrive at Clayton at 6:15, board the waiting steamer for Thousand Island Park, reaching there a half hour later. Sunday can be spent at the Bay. In the evening or any time before 4 a. m. Monday morning take passage on the new iron steamer "Ella Ross," W. Garret, Captain and Proprietor, an ellegant little steamer built especially for passenger traffic and running betwen Kingston and Montreal, lying at Thousand Island Park every Sunday. After leaving Alexandria Bay the scenery as far as Brockville is very similar to that of the Islands, the river being thickly strewn with islands of a rocky nature, covered with evergreens and rich foliage; further down the soil becomes more fertile and cultivated and the shores are dotted with villages on the American and Canadian sides. The early morning air on this beautiful river is so exhilorating that one forgets the passing time, and before we know it Ogdensburg and Prescott are passed. Here a little back on high ground still stands the noted old "wind mill," a thick walled tower whose front shows the deep scars made by the shot thrown by a man-o-war sent by the Dominion government to quell the rebellion of 1838.

The first or Galoup rapids are reached near one o'clock. Soon after the most excellent dinner has been served and so we judge, enjoyed by all. They are not so grand as those seen later, but serve to prepare the excursionist for more exciting sights. In a short time the long rapids near Morrisburg are reached. These are continuous for five miles and the river full of curves, but the skilful pilot of 38 years experience, with his trusty aid guides the "Ella Ross" down and through the rushing angry current with all steam on at a rate of 30 miles an hour. We then pass into lake St. Francis, which is simply a widening of the St. Lawrence, soon after we reach the Coteau rapids, some two miles in length. Seven miles lower we enter the Cedars, the most exciting race yet experienced. The steamer is tossed about like a toy on the waves—what seems like breakers strikes the bow, and the blue waters are lifted high up falling upon the excited crowd—A few moments later the eye scans a long line of color quite different from the prevailing green. It is the brown water of Ottawa river which refuses to mix with the St. Lawrence. We now come to the last of this series of rapids, called the Cascade rapids. These present a beautiful sight from the numerous white crests foaming on the surface of the dark blue waters. A magnificent view of the Montreal mountain is here seen, some thirty miles distant.

The next point of interest is the entrance to the Lachine canal. Here we have a fine view of the new steel bridge of the Canada Pacific R. R., just nearing completion and said to be the finest piece of architectural work and engineering skill in Canada and next to Brooklyn bridge in the world. The run of seven miles down the canal is quickly made and Montreal is first seen by electric light.

Montreal is too well known to need description. Mount Royal, rising 700 feet above the river has a park on its top occupying 430 acres. The view from this eminence is very grand. The spires of many of its 75 churches and cathedrals could be readily see. This outlook is the grandest and city can boast of. We visited Notre Dame cathedral, the yet unfinished St. Perer's —built in exact style of St. Peter's in Rome—a dozen other places and sights too numerous to mention, the ride lasting three hours and costing but 75 cents each. Wednesday morning we visited factories, rolling mills, the Allen line of steamers, one of which was in port, the Winsor hotel and the Richelieu, while the ladies did some shopping. The "Ella Ross" lay in close proximity until one o'clock Wednesday.

The return trip is made, much of it over a different route. Up the Ottawa river, passing the picturesque village of St. Annis, the Indian town Oka, Mount Calvary, with its seven famous chapels built more than 100 years ago, St. Regis and the Carillon Dam, besides running the great timber slides of the Ottawa river. In the evening the merry music makers enjoy the new upright piano in the main saloon. Ottawa is reached Thursday afternoon. We visit the parliament buildings and grounds so well known throughout the country, but by us seen for the first time. They are unique in style and unlike any public buildings we know of—built after the Italian style of architecture. The view from the park in the rear of the buildings is a very fine one, while upon the opposite side of the river looms up the "City of Lumber." The population of Ottawa is 30,000 principal hotels The Russell, Grand Union and Winsor. Leaving here Friday morning we proceed through the Rideau [illegible] lakes toward Kingston. The [illegible] him at the wharf and escorted him to his pleasant home, where he spent an hour or two with his family. The route to Kingston is full of interest and the city reached at 2 p. m. Saturday we pass Gananoqua, reaching Thousand Island Park in the early evening but remain on board or go ashore as we like for Sabbath.

NOTES.

Among the passengers were several Canadian editors and large manufacturers who made a jolly crowd.

At Smith Falls, Captain Garrett's home, a number of passengers, among them your correspondent, were invited to visit his charming home and family.

In the easy acquaintance of the passengers, a more social party it has seldom been our fortune to meet and the round trip on the "Ella Ross" will long be remembered.

One of the ladies asked the genial captain whom he had named his steamer after. He replied: "The best woman in Canada." The sequel showed it to be Mrs. Garrett—Ella Ross being her maiden name.

Pleasure seekers, or any desiring a few days' recreation, at a limited cost, will find this a most enjoyable trip. Any one who can take "a week off" will find the largest amount of rest, recreation and repose over this route. The officers of the "Ella Ross" spare no pains and in fact are untiring in their efforts to make passengers comfortable and to feel at home. They pleasantly answer all questions of points and places. Captain Garrett is a born navigator, and must succeed in this new venture of running exclusively to passenger traffic.

A Word to College Graduates.

It has been said with a good deal of truth, that two-thirds of the men in any calling do not know why they entered it. They mostly drifted into it, along the line of least resistance. They push against every door they come to, and finally hit upon one which gives way and lets them in, but what it will open on they rarely know, and do not always care. The father's calling has perhaps as much influence as anything else in deciding when the young man has no special taste of his own. Either the father likes it much, and determines that the son shall follow it, or he hates it, and determines that no child of his shall have anything to do with it. As a general rule, fathers are disposed to advise sons against following in their own footsteps, if it seem just as easy in order to get a living to follow in somebody else's, for the simple reason that they are so much impressed by the difficulties and drawbacks which they know. Then too, there is hardly and man, however successful in his own calling, who has not dreamed of being something else which would have touched his imagination more, and is not, therefore, inclined to advise a young man in whom he fells an interest to try that something.

As a general rule the bulk of college graduates, like other young men, desire most of all things, to be able to support themselves quickly in some employment for which they have some preparation, or at all events in which unfitness will not be immediately and sharply exposed. Graduates who find they are at all fluent with their pens, try their luck in newspaper offices, not because they think that their degree has made them journalists, but because they think that journalism is the easiest paid work they can get hold of. Almost every man, young or old, graduate or non-graduate, is apt to be deceived by facility in writing or speaking. It is the hardest thing in the world for a glib man to believe that he has nothing to say worth saying. And there is no offense against human society which is apt to go long unpunished and unexposed as the practice of talking rubbish or platitude. A man may grow old in this art without knowing it. So that the rapture of a young man on finding that he writes articles or makes speeches easily is very comprehensible and pardonable. That on discovering it he should hurry to a newspaper office and offer to haul people over the coals for a moderate salary is the most natural thing in the world. So also, however, is the indignation of the old hands who have already passed some years in the work. Every man who has a calling is irritated or disgusted by the suggestion that to practice it successfully needs either training or experience. This suggestion the new bachelor of arts who applys for editorial work, makes by implication, and hence the annual articles on his presumption. But he is not to blame. He is simply a man of his time.—New York Evening Post.

WHAT IS IT DORTHY.

"Now, Uncle Buttonball, I think you are foolishly prejudiced about it."

Mr. Benedict Buttonball, commonly called "Uncle Ben," shook his head at Frank Worrall's levity.

"Maybe I am," said he "but we're not to blame for our convictions. I can't help mine, anyhow. And I couldn't any more marry in the face of my promise to Hephsibah than I could —join the mormons!"

"Pauline Pepper is a pretty girl," said Frank, "and a good girl, too. Although not young."

"If she was she wouldn't be suitable to me!" said Mr. Buttonball. "I don't that its all true enough, what you say, but you perceive, I am the victim of circumstances."

"Circumstances be hanged!" ejaculated Frank Worrall, losing his temper at last, and banging the door after him as he hurried from the room.

Mr. Buttonball again shook his head, took his silver spectacles out of their case and unfolded the newspaper.

"Polly Pepper would make a nice wife," he thought to himself. "As plump and round and fresh-colored as a September peach or a cabbage rose! and a woman, too, that thoroughly understands house-keeping. I almost wish If hadn't promised my dear departed Hephsiba never to marry again! But it's all past and over and it can't be undone, more's the pity!"

"Isn't he a fool?" said Dorothy Martin. "And is he really so superstitious about breaking the promise that that unreasonable virago of a wife exacted from him?"

"Unquestionably he is," said Frank Worrall. "I suppose he actually believes that my aunt Hephsibah would haunt him if he married again, without her express permission. For a man of ordinary intelligence, Uncle Buttonball is superstitious."

"How?" questioned Dorothy.

"Oh, he sees winding sheets in the candle, believes there will be a death in the family if a dog chances to howl under the window, and would sooner cut off his right hand than begin haying or go a journey of a Friday."

"Frank?" hesitatingly began Dorothy. Well!"

"What sort of a woman was your Aunt Hephsibah? You know I never saw her. She died before I came to Hopton to live."

"A little fat woman, with spectacles and a brown fore-top, who always wore brown gingham and talked through her nose. I forgot, though—she had a monstrosity of a cap, with a frill two inches wide around it, and a colossal bow of snuff colored ribbon perched on the very top—a guy of a cap only fit for a scarecrow."

"Not at all like Paulina Pepper," said Dorothy. "And Paulina really likes Mr. Buttonball—and he needs a home poor thing. Not to speak of Mr. Buttonball's evident admiration for Paulina. It would certainly be a match if——"

"If it wasn't for the departed saint in snuff-colored ribbons," said Frank with an irreverent imitation of his Uncle Buttonball's peculiar intonation when speaking of his deceased wife.

"Poor Paulina!" said Dorothy.

"And poor Uncle Buttonball," echoed Frank Worrall. Upon the whole, darling, it looks like a hard case."

* * * * * * * *

"Past eleven o'clock," said Uncle Buttonball, looking up at the clock over the rims of the silver spectacles. "Well, I hadn't an idea it was so late. And snowing and blowing like all possessed, and the wind howling down the chimney fit to set a man's teeth on edge. Just such a night as poor Hephsibah died four years ago, and—bless me." with a slight cold shiver down his spinal column, "if it ain't the 19th of November—the identical anniversary of the sad event. Poor Hephsibah," folding his hands and looking thoughtfully into the fire; "I hope she's happy in the other world. She never took much comfort in this, what with flies and dust and poor kitchen help."

And then Mr. Buttonball fell into a doze or a reverie—he could be quite certain which—from which he was aroused by the old kitchen clock striking twelve.

"Midnight! It ain't possible!" cried Mr. Buttonball, chilly, uncomfortable, and superstitious. "And the fire e'en a-most out. I guess I'll rake it up and go to bed."

But as he rose with a sort of rheumatic stiffness from his chair the door leading from the buttery creaked slightly a slow, heavy footstep sounded on the floor, and looking around with startled and dilated eyes, Mr. Buttonball beheld—the departed Hephsibah.

"Benedict!" spoke out the quivering nasal voice. Benedict! Benedict!"

(It was always to Uncle Buttonball remembered, in all well-authenticated ghost stories, the summons was enunciated three times.)

"W—w—well, my dear," stuttered Mr. Buttonball, holding tight to the arms of his chair lest his teeth should chatter him off from it.

"I have brought you a message from the other world, Benedict," solemnly uttered The Presence. "You want to marry again!"

"N—not if you object to it, my dear," faltered the shaking widower. "I—I—that is—"

"Peace! Disturb not the voices of a higher sphere."

"No, [illegible] dear, I won't," said the [illegible] husband.

[illegible]

Slowly the brown-ginghamed form retreated backward with gleaming spectacles and uplifted finger, through the buttery door, into the back kitchen, while uncle Buttonball sat staring and transfixed with the agony of superstitious terror.

* * * * * * * *

"He has really asked you to marry him, Paulina?"

"Yes, really," said Paulina Pepper, her blooming face all smiles and dimples, "And I'm so glad! Because—there can't be any harm in owning it now, Dorothy dear—I did like him ever so much!

"He's a very nice old gentleman—I mean middle-aged gentleman," said Dorothy Martin demurely. "But I thought he had determined never to marry again."

"Oh, that's all settled'," cried Paulina, looking down at the red shine of her garnet engagement ring. "He thinks he has had a vision—that his departed wife appeared to him and released him from his vows."

"Dear me!" said Dorothy. "How very strange!"

"Of course the dear fellow must have been asleep and dreaming, though. Don't you think so?"

"Undoubtedly," said Dorothy.

"For—what are you laughing at, dear?" Paulina Pepper broke off to say.

"Nothing, nothing; only it seems so ridiculous that in this age of the world people can believe in ghosts!" cried Dorothy, giving away to a hearty peal of laughter, she caught up her embroidery and hurried out of the room. Frank Worral followed her.

"Dorothy," he said, "it was you!"

"What do you mean?"

"The ghost."

"Prove it if you can!" cried Dorothy saucily. And that was all she would ever admit.—New York Daily News.

The Thousand Islands.

Who has not heard of the "Thousand Islands!" Yet how few know by experience of their location, actual numbers, or the majestic beauty or grandeur of the river and island scenery. Most people have yet to make their first visit to the St. Lawrence, the grandest of all the rivers of the globe. Its waters are everywhere clean and pure, and its broad bosom, averaging nine miles in width, is everywhere spangled with its emerald gems—The Thousand Islands but which in the treaty of Ghent were officially stated as numbering 1,692.

This charming locality has for years attracted people from all parts of the United States and from Europe, who spend a portion of their summers here, hundreds, almost thousands of whom have built for themselves summer houses, some modest but comfortable while others are more pretentious and in many cases almost palatial. The scene at night during the height of the season is gorgeous indeed. At that time the cottages on the coast are mostly illuminated with colored lanterns and the steam yachts, with their gay parties go flitting by, the whole scene like a kaleidoscope continually changing but ever beautiful and full of surprises. One lingers often beyond the limit of his vacation, regretting at the end that for a whole year he must depart from this "Father of Running Waters," and all its numerous adornments.

For health, recreation and comfort there is no other place in America like the Thousand Islands.—Park Herald.

The Meanest Man Yet.

First Omaha Man—This practical jokin' may be all right, but there ain't no punishment bad enough for a man who goes to jokin' in church.

Second Omaha Man—I should say not. Do you know of a case of that kind?

"Yes, and we've called a session of the elders to kick the fellow out of the congregation. Last Sunday he sneaked up the step ladder and turned the clock back during an experience meeting."

"Oh, well, that didnt do much harm, did it?"

Harm! Great St. John! It kept us singin' and prayin' and confessin' our sins for five hours before the inhuman rascal got caught.—Omaha World.

Human Nature.

"You dropped a copper in the straw," said a horse-car conductor to a pompous-looking old gentleman the other day.

"Dropped what?" asked the bereft passenger.

"A copper. I saw it fall."

"Oh, well," was the indifferent reply, "I guess a copper will neither make nor break me; still—

He began poking around in the straw with his cane.

"It glanced off to the left," said the conductor, stooping over and stirring the starw with his hand.

"Oh, its of no consequence, no consequence at all," said the loser; a copper is nothing; however, one might as well —" He dropped down on one knee and stirred the straw carefully.

"I think it fell to the left," volunteered a passenger.

"Oh, did it? Thanks. A copper don't amount to anything but then—" He put on his glasses and scraped the straw away until he came to the car floor, then he looked up and said foolishly:

"Its of no conseqnence, no consequence at all: but then—You didn't happen to see it fall' did you, sir"

The passenger appealed to said:

"I think it struck the edge of the seat and glanced off toward the door."

"Oh did it? Quite likely, Thanks," and the loser crawled carefully to the door on his hands and knees, patting the straw with his hands, and saying:

"It makes very little difference whether I get it or not; none at all, in fact, still, I might as well—ah, here it is, no."

The glad look died out of his face as he cast aside that flat button he had picked up, thinking it was his copper.

He turned and crawled back toward his seat, plowing up the straw with both hands. "Oh, well," he said, as he peered as far as he could under the skirts of a lady who had sat next him, "a copper is but a trifle after all; still I—would you you mind moving over a little, madam? It might have fallen here, you know, sorry to trouble you for such a trifle, but then—"

He made the straw fly for about five minutes; then he rose slowly to his feet, stirred around with his cane, and finally sat down saying:

"It is of no consequence, not the least. Let it go. A copper is—ha, there it is!"

He bounded half the length of the car and grabbed up a handful of straw in which there was a brass tobacco tag.

The joyous light died out of his eyes. He sank back in his seat dejectively; but he tried to grin and said:

"It is no of consequence, not the least."

"Fifty-ninth street," cried the conductor.

"Great Scott!" shouted the copperless man, "I ought to have got off a mile back here. Here, let me off!"—Tid-Bits.

Rev. Dempster Chase of Fulton occupied the pulpit of the M. E. church last Sunday morning and evening. The congregation was large in the morning and in the evening the church was crowded. Mr. Chase is an earnest thoughtful clergyman. Speaking entirely without notes and possessed of an abundance of magnetism, he leaves no doubt in the minds of his congregation of what his opinions are or of his earnest belief in them. He interested his audiences greatly, and we will be glad to hear him again. Mr. Chase, by the way, is a Fulton boy, and got a good deal of his education, outside of the theological, in Falley Seminary. He had a hard struggle to get it, too. At one time while pursuing his studies at the Academy he taught two classes, clerked in a bookstore and milked two cows, night and morning. A friend afterward helped him to college. While in Phoenix Mr. Chase was the guest of Surrogate and Mrs. David.—Phoenix Chronicle.

GILBERT MILLS.

Almon Mason is in quite poor health.

X. A. Willard was in town over Sunday.

Farmers have nearly completed their haying.

The ladies' Aid Society of the F. B. church met last Friday at Miss Satie Taylor's. There were ten present.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Wholey of Baldwinsville visited at Mrs. Evans' Sunday.

Mrs. Sears of Clay is staying a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Grove Hamlin.

Mr. Fisk from Oneida county is visiting his father, the Rev. Mr. Fisk.

The Free Baptist yearly meeting was largely attended. The Rev. Mr. Nesbit of North Scriba gave an excellent temperance lecture on Thursday evening.

The glorious fourth was observed by all the farmers and their wives in this locality in seeing how much work they could do.

We were visited last Saturday afternoon by a severe wind storm which uprooted trees and unroofed houses, there was also a heavy rain. No one was hurt but all were thoroughly frightened as they thought a western cylone had broken loose.

Hannibal Centre.

Old Mrs. Dennison died Friday night at the home of her son George. The funeral was held Sunday at 3 o'clock at the church, Hannibal Centre, Rev. Huntly officiated.

Quite a serious accident happened here one day last week. A little girl belonging to Lewis Larock was out in the woods where her father was chopping down a tree. It fell the other way from which he expected. The little girl started to run but the branches caught her and inflicted several severe injuries about her head and face. Dr. H. L. Cooley was called and dressed her wounds. She is now in a fair way of recovery.

Mr. John Rowlee's people had a little daughter come to help them celebrate the Fourth and make things generally lively for them.

The band from Hannibal Centre went over to Fulton the Fourth to make music for the people there.

Board of Trustees' Proceedings.

Fulton, N. Y. June 29, 1887.

Board met pursuant to adjournment.

Present—President Waugh and Trustees More, Nichols, Osborne and Rice.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Rev. Father Kearney appeared and asked that a light be placed in the street near the Catholic church. On motion of Trustee Rice referred to lamp committee.

On motion of Trustee Nichols it was

Resolved that the fire alarm be not rung for fires occurring out side of the village, except by order of the Village President of the chief of the Fire Department or his assistants.

The following communication from Ambrose Chase was read and filed.

Mansfield, Ohio, May 30, 1887.

Wm. Waugh, President.

Dear Sir:—As my return for some time at least, is very doubtful, and not wishing to embarrass, I hereby tender my resignation of Trustee of the village of Fulton. With a full appreciation of the kind consideration I have received from you, and the gentlemen with whom I have been associated since I assumed the duties of the office, I am

Yours etc.,
Ambrose P. Chase.

On motion of Trustee Osborne the resignation of Trustee Chase was accepted.

On motion of Trustee Rice, Amos Youmans was elected to fill vacancy in Board of Trustees.

On motion of Trustee More the street commissioner was directed to furnish a report to the Board at next meeting showing the amount of work done by him up to the date of report and where done—and to furnish such a report at each subsequent meeting of the board.

Street committee reported that they had not concluded what should be done on Oneida street hill, and on motion of Trustee Nichols the matter was referred to full Board the Board to meet on notice from street committee.

Finance Com. reported the following bills correct and they were audited at the following amounts and the clerk directed to draw orders for the same on proper funds,

J. R. Fairgrieve, printing,	$ 18.05
Alex Bradford, highway labor,	178.80

The following bids for construction of race bridge were received: King Iron Bridge & Manufacturing Company, $2,360, Berlin Iron Bridge Company, 2,697, upon which no action was taken.

On motion of Trustee More the police officers were directed to enforce sections 2, 3, 4 and 5 of Chapter IV of the village ordinances relative to dogs.

On motion of Trustee Rice the collector of 1886 was directed to make a report to the Board of Trustees at their next meeting, of moneys collected and uncollected at that date.

Clerk reported [illegible]

[illegible] jail, he waits in confinement for the just judgment of a not over lenient Judge until the 18th inst. The defense was startling for its shortness, lameness, weakness and general want of backbone. Mr. Strickney, Sharp's favorite counsel, having made his opening address, in which with his characteristic manner he made light of the most important, striking and salient points the prosecution had so successfully and clearly developed, presented to the jury the evidence of three witnesses, again spoke to the jury in summing up and the case was closed. Thirteen minutes of deliberation, nay, it hardly could be called that, for the minds of the jurymen seemed to have been of one accord before leaving the court room, and the verdict, the just verdict, of guilty, was brought in. So ends the first case of bribery this country has ever seen in which the bribe giver is brought to punishment and the redoubtable Jacob, the money making, bribe giving horse car monopolist, is brought to bay at last. A prospect of five years in State prison for a man upwards of three score and ten is not a pleasant outlook. Therefore his friends are moving heaven and earth to obtain leniency from the court. To this end stories of Sharp's physical wreck are afloat. He is said to have been on the decline for the last year and that confinement in a prison would be a judicial murder. The writer used to see his sturdy form on the rear platform of one of his 23d street cars very frequently a half dozen years ago. He invariably stood on the rear platform, leaning his shoulders against the body of the car, and complacently, discourteously puffed the vile smoke of a vile cigar into the faces of the passengers as they got on the cars. I saw him in the court room in the U. S. Postoffice where his testimony was given to the Senate committee, and again during his trial. So far as his appearance went there seemed to be no difference. I take it, therefore, that he is as well now as then. Not in mind, I fear, but so in body. Sharp's sole object was to be known as the king of street car service in this city. He nearly achieved the title.

To-day Independence Day, is being celebrated with much of its prestine glory. To be sure the Mayor, an excellent Mayor, vetoed the resolution permitting the indiscriminate use of the firecrackers and such other noisy toys as usually delight the souls of the "Young America," but, nevertheless, the Harlemites are celebrating with parade and song and oration and fireworks. Then, too, Tammany waxes eloquent to-day upon its 98th celebration. The Tammany society provides especially for this celebration of Fourth of July and "long talks" "short talks" and dinners become the order of the day. This year is devoted to speakers from below Mason and Dixon's line Gen. Fitzhugh Lee of Virginia, is a prominent speaker. He was more especially prominent here on the occasion of Grant's funeral when he rode in the procession as a member of the staff of Gen. Hancock. He is a large man of heavy growth, standing not less than six feet tall. He is full faced, fairly high forehead, gray eyes, long, thin, sharp pointed nose, a determined mouth, and hair and full beard that were once black, but now iron gray. He is not a ready speaker, though possessed of a strong, pleasing voice. His platform manners are courteous to the extreme and his generation has a sort of "takingness" so to speak, that attracts the listener. His "talk," as were all the "talks," abounded in plenty of "special egotism," a huge quantity of Jefferson, Washington and other relics of ancient decency. They were lamentably deficient in any new idea upon the issues, the living, burning, practical issues of the day. Perhaps, the weather may be chargeable with this.

The scene is out now how this recent furry in Wall street came about. They say there is no honor among rogues and it has often been questioned whether a Jew would jew a Jew. The great triumverate of Wall street has for years been Sage, Gould and Field. They have been the chiefs of all dopes and corners etc. in the elevated management. Field was proud of his connection with putting the question of rapid transit in a practical shape before the people. He held 70,000 shares and endeavored to so manipulate this large holding that he might sell the same at about 160. To do this he had to borrow much money and this caused Sage and Gould to suspect something inimical to their interests. So they brought such a stricture upon the money market that Field could not get his needed cash. He did the wisest thing he could do. He went to Gould and offered his holdings. Field was the one who made the five cent fare at all hours possible and this did not please Gould or Sage, so that his retirement from Manhattan was desirable. By taking Field's holding Gould got rid of a couple of millions. It is largely probable that if Field had held onto his stock he would have been wiped out financially. This will bring about his retirement from Wall street speculations and leave him to the managing of his fortune of about two millions, most of which is invested in well-paying real estate.

I remember seeing on a sign board at the main gate of a large estate up in one of the North River counties this legend, "Beware of the dog." [illegible]

[illegible] more than half of the school population [illegible] in practical [illegible] A funny fact is shown in the number of graduates of the 2,400 more than half are boys. It is usually supposed that the boys are sacrificed to the bread winning question before the girls, but the experience in this city is that the girls are more frequently pressed into service in solving the financial conditions that arise in families than the boys.

In the state at large the proportion of male teachers to female is, I think about 1 to 10. In this city it is 1 to 15. The number of graduates from the Female Normal School this year 288. Of these more than half will find places in the educational system of the city. In the boys college the graduates number upwards of fifty of which possibly a half dozen will seek places under the Board of Education. To the 3,900 teachers about two and a half millions are annually paid the rate of salary ranging from $7,500 to the President of the Normal College to $400 to the novice who enters upon her first year of instruction. That so few graduate from so large a number and that there is so large a discrepancy between the pupil population and the pupil attendance points to a serious defect somewhere in the economy of the public school system of this city, good as it is and producing some most excellent results as it indeed does.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent].

Washington, July 2d, 1887.

Word comes from the Navy Department that the new gun boat "Baltimore," now being built at Cramp's ship yard in Philadelphia, is rapidly approaching completion. The material for the dynamite cruiser has also arrived at the yard and the men have commenced work on the substructure of that craft. The use of dynamite in war-fare is causing a complete revolution in the old systems of attack and defense. No vessel of an enemy would dare enter waters where the presence of a small craft built to throw dynamite bombs was suspected even. The building of fortifications about our principal harbors, can no longer be advocated, as the purpose of forts has been superseded by the use of modern explosives, so small they may be carried in the hand, so deadly no man lives but fears their very existence. In the face of the horrible character that modern ingenuity now gives to war, by the manufacture of such totally destroying implements, mankind may learn to abhor war to such a degree that no nation calling itself civilized will consent to engage in one.

A West Virginian of the conventional lean, long type appeared at the Penson Office this week to give evidence in a pending claim. He is one of a family of thirty-three children. Twenty of this number were boys, sixteen of who served in the Union Army. Fourteen of these sons survive and draw pensions. By the death of two the mother is entitled to draw a pension also. Gen. Black states that the records of the pension office fail to show a parallel case, where sixteen sons of one father and mother served as soldiers. The name of this family is Brown, and they appear to have in this instance, far outstripped their rivals the Smiths.

A conference of leading Democrats is expected to take place in this city about the first of July to discuss the reduction of the revenue. Speaker Carlisle's arrival is daily looked for. His coming will be the signal to other leading members on the Democratic side of the house to come. They hope by this conference or series of conferences, to arrive at some sort of an agreement as to the best methods to reduce the revenue. These conferences are to be only preliminary to a party caucus to be held about the time of the meeting of Congress. The difficulties to be met in reaching a conclusion, on the question of the recuction of the tariff are the different views held by members of Congress who represent different sections of the country. Mr. Randall has not moved from his old stand on the tariff and there is talk afloat of much disatisfaction with his leadership of the appropriation committee. All are agreed on a reduction of the revenue, but can come to no unity of opinion as to the objects of taxation which should be released.

Proposals for the new bridge to be built by the government across the Eastern Branch will be advertised for as soon as some legal formalities to secure the validity of the government's title to the approach on the eastern side of the river are gone through with. This bridge will be a handsome structure. It will lead to the government asylum for the insane. What with the new bridge to be built across the Potomac above Georgetown, and the Memorial Bridge, Washington will have when they are completed some approaches to the city worthy the capital of the United States. For years the bridges leading to the city have been objects of neglect and ugliness, as well as dangerous to life and limb of man and beast. Such a bridge as the one known as the Aqueduct, leading from Georgetown to Arlington Cemetery, would be considered a disgrace to any county of a thriving State in the west.

Although not a very distant neighbor, the republic of Venezuela is little known to Northern Americans. A land of perpetual summer, it presents many and varied attractions to the tourist which are to be pleasantly set forth by Dr. W. F. Hutchinson in The American Magazine for August, with a portrait of the renowned Venezuelan President, Gen. Guzman Blanco.

"A Few English Wayside Birds," as seen by American eyes, will be sketched by Theodore H. Mead, in the American Magazine for August. The article will it is hoped, show the most of the common birds of England are cheery little fellows, with none of the vices of the detested sparrow.

In the coming number of The American Magazine, Z. L. White will describe the Supreme Court of the United States and and give brief accounts of its distinguished members.

Under the title of "Village Types," Julian Hawthorne will present, in The American Magazine for August, sketches of the more noted characters that are usually to be found in our small rural communities.

Recent methods of education form the subject of an essay by Col. I Edwards Clarke, to appear in the next number of The American Magazine. Col. Clark's connection with the Bureau of Education at Washington enables him to give a trustworthy review of the changes which he regards as a beginning of a new era.

Watch for Tulip. It is coming.

Cheese Market.

[From the Utica Herald].

AT UTICA.

Utica, N. Y. July 4.

Prices to-day made a handsome advance over last week's, being ½c. better, while the transactions are nearly 3,000 boxes less. Comparatively few salesmen were present on the board, many having sold during the past week on the basis of the market, in order to avoid the necessity of coming here on the fourth of July. Those who did come felt amply repaid for the extra price obtained. There was no excitement and no special activity in the market. The original price offered was 8¾c. for the bulk of the cheese, and it was early evident that this would be the ruling. The shrinkage begins to be quite apparent now, and ranges from 12 to 18 per cent. Those who are well posted claim that it is more than it was last year at this time, and that it is increasing rapidly. Quality was never better at this period of the year. The shipment, so far as could be learned was very general, nobody caring to hold back at these prices. No one could form any judjment as to continuance of prices, and in such a time the only safe thing to do is to let the stock go forward. Following is the table of quotations:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price
14	1,354	8½
55	5,833	8¾
11	1,107	8⅞
26	2,835	9
10	1,126	9⅛
2	150	9¾
1	181	9⅜
1	100	p.t
120	12,686
	2,631	Com.
Total	15,317

Ruling price 8¾c. Transactions on corresponding day in 1886 13,391 boxes ruling 6⅞c. In 1885 12,684, ruling 7¾c.

AT LITTLE FALLS.

Little Falls, July 4.

Cheese—It was a hard matter to get prices today, both because of the fourth of July crowd and because buyers were at a strife, owing to so many conditional sales. We finally make the ruling at 8¾c, though it is claimed it should have been ¼c higher. But the advance is plump ½c per pound, which is quite satisfactory all around. There is a sharp demand for the fine June cheese now offering and the strife waxes warm. The transactions are:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price
46	3,307	8¾cents
39	2,520	8⅞cents
30	2,958	9 cents
1	60	9¼cents
1	139	9½cents
5	425	Com.
115	9,418
Farm dairy	777
	10,195

Farm Dairies—There were 777 boxes of farm cheese sold at 8 to 8¾c, the bulk going at 8¾c.

Butter—Thirty packages of creamery sold at 18c., and twenty of farm dairy at 18 to 19c.

AT FULTON.

Twenty-three factories were represented and 2,486 boxes sold at 8¾ cents. The ruling one year ago was 6⅞ cents.

[illegible] who had retired early with the delusion that they might be able to sleep through the din and noise which they knew would come when midnight was reached.

Many on being aroused from their slumbers undoubtedly felt as though they would be willing to suffer any kind of servitude if the enthusiastic lover of liberty would let up until slumber got a fresh grip and those aroused had again passed into the land of dreams. But the day does not permit of such a thing and it is right that it should not. May the day that markes the anniversary of that day when our forefathers took the first step toward our independence ever be celebrated as it was in Fulton on Monday. From midnight until midnight stir and activity was manifest within the corporation.

Soon after the time advertised the procession was formed on First street in the following order:

Hannibal Band,
Drum Corps,
Sons of Veterans,
Post Schenck, G. A. R.,
Johnson Hose, Company,
Sharp Hose Company,
Hannibal Centre Band,
Father Mathew Society,
Juvenile Knights of Temperance,
President of the Day,
Ministers, Trustees of Village, Veterans,
Distinguished Citizens and Visitors,
Children Representing States,
Business Men's Chariots,
Guyasticutus, Fusileers, etc., etc.

All of which was under the charge of Marshall C. S. Murphy and Assistant Marshalls, Dr. G. V. Emens and M. F. Crahan.

The line of march was First to Oneida to Fourth to Cayuga to Third to Academy where the disbandment was made. The different organizations presented a fine appearance. Conspicious among which were the Sons of Veterans and Sharp Hose Company in their new uniforms. The business men's chariots were many of them nicely gotten up. A. Bristol had no less than six different chariots advertising the different branches of his business. Giesler the druggist had a mammoth bottle on wheels with Uncle Sam driving a yoke of oxen. Bennett & Stewart had a large Bee Hive, D. C. More & Co. had a coffin with "high prices" marked thereon emblamatic of the fact that they were dead as far as his establishment was concerned. Schenck & Foster had a load of coal which was being screened. All these chariots with many others that at present escape our mind were managed and equipped by men and boys in the best make ups imaginable. The guyasticutus part of the procession was enough to cause convulsions and presented some great characters with their different paraphernalia.

The exercises at the park consisted of Music by Bands,

Prayer, Rev. Mr. Palmer,
Grand Chorus, under charge of
Prof. J. E. Cooper,
Address, Welcome, Rev. Father Earley,
Quartet, J. F. Cooper and singers,
Reading Declaration, Miss Sarah Warner,
Music by Band,
Oration, John W. Shea, Esq.
Chorus, J. F. Cooper and Singers,
Benediction, Rev. Carl Stone.

The prize for the best appearing hose company was awarded to Sharp hose company. It was $5 donated by Father Earley. The hose race for $25 was divided. The race was two hundred yards and laying three hundred feet of hose, break connection and put on pipe. Sharp Hose made the run in 66½ seconds. Johnson Hose ran it, but the starting signal could not be seen by the timekeeper and the time could not be taken. It appeared as though they had made it in excellent time and it was a misfortune that time could not have been taken. The base ball match for $22.50 was won by the Franconias. The foot-race 1st prize, a seersucker coat and vest donated by H. & A. Rosenbloom was won by M. Tollman, 2d prize $1 won by A. B. Dexter. Wheelbarrow race 1st prize $2, won by A. B. Dexter, 2d prize $1, won by Frank Robinson. Juvenile wheelbarrow race, a box of cigars, won by William Acker. Sack race 1st prize, a fur hat donated by D.C. More & Co., won by Harry Summers, 2d prize $1, won by Daniel Summers. $20 was given to William Johnson the tight rope walker from Oswego. At the baby show Lulu Hewes was awarded the beautiful lace collar donated by Bennett & Stewart, for being the prettiest girl under two years of age. Neal Rogers got the handsome toilet set donated by W. J. Watson, for being the prettiest boy under two years of age. The handsome lambrequin donated by J. C. O'Brien and baby dress donated by Mrs. F. K. Jones for the prettiest and brightest pair of twins was won by Cora and Carrie McGann. There were half a dozen pair of competitor for these prizes. The guyasticutus and merchants' chariots prizes have not yet been awarded.

The grand display of fireworks in the evening attracted a large crowd to the park in the evening. The fireworks were first-class and every one was pleased but the fire alarm sounded and all rushed down to the business portion of the town. This ended the best Fourth of July celebration that has been held here in a number of years.

New Goods and low prices on all kinds of Groceries, Crockery, Lamps, and Jewelry at D. C. Draper's No. 6, First street.

[illegible] the [illegible] afternoon of the [illegible]. She lived with her aged mother on Pratt near Second street in this village. The circumstances of the shooting were as follows: Lewis Lavine was allowed the privilege of putting up a target on the side of one of the buildings within which ice cream and refreshments were sold. Instead of an air gun Lavine used a Remington 22 calibre breech loading rifle. If the target were not hit the bullets would pass through the boards of the building. About ten o'clock it is said a bullet passed through and struck a lad named Fitzgerald in the foot injuring him slightly, later in the day Mrs. A. L. Woodworth of this village was struck in the back with a bullet and considerably injured. Mrs. Wallace Brown was also grazed back of the neck with a bullet. This fact being known there was certainly carelessness somewhere that the shooting was not stopped or precautions taken. Between two or three o'clock Miss Carpenter with her mother and sister Mrs. Frances Austin was eating ice cream almost behind the target when she threw up her hands and exclaiming "I am hurt," and to her mother, "I am shot dead" fell upon the floor a corpse. Dr. Wells was near by and was the first physician on the spot. The dead woman was taken outside where it was more secluded and then into the eating room where coroner Drury viewed the remains. The body was then taken in a hack to her home on Pratt street.

Miss Carpenter was the oldest of nine children and the first to die. She was respected by all who knew her and was the one the family all counseled with. The funeral services will be held to-morrow afternoon at the house, at 1 o'clock, and at the Universalist church at 2 p. m.

The jury impanelled by Coroner Drury of Phœnix consists of Edward Waugh, Charles Rogers, Lewis Johnson, Newell Johnson, Thomas Somers and Freeman Craver. The inquest is now going on. They met at Baker hose rooms, Oswego Falls yesterday afternoon, and adjournd until this morning and again adjourned to this afternoon. Everything goes to show that there was great carelessness on the part of Lavine, and that he had been warned several times of the danger of killing someone.

Killed by the Cars.

Smith Southard aged 70 years, a well-known resident of Granby, was killed by a passenger train on the D. L. & W. road near the fair grounds Monday morning. He lives about a mile south of Oswego Falls and had been in town to get provisions. He was deaf and did not hear the cars that were approaching while he was walking along the track near the station. The accident occurred about 9 o'clock. A coroner's jury rendered a verdict of accidental death. The funeral services were held at his late residence this afternoon.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. S. N. Kenyon.

On Thursday the 23d ultimo, Jane Marie, wife of the late Sands N. Kenyon, departed this life at her late residence in this village, after a most painful illness of several weeks' duration.

Mrs. Kenyon was born in Pittsfield, Massachusetts, January 24th, 1816, and came to Fulton with her parents, in 1818, and was married Nov. 22d 1832.

She was the mother of eight children, seven of whom survive her and all of them were present at her death.

In her home circle she was the object of the tenderest love and affection, and in society, her exalted character and great worth endeared her to every one who knew her as the noblest of women.

Her death, the greatest of all afflictions to her family, brings at the same time a loss which will continue to be most keenly felt by a large number of sorrowing friends.

She was borne to her grave and tenderly laid to rest by her sons and sons-in-law. L. H. B.

Miss Clara, daughter of Milo and Mary Warner, died at her home in this village early yesterday morning, aged 14 years. The funeral services were held this afternoon at the Free Methodist church, the Rev. Mr. Fulford officiating.

Mrs. Sarah Jane, wife of David Webster died at her home in the Tucker block, on First street, at 9:30 this morning, aged 50 years.

Albert Smith died at his home in Granby July 4 aged 84 years.

It is frequently a good plan to go over the ground with smoothing harrow after the corn comes up until it is large enough to follow the rows well.

A poor tool on the farm imposes a tax upon the user every day it is employed, often greater in a year than the whole price of a good tool.

The onion bed should have plenty of vegetable food in it, as without this good onion can not be grown. An authority says we should use the equivalent of ten cords of good manure to the acre.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman thinks a frost in spring hurts corn much less than a frost in the fall. Corn will endure, when young, a pretty hard frost without injury—a harder frost than many farmers imagine.

Danger in Setting Out Trees.

There is one danger I wish to speak of in setting out trees. Last year, in August, while visiting a neighbor, he asked me to tell him what ailed his tree. He had a maple three inches in diameter, with three large stakes driven down around it, and the tree was tied to them by ropes. I asked him why he tied it up, and he said that it was loose. On taking hold of it, I found that I could lift it up. He said that it had been set out four years before, and had grown very well up to that year when it became loose in the spring. He wished to find out if there was not some imperfection in the tree. I found that he had had his lawn mowed every week, and for fear of drought he had had his man rake up the grass every Saturday and spread it around the tree to keep the earth moist. On taking off this covering I found that the roots were interwoven with it and were on the ground. That mulching and moisture had drawn the roots from the ground and they were entirely on top.—E. M. Wood, before Farmer's Meeting.

Pain from indigestion, dyspepsia, and too hearty eating is relieved at once by taking Carter's Little Liver Pills immediately after dinner. Don't forget this.

The Crimes of Napoleon.

When one reflects what the frivolity and selfishness, the betrayal of public trust, the sins of commission and omission of the Bourbons had been since the [illegible] of Louis XIV., and when one thinks of the victories with which Napoleon had glutted so vain and ignorant a people as the French, and the spoils he had brought home to them, one can hardly measure, at first, the evil of those deeds of his which reconciled such a community to such successors. But Napoleon had lost the sense of what is due to humanity, and humanity had to be avenged. The man who quietly said to M. de Narbonne, when referring to the unpopularity of the Russian campaign: "Why, after all, what did it cost me? Not more than three hundred thousand men and among these a good many [illegible]"—this man had to be set [illegible] by human law, and, as was quick[illegible], he was set aside too leniently. [illegible] Blaze de Bury in New Princeton Review for July.

Loyal to His Home.

[illegible] ask me to go to church with [illegible]," said a Minneapolis citizen [illegible] wife; "it won't do you any [illegible]

[illegible] John, she asked. "Didn't [illegible]

[illegible]" he repeated. [illegible]

[illegible] heavy vapor [illegible] hand [illegible] the car and [illegible] above us the sun shine full and strong. Through the clouds I peered as through a veil at the earth beneath. Here and there were rents in the cloudy strata, through peepholes in a white mask, I could perceive the white endless map of gray, green and yellow spots. I shivered as as the cold, clammy vapor permeated my clothing. Hazen sings out as he looks at the aneroid barometer: "We re 15, 280 feet and still going up." At this time the temperature had descended to 41 degrees. A few minutes later Hazen announces: "Sixteen thousand feet altitude. This is the highest, I believe, any balloon has been in the country." He adds with some enthusiasm: "The temperature has got down to 37."

Doughty meanwhile shoots off his camera at the clouds. Click, click comes the sound of his apparatus as the instantaneous exposures are made. He had previously taken a dozen landscape views. Moore sits all huddled up in a heap, dejectedly gazing at me, with eyes half closed and looking like a very sick man. Hazen leans outside to my left, swinging his psychrometer outside the car. I sat on one of Doughty's boxes, holding in my lap a writing-board, on which I am writing the third page of large sheet of tissue paper. The time is about 5:50. Hazen cries in alarm, "We are falling dreadfully." He throws out a bunch of circulars. Instead of descending or floating with us, they shoot upward as they leave his hand, like steam from an exhaust pipe. Moore springs to his feet. "Out with the ballast, boys!" Weak as he is he grabs what he can and casts it over. Doughty and Hazen have each dropped their instruments, and each grabs a bag of sand. Over they go. As the sand leaves the bag it flies upward as if from a gun. It strikes the gas bag above us and gradually settles down into the car, filling eyes, ears, and nostrils almost to suffocation.

I realize the peril. I spring to my feet. The circulars and sand shoot upward, and the terrific roaring in my ears, with the appauling sense of the frightful velocity with which the car is dropping away from us, are enough to warn us. I stand in the centre of the car. As I look off over the edge of it I perceive the earth flying upward. The hitherto small green and yellow spots grow larger.

We can distinguish the greensward and the fields of ripening wheat, diversified by patches of forest. Now the fields spread out and the fences appear. Here a cabin and there a town, here a glistening crystal stream and yonder a gray-white highway. My view of these objects is but momentary. "Over with ballast, over with ballast!" yells Moore, himself throwing out what he can. The air about is full of the things we cast over, and which fly upward the instant they leave the car. "Something wrong, boys. If we don't stop here right away we're lost. Overboard, quick, with everything!" Out go the sand and the circulars the faster. I catch hold of the great hickory hoop overhead and prepare for the worst. Up come the tops of the forest trees until the 700 feet of rope touch them. Up again till the rope settles upon the ground 200 feet or more, thus relieving the car of its weight.

Then our downward motion perceptibly decrease. The circulars float slowly upward from the car, and begin falling and fluttering below us. We have reached the the turning point, 400 feet high, and we are safe. Then we breathe easier, and stand and gaze at one another inquiringly. "How did it happen?" I ask. Moore replies, "I cannot account for it. The bag must be torn at the top. Someone during the excitement of feeling pulled that rip cord. I never saw anything like it; from the uncommon height of 16,000 feet in a space of time which seemed less than two minutes we dropped to 400 feet. "That settles it, boys; we have got to come down before dark," said Moore. Ballast was thrown and we ascended to about 2,000 feet, sailing over a farm-house. Moore who was now thoroughly awake, yelled down: "How far are we from St. Louis?" The indistinct answer was, "twenty-five miles."—Edward Duffy in New York World.

The Patient Proof Reader.

The proof reader is a patient animal; he is a mass of erudition; knows everything and everybody; is acquainted with most languages and is on speaking terms wito a great many; and can detect a typographical error, straighten out the grammar, correct mistakes, of fact and rattle along the whole at a rate of speed that would paralyze the ordinary reader of a newspaper.

He is the one man against whom the recording angel never balances the account. He may capture and summarily execute 100 typographical brigands bent on making nonsense of some interesting and instructive article, but if ore slips by him no recording angel drops a tear and wipes out the blot. Not a bit of it. Irate editors, furious reporters, incensed managers unite to pour their viands of wrath on the poor proof reader, and if nature with her grand gift of compensation, had not provided him with the hide of a rhinoceros he might once in a while feel sore.—George B. Perry in The Writer.

Samanthy's Letter Printed.

The Central Square News of a recent issue has the following:

Mr. Editor.—We reed your paper every week an think a sight of it. I am sendin you this letter to see if you will print it. Sylvester—that's my 'man—says, says he, "What in plague, Samanthy, do you want to be a writin to that ere Newspaper man for? like as not he won't print it, an' if he do, maybe you will only be a gettin' of yourself into trouble for your pains." But Sylvester don't know every thing that's agoin' on in a woman's mind, and I opine that I have kep' still long enough. So if you put this in your noosepaper, you will hear from mo again about some things you sartinly oughter know of. So no more Mr. Editor.

Failing Health.

Ten years ago my health began to fail. I was troubled with a distressing Cough, Night Sweats, Weakness, and Nervousness. I tried various remedies prescribed by different physicians, but became so weak that I could not go up stairs without stopping to rest. My friends recommended me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which I did, and I am now as healthy and strong as ever.—Mrs. E. L. Williams, Alexandria, Minn.

I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla, in my family, for Scrofula, and know, if it is taken faithfully, that it will thoroughly eradicate this terrible disease. I have also prescribed it as a tonic, as well as an alterative, and must say that I honestly believe it to be the best blood medicine ever compounded.—W. F. Fowler, D. D. S., M. D., Greenville, Tenn.

Dyspepsia Cured.

It would be impossible for me to describe what I suffered from Indigestion and Headache up to the time I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was under the care of various physicians and tried a great many kinds of medicines, but never obtained more than temporary relief. After taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for a short time, my headache disappeared, and my stomach performed its duties more perfectly. To-day my health is completely restored.—Mary Harley, Springfield, Mass.

I have been greatly benefited by the prompt use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It tones and invigorates the system, regulates the action of the digestive and assimilative organs, and vitalizes the blood. It is, without doubt, the most reliable blood purifier yet discovered.—H. D. Johnson, 383 Atlantic ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. D. I. Wilcoxson, of Horse Cave, Ky., says he was for many years badly afflicted with Phthisic, also diabetes; the pains were almost unendurable and would sometimes almost throw him into convulsions. He tried Electric Bitters and got relief from the first bottle and after taking six bottles, was entirely cured, and had gained in flesh eighteen pounds. Says he postively believes he would have died, had it not been for the relief afforded by Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by R. E. Phillips.

DON'T EXPERIMENT.

You cannot affort to waste time in experimenting when your lungs are in danger. Consumption always seems at first only a cold. Do not permit any dealer to impose upon you with some cheap imitation of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds but be sure you get the genuine. Because he can make more profit he may tell you he has something just as good, or just the same. Don't be deceived, but insist upon getting Dr. King's New Discovery, which is guaranteed to give relief in all Throat, Lung and Chest affections. Trial bottles free at Phillips' drug store.

Mr. F. A. Miller, 630 East 157th st., New York, was cured by Kaskine of extreme malarial prostration after seven years suffering. He had run down from 175 pounds to 97, began on Kaskine in June, 1886, went to work in one month, regained his full weight in six months. Quinine did him no good whatever.

Mr. Gideon Thompson, the oldest and one of the most respected citizens of Bridgeport, Conn., says: "I am ninety years of age and for the last three years have suffered from malaria and the effects of quinine poisoning. I recently began with Kaskine which broke up the malaria and increased my weight 22 pounds."

Mrs. T. A. Solomans, 159 Halliday St., Jersey City, writes: My son Harry, eleven years old was cured of Malaria by Kaskine, after fifteen months' illness. when we had given up all hope.

Letters from the above persons, giving full details, will be sent on application.

Kaskine can be taken without any special medical advice. $1.00 per bottle. Sold by W. J. Watson or sent on receipt of price.

Getting His Five Cents' Worth.

I turned and looked at the beloved man, and I see he waz a drinkin' lavishly of the noble water. I see he wuz a drinkin' more than wuz for his good, his linement showed it, and sez I, for he wuz a liftin' another tumbler full onto his lips, sez I "Pause Josiah Allen, and don't imbibe too much."

"Why," he whispered, "you can drink all you are a mind to, for 5 cents. I am bound for once, Samantha Allen, to get the worth of my money."

And he drinked the tumblerful down at one swallow almost, and turned to the weary boy for another. He looked bad, and eager, and sez I, "How many have you drinked?"

Sez he, in a eager, animated whisper, "9." And he whispered in the same axenta, "5 times 9 is 45, if it had been to a fair, or Fourth of July, or anything, it would have cost me 45 cents, and if it had been to a church social—lemme see —9 times 10 is 90. It would have cost me a dollar bill! And here I am a havin' it all for 5 cents. Why," sez he, 'I never see the beat on't in my life."

And ag'in he drinked a tumblerful down, and motioned to the frightened boy for another.

But I took him by the vest and whispered to him, sez I, "Josiah Allen, do you want to die, because you can die cheap? Why," sez I, "it will kill you to drink so much."

"But think of the cheapnes on't, Samantha! The chance I have of getting the worth of my money."

SUPREME COURT—OSWEGO COUNTY. Nellie E. Sears vs. John A. Judkins, Sally Ann Merrill, Frank Eugene Lewis, Ida May Lewis, Charlotte Grace Lewis, Josephine Hethington and Alice Hethington.

In pursuance of an order of the Supreme Court, made in the above entitled action, dated May 7th, 1887, the undersigned referee in partition, will sell in separate lots, at public auction to the highest bidder, at the law office of C. H. David, in the Village of Fulton, in the county of Oswego, on the 23d day of June, 1887, at 11 o'clock a. m., all those pieces or parcels of land, situate in the county of Oswego, and described as follows:

PARCEL NO. 1.—All that tract or parcel of land situate in the Village of Fulton, N. Y., being part of Lot 9, of Block 30, of said village, is bounded as follows, viz.: on the east by First Street; on the south by lands of N. R. Cole; on the west by the Oswego canal; and on the north by lands of J. E. Miller. Subject however to the right of N. R. Cole, his heirs and assigns to build in the south wall of the brick building on said premises, as conveyed to said Cole by Beekman G. Fuller and wife, by deed dated March 2d, 1876, and recorded in Oswego County Clerk's Office, March 12, 1876, in Book 156 of Deeds at page 439. Also subject to the right of James E. Miller, his heirs or assigns to build into or upon the north wall of said brick building on said premises, as conveyed to said Miller by W. S. Hethington and wife by deed dated May 16, 1885, and recorded in Oswego County Clerk's Office, May 16, 1885, in Book 165 of Deeds, at page 530.

Also, all that tract or parcel of land, situate in the Village of Oswego Falls, N. Y., and being a part of Lot 74, of the original Township of Hannibal, is bounded and described as follows, viz.: Four rods off from the north end of Lot 4 and 4 rods off from the north end of the east half of Lot 3, on Block 2, according to a map made by G. D. Ball, for the heirs of John I. Walradt, deceased. Said parcel being 4 rods front on Second street and 6 rods deep, together with all the estate, right, title and interest of the parties to this suit therein, whether present or future, vested or contingent, of dower, courtesy or otherwise.

Ten per cent. of the purchase money of said premises will be required to be paid to the said referee, at the time and place of sale. The residue of said purchase money will be required to be paid said referee at his office, in Fulton, N. Y., when the said referee's deeds of said premises shall be ready for delivery.

Mamma!

"It's 'Mamma!' here and 'Mamma' there,
Till I am like to drop;
It's Mamma! Mamma! all the time,
Oh, Will it never stop.

"It's Mamma! Mamma! Mamma!" till
It would wear out a saint!"
Ah, poor, tired mother! Thus I hear
You ofttimes make complaint.

But when the quiet night descends,
And every voice is still,
Oh, does no vague but haunting fear
Your gentle bosom fill?

Oh, does no sudden heart-throb make
You seek the children's beds,
And call heaven's blessings down upon
Their precious, curly heads?

Their little hands make mischief, and
Their little feet make noise;
But, Oh, what would you do without
Those naughty girls and boys?

Ah, think of lonely mothers who
All day in silence sit;
Across whose hearthstones nothing now
But ghostly shadows flit!

Ah, think of those who never hear
The sweet child-voices call;
Whose empty arms reach out to find
No little ones at all!

THE OPAL RING.

It was Thursday. Unfortunate things always happened to Amy Lynn on that day, and she was joking merrily enough now with Maggie Darrow and Hugh Barnes concerning some of her past accidents, when Mr. Hal Wright came up and laid his hand on Hugh's shoulder saying, "Come my friends, you should not be idle, for a great deal is yet to be done to arrange the church for this evening's festival."

Maggie Darrow sprang up and said, "Oh, Mr. Wright, how good you are to come to us just now. We really wanted something to do," and she put her hand through his arm and they walked toward the flower table.

Hugh turned pleasantly to Amy and said, "I am sure, Miss Lynn, we can be of some use." Amy noded an assent, and they too, soon joined the merry throng at work among the flowers.

Maggie Darrow was one of the handsomest girls in the village. No one knew her age, but she was from all appearences about 23. She was small and possessed large, lustrious eyes.

Of her other features no one ever thought; it was her eyes that according to a young city fellow, "just left an empty feeling in your breast, you know."

Amy Lynn was her opposite—a tall, grave-looking girl when silent, but when she spoke, far more beauty was in her face than in Maggie's, but very few thought so. Maggie's style was dashing brilliant and gay; Amy's quiet, somber, and plain.

"Oh, Mr. Wright, what a magnificent ring! Do let me see it," exclaimed Maggie, as Mr. Wright handed her large bunch of wild astors. At Maggie's exclamation Mr. Wright colored slightly, but replied, "Certainly, Miss Darrow, you may see it;" and he handed the ring to her. "It's quite a valuable jewel, and I value it not for that but for its story."

"A story! Oh, do tell us! We all want to hear, don't we Amy?"

"The story is not very long. The ring belonged to an old aunt of mine, who, some thirteen years ago, died of heart disease. When she was a young girl she was very much in love with a young clerk in a large shoe store of New York. He returned the affection, and the wedding day was already set, when an uncle of the young man offered him a large sum of money if he would go to England on some important business. This was quite an opening for the young man, and after consulting my aunt, he decided to go. Before leaving he gave her this ring bidding her wear it until she died. He bade her good bye, telling her he would be back soon, and the next day he sailed. He never was heard from again. The ship never reported. My aunt, poor woman lived a sad life after the news reached her, and when she died she gave me this ring bidding me give it to the woman who should honor me by consenting to be my wife.

"How romantic," said Maggie. Hugh silently turned from her and pointed to the clock. Four o'clock, oh goodness! As we have yet to dress for the evening and my costume is very elaborate, can't we go Mr. Wright?" and she gave him an appealing glance. "Of course we can, our work is finished, and the church looks quite brilliant. But it ought to be when Miss Lynn is to sing," and threw a glance of friendship toward her which no one saw but Maggie.

The walk home was quite uncomfortable for all, as Amy and Hugh were together, while Mr. Wright desired Amy and Hugh wished for Maggie, and Maggie wished Amy were quietly out of the way.

The night after the festival, as Maggie who was spending the night with Amy, was doing up her hair in curl papers, she remarked to Amy:

"I have something important to tell you when we get ready to warm our [illegible] by the grate fire."

[illegible] looked around from where she [illegible] her long wavy hair, and [illegible]

Amy's.

There rested the opal.

Amy gravely said: "I hope you may be happy, Maggie. When will you be married?"

"Amy, don't say anything about it yet; he does not want it to become known for a little-while. I don't either; It is so unexpected."

"Very well, I shall say nothing."

As she closed the door Maggie looked up and gave a low, relieved laugh.

Down in the library Amy Lynn leaned on the mantle and moaned; then turning, she said: "God grant me strength to bear this trial. I never knew I loved him so until I lost him," and she picked up her lamp and returned to her room.

All night long she sat by the fire and gazed at the dying coals, and each little flame seemed to laugh at her agony.

The next day Amy was ill, and finally as night came on she grew delirious, typhoid fever set in, produced, as the doctor said, by overwork and excitement attending the harvest home festival.

Two months passed ere she was able to go out, and one afternoon there was to be a small skating party on the river and Amy was invited. She accepted and was in a tumult of emotion when the large sleigh came for her. At one end of the sleigh sat Maggie Darrow and Hugh Barnes, but Mr. Wright was not there.

Amy drew a sigh of relief and sank back among her furs.

On arriving at the river all members of the party were soon gliding about.

The afternoon passed pleasantly enough, and when Mr. Wright appeared he was immediately the centre of attraction, but his eye had one object, Amy Lynn.

"Miss Lynn, may I congratulate you on your recovery? I have been east for over a month and just returned three days ago, or I should have called on you. Will you not favor me with one skate at least?" Amy looked around for Maggie, feeling that she might be unsurping her place, but she did not appear, so she said: "Mr. Wright, I am at best a poor skater, and ill-health has taken all my little strength, but I will try it for a short while." They set off with long, even strokes, Amy drawing in a new life with each breath.

On reaching a bend in the river they sat down to rest on a fallen tree. For a few moments neither spoke, though their minds were not at rest. Amy was the first to break the silence by saying: "You congratulated me on the recovery of my health. May I not congratulate you on your engagement?" Mr. Wright looked astonished and said: "I fear you are mistaken. I am not engaged."

"Not engaged?" said Amy. "Why, you must be, or—perhaps it is broken off. Oh, forgive me for offending you I thought—" Here she stopped and looked at him beseechingly.

"I fear Miss Lynn, you have been misinformed. I have never been engaged. You have not offended me, and now please tell me who has informed you on such a serious matter." Amy looked down and said, "Have you your opal ring yet?"

"Oh, Miss Lynn, so you require actual proof, do you? Well, you shall have it. Here," and he drew off his glove, "is your proof."

Amy looked amazed: "I cannot tell you now, I must go home. I am perfectly perplexed. If you please Mr. Wright, let us rejoin our party."

Silently and swiftly they skated back to the starting point.

Maggie Darrow rushed up to Amy and said: "You're a poor dear, you are as pale as a ghost. Oh, won't you catch it from the doctor for going skating. I'm surprised Mr. Wright, at you allowing her to over exert herself. It is a shame." Amy looked up in a queer way and said: "Oh, Maggie, don't chatter away like a parrot, I am not tired only astonished at a piece of news."

"Yes," said Mr. Wright, "I brought her a piece of news for which she was wholly unprepared. And now Miss Lynn, shall I drive you home, my cutter is at your disposal?"

"Yes, if you please."

As they drove up to the house, Amy remarked in an eager tone:

"Won't you come in and warm yourself, Mr. Wright? I shall be glad to have you."

"If you are not already weary of my company I shall be glad to avail myself of the pleasure."

Once seated in the cozy library conversation was an easy matter. For amid so many books, etchings, paintings and curiosities there was abundant material for conversation.

In one of the largest cabinets was a beautiful collection of opals.

When Mr. Wright saw these he exclaimed: "What a fine collection. This is something new in your cabinet? And by the way, Miss Lynn, may I ask an explanation for the conversation this afternoon?"

"Yes, Mr. Wright, it is a rather perplexing affair. You remember the festival and the story you told about the ring of your aunt? Well, that night as Maggie Darrow and I were reviewing the affair, she said she had something to tell me, and she held out her hand on which was your ring; I congratulated her; but when I asked the marriage date she gave me none saying it was to be kept secret. Now how did she become possessed of the ring?"

"Why, she asked me if she might wear it to dream over, and I unthinkingly let her have it. But now that you have explained, and I have also, may I ask one question? Will you wear it for me Amy?"

The silence was broken by the entrance of Maggie Darrow and her troop of chasers. [illegible]

A VISIT TO OTTAWA.

A Brief Sketch of the Dominion Capital—How It Came to Be Selected—Its Beautiful Site—Fine Public Buildings—Vast Lumber Interests—Magnificent Mills—Municipal Progress.

[Special to THE TIMES].

The week's round trip on the iron steamer "Ella Ross," going over more than 400 miles of the finest water scenery on the continent includes in the route, a day and night at the fine city of Ottawa, the present population of which including the adjacent towns is 50,000. The Ottawa river, from which the city takes its name, is on one side and forms the Provincial and civic boundary, and is a stream over which a vast bulk of one of Canada's greatest sources of wealth finds its way to the markets of the world. To go over it one finds its scenery less in size than the St. Lawrence, yet it is but a tributary to this mighty river. It has a course of over 400 miles, collecting the waters of more than 20 streams with courses of 200 miles each. At this point lies one of the greatest practicable water powers of the world. Along its shores, and extending for many miles back, its forest wealth is incalculable. Year after year the vast armies of lumbermen have cut down, and fire has swept "the lords of the forest" away, still there seems to be no appreciable diminution in the long lines of lumber piles which stretch as far as the eye can reach. Each year adds some new magnificent structure, whose vast labor saving machinery turns out hundreds of thousands of feet of pine lumber ready for the market each 24 hours. Once it was thought that hewn square timber, to be rafted was all the lumbermen could touch and the first proposals to build a saw mill were ridiculed. Now a vast army of workmen are employed, and the mills are among the finest and largest in the world. The writer, among others, visited the works of Mr. E. B. Eddy whose enterprise gives employment to some 1,500 men and women and supplies a large portion of the continent with matches, while his wooden ware of all kinds is to be found in every section of the country. Other chief mills are those of Bronson & Western, Perley & Pattee, Grier & Co., Gilmour & Co., J. R. Booth, and McLaren & Co.

AMONG THE PUBLIC BUILDINGS

the most noticeable is the capitol, consisting of three blocks, the middle one is used for the meetings of the Legislature, the others for the Departmental offices. These, taken in conjunction with their site form a group of unrivaled magnificence. They stand in a space of 27 acres of ground, tastefully laid out in lawns and flower plots, upon an eminence 150 feet above the river. The grand panorama which meets the eye from the bluffs equal in beauty and grandeur to that of Montreal or Quebec, and surpasses the palisades of our own Hudson in scope and variety.

This spot was chosen by Her Majesty, the Queen. The union of the two old Canadas, now Ontario and Quebec, caused a rivalry as to which should have the seat of government. After much wrangling in the Legislature, it was agreed to submit the question for settlement to Her Majesty. She readily decided in favor of Ottawa, having been prejudiced by her earliest friend and adviser, whose death she never ceased to mourn, "The Savior of Europe—the Duke." These buildings have been at various times enlarged and now another block of the finest make and architectural beauty is neerly completed. In in this enclosure is the Supreme Court building, close by is the City Hall, Registry Office, Public and Separate School Buildings, all handsome, substantial structures. Outside of these are the Normal and Model Schools supported by the Ontario Government, the Collegiate Institute, by a special city fund. Near by is the College of Ottawa, in charge of the Catholic Clergy, a vast pile of stone and granite buildings, which we learned is a favorite resort for American pupils. The entire structure is lighted by incandescent light. The county buildings are of modern architecture and built of handsome limestone. The Ladies' College on Albert street, well repays a visit to its beautiful grounds. The churches are very numerous, many of them costly and handsome structures.

THE CITY

was the first to adopt electric lighting. In municipal progress Ottawa ranks high. Its system of water works is among the finest in Canada. It boasts of being second to none either for efficiency or cheapness of maintenance, already saving the rate payers by the change of insurance rates, more than enough to meet interest and sinking fund, a practical example for Fulton to follow, by owning its own water works. In connection with them was established a paid fire brigade and an electric fire alarm. A notable thing here is the smallness of its police force, only 32 men of all ranks, with 100 miles of streets to control, while good order prevails, with little occasion for arrests, which speaks well for its morals. Doubtless the large circulation of such newspapers as the Press, Citizen and Journal, has had much to do in bringing about this state of things. The press of Ottawa is known throughout the country as most able and fearless, wielding an influence which is healthful and far reaching.

Not many years ago Ottawa was comparatively an isolated town. Slow steamers ran between the city and Montreal, taking three days time. First came the Ottawa & St. Lawrence Railroad, next the line to Carleton Place termed "The Golden Link." Following this came [illegible] pleasant route can be had than by water. An exclusively passenger steamer has been started the present season, running from the Thousand Islands down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, by the Ottawa river to this city, up the Rideau canal and river, through the famed Rideau Lakes to Kingston, back to Alexandra Bay, or the Park. The trip costing but $2 each day on board the "Ella Ross," Capt. W. Garrett, postoffice Smith Falls, Ont.

THE PROPER THING.

Pique is again in favor for small girls' dresses.

Velvet is used for trimming white wool dresses.

Some of the new dust cloaks are handsome and stylish.

Primrose color is one of the favorite shades this season.

There is a rage for the color combination pink and olive.

Gingham pokes for girls are made to match gingham dresses.

Boys from eight to thirteen have Scotch wool suits for general wear.

Silk and wool patterns are among the novel fabrics in corduroys.

India silk and foulard dresses are among the most popular at this season.

Black repped silk dresses with lace and jet garnitures and fashionable and elegant.

Small hats and bonnets of white muslin drawn on cords are worn by little children.

Navy blue and white twilled flannels, serges and Jersey webbing are used for bathing suits.

Leghorn flats trimmed with a wreath of daisies, buttercups or other flowers are the favorite dress hat for little girls.

Black, white and olive green is one of the most stylish of paid combinations in light woolens seen this season. An olive green is one of the most stylish of plaid combinations in light woolens seen this season. An olive jacket or vest should be worn with this plaid.

Mousquetaire gloves should be worn by ladies traveling any distance, as the tightly buttoned English walking glove becomes very uncomfortable and frequently produces headache.

Fashionable note paper should bear the owner's address in small capitals. Notes should be sealed with white wax, stamped with a monogram. Mrs. Cleveland sets the fashion.

For boys merely in trousers there is nothing so popular or fashionable as sailor suits. They are of white serge or linen with blue square-cornered sailor corner and showing a shirt of blue and white stripes.

Very plain pink, blue, or brown gingham dresses, made for girls with round waist, long sleeves, and gathered skirt have for their simple trimming a vest, cuffs, collar and border of white repped pique.

For out of door toilets the principal features of popular dresses are these: An underskirt just medium in width, this either plain or full, kilted all around, or with panel sides, decorated in various way with velvet, ribbon, or fancy ornaments and cords. The fronts of skirt are arranged in styles which are more or less intricate and irregular in effect. Instead of bodice and tunic there may be a graceful French polonaise, with drapery suited to the size and style of the wearer. Upon these fundamental ideas innumerable variations are daily devised.

Everyone needs occasionally something to increase the activity of the liver. No remedy has ever been discovered which will accomplish this object so thoroughly and agreeably as Van Wert's Liver Pellets.

Just now the papers are almost as full of college commencement news as they are of base ball intelligence. This cannot be accepted as a hopeful sign, however, for the college news will die out of the papers about three months before the base ball reports disappear.—Norristown Herald.

If there ever was a specific for any one complaint then Carter's Little Liver Pills are a specific for Sick Headache, and every woman should know this. They are not only a positive cure, but a sure preventive if taken when the approach is felt. Carter's Little Liver Pills act directly on the liver and bile, and in this way remove the cause of disease without first making you sick by a weakening purge. If you try them you will not be disappointed.

Physiology of Forgetfulness.

Forgetfulness as to the events occurring in the first two or three years of life is not unnatural. The brain has not become thoroughly organized, its cells have not formed their numerous connections which are necessary before association of ideas is possible, and the vast multitude of sensations crowding together upon the imperfect brain cannot be separated one from another and each make its proper strong impression, all of which must take place if memory is to result. After a while the cells become slowly united into groups ("centers"), and these establish connections between themselves, ever becoming more and more extensive, and memories of the organized form arise and recollection becomes possible.

In extreme old age the nerve cells lose more and more their ability to take on new impressions, the heart acts with less force, nutrition gradually fails, and forgetfulness becomes more and more marked. The later impressions having made the slightest change in the cells are soonest forgotten, while those made in earlier years, when the processes of growth and nutrition are most active, remain the longest. Old Falstaff, dying "babbled of green fields," and the aged not unfrequently remember nothing but the scenes of childhood and early youth—all else has faded away forever. During profound sleep, if ideas arise in the mind they are not sufficiently strong to make any lasting impression upon the brain cells—They are not registered. In dreaming a portion of the brain is active, while the rest is quiescent, but the disturbance of consciousness is so slight that a large proportion of dreams are not remembered even on first waking. It frequently happens that a dream is remembered when one awakes in the night, but by morning the impression has vanished, and no means can be devised to compel the recollection.—Globe-Democrat.

The Days of the Week

The following from the Journal of Education is not fresh, but it gives information which is valuable and interesting for young folks: In the museum of Berlin, in the hall devoted to northern antiquities, they have representations of idols from which the names of the days of our week are derived.

From the idol of the sun comes Sunday. The image is represented with a face like the sun, holding a burning wheel, with both hands on his breast, signifying his course around the world.

The idol of the moon, from which comes Monday, is habited in a short coat like a man, but holding the moon in his hands.

Tuisco, from which comes Tuesday, was one of the most ancient and popular gods of the Germans, and is represented in his garment of skins, according to the ancient manner of clothing. The third day of the week was dedicated to his worship.

Woden, from which comes Wednesday, was a valiant prince among the Saxons. His image was prayed to for victory.

Thor, from whence comes Thursday, is seated on a bed, with twelve stars over his head, holding a sceptre in his hand.

Friya, from whence we have Friday, is represented with a drawn sword in his right hand, and a bow in his left.

Sater, from which is Saturday, has the appearance of extreme wretchedness; he is thin-visaged, with long hair beard. He carries a water-pail in his right hand, wherein are fruits and flowers.

Reuben Timmerman, a well known resident of Pamelia, N. Y., says: I contracted Catarrh some years ago and tried every remedy I could hear of, but got help from none. The disease grew more troublesome as time went on. Painful sores formed in my nose, and my voice became much affected. I at length began using Van Wert's Golden Balm, and after taking three bottles consider myself completely cured.

A Brave Yankee Soldier.

"The bravest Yankee soldier I ever saw," says Hon. Henry W. Flournoy, secretary of the commonwealth of Virginia, "participated in one of the fights in the valley of Virginia. It was during Sheridan's raid in the valley. Our company of cavalry was going across a broad and level field at a sweeping gallop. In the woods I saw a solitary Yankee soldier sitting upon a horse, and I noticed that every now and then (just as fast as he could load) he would fire down our line. Pop, pop, pop would go his rifle, and I determined to capture him. I entered the woods without his seeing me and came up in the rear of him. I had a fine seven shooter in my hand and intended to use it in case of an emergency. I rode up toward him as quietly as I could, and had my pistol cocked ready for use if he attempted fight. Suddenly he turned and saw me, and in an instant raised his rifle. I leveled my pistol, but he was quicker than I, and the ball from his rifle passed through my neck. A few moments afterward there was a general skirmish, but I was badly wounded, and did not know what became of the fellow who shot me and and who stood solitary and alone in the very face of a whole company of Confederate cavalry and resisted them.—Chicago Times.

An "Arabian Nights" Story Matched.

Giles Busby, a Toledo fishmonger, was cleaning a whitefish last Monday, and in the larger intestines of the fish he found a diamond ring. The ring had engraved upon its inner surface "J. A. B., Chicago, '69." Busby forwarded the ring to the Chief of Police in this city. Yesterday Mrs. Julia A. Lennox, of 12 Lennox place, identified and recovered the ring. She tells an interesting story of its loss. In 1869 she, as Miss Bennett, became engaged to Mr. Lennox, and he gave her this diamond ring for which he paid $450. Upon their bridal trip in 1871 Mrs. Lennox lost this ring; while she was washing her hands in the toilet room of the Pullman car the ring slipped from her finger and dropped through the waste-pipe. As the train happened to be crossing the bridge over the St Lawrence river, near Montreal, just at that time, the bereaved bride had no hope of recovering the ring. There are no whitefish in the St Lawrence; the theory is that a small fish seized upon the ring, and that at some future time this small fish, while cruising about the lakes, fell a prey to the whitefish in which the long-lost ring was discovered. Giles Busby, the Toledo fishmonger, received from Mr. Lennox a check for $100 for his honesty.—Chicago News.

BLOOD purified, strengthened, and enriched. Loss of appetite, loss of strength, weakness of the muscles, all disappear. Eruptions on the face and body removed. New life given by use of Brown's Sarsaparilla.

RELIEF afforded from a disordered, disorganized, diseased condition of the whole system. Stomach, liver, and kidneys all out of order, producing such suffering as to make life a burden and existence a torment. All changed, and happiness secured, by using Brown's Sarsaparilla.

ONCE you try it you will never be without it. Sick headache disappears. Biliousness is removed. Dyspepsia and indigestion are conquered. Pallid or flushed cheeks assume a healthy appearance from using Brown's Sarsaparilla.

WHEN the pain in your back or sides is so great you cannot bear it, when your kidneys or bladder are so inflamed that you can't bear one more twinge of pain, then you can be relieved if you take Brown's Sarsaparilla.

NEVER act the foolish part of suffering from a torpid, sluggish liver. Bile accumulating. Skin of a sickly yellow hue. Brown's Sarsaparilla will prevent it.

SEVERE as may be your suffering from dyspepsia and indigestion, rheumatism giving another turn to the screw and neuralgia adding several more, all will yield to Brown's Sarsaparilla.

SARSAPARILLA is an old name. Brown's Sarsaparilla, so called, is prepared from the formula of the late W. H. Brown, M. D., and always cures all stomach disorders.

ALWAYS get the best. The best is the cheapest in the end. In this case it is as cheap at the beginning. Brown's Sarsaparilla is the best and most efficient Blood Purifier.

REVEREND Theodore Gerrish, pastor of the M. E. Church, Biddeford, Me., endorses in the highest terms and most elaborate manner the curative properties of Brown's Sarsaparilla.

SCROFULA, erysipelas, salt rheum, pimples, boils, eruptions, and all impurities of the blood cured and health restored by Brown's Sarsaparilla.

ACTIVITY insured to the sluggish, torpid liver. A proper performance of its duties results from a faithful use of Brown's Sarsaparilla.

PAINS in the back and sides, weakness of the kidneys, general debility, gravel, yes! even dropsy will be cured if you use Brown's Sarsaparilla as directed.

ALL that can be written descriptive of sufferings caused by impurities of the blood and weakness of the kidneys cannot tell a tithe of what you suffer.

JAS. R. FAIRGRIEVE - EDITOR

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND and his wife are in Utica to-day, the guests of Senator Kernan. They are attending the Clinton Centennial celebration.

MRS. CLEVELAND will be twenty-three years old on the 21st day of this month. Not very old to be sure but she is quite an important personage just the same.

THE Common Council of the city of Syracuse of June 27 voted to grant a franchise to the Salmon River & Onondaga Water company by which the city was to be supplied with water from the Salmon river for twenty years. On July 8, Mayor Burns vetoed this franchise. The reasons as stated by the Standard are briefly as follows:

The Syracuse Water company's valuable rights in the city, and two actions now pending in the Court of Appeals to determine the exact status of those rights; a franchise granted to the Central City Water company, the claims of that company and the objections of the State Board of Health to Oneida lake as a source of supply; the disadvantage of entering into a twenty-year's contract before the claims of two rival companies are settled; the fact that the franchise cannot be forfeited after the works are completed; a lack of any guarantee that a given pressure shall be maintained in the mains after the first satisfactory test is made; an omission to limit rates to private consumers. The Mayor also dwells upon the desirability of the city reserving the power to declare the franchise void and acquire the property of the company whenever it may desire, if the conditions of the franchise are not observed.

On Monday evening a vote was taken on the Mayor's veto. It was sustained by a single vote.

The Skaneateles Water Company.

There was filed in the county clerk's office Tuesday afternoon, a copy of the authority given by the village board of Skaneateles, to John E. Walker, George W. Weeks, Lewis B. Fitch, Edwin E. Hull, John K. Knox, John McNamara, Benjamin F. Petheram, Hon. George Barrow to organize the Shaneatéles water company. The capital stock of the proposed company is $40,000, and its plan is to supply the village of Skaneateles with water from Skaneateles lake. The conditions of the grant are that the works shall be in general operation within two years; that not more than $40 per hydrant shall be charged for all the hydrants needed by the village, that the company shall be liable for all damaget accruing from the water works, that it shall restore to good condition the streets it takes up, and that it shall not sell its rights to any non-resident of Skaneateles.—Syracuse Journal.

W. K. Vanderbilt's Long Trip.

William K. Vanderbilt with his family has started on a two year's cruise around the world on his steam yacht, the Alva. The party consists of Mr. Vanderbilt, his wife and three children. The yacht will proceed directly to Gibralter, where she will renew her supplies, thence up the Mediterrmean, she will go to Malta, touching at Italy. She will cruise some time along the Red sea and go to Ceylon and Japan. From there she sails down to Australia and through the islands of Oceanica, coming home by the way of the Pacific ocean. It is thought that the cost of the trip will be about $125,000 a year.

The Marvelous Jump Made by a Man with a Parachute.

The much-talked-of leap from a balloon was made by Prof. Thomas S. Baldwin at the fair frounds in Quincy, Ill., July 4. Thirty thousand people witnessed the performance.

Baldwin ascended to the height of one mile, and then holding his parachute launched himself into space. The parachute is an umbrella-shaped affair, with ribs of cord, which are prolonged and fastened to a ring, to which the æronaut clings. The parachute is made of silk and is eighteen feet in diameter. When the jump was made the parachute was closed and the first 200 feet the æronaut dropped like a rock. Then as the parachute expanded the speed became less rapid and the æronaut and his strange apparatus floated steadily down like a bird. The descent was accomplished in three minutes and twenty seconds.

Mr. Baldwin struck the ground with some force in a sliding manner, but was not even jarred by the shock. The descent varied about a quarter of a mile from the vertical.

Baldwin, called by his friends "The Man Bird," is a native of Quincy, twenty-six years old. He was for several years an attache of the Herald, but for the last few years has been studying and practicing athletics and ballooning. He made a similar leap in California last [illegible], the distance being about a thousand feet.

The one that you loved and cherished
Has gone on before.

And now dear mother and father,
Do not mourn for the loved one that's gone,
For you know she was willing and waiting
To meet her dear Savior above.

Eva, dear Clara has left you
Away from your side she has gone,
She is crossing the water of Jordan
Ah, soon she'll be on its shores.

And now dear brothers she left you,
To go to a better home,
But meet her, Oh! meet her I pray thee
On that beautiful shore.

My dear friends she has crossed the waters,
She is anchored now safe by the shore,
Where her dear Jesus was wait'ng
The loved ones now gone before.

By AMY.

You have gone from among us, dear Clara,
Our hearts are pierced with pain,
But we have that sweet consolation
That we will meet again.

We will try and bear our loss bravely,
For surely our God knows best,
He has taken you from this world of care
To his home of rest, sweet rest.

The home you have left, dear Clara,
Will be lonely and desolate now,
But we will look to Jesus for comfort
To his will we humbly will bow.

As we take the last look at Clara,
We think how she suffered so long,
And who is now dwelling with angels
And singing their beautiful songs.

And now good bye dear Clara
We will fold your pale hands o'er your breast,
And press a last kiss on your forehead
As tenderly we lay you to rest,

The New Princeton Review.

The New Princeton Review for July presents a series of articles which posess in an unusual degree the quality of being interesting; the subjects discussed are not only varied but entertaining. Mr. R. W. Gilder, the editor of the Century Magazine, emphasizes "Certain Tendencies in Current Literature," and interprets them as indications of the thirst for life and reality in art. Mr. S. G. W. Benjamin outlines the development of "American Art Since the Centennial," and enumerates the multiplying indications of original and distinctively American evolution of art in this country. "The Theory of Prohibition" is examined at length and in a thoroughly candid spirit by Mr. Sanford H. Cobb, who discriminates sharply between the true and false grounds on which it is based in current discussion. Madame Blaze de Bury contributes a very fresh and interesting resume of the "Recollections of the Duc de Broglie," covering the notable period of French history between 1785 and 1869, and written with characteristic insight into the life of the men and women of the Restoration, and the succeeding monarchies. Under the felicitous title of "The Vicissitudes of a Palace" Dr. Henry Van Dyke, Jr., interprets Tennyson's well-known poem, "The Palace of Art," and traces the changes which the poet has made in his work in the successive forms in which it has been issued, as affording material for the study of the growth of the laureate's genius. Prof. T. W. Hunt discusses the subject of "Literary Criticism" with special reference to American letters, with vigor, insight and ample scholarship. "The Minister's Factotum" is a capital piece of character study, full of nice observation and good descriptive writing. Miss Hapgood, who has done such good service in the translation of Russian literary masterpieces into English, gives Tolstoi at his best in "Sevastopol in May," a wonderful virile and vivid piece of writing. The department of Criticisms, Notes and Reviews is rich in discussion of new books and other timely matters.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
Washington, D. C., July 4, 1887.

To Hon. David R. Francis, Mayor and Chairman:

MY DEAR SIR: When I received the extremely cordial and gratifying invitation from the citizens of St. Louis, tendered by numbers of her representative men, to visit the city during the national encampment of the Grand Army Republic, I had been contemplating for some time the acceptance of an invitation from that organization to the same effect and had considered the pleasure which it would afford me if it should be possible to meet not only the members of the G. A. R., but the people of St. Louis and other cities in the west, which the occasion would give an opportunity to visit. The exactness of my public duties I feel to be so uncertain, however, when confronted by the delegation of which you were the head, I expected to do more at that time than to promise the consideration of the double invitation tendered me and express the pleasure it would give me to accept the same thereafter, if possible. But the cordiality and sincerity of your presentation, reinforced by the heartiness of the people, who surrounded you, so impressed me that I could not resist the feeling which prompted me to assure you on the spot that I would be with you and the Grand Army of the Republic at the time designated if nothing happened in the meantime to absolutely prevent my leaving Washington.

Immediately upon the public announcement of this conclusion, expressions, emanating from certain important members of the G. A. R., and increasing in volume and virulence, constrained me to review the acceptance of these invitations. The expressions referred to go to the extent of declaring that I would be an unwelcome guest at the time and place of the national encampment. This statement is based as near as I can judge, upon certain official acts of mine involving important public interests done under restraints and obligations of my oath of office which do not appear to accord with the wishes of some members of the G. A. R. I refuse to believe that this organization, founded upon patriotic ideas, composed very largely of those entitled to lasting honor and consideration and whose crowning glory it should be that they are American citizens as well as veteran soldiers, deems it a part of their mission to compass any object or purpose by attempting to intimidate the executors or coerce those charged with making and executing the laws, and yet, the expressions to which I have referred indicate such a prevalence of unfrendly feeling and such a menance to an occasion which should be harmonious, peaceful and cordial, that they cannot be ignored.

I beg you to understand that I am not conscious of any act of mine which should make me fear to meet the Grand Army of the Republic or any other assemblage of my fellow-citizens. The account of my official stewardship is always ready for presentation to my countrymen. I should not be frank if I failed to confess, while disclaiming all resentment, that I have been hurt by the unworthy and wanton attacks upon me growing out of his matter and the reckless manner in which my actions and motives have been misrepresented both publicly and privately, for which, however, the Grand Army of the Republic as a body is by no means responsible. The threats of personal violence and harm in case I undertake the trip in question which scores of misguiding unbalanced minds, under the stimulation of excited feeling have made, are not even considered. Rather than abandon my visit to the west and disappoint your citizens, I might, if I alone were concerned, submit to the insults to which it is quite openly asserted I would be helplessly subjected if present at the encampment. But I should bear with me there the peoples' highest office the dignity of which I must protect and I delieve neither the Grand Army of the Republic, as an organization, nor anything like a majoyity of its members, would ever encourage any scandalous attack upon it. If, however, among the membership of this body there are some, which certainly seems to be the case, who are determined to denounce me and my official acts the national encampment I believe they should be permitted to do so unrestrained by my presence as a guest of their organization or as the guest of the hospital city in which their meeting is held. A number of the G. A. R. posts have signified their intention, I am informed, to remain away from the encampment in case I visit the city at that time. Without considering the merit of such an excuse I feel that I ought not to be the cause of any such non-attendance. The time and place of the encampment were fixed long before my invitations were received and those desirous to participate in its proceedings should be first regarded and nothing should be permitted to interfere with their intentions. Another consideration of more importance than all others, remains to be noticed. The fact was referred to by you when you verbally presented the invitation of the citizens of St. Louis that the coming encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic would be the first held in a southern state. I suppose this fact was mentioned as a pleasing incident of the fraternal feeling fast gaining ground throughout the entire land and hailed by every patriotic citizen as an earnest, that the union has really, and in fact been saved in sentiment and in spirit with all the benefits it vouchsafes to a united people. I cannot rid myself of the belief that the least discord on this propitious occasion might retard the progress of the sentiment of common brotherhood which the Grand Army of the Republic has so good an opportunity to increase and foster. I certainly ought not to be the cause of such discord in any event and upon any pretext. It seems to me that you and the citizens of St. Louis are entitled to this unreserved statement of the conditions [illegible] [illegible] guests, and [illegible] appreciation of the [illegible] kindness of your citizens.

Hoping the encampment may be the occasion of much usefulness and its proceedings may illustrate the highest patriotism of Americanship.

I am yours truly and sincerely,
GROVER CLEVELAND.

CHAPT. 720.

AN ACT TO PROVIDE FIRE ESCAPES IN HOTELS.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Every owner, lessee, proprietor or manager of a hotel situated in the State of New York, exceeding two stories in height, shall on or before the first day of July eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, place or cause to be placed a rope or better appliance to be used as a fire escape in every room of said hotel used as a lodging room except the rooms on the ground floor, which rope or other better appliance shall be securely fastened to one end of it to a suitable iron hook or eye to be secured driven or secured into one of the joists or timbers next adjoining the frame of the window or one of the windows of said room, which ropes shall be at all times kept coiled up and in plain view of any occupant of said room, the coil to be fastened in such slight manner as to be easily and quickly loosened an uncoiled, and such rope shall not be less than three fourths inch in diameter and of sufficient length to reach from such window to the ground. Such rope, iron hook or eye and fastenings shall be of sufficient strength to sustain a weight of four hundred pounds. It shall, also, be the duty of every owner, lessee, manager or proprietor to post or cause to be posted in a conspicuous place in each room and each hall of such hotel, except the rooms and hall on the ground floor, a printed notice to the effect that a rope is so placed in every such room of said hotel, except the rooms on the ground floor, for use in case of fire, and giving full directions for such use.

§ 2. It shall be the duties of the chief engineer or the officer performing the duties of a chief engineer of a fire department, of every city and village of this State in the months of July and January of each and every year to inspect or cause to be inspected by some person deputized by him for that purpose, every room of every hotel in the city or village in which he is performing the duties of such chief engineer and ascertain if the provision of section one of this act are complied with. And any owner, lessee, proprietor, manager or other person, who shall obstruct or prevent such officer or person from making a free inspection of said rooms provided for as aforesaid, shall be liable to a fine of fifty dollars for each and every offense to be recovered by a civil suit brought in the name of the people in any court of the State. It shall be the duty of every such person making such inspection on or before the fifteenth days of August and February of each and every year, to make and file a written report with the Mayor, president or other officer performing the duties of the chief executive of such city or village, showing what hotels he has so inspected, and specifying which of them have fully complied with the Provisions of this act, and which, if any, have not, and in what respects and to what extent. Such mayor, president or other chief executive shall thereupon and within ten days after such report is so rendered to him, shall make and present to any court or magistrate having jurisdiction of crimes of the grade of a misdemeanor and procure a warrant for the arrest of every person so reported as violating the provision of this act.

§ 3. Any officer or person violating any provisions of this act is guilty of a misdemeanor and is punishable in a penitentiary or county jail for not more than one year or by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars or by both.

§ 4. This act shall not apply to fire-proof hotel.

§ 5. This act shall take effect immediately.

The newspaper that pleases everyone don't amount to shucks—never did and never can: It would be a paradox. It is from its very nature compelled to deal with matters upon which all do not agree; but its motto is: the greatest good to the greatest number. It is the conservator of peace, the prompter to progress, the champion of morality and above all, the relentless foe to every enemy of law and order. In this work it makes enemies—it must—it will; but very few are ever generous enough to give it credit for the amount of gratuitous work it does for a town and for its people, and still fewer realize the grists of generous and gratuitous "cussing" it gets from individuals whose corns are tread, in its efforts for the good of the many.—Ex.

[illegible] Post No. 5 [illegible] of Lynn, Mass., accompanied by ladies, paid their respects to the President at the White House yesterday. The post formed in front of the National Hotel about five o'clock and marched up the avenue to the White House, where they were met by the ladies. They formed a hollow square about the East Room and when the President appeared David Walker, the commander of the post stepped to the front and said: "Comrades of General Lander Post No. 5, I propose three cheers for Grover Cleveland President of the United States.

The cheers were given heartily. When they had subsided Mr. Cleveland spoke as follows:

"I can only say to you gentlemen, that I am glad to meet you here. I have extended to you this courtesy, as I have lately, with much pleasure, to other posts of the Grand Army of the Republic on their way home from visits to their Southern friends. I want you to understand that I have lost no confidence in Grand Army of the Republic as an organization, notwithstanding recent occurrances, to which it is not necessary further to allude. It is incomprehensible to me that men who have risked their lives to save the government should return home to abate one jot or title of the respect and support which every good citizen owes the Government and the constituted authorities. I greet you then as citizens as well as veterans, and I shall be pleased to take you all by the hand."

The President then shook hands with each of them as they marched past in single file. The post formed in line again in front of the White House just in time to see the President and Mrs. Cleveland enter their carrage and start for Oak View. They then marched back to their hotel.

It is pretty well settled that the President will not go West this year since he will not go to St. Louis, his plans for visiting other Western cities must be changed. I learned at the White House yesterday, that the only plans that the President had made for leaving the Capitol during the summer and autumn, are those for his visit to Clinton N. Y. on the 12th, of this month, which which will probably not consume more than a week's time, and for his visit to Atlanta in October next, during the progress of the Georgia State Fair.

Last week a paper not in Washington contained the simple announcement: "Mrs. Fish, wife of Ex-Secretary Hamilton Fish, died yesterday." No Washington paper contained even a paragraph on the subject. During the eight years of Grant's administration the papers slopped over with adulation of Mrs. Fish and the Washington Correspondent was never tired (though his readers may have been,) of description of the receptions and entertainments of the social queen. Now, the death of Mrs. Fish fails to elicit an item.

We may moralize that Socio-Official life in Washington is artificial and vain, and we may infer that the time will come, is indeed is near, when Mrs. Whitney and her baby, and even Mrs. Cleveland will be relegated to the oblivion, the "peaceful path in life," to which all good and commonplace people belong.

The good intentions of Senator Ransome of North Carolina, in coming to Washington to do the honors of the Capital to a party of Excursionists from his state, have been construed into another purpose. It is now said that he comes to confer with the President about the vacant seat in the Cabinet, to left by the probable resignation of Secretary Lamar. There is a greater necessity than ever to invent rumors here in the dearth of news. This report may be the result of such necessity, and have no foundation, but will serve to review an old story they tell of the Senator. At his home in North Carolina, some neighbors and friends were gathered one evening a few years ago, when the conversation fell upon the then approaching nomination of a Democratic candidate for President. "Ah! Senator," said one of the visitors "You ought to have the nomination, we'd all like to see you in White House." "Humph," said a small son of Mr. Ransom, who was present, "if father was to go to the White House he'd have a mortgage on it before he'd been there six months." Perhaps the Senator from North Carolina may transfer his intention of mortgaging the White House to the Interior Department, if he gets there, as the public lands are under the control of the Secretary of the Interior, it might be a dangerous experiment to make him a Cabinet officer.

The President's determination not to go West seems to meet with very general approval here. Mr. Cleveland is not the man to "swing around the circle," make speeckes for every balcony, and interchange repartee with the small boys, trees, or lamp posts. Andy Johnson could do this, but not Grover Cleveland.

[illegible]
In the [illegible] a summer day is [illegible],
A [illegible] sound.

Whatever of battle the eyes may see—
The [illegible] of man to death,
The death of horse, the rush of gun,
The smoke's fiery breath;

The menacing clouds of the cannon smoke,
The horror of bursting shell,
The wreck of wheel and caisson,
The surgeon's minie hell;

The upturned brow and the ashen cheek,
The droop of the shattered limb,
The men by the blood-pools in the grass,
The bodies stiff and grim.

You see it all; you hear no sound!
You listen for roar and boom,
For the crack and the ring of the bullet's thud:—
'T is the stillness of the tomb!

No rattle to wheel, no clatter to hoof,
No bugle call or cry;
No fierce hurrah along that line,
Where the columns press to die.

Those sullen prisoners give no oath—
That face in the grass no groan;
Its good bye" reaches a thousand miles,
And "you" catch never a tone.

Ah! If we "could" add sound to sight,
And then could paint the strain
And the splendor in the soldier's heart,
Breasting death's hurricane;

And the flashing signals of his thought
To homes that signal back,
And the woman's face, and the climbing child
That lie in the bullets crack;

And the breathless pause, each pulse-beat hushed
Of a watching continent,
And the sense of a nation's fate at stake
In the awful tournament!

If this we could rim in those summer hills,
And add to all eyes see;
In the cloister quaint by the city street,
Then "Vicksburg" would be!

Yet, hark! The very soundlessness
Is the song of the war's release.
The silence and beauty are prophets there
Of the battle's after peace.

Cheese Market.

[From the Utica Herald].

AT UTICA.

UTICA, N. Y July 11.

The market was ⅝c. lower to-day and dairymen thought the drop hardly warranted by New York quotations. Buyers however, were firm and would pay no more for the stock, and full shipments were finally made. Factories are now off all the way from June 18 to July 1. We heard of only one lot that was being sold down to this month, and should judge that the average would be to about the 22d. This would leave a week's make in June yet to be marketed. Milk is still shrinking, the heat of the past week having affected the cows seriously. The make has now shrunk 20 per cent. from the highest point on an average and in some cases as much as one-quarter. Several factorymen claim that, taking the season right through, they have made no more cheese down to the present time than they had last year at this date. Their figures are taken from the factory books. At the same time the transactions of this market keep up remarkably. Only once this season have they failed to exceed the transactions of last year. Following are the sales of the day:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price
2	300	7¾
22	2,057	8
62	6,530	8¼
25	2,701	8⅜
6	821	8⅝
10	1,355	8½
1	160	p.t
128	12,030
	2,284	Com.
Total	16,314

Ruling price 8¼c. Transactions one year ago 15,870 bxs., ruling 7⅝c. Two years ago 14,689 bxs., ruling 7¾c. There were sales of 73 pkgs. creamery butter at 18c., all of which went to New York.

AT LITTLE FALLS.

LITTLE FALLS, July 11

Cheese—The high prices of last week coming while the weather was so extremely hot, seem to have been too much for the market, and a break in prices was the result. It was feared at one time to day that rates would be about one cent lower, but the market rallied later and the decline is only one-half to five-eights cent. One buyer who had an order for some fine white cheese, to secure which he was obliged to pay 8½c., had much effect in strengthening the market, but trade was quite dull and lingered till a late hour before closing. Salesmen continue to let the cheese go forward and show no disposition to hold at even the lower rates paid to-day. Now that cooler weather has come all express confidence that the decline will be checked. Following are the transactions:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price
1	38	7 cents
1	63	7¾cents
46	3,000	8 cents
66	5,241	8¼cents
1	120	8⅜cents
5	436	8½cents
2	175	8¾cents
3	363	p. t.
8	1,098	Com.
133	10,533
Farm dairy	1,241
	11,774

Farm Daries.—There were sales of 1,241 boxes farm cheese at 7½@8½c., the bulk at 8c.

Butter—Twenty packages of diary butter sold at 18@19c., and 22 packages of creamery at 18c.

AT FULTON.

Twenty-four factories with 2,505 boxes of cheese were represented at the market here Monday evening. Nearly all was sold at 8 cents. The price for the corresponding date one year ago was 7⅝ cents.

The jury [illegible] by Coroner Drury in the case of the shooting of Miss Violanta Carpenter at the Oswego Falls Fair Ground on the afternoon of July 4th, concluded their work on Wednesday afternoon last and rendered a verdict of accidental shooting.

In the course of the examination Lavine testified that he was not familiar with guns, that he borrowed the one used on the occasion, that after the Fitzgerald boy was hit he put boards behind the target, that no member of the committee who had charge of the grounds ordered him to stop shooting.

Michael Fitzgerald testified that he had been shot in the foot and that he told Lavine that he must stop shooting.

Richard Fitzgerald testified that he told Lavine to stop shooting, that there was danger of some one getting hurt.

Philip Lynch, president of the F. M. T. & B. society testified that he told Lavine he must stop but Lavine said he had put up boards to prevent balls from going through and that everything was all right.

Mrs. Wallace Brown testified that she was struck in the head just as she heard the report of the gun and believed that she had been shot. It made a slight wound from which the blood trickled.

Thomas Lawyer and Charles Drake both testified to a man speaking of shooting a revolver against the gun but neither know whether he shot it or not.

The following is the verdict:

The jury determines that the said Violanta Carpenter came to her death from a ball fired from a rifle in the hands of some person unknown to the jury which entered the lungs and heart and was the immediate cause of death, the said gun being run by Louis Lavine on the Oswego Falls Fair grounds. We believe the shooting accidental.

NEWTON JOHNSON, Foreman,
LEWIS JOHNSON,
FREEMAN CRAVER,
ED. WAUGH,
T. G. SOMERS,
CHAS. J. ROGERS.

By order of District Attorney Mead Lavine was arrested Wednesday evening and brought before Justice Shannon where he gave bail in the sum of $1,000 to appear Friday afternoon for examination.

On Friday afternoon he was before Judge Churchill and waiving examination was required to furnish $2,000 bail for his appearance before the grand jury at Oswego in October. His father and Morgan Wilcox went on the bond.

Assistant District Attorney Stranahan on Monday had photographs taken of the place where the shooting occurred, which shows the bullet holes in the building and the position of the differ- articles in the hall.

The body of Miss Violanta Carpenter was exhumed early last Sunday morning and the bullet which killed her found. The ball is in the possession of the District Attorney and is of the calibre of those fired from the gun used by Lavine on the Fourth. This destroys the theory that she might have been killed by a bullet fired from a revolver.

Ho! For the Beach!

Everything indicates that there will be an exceedingly large excursion to Sylvan Beach next Friday, when Hiram Lodge, No. 144, F. & A. M. of this village have their grand excursion and basket picnic to this popular resort. The special train leaves Fulton, stopping at both depots, at 8:30 on the morning of the 15th, and will return early in the evening. No better opportunity will be afforded this season of enjoying a day off with your family and friends, and no pleasanter place can be found in Northern New York than Sylvan Beach of which the following is an abridged description: Sylvan Beach is in Oneida county, and beautifully situated on the point of land lying between Oneida Lake on the north, and Wood River on the south. Its natural beauty has made it the favorite resort of Utica, Rome and Syracuse people, many of whom have erected cottages in which the entire summer season is spent. The bathing is unequaled by any inland summer resort; the beach of white sand gently declines for a half mile before the water reaches a dangerous depth, and extends for miles around the lake, forming an inland Coney Island—perfectly safe for children. Bathing suits and attendants may be had at reasonable rates at the bathing houses. Boats, oarsmen and fishing tackle may be had at the dock. Bass, pickerel, perch and other fish are abundant in both the river and lake, while the wild shores of the lake and the neighboring islands afford good duck, woodcock, partridge and snipe shooting in season.

The extremely low rates on this day, $1 for adults and 60 cents for children, from the Fulton stations, makes it within the reach of all.

The following is the general committee who have charge of the excursion: G. C. Webb, Thomas Ferris, S. Parmelee, C. M. Allen, James Stevens, C. A. Miller, A. B. Cook, T. D. Lewis.

As the cherry season is at hand, an exchange reminds housewives that if they put the cherries in a pail of water they can detect the wormy ones by seeing them rise to the top, while the sound, healthy ones sink to the bottom.

The work of constructing the new raceway and bulk head for Weeks & Redhead, on the east side above the upper bridge will be pushed to completion by William Patrick before fall. This will open a field for new industries in that part of the village.

The following from an exchange is to the point and expresses our sentiments: "We wouldn't trust a man near a hen house who would order a newspaper stopped through a postmaster when he is in arrears. It is a cowardly way of refusing to pay an honest debt."

Chief Mosher of the Fulton Fire Department, in compliance with the new law which requires that every hotel have a rope in each room as a means of escape in case of fire before the 15th of next month, notified every hotel proprietor last Saturday of this law.

After the extremely hot weather of last week there was a "let up" for a few days and the thermometer registered from 20 to 30 degrees lower. The probability is that another hot spell is upon us. We therefore suggest that you escape it for a day by going on the Masonic excursion to Sylvan Beach next Friday.

A young son of Charles Jones who lives on First street, Oswego Falls was poisoned last evening by eating Paris Green. The youngster went into a neighbor's yard where there was some Paris Green that had not been mixed, and when found, his hands and mouth were filled with the poison. His condition is considered critical.

A horse, belonging to Charles Wetherby attached to a grocery wagon, became frightened Monday afternoon while standing in front of one of the flour mills. He proceeded to get out of Volney as fast as possible making a straight line for Granby across the lower bridge. A right of way was granted and the horse landed the wagon safely in the barn at Lower Oswego Falls.

The examinations will commense on Tuesday, Aug. 23 at 10 a. m.

The committee on the Fourth of July parade decided the following after THE TIMES had gone to press last week.

Most attractive Merchant's Chariots, A. Bristol, Geo. Johnston, H. C. Giesler. The Committee decided that Bristol made the largest and most novel and diversified display; that Geo. Johnston made the handsomest and most brilliant and Giesler the most ingenious. They also specially commend the Bee Hive, the Boat Jehu, and the Foster Coal Wagon.

It is considerable of an undertaking as the wheel pit and channel has to be made through a ledge of solid rock. It will probably be three weeks longer before the work is completed and the mills again started.

Pleasant Point.

Pleasant Point on the shore of Lake Ontario and in the town of New Haven is one of the delightful spots that Fultonians like to visit in warm weather. It is a promontory of the lake on which are three cottages in addition to the main house, splendedly shaded by many trees. Rustic seats scattered here and there on the grounds, winding paths leading along the shore of the lake, with all that nature has done for the place make it a spot where one likes to go for a few days rest and recreation. There is always a breeze from the lake which is invigorating and pleasant. Boating and fishing always make a pleasurable pastime. Meals are served in the large dancing hall where forty or more guests are served at this season of the year. The Point is about three miles from New Haven station from which place Capt. Nichols conveys his guests to his lake home.

The Cosmopolitan.

This well conducted monthly which has previously been issued at Rochester sends out its July number from New York city where the publishers, Schlecht, & Field Co., are now located. The Cosmopolitan comes this month considerably enlarged and greatly improved in many ways. One of the most noticeable changes is the cover which is striking, original and artistic in its design. The magazine will hereafter contain over eighty pages but the price remains the same, $2 per year and twenty cents per number. It is a magazine that every one will find interesting and instructive. Special to THE TIMES.

[illegible] is duller than the traditional axe [illegible] these days. With a thermometer among the nineties and rising, humanity don't seem to be "rustling" as they say west. The rush of summer outers is terrific. They told me at the Grand Central depot the other day that the business was fully equal to their vast equipment and appearances seemed to indicate there was "more to follow." An official who has spent years in the railway service told me that each M. C. who voted for the Interstate Commerce Bill ought to receive a gold medal from the railroad managers of the country; for it had saved them an immense amount of bother from the unequal infliction of passes to leading politicians, freighters and merchants to summer resorts. It is amusing to see the self-satisfied smile of the chief baggage "smasher" of a great trunk road when the thermometer begins to climb toward the 100 deg. notch. That means increased business in his special department and why should he not smile, even if it does teem with a sardonic and Satanic flavor.

Beyond the aftermath of Sharp's trial and the excommunication of McGlynn, the city is apparently lifeless.

The courts have nearly all adjourned for the term. To-morrow, however, Judge Barrett opens his court for a hearing on a motion for a new trial for Sharp on a bill of exceptions. The counsels for this old sinner are busying themselves with obtaining the consent of the jury to favor a scheme that has for its end the escape of Sharp from confinement in Sing Sing. The possibility is that all this sort of thing will have no weight with Judge Barrett who is not noted for special leniency.

The McGlynn-Corrigan controversy has received a new impetus by the official notice of the former's excommunication. By it he is refused the office of his church, both during his life and at his funeral. The good doctor protests his adherence to the faith of his fathers, and therein, constitutes the difference between his case and those of many of the former cases where excommunication has been the final penalty. There are many learned in church polity here who claim he is not yet debarred from the church. He has had no trial before an diocesian court and could not, therefore, make any appeal to Rome. Without such proceeding his case is not yet properly before the authorities at Rome and so his excommunication is null and void. The opinion is fully expressed among Catholics that the result will be an independent church, not under the papal rule, but agreeing with the present church in tenets, faith and doctrine, having McGlynn as pastor and St. Stephens parishioners and many others as members. He is the front and head centre of the labor party in this city. Whatever action he takes in this matter will receive the support of this labor party.

Sanitation is receiving a much needed share of public attention. The Board of Health, like many other things is under political control, and it would seem that so important a matter as public health might be permitted to escape the bickerings, the petty party jealousies which have for some years past influenced the administration of the health board. Last year the condition of the tenement house district demanded some regulation and care but Mayor Grace refused because of a political difference with the Health Board to permit an expenditure of money to reach this end. So the much needed regulation had to go along as best it could. This year, however, the death rate has been largely on the increase. Last week alone 1,276 deaths were reported of which 800 were in the densely populated tenement house district east of Broadway. Diptheria, cholera morbus and infantum zymotic, diseases are the special destroyers of life. Close rooms, densely inhabited houses, fetid atmosphere are the causes. To endeavor to restrict these ravages the Board of Health have appointed fifty regular physicians who will serve for two months at $100 per month and whose special duty is to furnish medicine, food and general directions for the comfort of the sufferers. This medical corps will have tickets for excursions down the harbor for distribution among the deserving. It is no easy matter to keep this city clean—the sewerage properly confined. Many, very many of these same tenement houses are poorly equipped with the modern sanitary plumbing and thousands of feet of sewer gas, that deadly poison, are daily emitted through these houses. The work of this medical corps is not easy. The ignorant opposition of people is to be overcome, but there will be a great deal of good resulting. More than once has this city been saved an epidemic by the prompt preventive action of the Health Board.

The necessity of direct railroad communication with Long Island, thus avoiding the tedious ferry crossing of the East River, has led to the projection of another bridge over that stream. The great bridge has a great traffic in passengers and the receipts fully, if not surpass the expectations of its founders. But it cannot be used for railroad transportation. Long Island has a population that is growing rapidly and the need of direct railroad communication by which freight can be sent directly from the west to Long Island without transhipment is becoming an important factor. It is proposed to build a bridge over the East River at Sixteenth street, having one of its piers on Blackwell's Island and two spans, one from either side of the pier New York and Long Island. The New York approach is to have a direct connection with the N. Y. Central railroad at 59th and 64th streets. Then freight and passengers could be sent directly through to the West from Long Island or vice versa. The benefit financially speaking, to the N. Y. C. road would be something worth remembering. This is part of that scheme of Austin Corbin for fast steamers to run from Montauk Point, the eastern extremity of Long Island, to Europe. The bridge will be built and already property is being asked for and the proper authorities are being importuned for permission to begin work.

Mention was made in a former letter of the need for a substitute for horses as a mode of motion for street cars. The The Fourth Avenue Company has successfully experimented with electricity. The grades on this line are many of them very heavy, but the car ran easily up them. The car is operated by the Jubilee system. It is an ordinary horse-car the floor of which is rather higher from the street than ordinarily the case. Storage batteries whose motive force is equivalent to four horse power are placed out of sight under the seats. By a proper system of magnets and curvaturees, the requisite rotary motion is acquired which is in turn communicated to the driving shaft by a suitable belt. The car starts easily and is stopped quickly. The only noise one hears is a peculiar buzzing that is noticeable about a dynamo. The expense is only one-third the cost of a horse car and the needed depot space is very much less. The day is not far distant when this mode will be quite universal. The Fourth Avenue line runs through the crowded Bowery to City Hall and it is there where the real test comes.

WORTH KNOWING.

Pure water for stock, remember.

For growing calves scalded milk may have oatmeal added to it.

Corn that is in the least degree affected by rust should never be used.

A man can be a farmer and know as much as a preacher. We all know a farmer's son ought to be educated, just the same as any one else's son.

Even in summer cows prefer warm to cold water, and in winter will often go thirsty rather than quench their thirst with ice-cold water.

Where butter is the object, quantity of milk is of less consequence than quality, although a large flow of milk very rich in cream may be always desirable.

Milk extremely rich in cream is not so profitable for cheese, since buyers do not make any distinction between cheese very rich in butter and that only fairly rich.

No one can keep fowls profitably covered with vermin, or surrounded by filth. The first consideration is health, the next, cleanliness, warmth, ventilation, variety of food.

It has been demonstrated in England that the quantity of meat produced by sheep delivered to the butcher at one year of age, costs just twice as much as that fed to double the age.

Sheep as a rule, are not given a variety of food. The dry "pickings" are reserved for sheep because they do not refuse many kinds of food that are rejected by other animals; but to get sheep in fine condition they should receive careful feeding, which does not depend so much upon the quantity as upon the quality of the food allowed.

It is said that a due mixture of buttermilk and corn-meal will make about the best balanced ration for pigs, and secure the greatest economy, both in preventing waste and providing the greatest amount of nutrition. As they increase in age, and more fat is desired, the proportion of meal can be increased.

The Rural New Yorker says, "A hog must root or die." This is true in two senses. It must root to find its most acceptable food, and its health is better secured by this natural proclivity. Opportunities should be afforded for it. A fallow field may be usually turned over in this way, and if sown with a few quarts of corn occasionally, it will encourage the pigs in their useful labors.

Large Fields and Long Rows

Mr. Bonham, secretary of the Ohio state board of Agriculture, is a practical farmer and stock breeder, pork making being one of his specialties. To make pork profitably Mr. Bonham grows large quantities of corn to be fed with other food. His corn fields contain twenty-five acres each and are 110 rods long and about one-third that width. The corn is planted in check rows so it can be cultivated both ways. To illustrate the difference in the cost of cultivating large and small fields Mr. T. B. Berry, who recently visited Mr. Bonham, tells in the Country Gentleman that one of these twenty-five acre fields can be cultivated the long way in three days, while the cross cultivation the short way takes four and a half days. The New England Farmer, commenting on the above, says: "In 1885 the cost of the corn in the crib, exclusive of land rent, was $5.20 per acre, or nine cents per bushel. Including the rent of the land the cost would be about $13 per acre. And this is the same whether the crop be large or small. If 100 bushels are produced per acre the cost per bushel would consequently be only thirteen cents, while a crop of fifty bushels would cost twenty-six per bushel. The average yield through the country being only twenty-six bushels the cost must be about fifty cents per bushel. Large fields and long rows will do much to reduce the cost of this crop."

On the Turnpike.

A proverb slinger says: "Spend less than you earn and you will be rich." A tramp sees two impossible things in this proposition and no truth.—New Orleans Picayune.

The latest "fad" with tramps is to beg a cake of soap at every grocery and drug store, then auction off the soap and get drunk on the proceeds.—Burlington Free Press.

"Well," said an old tramp, wiping the perspiration from his brow with the back of his hand, "I wish somebody would explain why so much water comes out of my pores. I never absorb any."—Norristown Herald.

"No professional beggars allowed 'round here," said the woman sharply, "so git." "I am no professional beggar, madam," he replied with dignity. "I may be a tramp—in fact, I will admit that I am a tramp in an amateur sort of way—but I am no beggar. If you have a ham bone left over, or some cold mackeral, or anything that the dog doesn't care for or the pigs won't eat, you may give it to me, but don't call me a professional beggar."—New York Sun.

Red Heads and White Horses.

The red headed girl and white horse superstition has taken a deep hold in Chicago and lots of people in that scientific city now assert that whenever you see one of the beacon-topped damsels out of doors an albino equine will not be far off. One nationalisticfellow says: "It is a phenomenon that, in my opinion, is easily explained by the fact that white horses are more common than girls with red hair, and a person can hardly look anywhere on the streets without seeing a white horse, and he may look a long time for a red-haired girl. It is to be hoped that this subject will not arouse public attention to such an extent that the poor lassies who had not the choosing of color for their hair will be compelled to disguise themselves with wigs or remain indoors until the excitement has subsided.

Prohibition in Kansas has had one effect in the matter of tableware. The former beer schooners are now used to hold the red-cheeked, luscious radish.

It is an undecided question whether an editor of an agricultural paper knows less about farming than a conductor of a cooking school knows of the cause of dyspepsia.

This is the time of the year that the old farmer says to his hired man: "Clean out the cow stable for a summer house, Jim. Our city boarders will be here next week.

We clip the following sage advice from an agricultural paper: "When around your bees neigher fight them nor make quick motions when one of the little beasts sting you in a tender spot.—Detroit Free Press.

Rough on Rum.

Powderly in a recent speech, says: "Now a word about the great curse of the laboring man—strong drink. Had I 10,000,000 tongues, and a throat for each tongue, I would say to each man, woman and child here to-night: "Throw strong drink aside as you would an ounce of liquid hell. [Tremendous applause]. It sears the conscience, it destroys everything it touches, it reaches into the family circle and takes the wife you have sworn to protect and drags her down from her pinnacle of purity into that house from which no decent woman ever goes alive. (Applause). It induces the father to take the furniture from his house, exchange it for money at the pawn shop, and spend the proceeds in rum. It damns everything it touches. I have seen it in every city east of the Mississippi, and I know that the most damning curse to the laborer is that which gurgles from the neck of a bottle. (Cheers). I had rather be at the head of an organization having 100,000 temperate, honest, earnest men than at the head of an organization of 12,000,000 drinkers, whether moderate or any other kind."

A Great Mining Enterprise.

One of the most promising enterprises organized here recently, is the Tortilita Gold and Silver Mining Company with a capital of $4,000,000 in shares of $2 each. Its property comprises twelve developed mines, and a mill in Pinal County, Arizona, a district known for its rich and generous deposits of ore. The mines cover a territory three miles long and there are over 250 acres of ore deposits. Over $150,000 in bullion was taken out in the prospecting and development work. Two of the mines which are now being worked, apparently contain an inexhaustible supply of ore averaging over $150 per ton. They have been worked to the water level where the ore concentrates in a body 42½ feet wide which has been tested thirty feet below, thus demonstrating their permanency. This is believed to be one of the largest and richest bodies of ore on this continent. Mr. Jos. H. Reall, is the President of the Company, whose offices are at 57 Broadway, New York City. Dividends will commence to be paid monthly Sept 1. Prospectus will be sent on application.

Washington's Rogues' Gallery.

There are a number of counterfeit coins shown in this rogues' gallery, and also several checks which were raised. One hangs on the wall which was raised from $451 to $26,968.75. It was upon Winslow, Lanier & Co., of New York, and it was dated Nov. 23, 1876. It was drawn Nov. 23 and presented on Dec. 8 with the date and everything changed except the signature. The signature was genuine and the bank promptly paid the check. The payee was identified as a man who had become acquainted at the bank by doing business there for a few days previous, and the bank had to pocket the loss, as the shrewd swindlers were never caught. The original writing was removed with acids and the erasing was skillfully done.—Washington Letter.

Ought to be in Demand.

'Ever have your picture taken?' asked the exchange editor of the man who had been disarranging and reading the exchanges for two hours.

'Yes, he responded; 'fourteen years ago.

'I should think you'd be in great demand with the photographers,' observed the exchange editor.'

'Ah, think so?'

'Yes, you're an elegant sitter;' and the editor clipped an article on 'Bores' for the supplement.—Tid-Bits.

A man came into the sanctum with a fence rail to annihilate the editor for an alleged grievance. The latter, who was whittling, looked up and said: "My friend, did you ever consider that, even if you did thrash me, you could not stop the publication of this paper, and it would be the worse for you, because my successor would be bound to get even with you. You might lick the editor to your heart's content, but the newspaper goes on forever.' And, instead of thrashing the editor, the man left the fence rail as part payment of his subscription.—(Tex.) The "Second Edition."

"I see," said a friend to the editor of a Dakota daily, "that you call the papers you are printing now the second edition —how do they differ from those you were running off half an hour ago?" "We stopped and oiled the press," and the journalist reached for the lever again.—Dakota Bell.

The Hot Weather,

Of mid-summer has a weakening effect both upon body and mind. You feel absolutely incapable of doing any arduous work, and even light duties are performed languidly and unwillingly. This low state of the system causes even greater infirmity, and gives opportunity for serious disease to gain a foothold. In this condition the system is quick to respond to the reviving, quickening, and strengthening effects of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies the blood, regulates the digestive organs, and infuses fresh life and vigor into every portion of the body. People who have taken it write us, saying: "It puts new life right into me." "It makes me young again." Reader, if you suffer from summer weakness, try Hood's Sarsaparilla. 100 Doses $1.

Prof. Loisette's Memory Discovery.

No doubt can be entertained about the value and genuineness of Prof. Loisette's Memory System as it is so strongly recommended by Mark Twain, Mr. Proctor, Hons. W. W. Astor, Judah P. Benjamin Dr. Buckley and others. For full details we advise our readers to send for Prof. L's prospectus, at 237 Fifth avenue, New York. From it we learn that the System is taught by correspondence quite as well as by personal instruction. Still we note that colleges near New York have secured his lectures. He has had 100 Columbia Law students, two classes of 200 each at Yale, 200 at Meriden, 250 at Norwich, 400 at Wellesley College, and 400 at University of Penn. We cannot conceive how a system could receive any higher endorsement.

A MUCH MARRIED WOMAN.

Mrs. Fowler of this city, was married last January to her sixth husband, and strange as it may seem, five of them died exactly two years from their marriage day. Her present husband has been sick for the last four months with chronic jaundice, and was given up by four of our best physicians; as a last resort he began using Sulphur Bitters and yesterday told our reporter that they had saved his life, smilingly saying that he guessed Mrs. Fowler would be unable to take a seventh better half for some time to come.—Exchange.

ASTONISHNG SUCCESS.

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 80,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it. Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all druggists and Dealers in the United States and Canada. cow

AYER'S Hair Vigor has given me perfect satisfaction. I was nearly bald for six years, during which time I used many hair preparations, but without success. Indeed, what little hair I had, was growing thinner, until I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor. I used two bottles of the Vigor, and my head is now well covered with a new growth of hair. —Judson B. Chapel, Peabody, Mass.

HAIR that has become weak, gray, and faded, may have new life and color restored to it by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. "My hair was thin, faded, and dry, and fell out in large quantities. Ayer's Hair Vigor stopped the falling, and restored my hair to its original color. As a dressing for the hair, this preparation has no equal.— Mary N. Hammond, Stillwater, Minn.

VIGOR, youth, and beauty, in the appearance of the hair, may be preserved for an indefinite period by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. "A disease of the scalp caused my hair to become harsh and dry, and to fall out freely. Nothing I tried seemed to do any good until I commenced using Ayer's Hair Vigor. Three bottles of this preparation restored my hair to a healthy condition, and it is now soft and pliant. My scalp is cured, and it is also free from dandruff.—Mrs. E. R. Foss, Milwaukee, Wis.

Just Picture It

The stories of the success of Buffalo Bill in London, both theatrically and socially speaking, have not been one whit exaggerated. All the letters from London are in the same vein. One letter from Cody himself tells of his future plans. They embrace a fall season in Paris and a winter season in the ruins of the Coliseum in Rome! Imagine the cowboys of the wild west cavorting about the huge circle in which the Roman gladiators fought. Buffalo Bill has engagements for three years in Europe, each of which is worth a half million in profits.—New York Star.

WORTH KNOWING.

Pure water for stock, remember.

For growing calves scalded milk may have oatmeal added to it.

Corn that is in the least degree affected by rust should never be used.

A man can be a farmer and know as much as a preacher. We all know a farmer's son ought to be educated, just the same as any one else's son.

Even in summer cows prefer warm to cold water, and in winter will often go thirsty rather than quench their thirst with ice-cold water.

Where butter is the object, quantity of milk is of less consequence than quality, although a large flow of milk very rich in cream may be always desirable.

Milk extremely rich in cream is not so profitable for cheese, since buyers do not make any distinction between cheese very rich in butter and that only fairly rich.

No one can keep fowls profitably covered with vermin, or surrounded by filth. The first consideration is health, the next, cleanliness, warmth, ventilation, variety of food.

It has been demonstrated in England that the quantity of meat produced by sheep delivered to the butcher at one year of age, costs just twice as much as that fed to double the age.

Sheep as a rule, are not given a variety of food. The dry "pickings" are reserved for sheep because they do not refuse many kinds of food that are rejected by other animals; but to get sheep in fine condition they should receive careful feeding, which does not depend so much upon the quantity as upon the quality of the food allowed.

It is said that a duo mixture of buttermilk and corn-meal will make about the best balanced ration for pigs, and secure the greatest economy, both in preventing waste and providing the greatest amount of nutrition. As they increase in age, and more fat is desired, the proportion of meal can be increased.

The Rural New Yorker says, "A hog must root or die." This is true in two senses. It must root to find its most acceptable food, and its health is better secured by this natural proclivity. Opportunities should be afforded for it. A fallow field may be usually turned over in this way, and if sown with a few quarts of corn occasionally, it will encourage the pigs in their useful labors.

Large Fields and Long Rows

Mr. Bonham, secretary of the Ohio state board of Agriculture, is a practical farmer and stock breeder, pork making being one of his specialties. To make pork profitably Mr. Bonham grows large quantities of corn to be fed with other food. His corn fields contain twenty-five acres each and are 110 rods long and about one-third that width. The corn is planted in check rows so it can be cultivated both ways. To illustrate the difference in the cost of cultivating large and small fields Mr. T. B. Berry, who recently visited Mr. Bonham, tells in the Country Gentleman that one of these twenty-five acre fields can be cultivated the long way in three days, while the cross cultivation the short way takes four and a half days. The New England Farmer, commenting on the above, says: "In 1885 the cost of the corn in the crib, exclusive of land rent, was $5.20 per acre, or nine cents per bushel. Including the rent of the land the cost would be about $13 per acre. And this is the same whether the crop be large or small. If 100 bushels are produced per acre the cost per bushel would consequently be only thirteen cents, while a crop of fifty bushels would cost twenty-six per bushel. The average yield through the country being only twenty-six bushels the cost must be about fifty cents per bushel. Large fields and long rows will do much to reduce the cost of this crop."

"Well," said an old tramp, wiping the perspiration from his brow with the back of his hand, "I wish somebody would explain why so much water comes out of my pores. I never absorb any."—Norristown Herald.

"No professional beggars allowed 'round here," said the woman sharply, "so git." "I am no professional beggar, madam," he replied with dignity. "I may be a tramp—in fact, I will admit that I am a tramp in an amateur sort of way—but I am no beggar. If you have a ham bone left over, or some cold mackeral, or anything that the dog doesn't care for or the pigs won't eat, you may give it to me, but don't call me a professional beggar."—New York Sun.

Red Heads and White Horses.

The red headed girl and white horse superstition has taken a deep hold in Chicago and lots of people in that scientific city now assert that whenever you see one of the beacon-topped damsels out of doors an albino equine will not be far off. One nationalistic fellow says: "It is a phenomenon that, in my opinion, is easily explained by the fact that white horses are more common than girls with red hair, and a person can hardly look anywhere on the streets without seeing a white horse, and he may look a long time for a red-haired girl. It is to be hoped that this subject will not arouse public attention to such an extent that the poor lassies who had not the choosing of color for their hair will be compelled to disguise themselves with wigs or remain indoors until the excitement has subsided.

Rough on Rum.

Powderly in a recent speech, says: "Now a word about the great curse of the laboring man—strong drink. Had I 10,000,000 tongues, and a throat for each tongue, I would say to each man, woman and child here to-night: "Throw strong drink aside as you would an ounce of liquid hell. [Tremendous applause]. It sears the conscience, it destroys everything it touches, it reaches into the family circle and takes the wife you have sworn to protect and drags her down from her pinnacle of purity into that house from which no decent woman ever goes alive. (Applause). It induces the father to take the furniture from his house, exchange it for money at the pawn shop, and spend the proceeds in rum. It damns everything it touches. I have seen it in every city east of the Mississippi, and I know that the most damning curse to the laborer is that which gurgles from the neck of a bottle. (Cheers). I had rather be at the head of an organization having 100,000 temperate, honest, earnest men than at the head of an organization of 12,000,000 drinkers, whether moderate or any other kind."

A Great Mining Enterprise.

One of the most promising enterprises organized here recently, is the Tortilita Gold and Silver Mining Company with a capital of $1,000,000 in shares of $2 each. Its property comprises twelve developed mines, and a mill in Pinal County, Arizona, a district known for its rich and generous deposits of ore. The mines cover a territory three miles long and there are over 250 acres of ore deposits. Over $150,000 in bullion was taken out in the prospecting and development work. Two of the mines which are now being worked, apparently contain an inexhaustible supply of ore averaging over $150 per ton. They have been worked to the water level where the ore concentrates in a body 42½ feet wide which has been tested thirty feet below, thus demonstrating their permanency. This is believed to be one of the largest and richest bodies of ore on this continent. Mr. Jos. H. Reall, is the President of the Company, whose offices are at 57 Broadway, New York City. Dividends will commence to be paid monthly Sept 1. Prospectus will be sent on application.

Washington's Rogues' Gallery.

There are a number of counterfeit coins shown in this rogues' gallery, and also several checks which were raised. One hangs on the wall which was raised from $451 to $26,968.75. It was upon Winslow, Lanier & Co., of New York, and it was dated Nov. 23, 1876. It was drawn Nov. 23 and presented on Dec. 8 with the date and everything changed except the signature. The signature was genuine and the bank promptly paid the check. The payee was identified as a man who had become acquainted at the bank by doing business there for a few days previous, and the bank had to pocket the loss, as the shrewd swindlers were never caught. The original writing was removed with acids and the erasing was skillfully done.—Washington Letter.

Ought to be in Demand.

'Ever have your picture taken?' asked the exchange editor of the man who had been disarranging and reading the exchanges for two hours.

'Yes, he responded; 'fourteen years ago.

'I should think you'd be in great demand with the photographers,' observed the exchange editor.'

'Ah, think so?'

'Yes, you're an elegant sitter;' and the editor clipped an article on 'Bores' for the supplement.—Tid-Bits.

A man came into the sanctum with a fence rail to annihilate the editor for an alleged grievance. The latter, who was whittling, looked up and said: "My friend, did you ever consider that, even if you did thrash me, you could not stop the publication of this paper, and it would be the worse for you, because my successor would be bound to get even with you. You might lick the editor to your heart's content, but the newspaper goes on forever.' And, instead of thrashing the editor, the man left the fence rail as part payment of his subscription.—(Tex.) The "Second Edition."

"I see," said a friend to the editor of a Dakota daily, "that you call the papers you are printing now the second edition—how do they differ from those you were running off half an hour ago?" "We stopped and oiled the press," and the journalist reached for the lever again.—Dakota Bell.

The Hot Weather,

Of mid-summer has a weakening effect both upon body and mind. You feel absolutely incapable of doing any arduous work, and even light duties are performed languidly and unwillingly. This low state of the system causes even greater infirmity, and gives opportunity for serious disease to gain a foothold. In this condition the system is quick to respond to the reviving, quickening, and strengthening effects of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies the blood, regulates the digestive organs, and infuses fresh life and vigor into every portion of the body. People who have taken it write us, saying: "It puts new life right into me." "It makes me young again." Reader, if you suffer from summer weakness, try Hood's Sarsaparilla. 100 Doses $1.

Experts state that the best modern siege guns cost $97,000 and it costs $900 to shoot one of them only once.

Prof. Loisette's Memory Discovery.

No doubt can be entertained about the value and genuineness of Prof. Loisette's Memory System as it is so strongly recommended by Mark Twain, Mr. Proctor, Hons. W. W. Astor, Judah P. Benjamin Dr. Buckley and others. For full details we advise our readers to send for Prof. L's prospectus, at 237 Fifth avenue, New York. From it we learn that the System is taught by correspondence quite as well as by personal instruction. Still we note that colleges near New York have secured his lectures. He has had 100 Columbia Law students, two classes of 200 each at Yale, 200 at Meriden, 250 at Norwich, 400 at Wellesley College, and 400 at University of Penn. We cannot conceive how a system could receive any higher endorsement.

Volume 20—Number [illegible]

Single Copies Three Cents

[illegible] for the Mail.

[illegible] worn and pale,
[illegible] coming of the mail;
[illegible] with hope and fear,
[illegible] my letter here?"
[illegible] he bows in silence dumb,
[illegible] old man, it has not come."
[illegible] madman, old and gray,
No one would fear or drive away.
"Ah me," he says, "long years have past,
But it will come, 'twill come at last."
And so he waits in silence dumb
The letter that will never come.

Thro' misty vision of his tears,
He sees the long, far-sundered years,
The past comes up before him there,
When he was strong and she was fair.
Once more he feels in very truth,
The leaping pulses of his youth;
A strong, strange joy he feels again
The old wild fever in his brain;
An angry word, a careless tone,
And she has gone and he's alone.
Since then he waits in silence dumb,
The letter that will never come.

Alas! his poor old wits are fled.
He cannot know that she is dead:
And so he asks it, o'er and o'er,
The same old question as before.
He wakes with morning light to say:
"My letter it will come to-day."
With tottering limbs that almost fail,
He creeps each morning to the mail,
And hears with every new regret,
"Not yet, old man, not yet, not yet."
And so he waits in silence dumb
The letter that will never come.

Ah, me, poor madman, even we
Are dupes of fickle destiny;
In ceaseless hope we waiting sit,
For missives that were never writ.
We wait to see the harvest grown
Of seed that we have never sown;
We seek the harbor mouth to hail
The vessel that will never sail.
We wait to see our garner filled
With fruit of fields we have not tilled,
We wait the gathering stillness dumb
For letters that will never come.

The Baby.

The little tottering baby feet,
With faltering steps and slow,
With pattering echoes soft and sweet
Into my heart they go;
They also go, in grimmy plays
In muddy pools and dusty ways,
Then through the house in trackless maze
They wander to and fro.

The baby hands they clasp my neck
With touches dear to me,
And the same hands that smash and wreck
The inkstand foul to see;
They pound the mirror with a cane,
They rend the manuscript in twain,
Widespread destruction they ordain,
In wasteful jubilee.

The dreamy, murm'ring baby voice
That coos its little tune,
That makes my listening heart rejoice
Like birds in leafy June,
Can wake at midnight dark and still,
And all the air with howling fill
That splits the ear with echoes shrill,
Like cornets out of tune.

Three of a Kind.

The quiet old farmer so thrifty,
In duty as grim as a rock,
Neglects not the wants of his cattle,
And carefully waters his stock.

The millionaire, too, in his business,
Eace day adds some lambs to his flock.
By a few skillful changes in figures,
He carefully waters his stock.

The temperance orator, likewise,
Who at consciences loudly doth knock,
Ne'er thickens his speech with much liquor;
He carefully waters his talk.

A LIFE FOR A LIFE.

Bang, bang, bang!

There was a noise of feet along the dusty road.

The senora looked up from her sewing just in time to see a young man, clad in in the coarse garb of a convict, rush into the little summer house where she was sitting.

"Save me!" cried the panting fugitive. "My life is at stake."

One glance at the man's face decided the lady. She heard the steps of his pursuers.

"Under here! Quick!" was her imperious order.

Jose Garcia, in spite of his alarm, could not restrain a smile. But it was no time to hesitate. Without a word he crawled under the folds of the light fabric on which the lady was plying her needle, and which rippled over her lap and lay piled up at her feet.

Sitting with his back against the senora's knees, the convict was securely concealed from view.

It was not a moment too soon. An officer with a squad of soldiers appeared at the door of the summer house.

"The convict, senora, did you see him?" inquired the officer, breathlessly.

"I heard shots and foootsteps of some one running rapidly," replied the lady. "By all means search the place before you leave."

With effusive thanks the officer at once proceeded to search the grounds and the senora' house was subjected to a close scrutiny.

"Again I thank you," said the commander of the squad, approaching the summer house; "but the villain is not here and we must be off in a hurry."

He waved his hand gracefully and disappeared with his soldiers down the road.

Jose Garcia emerged from under his protecting cover.

He was a man of small stature, singularly active and wiry, and his face [illegible] have been called handsome. He [illegible] did not look like a convict's [illegible]

"[illegible] you have saved my life," he [illegible] in a voice of deep emotion.

"[illegible] I am very glad," answered [illegible] "Perhaps I was wrong, [illegible] [illegible] hunted down [illegible]

"The senora is a widow," he said playingly. "I trust that she has good friends. She deserves it."

"Oh no," was the hasty reply. "My husband lives. He is Dr. Miramon," and she drew herself up proudly. "I wear black," she resumed, "because he is a prisoner and there is no hope that he will ever be restored to me. But he wears no convict stripes. His offense was political. You may have heard o his pamphlet."

Jose Garcia had heard of it. He knew that Dr. Miramon had been arrested because he had written against the government.

"This little place," said the senora, "is not mine. I rent it and live here with two old servants who are devoted to me. But for them there would be nothing in store for me but starvation. It makes little difference, perhaps, as my husband's health is giving way under his cruel confinement, and his death will be but the signal for mine."

The shades of evening were falling and the lady gathered up her work with the evident intention of going to the house.

"If I can ever help you, senora," said the convict earnestly, "I will at any cost. Ten thousand thanks for your kindness. Adios!"

And Jose Garcia darted off across the road and into the forest, taking good care not to head in the direction of Havana, only a mile or so away.

When morning dawned Garcia found himself at the cabin of one of his old companions in crime. He entered boldly and was heartily welcomed, and provided with a breakfast and a change of garments.

Although a robber like Garcia, the dweller in the cabin was true to his friends, and in some things honest to a fault.

When Gomez heard the story of Garcia's escape he opened his eyes with an exclamation of astonishment.

"I am sorry for the good senora," he said. "Her husband is a clever man, He was sentenced to pay a fine of $10,000 or be imprisoned ten years. He cannot pay the fine, and he will die in less than a year."

Garcia scratched his head and looked thoughtful. Then he stepped outside and did some serious thinking.

"You pig-headed robber!" He was addressing himself. "You jail-bird, you have just one chance to mak a man of yourself. There will be a reward offered for you and it will be a big one, probably $10,000. Sooner or later you will be caught anyhow. Why not trick the government out of that reward and make the little senora happy by securing her husband's liberty?"

The idea appeared to tickle Garcia. He laughed immoderately, and then wiped away a tear.

"I am going crazy, I think," was his next remark, "but I ought to be willing to do anything for the senora. It does not matter whether I die now or get shot in the back by the soldiers a few weeks later."

As Garcia promenaded up and down in his friend's garden talking to himself the hard lines of his face gradually vanished. A softer look came into his eyes. He stood erect, and he was the last man that would have been taken for a hunted convict.

"I must talk with Gomez," he said, "and have him manage it. I'll make, wear to do it."

There was a quiet talk between the two friends, and Gomez, after many objections and protests, finally agreed to slip into Havana and find out the situation.

At 10 o'clock that night cloaked figures entered the gate of the Captain-General's palace. One of them had his arm pinioned behind him, but his cloak hid his condition from the passers-by.

It took fierce and earnest solicitation to obtain an audience with the Captain-General, but the strangers at last found themselves in the presence of that awful functionary.

"I bring you Jose Garcia, the famous robber and murderer, for whom your Excellency has offered $10,000, dead or alive," said Gomez, in a swelling, boastful tone.

He stripped off Garcia's hat and cloak, and the prisoner hung his head.

"You have done well," sasd the Captain-General, eyeing Gomez sternly; "but how was this red-handed desperado captured?"

"I found him asleep in the woods," was the glib reply, "and knowing the rascal's face only too well, for he robbed me ance of all I had, I jumped upon him and bound him."

The Captain-General called an officer, who looked closely at Garcia.

"He is the man," was his brief report.

"And this fellow," said the Captain-General haughtily, pointing to Gomez.

"I don't like his face," replied the officer, "but he has never been in my hands."

"See that he gets the money then," commanded the other, "and have a file of men take the prisoner to the castle."

So Garcia was marched off in one direction, and Gomez was led off in another.

Jose Garcia knew very well what his fate would be. He had been chief of a band [illegible]

[illegible] would think of it."

He fell dead at the first volley.

A week later Dr. Miramon and the senora joined the Cuban colony at Key West.

To the astonishment of the doctor and everybody else, some unknown friend had paid his fine and secured his release.

The transaction had been conducted by a priest, who refused to make any explanation. He merely stated that he was the agent of another.

The Miramons did not feel safe in Cuba, and it is not likely that they will ever return. To this day they remain in utter ignorance of the fact that Miramon's freedom cost a poor convict his life.—Atlanta Constitution.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

The Wandering Jew Furnishes THE TIMES Readers with a Few for Their Consideration.

[Written for THE TIMES.]

Methinks it alldepends on the object you intend to burden with a cognomen.

Now if you want to treat a dog, or a patent threshing machine to a brand new title you meet with no obstacles, but when the baby is to be given a name, to have, and own, and to carry through life as a trade-mark, then comes the trouble. The baby must have a name not at all "bizarre or outre" as Bill Nye would say.

I incidentally state that there are twelve thousand eight hundred Smiths in Brooklyn, but as this is a little foreign to the subject in hand I won't mention the few remaining Smiths living in this section.

Almost every week I read in THE TIMES the pleasant notices of late arrivals in the different Fulton families and often wonder what name will be attached to the child.

I have taken the trouble to note each queer sounding or odd looking name I have chanced to meet with, and present them in this week's TIMES partly as curiosities, and partly to help any loving parents who chance to be quarreling about the name of the "sweetest child on earth."

Notice that the "women folks" are more addicted to queer names than "we men," and as a seeker after knowledge I'd like to know why.

After all I think it's more pleasant to be plain "Sam" or "Henry" than be crippled with any of the uncommon titles I've found hitched on to some well to do people.

The list is made up of actual names and for that reason is the more curious.

Here are the men:

Elam
Azam
Abijah
Eric
Lihu
Treodore
Elza
Alois
Amplias
Eljo
Koun
Romanta
Zenas
Ery
Ami
Idris
Jirah
Clad Shobal
Zoheth

"Amplias Romanta" would be a good name for a nice little boy—if you wanted him to die in infancy.

If this boy survives twist Abijah Treodore around his twin brother and see if it won't dwarf the child's intellect.

But here! If you have a good healthy dog in the family, just try the combination on the dog, and if he don't go away and die, I think it safe to give it to the child for a plaything.

Perhaps by association he would gradually get used to the name, and then when he grew up wouldn't be afraid to lug it right out in company or wherever he went.

And then the others:

Aaggie
Alana
Alida
Aleine
Bathsheba
Corresta
Cornio
Dode
Dalzene
Debora
Duvva
Evadne
Erma
Erastian
Emilie
Felina
Flavilla
Fredi
Feunie
Gladdis
Goldie
Gwen
Iola
Iduna
Iris
Ion
Lola
Litta
Lona
Meda
Myra
Mellie
Mena
Maddi
Mona
Naomi
Narka
Nydia
Nard
Otha
Patrice
Ray
Russie
Siremba
Sidonie
Sabina
Sheila
Samona
Sybil
Tottie
Tenij
Tyra
Una
Ultima
Vida
Vashti
Valena
Vira
Wilda
Yseult
Zitella.

A queer list, isn't it?

But I think some pretty results can be secured by combining two names for first and second, as most any of them would fit any of the present generation of youngsters—I mean girls. Worn with a pair of those big puffed sleeves now in vogue, and a sailor hat, they "would look just too nice for anything."

A large number of people have a world of trouble [illegible] Van Wert's [illegible]

[illegible]

Braiding is still immensely popular.

Very large feather fans are now in fashion.

Mohair is the favorite material for travelling dresses.

Gold and silver braid is much used as a stylish decoration.

Narrow velvet ribbon is worn about the throat tied behind.

Corsages made of different fabric from the skirt are much worn.

The purse should be of bag shape and made of soft leather. The card case should be as compact as possible.

Narrow-shaped lace fichus in black, white, or pale tints of color are again worn with summer dresses cut V shape in the neck.

Yokes and yoke effects are multiplying for hot weather toilets, and take on all sorts of shapes, pleated, pointed, square, or scaloped.

Dresses for midsummer are of muslins, figured lawns, stripped pescales and batistes. Flounces are revived for these gowns and tucks are used without number.

Dresses of white Irish linen are made up with belted blouse waists. They are used for yachting and tennis dresses. They may be trimmed with navy blue linen.

New surahs and other fancy summer silks, with diagonal twill, are shown in stylish summer tints and effects, and also in fine checks, stripes, plaids and dainty floral devices.

A dressy way to vary the bodice of a black lace gown is to have a pointed satin corage, rounded over the chest in front with shoulder-straps of the same, the back terminating in a V.

Traveling cloaks are designed in imitation of the great cloaks worn by Irish peasant women. They are gathered to a standing collar, not a yoke, and envelope the wearer from head to foot.

The round belted gathered waist of a French muslin dress is made up without lining. It is cut as long as a basque, the edges being thurst out of sight under the skirt belt, and a ribbon or embroidered belt is put on over the waist.

Fourth of July Casualties.

As has been pertinently remarked, it is probable more people have been killed and maimed on July 4 since the establishment of this country's independence than were hurt by the British forces which attempted to shut off the present noisy celebrations. And were Cornwallis and Burgoyne living to-day they might consider themselves amply revenged. It cannot be doubted that the country would be better off if fire-works and instruments of pyrotecnic patriotism could share the fate of the tea in Boston Harbor.

"The "celebration" casualties thus far reported in this city amount to almost fifty, some fatal and many serious. The greater number are pistol shot wounds and injuries to eyes from explosions. Besides these there were almost thirty fires caused by carelessness with explosives. It seems that the American public might find some less dangerous method of manifesting its exuberant patriotic feelings, and surely it is within the province of health officers to bring the dangers more prominently to the notice of the public authorities. There are ways in which fire-works may be safely indulged in, but the present freedom in the matter given to small children is unsafe. Nor does the matter end with those who are in good health (at beginning of the day); the noise, which is sufficiently distracting to healthy adults, is undoubtedly a source of positive danger to very many sick persons. It is much to be regretted that the events of July 4, 1776, did not take place on February 29 of that year.—Chicago Journal.

Fashion Notes from a Montana Ball.

Miss Sally McSniffen was rigged out as pretty as a red and green wagon with two spring seats, and made more mashes than a few. She had on a blue dress with a red flap at the side, and a puffy something or other on the other side.

Miss Sue Sharp wore an en train rig, and could have knocked Mrs. Langtry silly when it come to good looks. Her hair was en curl and her face en powder. She had sixteen rings on one finger and bracelets clear to her elbow.

Little Birdie Bloom was the "dantiest darling of all," in white toggery of some sort, looped up in spots. She wore hand-painted gloves and slippers and [illegible] jewelry.

Miss Dorothy reminded one of a double rainbow and was the belle of the occasion. [illegible]—Montana Screech.

[illegible]

[illegible] a [illegible] and then a load of wood, and then a load of hay, and then a pair of young folks [illegible] as a picture. And then come some high big coaches as big as our spare bedroom, and as high as the roof on our horse barn with six horses hitched to 'em, all runnin' over on top with men, and wimmen, and childern, and parasols, and and giggles, and ha ha's. And a man wuz up behind a soundin' out on a trumpet, a dretful sort of a high, sweet note, not dwindlin' down to the end as some music dus, but kinder crinklin' round and endin' up in the air every time.

Josiah wuz dretful took with it and he told me in confidence that he laid out when he got home to buy a trumpet and blow out jest them strains every time he went into Jonesville or out of it. He said it would sound so sort of warlike and impressive.

I expostulated aginst the idee. But sez he, "You'll enjoy it when you get used to it."

"Never!" sez I.

"Yes you will," sez he, "and while I live, I lay out that you shall have advantages, and shall enjoy things new and uneek."

"Yes," sez I feelin'ly, "I expect to, Josiah Allen, as long as I live with you." And I sighed. But I had little time to enjoy even sithin', for oh! the crowd that wuz pressin' onto us and surroundin' us on every side, some on 'em curious and strange lookin', some on 'em beautiful and grand. Pretty young girls lookin' sweet enough to kiss, and right behind 'em a Chinese man with a long dress, and his hair in a long braid behind, and his eyes sot in sideways. And then would come on a hull lot of wimmen in dresses ev'ry color of the rainbow, and some men. Then a few childern, lookin' sweet as roses, with their mothers a pushin' the little carts ahead on 'em. And if you'll believe it, I don't s'pose you will, but it is true, that lots of black ma's had childern jest as white as snow, and pretty as rosebuds (took after their fathers I s'pose), but I don't believe in a mixin' of the races.—From "Samantha at Saratoga," by Josiah Allen's Wife.

Solid Facts.

Nestling between the Owl's Head and the Tortilita Mountains, Pinal County, Arizona, are the twelve mines of the Tortilita Gold and Silver Mining Co., which expose a sufficient wealth of ore to run a 20-stamp mill for years to come. During the past three years a 5-stamp mill has produced nine tons of ore daily, while a 20-stamp mill will turn out forty tons daily. Such a showing has caused capital to seek possession of shares of its capital stock. For shares of stocks (which are non-assessable), information, etc., address the Tortilita Gold and Silver Mining Company, 57 Broadway, New York. The shares are two dollars each and the company gives the same attention to an order for one share that it does to an order for five hundred shares. If desired, certificates will be sent by express, the money to be paid when they reach the investor.

Are your NERVES all unstrung?
Has MENTAL PROSTRATION ensued?

Your Kidneys are weak; your Liver inactive; your Stomach disordered; your Blood impure. The generally disorganized condition of your system makes your body weak, you become irritable, and NERVOUS PROSTRATION results. THEN take Brown's Sarsaparilla. It will strengthen your Kidneys, stir up your sluggish Liver, tone up the condition of your Stomach, and enrich and vitalize while it purifies your BLOOD. It will promote your Health and increase your Strength.

The Best Blood Purifying Medicine.

NEWSPAPER LAWS.

Any person who takes the paper regularly from the post office, whether directed to his name or whether he is a subscriber or not—is responsible for the pay.

The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the post-office for moving away and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

I can't help telling the Truth as I view it and describing what I see. To describe it otherwise than it seems to me would be falsehood in that calling in which it has pleased Heaven to place me.

JAS. R. FAIRGRIEVE - EDITOR

THE Patriot again belches forth on the water works question in its last issue. It bases its article on the fact that Mayor Burns of Syracuse vetoed the franchise granted to the Salmon River & Onondaga Water company by the Board of Alderman in that city, the veto being sustained.

Realizing the vast influence of the Patriot we casually remarked two weeks ago that after what the Patriot had said concerning $50 per hydrant we could not see how they dared pay so much.

This organ now demands us to state whether we really think that what the Patriot has said about $50 per hydrant was the reason the Mayor vetoed and the Aldermen sustained the veto. We should certainly say that there was no doubt about it, were it not for the fact that the Mayor undoubtedly considered the price fair and equitable, as no objection was made to it in his veto. This the Patriot well knows but it does not serve the purpose to say so. This the readers of THE TIMES know as the objections made by the Mayor of Syracuse and taken from the Standard were published in our last issue. "A stranger that did not know the facts would be almost led to suspect" that the editor, publisher and proprietor of the Patriot was goaded on by certain persons whose chief object is to destroy the present water works company. He is so anxious that the village should not procure fire protection from this source. Hence these weekly erratic inflations and subsequent emissions through the columns of the Patriot.

We are inclined to the opinion that the veto of the franchise in question was right and the reasons given by the Mayor for his action in the matter sound.

THE Stars have jumped to second place in the International league and are making a strong pull for first position. Their work for the past few weeks on the ball field has been remarkable and has made the enthusiasts of that pastime in Syracuse exceedingly jubilant.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND, Mrs. Cleveland, Secretary and Mrs. Fairchild and D. L. Lamont have been visiting the scenes of the President's boyhood in this part of the state during the past week. They recived a cordial welcome in all the villages where they visited. Fayetteville and sister villages that were honored by the presence of this illustrioust party vied with each other extending their greetings and royal welcomes to the President of the United States and his party.

THE Brooklyn Eagle has been printing the opinions of clergymen in the city of churches regarding Sunday newspapers. The materal for these articles is collected and written by John A. McKay formerly editor of THE TIMES. Rev. Warren Hubbard, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, well known in Fulton, where he visits nearly every summer, gives his sentiments on this subject as follows:— "I always take the Sunday paper and enjoy it. I tell my confirmation class that a book they can conscientiously read on a week day is good enough to read on Sunday. A man who stays at home on Sunday and reads a reputable Sunday newspaper is oftentimes kept from evil places. I believe that the Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath."

Instead of a "brick," take home to your wife a cake of Tulip soap.

HALL'S HOW'S THIS!
We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props.,
Toledo, Ohio.
P. S.—Hall's Catarrh Cure is [illegible]

[illegible] take your ease on the veranda of your hotel, or loll on the beach, and watch the lithe limbed youth and maidens in their bathing costumes, life seems worth living, and New Jersey, contrary to common prejudice, good for something.

Of the many seaside resorts extending from Long Branch to Cape May, Atlantic City is the largest and most popular. It was founded in a lot of crude wooden cottages and boarding houses for denizens of the Quaker city who were daring enough to astonish their bodies with a sea bath. Their children have grown up to love this use of water, and with more money and leisure than their fathers had, built splendid cottages and hotels which are frequented by guests from Los Angeles to Boston. Those who suppose Atlantic City is merely a summer resort will be surprised to see steam heating apparatus in the large hotels. The height of the season here, I am told, is in February and March. Society comes from Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and New York, to recuperate from the rack and drudgery of ostentatious life, and to enjoy the winter air that has been tempered through the Gulf Stream with a dash of the tropics. But the occasional land breeze so Sahara-like in summer is freezing cold in winter, hence the necessity of steam-heating in order that the lenten guest may have other than lenten "entertainment."

What voluptuous nomads we Americans are growing to be. The women and men of wealth are more at home almost anywhere than under their own roof-tree. They flit from Canada to Florida, from New York to Paris. The palace-car and transatlantic steamers are their vehicles. The hotel is their home. The "son of toil" as he is called in the parlance of demagogues strikes from city to city traveling with greater state and comfort than was known to Kings and Emperors fifty years ago. We are making rapid strides whither? It would be pessimistic to suggest the place abolished by Ingersoll. But though there be no such place in our bright American Ingersolian lexicon, it is still well to ask—whither?

Tens of thousands of these "sons of toil" their wives and children come here in excursions every week and spend money in a way that the wealthy of the old world would call extravagant. Their amusements and pastimes are law. Beer gardens, minstrel shows, dancing halls with surroundings and influences extremely bad.

A tramp who stole a box of Tulip soap concealed his identy by washing himself with a cake of it.

A RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

Engineer Riley of President Cleveland's Special Train Killed near Lowville by the Breaking of a Connecting Rod.

When about seven miles this side of Lowville Saturday night the connecting rod on the engine attached to the special train, bringing President Cleveland and party back to Forestport from Clayton, broke, and the accident resulted seriously. The train was running at a high rate of speed. It had just whirled from Carthage to Lowville, 20 miles in 17 minutes, when the occupants of the drawing room car heard several sharp whistles, and almost immediately the car was enveloped in steam. Sup't. Hammond ran in from the safety compartment and pulled the safety rope. Then, and not till then, did the train begin to lose its momentum. It was a mile and a half before it fully came to a standstill, half a mile to the north of Glendale, Fireman John Perego of Utica groped his way over the tender and appeared in the car, with blood trickling from several deep scratches on his head. He was a little faint, but recovered in a few minutes. He said something had burst in the engine; that Engineer Wm. Riley had jumped from the cab. The president sat perfectly calm in the rear end of the car, simply exclaiming when he was told what had happened: "I though something serious had happened when I saw the clouds of steam." The The connecting rod between the driving wheels on the engineer's side had snapped short off at the lug on the forward driver. It flew back, smashed the cab, stove a hole in the boiler, and hurled Riley over on his fireman. Then Riley disappeared from the engine. The broken bar pounded the ties at every revolution of the wheel, and pebble stones rattled like hail against the car windows. The New York train from Clayton was 30 minutes behind. The president's car was attached to it, and the train backed down the road to find the body of the engineer. Parties had gone in search of him, but they reported they were unable to find him. A brakeman was encountered, however, who reported that the engineer's body had been found at Sallee Bridge, a mile and a half above. Riley was 37 years of age and leaves a widow and two children in Carthage.

The President anxiously inquired for the latest news from time to time, and was greatly moved when he heard of the unfortunate man's death. He requested Secretary Fairchild to see that every aid that could be rendered the widow be promptly extended.

Trustee Pardee moved that the report be accepted and that the President be a committee to ascertain which Electric Light Co. would furnish the lights for the balance of the year the cheapest and cause them to be put in operation. Carried.

Trustee Nichols moved that the Village purchase a carload of about five hundred lineal feet of crosswalk stone.

H. H. Kendrick submitted a proposition to build an iron girder bridge across the hydraulic canal on First street.

On motion of Trustee Nichols the proposition was laid over until the next meeting for consideration.

On motion of Trustee More the Street Commissioner was instructed to enforce the law relative to cutting weeds, on the streets of the Village.

On motion of Trustee Osborne the Collector was given until next meeting to make a report.

On motion of Trustee Rice a sidewalk was ordered built on the west side of Park street between Academy and Highland streets;

The following bills were reported correct by the finance committee and audited at the following amounts, and the Clerk directed to draw orders for the same on the proper funds:

Paul Roderick, freight on fire hose and carting	$ 3 01
Gage, Sheridan & Co., tile and lime	94 45
Osborne Bros., lumber	41 57
James Pearman, repairing fire engine	31 55
Alex Bradford, highway labor	105 98

E. A. Jones, Special police	2 00
S. S. Cook, „ „	2 00
E. H. Morgan, „ „	2 00
Henry Keefe, „ „	2 00

Communication received from the Fire Council stated that at their last regular meeting, held June 21st, 1887, the following persons were elected members of the Fire Department: Jesse Waugh and George Smith.

On motion of Trustee Rice, the Street Commissioner was directed to call upon persons who had failed to rebuild or repair sidewalks and ascertain if the parties intend to repair or rebuild and that the Attorney of the Village take such steps as are necessary to compel the construction or repair of bad walks.

Clerk reported that he had paid $5 received by him for street licenses to the Village Treasurer and had taken his receipt for the same.

On motion of Trustee Pardee the Attorney was directed to prepare a resolution and submit the same to the Board at their next meeting authorizing and ordering the constructing of a system of sewerage for the village of Fulton.

On motion of Trustee Rice the Board adjourned to July 20th, at 7½ o'clock p. m.

N. N. STRANAHAN, Clerk.

Cheese Market.

[From the Utica Herald].

AT UTICA.

UTICA, N. Y. July 18.

Along with the tremendous boom in prices there is another boom in amount of cheese sold, and again the record is broken and the largest previous sales exceeded. Salesmen put in all the cheese they could spare, and while it is nominally all fine cheese, there may be a box or two of July make thrown in, just to make up an even amount, you know. Notwithstanding the firm market at the close of last week in New York, it was not expected that there would be such an advance here to-day. Factorymen were agreeably taken by surprise and buyers themselves hardly know why such a whirlwind struck the market. News came from New York that a 10 cent price was ruling there to-day; that the market was bare of choice stock, and everything of that kind was wanted. As a consequence there was active competition for everything offered. A good many thought it a favorable time to forward on commission, and as a buyer said on seeing the number thus sent, "those will be the highest priced cheese of the day, probably they will bring 10c." It is now understood that English retailers are buying freely, being determined not to be caught as they were last year. The cable advanced to 47s. to-day, and private advices place it as high as 50c. We obtained the figures on shrinkage from twenty factories to-day, and the average of them all was a trifle over twenty-five per cent., which is not quite as much as was anticipated. Transactions are as followt:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price
98	2,579	9c.
5	570	9⅛
58	6,876	9¼
10	1,222	9⅜
12	1,594	9½
15	1,735	9⅝
4	536	9¾
6	1,000	p. t
138	16,112
	2,765	Com.
Total	18,877

Ruling price 9¼c. Transactions one year ago 13,154 bxs., ruling 7½c. Two years ago 15,040 bxs., ruling 7¾c.

AT LITTLE FALLS.

LITTLE FALLS, July 18

Cheese—Another sudden and unaccountable change has come to the market, and prices are advanced fully three-fourths of a cent. This was quite a surprise, in view of the dull and and falling market of a week ago, but nobody pretends to explain it by any reasoning on supply on demand. No one expects to see as low prices again this season as were paid last week, though a reaction next week from to-day's figures would be no surprise, as all feel that the market has been forced to the very highest point it would stand. Some of the large factories still have some June cheese on hand, though most have sold all of this stock. Following are the transactions:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price
60	3,869	9 cents
2	212	9⅛cents
42	3,708	9¼cents
4	410	9⅜cents
9	1,137	p. t.
7	654	Com.
124	9,985
Farm dairy	982
	10,967

Farm Dairies—Sales upon the morning market amount to 982 boxes, with prices at 7@9c., most of the sales being made at 8½c.

Butter—Twenty-two packages of creamery butter sold at 19c., and eighteen packages of farm dairy went at 18@19c.

AT FULTON.

Twenty-four factories were represented at this market Monday evening and 2,327 boxes sold most of them at 9 cents. Utica ruling was 9¼ cents. In 1886 the ruling was 7½ cents, in '85, 7¾ cents and in '84, 8¾ cents.

[illegible]

[illegible] plank this is supported [illegible] by twenty iron posts [illegible] diameter with iron bearing caps, the posts standing on the solid rock. This wheel pit or spill way is thirteen feet deep being at all times half filled with back water. The estimated weight of water which must be here supported is not less than 1,000,000 pounds besides many tons additional of water wheels timber and machinery. This immense weight bearing upon the iron posts with comparatively small surface for resistance, with the constant jar of the water, had worn down into the rock bottom which is not of very hard texture—in some places sinking several inches below the original line. Great effort has been made to secure these timbers. Experts with diving bells have tried many times to make the foundations more secure and add to their support. Some fears have been maintained that a general crash might sometime occur causing much damage. At a time best suited to the dull season for business the water has been shut out and is kept out by a powerful rotary pump with a curious system of syphons. All the wheels have been taken up and are being thoroughly repaired, the foundations raised by scores of jack screws acting in unison—while each iron support will now have a bearing nearly ten times as great as formerly, firmly bolted to the rock, and fastened at the top to prevent removal by action of the ice. The entire upper foundation cemented with common lime and never very perfect, has been removed and a grout of washed gravel and Portland cement put in its place and covered with four inch plank. The work of placing the wheels is yet to be done and will require the balance of the month to complete the job. The upper mill has been kept running by its own wheels placed in another building. All the work is being done in the most thorough manner. These repairs cannot fall far short of $10,000.

In Memoriam.

While reading the notice recently in Fulton Times of the death of Mrs. Sarah Reynolds, I thought that the death of this strong, bright, transparent character was worthy of more than a passing notice.

Early left a widow, and soon after this great bereavment, sustaining the loss of all her property, but with the conviction that God would help her through, took the "step of faith" which "Falls on the seeming void,

And finds the rock beneath."

She undertook personally, not only to do for herself, but all who came under her observation who needed help and encouragement, whether temporally or spirtually. Her life was devoted to the purpose of doing all the good she could—she gave the best of her life for others and yet on her death bed she felt that she had done so little, saying that had she her life to live over, she would do more than she had. She seemed buoyant, hopeful and cheerful. She possessed the spirit and gift of prayer in a remarkable degree. Her earnest appeals at the throne of Grace will not easily be forgotten. No one could mistake her earnestness and affection, and her constant desire to win souls for Christ. She had a strong mind in a strong body and so was able to accomplish much for her great Master's cause. It is said that death loves a shining mark and he often takes the strong and leaves the weak. Her work is ended, she has gone to her rest, and her friends mourn for her dear one" yet realizing that she is "not lost, but gone before." In the word of God we read: "They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteous as the stars forever and ever." The endless glory of heaven will eternally fall upon them. "No imperfections will be theirs. Exalted then—raised above humanity; error and corruption—beautiful, glorious, resplendent." A. M. S.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Lucy A. Fish, widow of the late Aaron G. Fish, died at her home on First Street, in this village, Thursday, July 14, at the advanced age of 91 years and two months. Mrs. Fish had resided in Fulton since 1817, seventy-two years ago. When she came here she was nearly twenty years of age. She was one of the original members of the Baptist church in Fulton. Her husband died about ten years ago. She was the mother of Mrs. W. S. Nelson, Mrs. C. J. DeGraw, Miss Eliza Fish, Andrew J. Fish and Eber P. Fish. Her funeral services took place at 4 o'clock p. m., from the Baptist church on Saturday, the pastor, Rev. Mr. Breaker officiating.

The excursion to Sylvan Beach under the auspices of Hiram Lodge F. & A. M. was a successful affair. About 125 went from Fulton and passed an enjoyable day at this pleasant resort. The Beach was of much more importance than a majority of the excursionists anticipated, possessing as it does about 125 cottages, half a dozen first class hotels, steam yachts and excellent bathing facilities.

Officer Keefe of this village received a telegram this morning from Chief Police Wright of Syracuse to come to that city by first train to testify against two pickpockets who were there in custody. Officer Keefe arrested the prisoners on a West Shore train yesterday while they were in the act of picking the pockets of Mr. William Hill of this village and turned them over to Syracuse officers. Mr. Keefe is entitled to great credit for his prompt action in the matter.

An effort is being made to secure a pardon for James Dwyer, of Fulton, who was sentenced to Auburn prison for highway robbery. A petition has been presented to the Governor, signed by all of the twelve jurors who found him guilty, as well as nearly all of the business men of Oswego Falls and Fulton and prominent men of Oswego. The Governor did not take immediate action upon the petition, but it is expected that a pardon will be granted before many weeks. Dwyer has served fourteen months.—Palladium.

Arrest of a Pickpocket.

When the West Shore railway train arrived at the depot in this city last evening William Hill of Fulton, who had been out to Fayetteville to shake the hands of President Cleveland and his charming wife, he was set upon by a crowd of young men who jolted him about in a lively way. When he had extricated himself he saw a boy who was nearest to him pass a pocketbook to his companion. The fellow was 20 years old, gave the name of Paul Grover and said his home was in Cincinnati and he had come on here to visit relatives, though when asked who they were he became insolent and declared it was no one's business. He is believed to be an out and out pickpocket.—Standard this morning.

Miss Lucy Salmon has been elected to the chair of history at Vassar college, a position for which she is amply fitted by fine scholarship and natural endowments. Born in Fulton, Oswego county, we believe, she attended the once famous academy in that village; and completed her education at Michigan University, adding post-graduate work to a regular course. Her published history of the civil service under the spoils theory and the reform theory is widely known and highly esteemed. In fact, as an elaborate historical study, searching and original, the work has no competitors in the field it occupies. Miss Salmon's progress is watched with pleasure by the many who admire the vigor and solidity of her talents.—Syracuse Standard, Monday.

[illegible] The City [illegible] has provided large and handsome [illegible] armories for the drilling of the several regiments. A new armory every couple of years till all the regiments are equally well supplied is to be the order of public affairs.

There are seven regiments some of which have the full complement required by the Military Code; others only sufficient to prevent disbandment. The primary reason for the smallness of the muster of these latter regiments is due to the insufficient space for drilling. To supply what is absolutely necessary in any military organization—familiarity with the necessary movements and handling of weapons—the State has a camp of instruction.

Some years ago the state authorities purchased a large tract of land on the shores of the Hudson, a mile or so above the village of Peekskill. This land is situated on a bluff overlooking the river at an elevation of upwards of two hundred feet. It is a singularly level tract of perhaps forty acres, encompassed by water on the south and west, by a valley on the east and backed by a steep hill on the north. Here the camp is laid out. Five hundred tents, arranged so as to give separate streets for each company, lie in straight lines, at right angles to a main avenue, along which are the officers tents and those of the general officers attached to the staff of the Governor. A healthier or more delightful spot could not have been chosen. Excellent drainage, splendid water, cooling breezes (when such things come), no malaria, are the especial advantages. The several regiments spend each a week in this camp. The culinary arrangements are intrusted to a caterer, so that as far as the Commissary of subsistence is concerned the regiment has but little to do. It is no child's play, this camp duty. True to many of these militiamen it is perhaps the only outing they have for the year. They return to their homes decidedly improved. The duties of their soldier life commence at 5 a. m. and continues with but little intermission till "taps" at 10 p. m. It's company drill, dress parade, battalion drill, guard duty, police duty, instruction in the School of the Soldier, special instruction at keeping records, skirmish drill, sham fights. The West Point influence prevails largely. The officer of the port and many of the instructors are men who have a West Point education, so that the iron-bound regulations of the regular army are as far as possible made applicable here.

While the men are in camp, they are paid for their service at the rate of $1.25 per day, the officers in due proportion as their position ranks them. The question is often asked, does it pay? I think it does. For the past two or three years there has been a marked difference in the condition of the city requirements. Competition and rivalry for the best record of attendance, diligence in military duty and discipline have very greatly improved the esprit de corps. It gives many of them a real idea of what stern, cruel war is like. I find that there is a tendency to looking forward to the term of camp duty with increasing anticipation of its great benefits. The greatest advantages would come if the State would order a whole brigade, the whole four thousand men of the city, there at one time, so that the entire evolutions of a real army could be gone through with.

The Post Surgeon has reported that considering the physical condition of many of the men who belong to the regiments most of whom are clerks and salesmen with no opportunity for physical development, the medical department has great cause for congratulation. "Spts ferniculi quantum sufficit." The camp is well worth a visit and the Metropolitan sightseer from the interior of the state will be well paid with a day's trip to the State Camp at Peekskill.

The time to make cheap pork is now. With good pastures, pure water and comfortable quarters, they should be kept growing every day. If your March and April pigs do not weigh 160 to 200 pounds before they reach the corn field they have missed the opportunity of making cheap pork.

Run green clover, rye, wheat, oats or corn through the feed cutter set to cut in half-inch lenths and feed to fowls confined in yards. This is the soiling system applied to poultry keeping and works admirably as those know who have tried it.

In twenty days the eggs of one hen will exceed the weight of her body. So of any bird. Yet the whole of that mass of albumen is drawn directly from the blood. If stinted in food, of course it would limit the number as well as the size of the eggs.

Pick out your breeds, says the farm Journal, the pigs with long bodies, broad backs and deep round hams. Select a breed which has hair on it. A good coat of hair counts on a hog as well as any animal. It is a protection in summer and in winter.

If there is land on the farm that needs underdraining no better investment can be made than money put into tiles in good drains. It may require economizing to pay for them just now, but such wonderful pay will be got back in time as well as make a man glad he had the pluck to make this improvement, even though it may appear to be a hard job.

Six Ways to Treat Balky Horses.

The following different ways of treating balky horses have been recommended by various horsemen as efficacious, in their experience, with balky animals: First—Pat the horse on the neck, examine him carefully, first on one side and then the other; if you can get him a handful of grass give it to him. Then jump into the wagon and give the word to go, and he will generally obey. Second—Taking the horse out of the shafts and turning him around in a circle until he is giddy will generally start him. Third—Another way to cure a balky horse is to place your hand over his nose and shut off his wind until he wants to go. Fourth—Then, again, take a couple of turns of stout twine around the fore legs, just below the knee, tight enough for the horse to feel it; tie in a bow knot; at the first click he will probably go dancing off. After going a short distance you can get out and remove the string to prevent injury to the tendons. Fifth—Again, you can try the following: Take the tail of the horse between the hind legs and tie it by a cord to the saddle girth. Sixth—Tie a string around the horse's ear, close to the head; this will divert his attention and start him.

Clover Hay for Hogs.

An acre of clover, rightly handled with other feed, will winter a dozen hogs. It should be well cured, run through the cutter and cut fairly fine, and cooked with potatoes, turnips, apples, etc., into a slop. It is a good feed and if fed rightly, will bring the hogs in excellent condition. Clover is an excellent summer feed for hogs and hogs will thrive as well on it as on any other feed in the world. Give the hogs a small range so they will not run off the flesh, not more than five acres, and better not more than three, and turn in just enough hogs, so that it will not get so much start as to mature. The number of hogs will depend, of course, on the growth of the clover. There should be plenty of water; running water is always the best. If the weeds start, sheep will eat them, and if the pasture is too much for the hogs, the cattle and horses will be pleased to assist in keeping it down. If grass is used for pasture it must be kept green.

Important Points in Potato Culture.

After many years of experimenting, a correspondent of Live Stock Journal gives utterance to the following conclusions: 1st. Whole potatoes will produce a crop a week or ten days earlier than those which are divided. 2d. Small potatoes will produce as good, if not better results than large ones. 3d. The seed end is the better one to plant because it starts with more vigor and produces more and larger potatoes. 4th. A large piece is better on ordinary soil than small pieces or eyes. 5th. Potatoes with sprouts long enough to break [illegible] planting are not so good as those [illegible] eyes advanced just enough to in[illegible] vigor. 6th. The form cannot, [illegible] be changed by planting in any [illegible] form. 7th. Two distinct [illegible] won't mix in the same hill. The typographer, whose sanctum is this room, is a man who has caused a deal of talk in his time, devising the most astounding schemes for making money, the memory of whose sensational career will not soon fade away. His name is Ferdinand Ward. He was stooping ov'r a box on the floor when the keeper entered, watching with keen enjoyment a spanial surrounded by a litter of very young pups. He glanced up with a smile and said: "That was a good place for her, wasn't it, Mr. Connaughton? I'm glad she made her bed there, for I am very fond of dogs." The keeper assented briefly, and proceeded to point out to the visitor the various features of the room. Ward stepped to the bench and picked up a proof that he had just taken and handed it to Mr. Connaughton for inspection. The prisoner was dressed like the other convicts, with the exception of a straw hat instead of the regulation striped cap. He was evidently pleased with his work, and perhaps had failed to see that it was amateurish in several respects, although the selection of the type showed good taste."

Each Provides Her Own Chew.

Here is a little girl's composition on the cow: A cow is an animal with four legs on the under side. The tail is longer than the legs but it is not used to stand on. The cow kills flies with her tail. A cow has big ears that wiggle on hinges; so does the tail. A cow is bigger than a calf, but not as big as an elephant. She is made small, so she can go into the barn when nobody is looking. Some cows are black. And some hook. A dog was hooked once. The tossed the dog that worried the cat that caught the rat. Black cows give white milk; so do other cows. Milkmen sell milk to buy their little girls dresses, which they put water in and chalk. Cows chews cuds and each cow finds its own chew. This is all there is about cows.—Hartford Times.

A Real Estate Agent's Dodge.

"I want to buy the fastest horse you've got in your stable," said a sleek-looking man to the liveryman. "One that can go like the wind."

"A 2:40 horse suit you?"

"No, no, no. Must be faster. About 1:40 is what I want."

"You a sportsman?"

"No, not exactly. I'm going into the real estate business and when I start out to show a man a lot I want a horse that can get there so quick that he'll think it is right in the heart of the town."—Bismark Tribune.

Those persons who do not need Iron, but who are troubled with Nervousness and Dyspepsia, will find in Carter's Little Nerve Pills a most desirable article. Peculiar

In the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in its good name at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenominal sales it has attained, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most successful medicine for purifying the blood-giving strength, and creating an appetite.

The coral market is glutted. Five years is said to be the time it will take to sell off the stock already on hand, and meanwhile coral fishing in Sicily has been suspended.

Greatly Excited.

Not a few of the citizens of Fulton, have recently become greatly excited over the astounding facts, that several of their friends who had been pronounced by their physicians as incurable and beyond all hope—suffering with that dreaded monster Consumption—have been completely cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, the only remedy that does positively cure all throat and lung diseases, Coughs, Colds, Asthma and Bronchitis. Trial bottle free at R. E. Phillips' Drug Store, large bottles $1.

The sudden death of most men and women arises from a diseased state of the Kidneys, which thus effect the Heart and Brain.

The symptoms are: a tired feeling, lack of energy, loss of appetite, occasional headaches, scanty or profuse urine, brick dust sediment and shooting pains.

The F. E. C. Kidney Cure is the only Remedy ever sold that GUARANTEES A CURE, or refunds the money. For debilitated men, for weak women, and for feeble children, it is invaluable.

The Old Fireplace

The blessed old fireplace! how bright it appears,
As back to my boyhood I gaze,
O'er the desolate waste of the vanishing years,
From the gloom of these lone latter days;
Its lips are as ruddy, its heart is as warm
To my fancy to-night, as of yore,
When we cuddled around it and smiled at the storm
As it showed its white teeth at the door.

I remember the apple that wooed the red flame
Till the blood bubbled out of its cheek,
And the passionate popcorn that smothered its shame
And its heart split apart with a shriek;
I remember the Greeks and the Trojans who fought,
In their shadowy shapes on the wall,
And the yarn, in thick tangles, my fingers held taut,
While my mother was winding the ball.

I remember the cat that lay cozy and curled
By the jamb where the flames flickered high,
And the sparkles—the fireflies of winter—that whirled
Up the flue, as the wind whistled by;
I remember the bald-headed, bandy-legged tongs,
That frowned like a fiend in my face,
In a fury of passion, repeating the wrongs,
They had borne in the old fireplace.

I remember the steam from the kettle that breathed
As soft as the flight of a soul,
The long-handled skillet that spluttered and seethed
With the batter that burdened its bowl;
I remember the rusty, identical nail,
Where the criminal pot hooks were hung;
The dragon-faced andirons, the old cedar pail,
The gourd and the peg where it swung.

But the fire has died out on the old cabin hearth,
The wind clatters loud thro' the pane,
And the dwellers—they've flown to the ends of the earth,
And will gaze on it never again;
A forget-me-not grows in the moldering wall,
The last, as it were, of its race,
And the shadows of night settle down like a pall
On the stones of the old fireplace.

The Summer Resort Fishers.

Three fishes were sailing out into the lake,
Out into the lake as the sun went down;
Each thought on the biggest lie he could make—
And the reporters stood watching them out of the town;
For fishers will lie and reporters believe,
For 'twas ever their wont though they seldom deceive—
For we've all been fishing ourselves!

Three editors sat in their offices high,
And they made up their sheets as the moon went down;
And each murmured, "I'll glance at the usual lie,"
And they picked up the "copy" with darksome frown;
"For papers must print the fishers tale,
Tho' it calmly tells of hooking a whale—
For we've all been fishing ourselves!

Three journalists lay on the office floor
In the gaslight gleam when the foreman came 'round,
For each had read the tale from the shore,
And each had sunk down in a deadly swound;
For the fishers had said and the scribes had written
That all that eve not a fish had bitten—
And truth was stranger than fiction!

TRACKED BY A GHOST.

I am a bachelor, steady-going, peace-loving and superstition-despising, but I must confess I have spent a few moments of my life in doubt whether ghosts exist or not.

I have always been fond of traveling, and thanks to a benevolent uncle, who possessed a considerable amount of lucre and love for his nephew, I have done quite a deal of traveling,

Everyone has heard of haunted houses; almost everyone has laughed at them, and none more heartily than I. Until a year ago I never had an opportunity to test my powers of endurance in that line. Then I had a chance. Thinking you may be interested, I will tell of that test. Of the test you must judge, only please not harshly.

I was enjoying the most delightful summer traveling wherever my fancy led me, and meeting loads of congenial people. The afore-mentioned fancy led me one stormy day to a small southern village, and I determined to put up for the night at the little hotel, the only one in the place.

Now this inn was a very high-toned one, for the adjoining barn boasted a magnificent sign on which were the significant words, "Hotel de Horse." The landlord of this little inn was a jolly, rotund fellow, and his wife was as buxom-looking a dame as one would often meet.

They regaled me with a nice country supper, and, after a very pleasant evening spent in smoking or talking up the affairs of the village, I was lighted to a delightfully cool, cosy room, and told that I was to occupy it for the night.

I retired with a feeling of perfect contentment and soothed by the patter of the rain on the roof, soon fell into a dreamless sleep.

When I awoke I found it was still night, the storm had ceased, and the patter on the roof had changed to a constant drip, drip. It was very quieting. The risen moon peeped in, and partly lighted the room. I lay sleepless, enjoying the soft sound, and the half-light making fantastic shapes on the walls, and it seemed to me perfect bliss, but finally the dripping grew a little monotonous; the fantastic shapes lost their charming dimness and grew distinctly and disagreeably fantastic, and I became tired of watching and listening, and wished I could sleep again.

I counted several thousands by ones, fives and tens. I said the alphabet forward and backwards, and played a solitarie game of "my grandmother's cat." I sang hymns to myself, and recited verses to the same audience, but the drip sounded more and more like whisperings, and the odd shapes at last grew fairly ghastly.

I was not afraid, why, of course not, there was nothing to be afraid of, and even if there had been, imagine my giving way to it. "It's just the monotony, that's all," I said to myself, over and over again, "only I do wish moons would be sensible and not be so restless." [illegible] fall back with a dull thud? Yes, I am sure there was a thud. I do believe the baby is trying to get out." What a joke! One would imagine I really thought there was a baby under that stone. Of course it was a shadow."

"Why doesn't all that rain get dripped? I'm not afraid to hear it drip; but Jove! I wish it would dry up." These thoughts passed through and through my mind, and I finally was sure I heard the gentle stir of garments and faintly creaking boards. I decided to get up. I did so and slipped on a few garments. I thought I would go down stairs and sit in a room where there wasn't any roof, or any window, or any hearth, or any dead, crying babies, and think.

Yes, I surely had been decoyed into a haunted house. I would not take a light, for, if perchance anybody could be asleep in that horrible house, I, poor, long-suffering man, would not be the one to waken them with a light. No, indeed. Though sinned against I would not sin. Thus communing, I groped to the staircase and tightly clasping the bannister, I carefully stepped down another step, and what was that noise behind me? Surely I heard a step. After about five minutes of patient (?) waiting for an icy hand to steal over my shoulder and grapple with my throat, and being disappointed with my hopes, I went down three stairs more. Yes, one, two, three, immediately after mine came the gentle tap of pooky feet. Turning, I strove to peer through the darkness, but no? Egypt is put wholly in the shade. Again soliloquizing, "I cannot stand this mental waiting for physical agony. I will sin. I will sin, I will return to my room and get the iniquitous candle."

Carefully I ascended the stairs. I heard no footsteps either in front or behind me. I must have gone through the ghost. "Anyway, I will persist in getting my candle. By the way, in which direction was my room? To the left, I am sure." Bang I came against a chair and sent it flying against a door. Immediately came a series of naughty words and sounds similar to that made by hair coming out by force. "How dare that man speak in the presence of a visitor or visitors from the other world."

Deciding with my usual perception that my room must be to the right, I turned in that direction and groped to it.

"The door is open. Here is the table, candle, matches. The moon is very nice in its place." Grasping these, I light out, carefully closing the door behind me. "Is it an excited imagination, or did some one hold it for an instant on the inside?"

Lighting the candle I peered about me. Nothing was visible, not one ghost. But then, of course all ghosts have the power of changing form or becoming invisible.

Down stairs a little way I went. Tap, tap, tapping on every stair. "Will I ever be able to reach the bottom?" Fearfully turning completely around, I held the candle above my head and looked over every inch of stairway and hall. Not a living, dying, dead thing was to be seen. Down the stairs again I start. On came the ghostly footfalls. Faster I go, and at last, over the few stairs near the bottom, I fly. The spirit flies, too (Oh! ghostly tramp of the dead!) I hear it. I cannot escape it. The stairs are long. On the bottom one I fall, a miserable heap of miserable humanity. The candle goes out, and so do I,

When I awoke the hall was bright with sun. Recalling my fearful exper- I weakly arose. Instinctively I looked around, and there, hanging to my bifurcated garments, was my suspender, the author of my agony.—Buffalo News.

Politeness Well Repaid.

On a crowded East Boston horse car the other evening, the seats of which were nearly all occupied by men, a cutting rebuke answered by a neat compliment was overheard. Shortly after the car left the ferry there got aboard a young lady whose pallid and careworn face marked her as an invalid.

None of those having a seat at their disposal deigned to offer a seat to the one who seemed most in need of a resting place till at the further end of the car a roughly dressed workingman, seeing her plight, beckoned to her, and, resigning his seat in her behalf, said:

"There don't seem Miss, to be any gentlemen on this car."

"I beg your pardon, sir. I am sure there is one," she replied gratefully, as she accepted the seat.—Boston Budget.

THE PROPER THING.

Never wear the gloves over the sleeves.

White chuddah shawls are in great favor for light wraps.

Mitts are the correct thing for all but very dressy occasions.

Batistes, percals and linen lawns are used for dressing sacques.

The full bishop sleeve gathered into a velvet cuff is growing in favor.

White muslin with pin head dots of embroidery are liked for misses' dresses.

Rough sailor staw hats, trimmed with white ribbon, tarletan or mull, are in great favor.

There is a tendency to dispense with buttons on many street gowns and go back to hooks and eyes.

Dresses of white wool, India silk and lace are worn at watering places, as they are not injured by dampness.

The Grecian knot of hair, slightly protruding from the centre of the back of the head, is a severe style that is becoming only to women who possess very regular features.

Among the pretty fancies in waistcoats just now, are those of cream-white serge or cloth braided in gold, and in gray nun's cloth embroidered with silver and cut-steel beads and round gray silk cord.

Black lace dresses are in great favor with the waist and lower skirt made of strips of satin surah alternating with insertions of French lace. The strips run around the skirt and are lengthwise in the basque.

Many of the latest summer gowns, of lace and India muslin, are made up without linings, to be worn over silk underwaists of various kinds and colors. The seams to the unlined lace or net waists are first sewed up on the right side, then turned, and again stitched upon the inner side exactly as the seams of muslin and linen undergarments are finished.

Extravagance in College.

The very parents who speak so bitterly of the encouragement given to young men's extravagance by the modern college life have carefully trained their sons for just the life which they have found. Usually men in moderate circumstances, they have never compelled their sons to earn a dollar in their lives, or to know the cost or value of money, or to deny themselves anything within their reach, or to do anything except to spend money when a favorable opportunity offered. The son, passing for the first time beyond his father's eye, and able to plead circumstances which parents cannot deny from personal knowledge, are in a fair position to deplete the paternal pocket-book, and have never been trained to refrain from improving such an opportunity. It is not for his own selfish gratification that the son joins this or that college society, or takes all the papers, or "goes with the hind" to watch an intercollegiate game in another college town, or does any of the othea things for which his father has to pay,—not at all; it is only because he would be ostracized in college if he refrained from such indulgences. Such are the statements which accompany the periodical petitions for checks; and the father, finding it easier to curse college extravagance than to take the trouble of ascertaining the true state of the case, continues his mistraining of the boy by paying his bills until, at the end of the college course, the son is turned loose upon the world, to find at last what a dollar really means.—The Century, Topics of the Time.

"Charles, it is half-past 3 o'clock. Where have you been until this hour?"

"Mr. De Browne, your services will not be required after Saturday next."

"You want to marry my daughter, eh? Well, young man, what are your expectations?"

"Here is the milliner's bill, Algy—only $75."

"I say, Jenkins, I heard a good story today, and I must tell it to you."

"Oh, Alfred, what do you think! I received a letter from dear mamma this morning, and she's coming to spend a month with us."

"When will you be ready to return that $10, Robinson? This is the fifth time I've asked you for it."

"If ye plaze, sorr, Miss Heavyswell tould me to tell you she's not at home."

"And fifthly, dear brethren—"

The Late Rev. Dr. Theo. M. Bishop.

The Buffalo Express of Sunday, July 17, contains a portrait of Mr. Bishop, formerly pastor of Zion church in this village, and the following sketch of his life.

A learned and godly man passed from earth when the Rev. Theodore M. Bishop, D. D., rector of the Episcopal Church at Honeoye Falls in this State, died at that place, June 25th. He was born near Ovid, N. Y., April 28, 1820. He graduated from Union College in 1841, and in 1847 became Principal of the Sherburne Academy. He was admitted candidate for Holy Order in Western New York, August, 1846; ordained deacon in St. Peter's Church, Cazenovia, December 20, 1848, and priest in Zion Church, Fulton, St. Matthias' Day, February 24, 1850; all by Bishop De Lancey. His first services as deacon and missionary were in the last named parish, which he held in all 14 years, and built up from a very feeble mission into a vigorous parish, increasing four-fold in strength and numbers. He resigned this church in November, 1857, to become rector of Grace Church, Albany, but retuned to it in 1861 for seven years' more service. In 1868 he became Head Master of the Heathcote School, Buffalo, and the following year rector of St. James' Church in this city, where he remained until 1874, when he resigned and was succeeded by the Rev. Henry S. Dennis, the predecessor of the rector, the Rev. Charles H. Smith.

In April, 1874, Mr. Bishop became rector of St. Mark's Church, Le Roy; in November, 1880, rector of St. Luke's Church, Jamestown, and in July, 1885, of his last charge, St. John's, Honeoye Falls; so that with the exception of between two and three years in Albany, his entire ministry of 38 years was given to the Diocese of Western New York.

On the division of the Diocese, in 1868, Mr. Bishop became its assistant secretary, under the Rev. Levi W. Norton; and on Mr. Norton's resignation in 1870, he was unanimously elected secretary, which office he held until his death, performing its duties with great vigor and fidelity. He represented the Diocese in the General Conventions of 1877 and '80. He graduated as M. A. at Union, was admitted to the same degree at Hobart, 1850, and D. D. in 1875. He was an eminent scholar and an earnest, forcible preacher.

Bishop Coxe speaks of him as "one of the best of our parish clergy." He was a true man and a fast friend. There remain many friends in this city, as in other places where his labors had made him known and beloved, who deeply regret his demise.

THEIR NAME WAS WADDELL.

A Strange Meeting of Two Brothers who Had Never Seen Each Other.

A portly, prosperous-looking gentleman sat in a Sixth avenue elevated car on Monday evening. The conductor had just shouted, "Umteenth street" and banged the gate. Another porly gentleman came in and sat down. There was a remarkable resemblance between the two men. A journalist nudged portly party number one and said: "Beg pardon, sir. Do you see your counterpart sitting opposite?"

"By Godfrey, he's the image of me."

Then leaning over he tapped the image on the knee with the Evening Sun: "Excuse me, sir. You are my double. Will you oblige me with your card?"

The image looked up, seemed bewildered for an instant. "I haven't a card with me, sir, but ny name is Waddell of Murray, Idaho."

"Waddell, eh? Where is your native place?"

"Manchester, England, sir."

"Your father's name James?"

"Yes, sir. Oblige me with your name, sir."

"Certainly, Jimmy. You don't know me, do you?"

"You look like a Woddell. Are you my brother Smallwood?"

"That's what I am.

The two brothers shook hands for about a minute, exchanging inquiries. An explanation revealed the fact that the elder brother, Smallwood, had left England two years before James was born. He had been in Peru thirty-two years and had not heard from home in twenty years. James was in business in Murray, Idaho. They climbed down the Twenty-third street stairs arm in arm and a moment later were celebrating their meeting with a bottle of Roederer.—N. Y. Sun.

A British Disguise.

Hon. W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) was a close companion of a man named Boone, who discovered Kentucky in 1869. Mr. Cody married a granddaughter of a distinguished gentleman known as Sitting Bullfrog. Cody was twice Governor of Chicago and was at one time Mayor of the Arkansaw Legislature. He served in the confederate army, in the command of General Butler, who so gallantly defended New Orleans against the threatened invasion of the Federal General Longstreet. After the war Mr. Cody went to Congress from the Province of Detroit and introduced a measure for the relief of the citizens of Buffalo, which gained for him the name of Buffalo Bill. He has contributed largely to the Atlantic Monthly, a newspaper edited by Mark Twain and Uncle Tom Cabin, a man who is mainly noted for his negro dialect sketches. Mr. Cody [illegible]

TWELVE MILLION.

That is What New York is Said to Swallow Every Day.

"How many glasses of beer are sold each day in the 10,000 saloons of New York city?"

This is the question that was asked a prominent downtown saloon-keeper the other day by a Mail and Express reporter.

"Young man you hadn't ought to ask such a question in hot weather. They're too fatiguing," was the reply. "Pretty nigh all New York is drinking beer during this season and it would take a mighty good mathematician to figure out the exact amount gulped down."

"Just stand at this bar for five minutes and watch the rush and you can draw some conclusion." It was about the busiest time of the day. The white-aproned bartenders were as busy as bees. Along the inner edge of the bar was a groove in which the bottom of a beer glass just fitted. A waiter at one end would call out "One!" or "Two!" as the case might be, and another waiter at the other end would, by a dextrous twist of his wrist send the beer glasses whizzing along the groove to where the customer stood.

The glasses went flying up and down with incredible rapidity. In the course of five minutes the looker-on counted in the neighborhood of 100, and even then was not sure that he had not missed some. Kept up at this rate it would mean considerably over 4,000 glasses passed over that single bar each day.

"Of course," said the saloon-keeper "this does not keep up all day, nor during many hours of the night, nor is this saloon a good one to draw an estimate on. There are many down town that do just as much business as is done here, but there are hundreds where no such sales are made.

"In the saloons of New York the sales of beer during the hot weather run from ten kegs to over one hundred per day. It is not every saloon that can climb anywhere near the one hundred keg point, and not all fall to ten kegs, although some do not use that much.

"Perhaps it might be fair to strike an average at ten kegs a day all around, although that may be high. This would give us close on 100,000 kegs a day. Now in the ordinary keg there are from 130 to 150 ordinary glasses. In this saloon there are almost as many 'ponies' as glasses called for, but then again there are other places where schooners are the rule.

"But calculating on the smaller figures of 120 glasses to the keg and ten kegs per day to each saloon, and we should have about 12,000,000 glasses of beer that are sold every day in New York. These are pretty stiff figures, are they not? Mind, I don't say all this beer is sold by the glass. It may go over the bar in cans or pitchers to be drank from glasses afterwards. But I have figured on a fair glass basis. Besides beer is not the only liquor drank in New York just now.

"Now, young man, I don't claim that those figures may not be a little too high. You asked me for an estimate and I have given it to you."

Thirteen Grave Mistakes.

To yield to immaterial trifles.

To look for perfection in our own actions.

To endeavor to mould all dispositions alike.

To expect uniformity of opinion in this world.

To measure the enjoyment of others by our own.

To expect to be able to understand everything.

To believe only what our finite minds can grasp.

To look for judgment and experience in youth.

Not to make allowances for the infirmities of others.

To worry ourselves and others with what cannot be remedied.

To consider everything impossible that we cannot perform.

Not to alleviate all that needs alleviation as far as lies in our power.

It is a great mistake to set up you own standard of right and wrong, and judge people accordingly.

Ministers, Lawyers, Teachers, and others whose occupation gives but little exercise, should use Carter's Little Liver Pills for torpid Liver and biliousness. One is a dose.

ASTHMA

is a disease that in this climate afflicts many persons. It is characterized by the breathing, previously perfectly natural, becoming difficult and accompanied by wheezing and a distressed sense of tightness in the chest. Everybody afflicted knows of the struggles that they often have, and to them the following will be of interest.

In the winter of 188[illegible] the town of Garland, Me., sent a worthy citizen, Mr. A. J. Farmer, to Bangor as a juryman. He entered upon his duties, and one day, being subject to attacks of Asthma, was obliged to leave the Court House and seek aid at Warren's drug store. While there he said he had often been driven from his bed in the coldest nights of winter to seek relief at the open door or window, while the sweat stood on him as it would on a hot day in haying time. He had no faith in it, yet the fact stands out to-day undisputed by those who know him that he was, by the use of it, entirely cured, and lives a walking, healthy testimonial of the healing power of Brown's Sarsaparilla over Asthma.

In the town of Sangerville resides Mr. F. R. Lewis, a leading citizen. He too has had Asthma. After various remedies had been tried, he was cured by Brown's Sarsaparilla. Do not forget Brown's Sarsaparilla enters into and works on the blood. Asthma is a blood disease. Poor blood driven into the lungs destroys the breathing powers: hence, Asthma.

Brown's Sarsaparilla

will cure all forms of Blood diseases. Sold everywhere. Ara Warren & Co., Proprietors, Bangor, Me.

Eminent Authors of All Ages and All Countries.

The seventh volume of Alden's Cyclopedia of Universal Literature now published contains biographical sketches of about 100 authors, of all ages and countries, with copious extracts from their writings, all arranged in strictly alphabetical order. The following are a few of the names included in the volume:

Andrew J. Downing, the most famous writer on Landscape Gardening; Joseph Rodman Drake, author of The Culprit Fay; John W. Draper, the American scientist and historian; Prof. Henry Drummond, whose recent work Natural Law in the Spiritual World has been pronounced "almost a revelation"; John Dryden, the famous British poet; Paul Du Chaillu, the noted traveller in Africa and Scandinavia; Madame Dudevant, ("George Sand") the famous French author; Jonathan Edwards, the New England theologian; Ebenezer Elliott, "the Corn-Law Rhymer"; Ralph Waldo Emerson, philosopher and poet; Thomas Dunn English, author of "Ben Bolt" and other popular ballads and poems; Epictetus, Epicurus, and Euripides, Greek Classic authors; Erasmus, wit, scholar and reformer; Eusebius, "the father of Ecclesiastical History"; Marian Evans, better known as "George Elliot"; William M. Evarts and Edward Everett, statesmen and orators; John Evelyn, whose diary is one of the most famous in English literature; Faber and Farrar, both famous in Christian literature; and Faraday, the most Christian of scientists.

The scope of the Cyclopedia is broader than that of any similar work in any language. It embraces not only the names and works of writers in the English language, but also those of prominent authors of all ages and countries who have fairly made their mark in literature, Greek, Latin, Danish, Dutch, French, German, Italian, Portugese, Spanish, Swedish, Russian, etc., the works in foreign languages being given in translations into English.

The work of the editors is now so far advanced that volumes will hereafter be published at comparatively brief intervals. The publishers descriptive catalogue (64 pages) of standard books will be sent free to any applicant. John B. Alden, Publisher, 393 Pearl Street, New York, or Lakeside Building, Chicago.

JAS. E. FAIRGRIEVE - EDITOR

The article in last week's Patriot concerning water works contains so many incongruous statements that it is hard to understand what the author is driving at. In its issue of July 15 it said and reiterated that what the Patriot said about $50 per hydrant was sound and with the exultation of a school boy who had passed to the head in his spelling class asked THE TIMES if it still thought what the Patriot said about $50 per hydrant was the reason that the mayor of Syracuse vetoed and the aldermen of that city sustained the veto. We answered this question and showed the editor of the Patriot that he had tread on his own corns; that the mayor of Syracuse in his veto must have considered the price per hydrant all right or he would have said something about it. The editor either jumped over the fence or crawled through a knot hole in one of the boards for we find him last week stating that it was entirely unnecessary for him (the mayor) to refer to the contract and out of place for him to discuss it in a veto of something else. The fallacy as well as absurdity of this is shown when we remember that the mayor showed every objectional feature that he found, and they were good ones. Among which might be mentioned the "disadvantage of entering into a twenty years' contract before the claims of two rival companies are settled," "an omission to limit rates to private consumers" &c. If the price per hydrant was an exhorbitant one, it would certainly have been mentioned.

It then switches back onto another track for the second time and springs on us its revised ediiton of the forty-seventh problem of Euclid, viz: "If Fulton pays $50 per hydrant to convey water one mile how much ought Syracuse to pay per hydrant where water is brought 40 miles?" We are disposed to answer this question by asking one. "If Fulton pays $50 per hydrant to convey water one mile how much ought Schenectady to pay per hydrant when the water works are situated within the city limits?" The Patriot will certainly give a clear solution of this in its next issue as it never "dodges or ignores" any question.

In another part we find the statement made that the Water Works Co. are paying six per cent interest on the bonds issued "when money was begging for four." If this is the case, is it not queer that printing offices pay six?

Again if the Water Works company have offered to furnish Oswego Falls water at $40 per hydrant, is it not surprising that the village has not accepted the offer? It is certainly paying $50 per hydrant now and has been ever since it used them.

We desire to have all understand our position in this matter of water works. It is the stand we took when the question first came up for consideration and the one we have always adhered to.

The Water Works Co. charged $50 per hydrant at the beginning of the year. The village desired to secure it for a less figure. The company claimed that they could not afford to supply it for a lower sum and invited an examination into the cost of construction and maintenance of this system of water works. This, for some reason best known to the parties whose duty it was to use their best efforts to secure a contract for the village and on the most favorable terms, was not done. The question then hinged on whether $50 per hydrant was a fair price or not and whether it was for the advantage of the village to take it at that figure. We believed it was for the public good to have this kind of fire protection and investigated the matter. From a reliable source we ascertained that the following prices prevailed in various cities and towns in the state. The price paid per hydrant being:

Syracuse	$70.60	Auburn	$58.60
Utica	52.60	Oswego	75.00
Elmira	50.00	Schenectady	75.00
West Troy	109.00	Canojoharie	50.00
Jamestown	60.00	Greenbush	50.00
Ithaca	75.00	Waterloo	50.00
Lyons	60.00	Flatbush	60.00
Geneva	60.00	Greenwich	50.00
Norwich	86.47	Mt. Vernon	60.00
Canandaigua	60.00	Owego	50.00
Hoosick Falls	50.00	Bath	50.00
White Plains	50.00	Oneida	50.00
Waterford	50.00	Waverly	90.00
Green Island	50.00	Niagara Falls	50.00
Adams	50.00	Homer	50.00

Cortland has a contract whereby hydrants are furnished at $33.33. It is the only place in the state, as far as we know, where hydrants are supplied at less than $50 each. The much talked of village of Newark has no system of water works. Although a contract existed, not a single move toward construction had been made a month ago and we do not think there has been yet. From this it would seem that, as compared with prices paid in other cities and villages, the price is no higher. While we would like to have the village supplied with fire hydrants at a lower figure we thought and still think that it is to the advantage of the village to pay this rather than to be without the fire protection which the hydrants afford and pay the increased insurance rates that are demanded when hydrants are not used.

That THE TIMES' theory was right will be readily seen by every intelligent and thinking men in Fulton when he reads the following, which has just been issued by the Underwriters' Association of New York state as an addenda to the Oswego county tariff.

"The rates for Fulton in the Oswego County Tariff, pages 90 to 93 inclusive, (exclusive of the mills,) are based upon [illegible] of the water works. As [illegible] has now been with- [illegible] difference between [illegible] the water works [illegible]

[illegible] $1,700 the amount [illegible] raised [illegible] of hydrants. We offer for your consideration but one illustration. A firm on First street carries an insurance of $15,000 on their stock. Before these new rates went into effect they paid $1.20 on every $100 insurance or $180 on their $15,000 insurance. They will now have to pay $1.55 on every $100 or $232.50 on the $15,000, an increase of $52.50 per year. When this amount additional has to be paid by one firm, is it not evident that a large amount additional will have to be paid by all who get insured within the corporation? Was not THE TIMES working for the public good when it advocated and used its influence to have a contract made between the village and water works company?

A conference of butter makers under the auspices of the New York state dairymens' association will be held at the dairy of Mr. W. H. Gilbert at Richland, August 10 at 11 a. m. to present methods and make actual tests in butter making by churning of cream. Hon. Harris Lewis and Prof. L. B. Arnold are expected to be present and give instruction. All interested are invited.—Oswego Times.

C. H. David of Fulton, recently visited his relatives in this town. This town is his birth place.

It is thought that Prof. Bugbee will recover his health, but it will take some time. His ill health has caused him to resign the principalship of our school. We part with him in sorrow. He is a faithful, earnest and conscientious teacher. We hear good words spoken of Prof. Moore, his successor.

Our type writer factory has nearly completed 100 machines. They will be put together. When completed 1,000 more will soon be made, and then the work will speedily progress. The perfection of the machine is accomplished, and no work will be done in that direction for the present.

Considerable building is being done in this place this season. The new Empire block on the hill will be an ornament to the place.

The old adage, "you cannot make a whistle out of a pig's tail" is now proved to be untrue. The thing has really been accomplished. Mr. W. F. Jones, an expert workman in our type writer factory, has really made a whistle out of a pig's tail. The writer of this has seen the whistle and blown it. Its noise is sharp and shrill. It has the peculiar curl of a live pig's tail, and it has flesh and bones.

We hear that a few office seekers have seen their friends in this place. We are glad office seekers are uneasy, for they do not know what they will have to contend with. The laboring classes are coming to the front. New questions are arising of great importance and the people are demanding legislature in favor of labor.

If your hands are as large and brown as Connecticut hams, Tulip soap will make them as soft and as white as the down upon a swan's "coat tail."

Palermo.

Only eleven candidates for School Commissioner in this district. We ought to find two more and have a baker's dozen.

Republican caucus is called for Saturday next.

J. W. Rigley and Miss Frankie Wood, of Oswego Falls were in town on Sunday last.

Martin Bunn, Attorney-at-Law, of Port Byron, one of Palermo's old boys, is in town on a visit to his relatives and old friends.

Miss Dudley of Fulton, is at the Palermo Centre House on a visit to Miss Dora Hannan.

Office seekers and relatives are very numerous and are making Palermo a a large number of visits.

W. H. Hannan has a wagon fitted up and will leave town on Wednesday to commence putting on his patent thill coupling for the public.

A Case of Deafness Cured.

Office of Shaw & Baldwin's Wholesale Notion House, Toledo, O., Dec. 11, '79.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.—Dear Sirs: About three months ago, noticing a letter addressed to you in the Bee from Gen. Slevin, in reference to the cure of his son by the use of it for our daughter Nellie now fourteen years old, who has been suffering from catarrh for about eight years, during which time she has been treated by one of the best physicians in the city. We have also tried the use of almost all the known remedies for catarrh, with no more success than temporary relief. Many nights have we laid awake to hold her mouth open to keep her from strangling. Her hearing had also become affected. We were afraid that she would never recover. We have how used six bottles of HALE'S CATARRH CURE, and we believe Nellie to be entirely cured. In a few days after commencing the use of it we noticed a decided change for the better, and from that right along she has improved, until now she breathes as easily as any one. She sleeps well and her hearing is perfectly good. We feel that the disease is entirely removed. We write this unsolicited letter, feeling that it is due you, and with the hope that others may be benefited in like manner. We can hardly realize that such a change could be effected in so short a time after battling with the disease so long. We are still using the remedy at intervals, as it seems to build up her system. You are at liberty to use this in any manner you see proper. We are yours, truly,

MR. and MRS. S. BALDWIN,

Godey's Lady Book.

Godey's Lady Cook for August, gives evidence of an advance all along the line. There is not a page that is not fresh, readable and attractive. Mrs. Croly has a leading article, "The Coming Woman," Kate Sanborn a breezy letter from "Hill-Top." There is a capital department of current events in "To-day and To-morrow," and some very pretty and original designs and suggestions in the "Fashion Department," which is greatly enlarged, and has a letter by Jenny June. The stories and other literary features, particularly the poems, are excellent.

The [illegible] appointed two [illegible] cash in the United States Treasury, a work rendered necessary on account of the departure of Treasurer Jordan and the appointment of Mr. Hyatt in his place, completed the count yesterday and verbally reported to Mr. Hyatt that the cash was found correct to a cent. It will probably be about the middle of next week when the formal report of the committee will be submitted in writing. It took the committee just two months to count the silver and gold in the Treasury.

On the eighth of January last, five members of the Life Saving Station at Dam Neck Mills, Va. lost their lives in attempting to rescue the crew of the German ship Elizabeth. The Emperor William of Germany has sent through Baron Von Alvensleben, the German Minister, at Washington, two handsome gold watches embellished with the portrait and monogram of himself and $1,000, in money. The money is to be distributed among the families of the men who lost their lives in heroic effort to save those on board the wrecked vessel, and the watches are to be presented to Frank Tedford and Jas. Etheridge, the only members of that crew of brave men who survived.

The President and Mrs. Cleveland, with Col. Lamont, and Secretary Fairchild returned to Washington early Wednesday morning according to the arranged programme. The mercury had conveniently and agreeably fallen several degrees before the arrival of the Presidental party, and the sun, which is evidently "for Cleveland" for it shines or does not shine in accordance with the President's plans, accommodatingly retired behind the clouds much to the relief of suffering officials, clerks and free and independent citizens. The President immediately after breakfasting settled himself down to his old routine work, and to examine his private correspondence which had accumilated during his absence. In the evening, he and Mrs. Cleveland drove out to Oak View, where they will remain for the present, the President driving in to the White House every morning for business. During the day many bouquets and baskets of flowers were seen in the care of special messengers on the road out to Oak View. Some were addressed to the Executive Mansion, and in the evening when the President drove out to Oak View he took with him in the carriage a beautiful bouquet to express his own rejoicing on the occasion, and a large mail containing many birthday cards from thoughtful friends in various places. After dinner at Oak View the President returned to the White House.

The Interstate Commerce Commission already have their hands full with the questions now before them, new objects of importance arise every day. The complaint of the Alton and Rock Island Companies have been dismissed. The complaint of several other companies are covered in this dismissal. The cause of complaint as far as can be intelligibly made out from the official papers, is of unjust and unlawful preference shown by defendant companies, in refusing certain facilities in the transportation of passengers to complainants' lines, which being afforded to competing companies give them, it is alleged, unfair and unreasonable advantages. There are many more such questions before the Commission, very uninteresting reading but which will suggest the advisability of boiling down the Interstate Commerce law, and making it applicable to the purpose for which it was passed.

The Signal Service, the weather bureau, have been obliged to enlarge their quarters, and for that purpose have taken a spacious house opposite to the principal office and near the War Department. If General Greely continues to deal out such weather as that of the last ten days, he needs all the room he can get.

Cheese Market.

[From the Utica Herald].

AT UTICA.

UTICA, N. Y. July 25.

Another advance of ⅝c. was established to-day, but salesmen were not all present to take advantage of it. Quite a number held back their cheese, perhaps expecting higher prices next week. These however, are the highest prices paid here at this time of year since 1882, and factorymen wore smiling faces. To-day's sales will take, on an average, about eight days of the July make. The country is in good condition and cows have shrank little if any during the last week. While the external appearance of the market is everything that could be asked, there is a feeling, among buyers in particular, that prices are liable to break at almost any minute. They may not do so, however, but no one should hesitate about realizing on July cheese at the prices now prevailing. There is a vast difference between last year and this. July cheese, it is true, sold higher than June, but not only was the make much smaller but prices were 2¼c. to begin with, which was a circumstance very much in its favor. Besides the July make was much the better of the two, indeed as good as any of the year; while this season the reverse is true, the June make being much better than July. The transactions of the day were as follows:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price.
14	1,418	9¾
65	6,756	9⅞
16	1,855	10
13	1,182	10⅛
14	1,798	10¼
7	1,060	10⅜
128	13,989
	2,353	Com.
Total	16,392

Ruling price 9⅝c. Transactions of corresponding day in 1886 were 11,918 boxes, ruling price 7⅝c. In 1885 they were 13,166 boxes, ruling 7c.

AT LITTLE FALLS.

LITTLE FALLS, July 25

Cheese—Another surprise came to dairymen to-day in an advance of nearly one cent per pound, all around. If anyone had prophesied a week ago that the hot weather cheese would make such an advance to-day, they would have been called wild. No one pretends to account for this remarkable change, except it be largely on the ground of speculation. The crop is keeping well to the July average in this section, and pasturage is good. Dealers and factorymen alike express no confidence in to-day's market, and are prepared for any event that may come to the trade. If sales had been made somewhat earlier than they were, higher prices would doubtless have been paid, as New York advices received late in the afternoon were not as favorable as earlier dispatches. Transactions are:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price
1	58	10¾ cents
82	6,884	10 cents
6	788	10⅛ cents
8	945	P. t.
18	825	Com.

[illegible] of Holland." "A Girl's Life Eighty Years Ago" is concluded in this number. These articles give bright glimpses of society in New York and that locality during the years 1808-6. Prof. Shaler, of Harvard University contributes a notable scientific article "The Instability of the Atmosphere" which is excellently illustrated. In view of the great interest which the whole subject of manual training is now exciting, the article on the "Revival of Handicraft" by Prof. West of the Yale Art School is particularly timely and important. The fiction which the number contains is very fine and the poems, six in number show a wide range of fancy and imagination.

ST. NICHOLAS.

St. Nicholas for August is as bright as ever and will bring joy to the houses of the young. Its beautiful frontispiece is by Mary Hallock Foote and illustrates some bright verses entitled "Invitation to Echo." Nora Perry contributes a "Girls' Story" which is equally applicable to boys and carries a healthful lesson to some teachers. Geo. J. Manson gives his views on "Journalism." To boys who think seriously of that profession this article is of great value. Gen. Adam Badeau gives an account of the great battle and confederate victory at Chancellorville in a story entitled "A Great Battle in the Forest." The "Brownies" go a fishing this month and catch everything except the measles. There are lots of other nice things in the August St. Nicholas.

THE CENTURY.

The midsummer number opens with an attractive paper of holiday adventure, giving the incidents, mishaps and delights of a unique vacation trip in a canal-boat not on the Erie or Oswego canal but down in Jersey. The narative is superbly written, it will be continued in the September number. A leading feature is the first of a three-part story entitled, "Azalia" illustrated effectively by Kemble. The Lincoln History is especially interesting this month. A portrait of Julia Ward Howe, with an autograph letter giving an account of the time and circumstances attending the writing of her very noted "Battle Hymn of the Republic" is given in this number.

"The Hundredth Man" continues to hold the attention of the reader. A humorous forecast of its conclusion, in verse is given in "Bric-a-Brac." A dozen or more portraits of distingushed persons are given, among them, that of John Brown,—together with the grove of North Elbe. A score of articles by as many writers, upon timely questions are given.

The Assessors presented the tax list, properly completed, and the President and Trustees signed collector's warrant.

The following is the data from the assessment roll and tax list of 1887.

Assessed valuation $1,594,455.00.
Tax levy 7,775.00.
Tax rate $4.90 per Thousand.
On motion Board adjourned.

N. N. STRANAHAN, Clerk.

Board of Trustees' Proceedings.

FULTON, N. Y. July 20, 1887.

Present—President Waugh and Trustees More, Pardee and Rice.

Minutes of last general and special meetings read and approved.

Trustee Osborne came in.

S. B. Mead presented a bill of $11.75 for paving in front of his house on block 101. First St, in this village.

On motion of Trustee Rice the following resolution was adopted.

RESOLVED. That Mr. Mead be credited with said bill and that the highway tax on said premises be deducted from the bill from year to year until the same be fully paid.

Finance Com. reported the following bills correct and they were audited at the following amounts and the clerk directed to draw orders for the same on proper funds.

B. J. Kimball, Assessor,	$69.00
Myron Havens, assessor,	36.00
Prentice Youmans, assessor,	30.00
William Rice, services to Board of Health	50
D. C. Baker, special police,	2.00
D. C. Baker, blacksmithing,	1.50

On motion of Trustee Rice the proposition of H. H. Kendrick to build a bridge over the hydraulic canal on First Street was accepted and the village Attorney directed to prepare a contract between the village and Mr. Kendrick for the construction of said bridge in accordance with the proposals and specifications.

On motion of Trustee Rice the chair appointed Trustees Rice and Pardee a committee to settle with the collector and take his tax list from him.

Trustee Nichols come in.

The following resolution was offered by Trustee Pardee.

RESOLVED: That the Board of Trustees of this village do hereby authorize and order made, and constructed a system of sewerage according to, and in conformity with the surveys, levels, maps, plans, profiles and specifications made by James Gardiner and adopted by this Board June 15th, 1887, and now on file with the village clerk, and be it further

RESOLVED, That one-third of the expense of making such sewers be paid by the village at large and two-thirds thereof shall be defrayed by local assessment upon such portions of the real estate of said village as the assessors shall deem more immediately benefited thereby.

On motion of Trustee Rice the resolution was laid on the table until a meeting of the Board of Trustees to be held at the Opera House Hall in this village August 2d, 1887, at 8 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of getting an expression of the tax payers on the subject.—Carried.

Mr. George Emeny appeared in behalf of Mr. F. D. Van Wagenen and asked that Mr. Van Wagenen be given the privilege of constructing a sewer from his cellar on the "Old Presbyterian Church Property" across First street, passing under the Hook & Ladder rooms to the Oswego canal.

Trustee Nichols moved that the prayer of the petitioner be granted providing Mr. Van Wagenen indemnified the village against any and all damages resulting from his operations in constructing the aforesaid sewer.—Carried.

On motion of Trustee Rice the Board adjourned to August 2d, at 8 o'clock p. m. at Opera House Hall.

N. N. STRANAHAN Clerk.

Covenant meeting at the Free Baptist [illegible]

[illegible] village trustees at [illegible] on next Tuesday evening, August 2, at 8 p. m. The purpose is to get an expression of the taxpayers on the subject of constructing a system of sewerage in Fulton. Plans with maps, profiles and specifications costing $840 have been prepared by Mr. James T. Gardiner an eminent engineer and member of the State Board of Health and accepted by the village board. The estimated cost to build this is $22,000.

We present the following from an expert on the subject of sewerage for your consideration:

"Owing to the prevalence of malignant fevers, directly traceable to violations of sanitary laws, the public has begun to realize the necessity for thorough systems of sewerage and drainage, and is inquiring into the mode of obtaining the most satisfactory rules.

Fortunately, a large amount of data is at hand to be drawn from, based upon the practical experience of many years, close and intelligent observation by eminent civil engineers, possessing special attributes for their work, and whose observations come to us officially embodied in exhaustive reports to boards of commissioners, city councils, State legislatures, and national legislative bodies.

The information to be derived from a careful perusal of all the literature on sanitary drainage would be of incalculable benefit to all, yet few have the time, and fewer the inclination to thoroughly study this question.

Hence, we have condensed a few facts which we take the liberty of presenting to a thinking public. For further details we refer the reader to such works as "Warring's Sanitary Drainage," "Latham's Sanitary Engineering," "Demsey's Hydraulics," "Chailly's Planning and Building Sewers," and various reports of engineers to city authorities.

Under the Mosaic law, a strict observance of sanitary laws was a part of their religious duty; but in time "the people sank to the lowest depths of sanitary neglect, from which the powerful voices of typhus, plague and cholera were the first to arouse them."

Impure air, produced by decomposing matter, or germs of disease, which abound in large cities or towns imperfectly drained, and found in a lesser degree in the country surrounding the same, poisons the blood effectually.

Water having the power of drawing and absorbing the impurities from the air, may become freighted with the germs of disease.

Your well drains the water from the surrounding earth a long distance. Filth, chemically mixed with water, cannot be filtered from it, hence the danger of vaults and cesspools from which the liquids are absorbed by the earth. Residence on a damp soil engenders consumption, while drainage of that soil lessens it.

The impurities from a vault, seeping into a well in a New York village, gave typhoid fever to forty-three persons, of whom ten died.

Impurities from a vault getting into the water pipes in Over Darwin, England, produced two thousand and thirty-five cases of typhoid, including one hundred and four deaths.

In London, in 1848-49, a single well, though yielding apparently clear refreshing water, caused the death of five hundred persons by cholera in one week the water being impregnated with decomposing sewerage.

Fifty-six out of seventy-four pupils in a young ladies seminary at Pittsfield, Mass., had typhoid, and sixteen died. Cause; pollution of air and water from vaults and cellars improperly drained,

There are very numerous similar cases on record, and how many where the cause was never discovered?

The reduction in death rate, where ever sanitary drainage is thoroughly adopted, proves its benefits beyond question.

The city of London has expended over twenty millions of dollars on sewerage and by this and other sanitary measures, reduced her death rate from eighty in one thousand to twenty-nine and one-half in one thousand.

The city of St. Louis, in fifteen years with one hundred and eighty miles of sewers, reduced her death rate from thirty-two to twenty.

The lowest death rate ever reported is that of Worthing, England, fourteen and one-half, and this is claimed to be the best drained town in England.

It is not only important to sewer and drain, but it is equally important to do it properly. The prime points for consideration being grade, size, material and ventilation."

"Singular Coincidence."

"The Fulton Times regularly publishes a Washington letter. It heads that letter (From our Regular Correspondent). We notice the Washington letter it publishes this week, from its regular correspondent, dated July 15, 1887, appears in the same language, word for word, in in the Jefferson Co. (Adams) Journal in its issue of July 19th, or Tuesday, the day before the Times is published. Is it possible that the Times "cribs" its Washington letter from the Journal and puts over it 'From our Regular Correspondent" to mislead and make people believe it is full of enterprise and has a correspondent at Washington, or is it merely coincidence that both correspondents happened to write about the same thing and to use the same identical language?"

The insinuation contained in the above article is as false as it is malicious in its intent.

THE TIMES receives the letter mentioned directly from Washington each week and pays for the same.

At A. E. NETTLETON'S.

On August 10 the Free Methodists will commence their annual camp meeting at Wilber's grove.

Alonzo Hatch, compositor in THE TIMES office, is enlarging and improving his home on First street, Oswego Falls.

It is stated that Gov. Hill will visit nine county fairs this fall viz: Saratoga, Herkimer, Montgomery, Oswego Falls, Tompkins, Yates, Steuben, Orange and Rockland.

The marriage of Mr. M. A. Martin of this village to Miss B. F. Frawley of Lower Oswego Falls occurs at the Church of the Immaculate Conception on Wednesday, August 3d.

As will be seen by his card in another column, the village collector P. O'Grady has received his warrant for the collection of taxes. The ratio is 49 cents on $100 valuation.

A barn belonging to Nelson Ladd, at Central Square was struck by lightning and destroyed, with about twenty tons of hay and one wagon, last Friday evening. There was no insurance.

E. H. Trimble of Palermo, who has been desirous of securing the nomination for member of the assembly in his district, in a card to the Oswego Times withdraws his name from the canvass.

The funeral services of Dixon Van Valkenburg will be held at his late residence in Oswego at one o'clock p. m. to-morrow and the remains brought here for interment arriving between four and five p. m.

George A. Borzee, the Oneida street grocer has purchased of Dr. Bacon the store next to the Savings bank building and will occupy it as a grocery store. It has been recently enlarged and repainted. The consideration was $3,450.

Mr. Rees, of the Rees Publishing Co., Omaha, Neb., made a pleasant call at THE TIMES office on Friday. He has started on his return to the west, but his wife and sister, Miss McKoon, remain here with relatives and friends for a few weeks longer.

Neatahwanta Lodge No. 245 I. O. O. F. of this village have recently purchased new paraphanalia from a firm in Columbus, Ohio, at a cost of $300, and have organized a degree team. They will confer the initiatory degree on four candidates this evening.

Eva Peck, a girl 15 years of age, daughter of Ira Peck, an engineer on the New York, Ontario & Western railroad, jumped into Lake Ontario, with the evident intention of drowning herself, Saturday. Fortunately, her movements were observed, and she was rescued in an unconscious condition. The cause of the act seems to be an unhappy state of affairs in the family, which has rendered the life of the girl wretched.

A grand temperance campmeeting, under the auspices of Oswego County Lodge, I. O. G. T., will be held at Dempster Grove, commencing Friday August 26, and closing Saturday evening. A number of prominent temperance workers, both lay and clerical, are expected to be present and give addresses. The meeting promises to be one of unusual interest. Among the speakers expected are J. N. Stearns, of New York, John A. Vance, of Potsdam, Mrs. G. A. Hulett, of Orleans, Dr. G. H. Mann, of Brooklyn, Rev. Father Earley, of Fulton.

The trouble concerning Water Works at Oswego continues. The Mayor and four Republican Aldermen favor the city paying $15,000 per year to procure water necessary for fire and public purposes. The four Democratic members oppose this and when the matter is brought up in the Council for consideration leave the chamber. By these means a quorum is not left to transact business. On July 19, in a communication to the Palladium the minority of the Council or the Democratic members, made the following proposition: "We are willing that a contract to run for ten years should be made, providing the rental is not over $12,000 per year. This we think would be a just and equitable adjustment of the question."

This would amount to somewhat over $60 per hydrant as there are less than 200 hydrants in the city of Oswego.

TO RENT.—The store No. 27 Oneida street, now occupied by Geo. A. Berzee as a grocery. Cheap rent to desirable parties. Inquire on the premises. 12tf.

Professional Regatta at Oswego Falls.

NEW YORK, July 22.—To-day arrangements were made for an international single scull-rowing regatta, to take place at Oswego Falls, near Fulton, N. Y., in August. The distance will be three miles and association rules will govern. The first prize will be the Police Gazette championship medal, valued at $300, and a cash prize of $500 to the winner, $300 to second man, and $150 to third. The following have so far entered: Geo. Bubear, J. Teemer, Charles E. Courtney, Albert Hamm, Wallace Ross, George H. Hosmer and P. H. Conley. The judges will be Commodore Phelps, of Oswego, and George Campbell of Syracuse. Abraham E. Harding, referee.

The above appeared in Friday's papers and was heard with delight by many in this locality. Lake Neatahwanta on which the race will take place is particularly adapted for this purpose. The perfecting of this regatta will be looked forward to with interest. If there is no hippodroming in connection with it, excellent races will be held.

A Pleasant Birthday Party.

This afternoon and evening Miss Hattie, daughter of Prof. and Mrs. B. G. Clapp will entertain her classmates and former school friends residing in the village of Phœnix at their handsome residence on Fourth street. A few young friends living near by will unite with them in celebrating Miss Hattie's birthday. Miss Elida Story from Vassar college and Miss Minnie Cook of Cleveland, Ohio, have already arrived, while her young friends in Phœnix are expected to come at an early hour this evening on a steam yacht. The entertainment bids fair to be a joyous one.

A Narrow Escape.

Thomas Barker an employe at Rusts' coal yard narrowly escaped being killed yesterday morning about 8 o'clock. The accident happened in this manner. Barker was at work loading a coal wagon at the shed directly under a schute where twenty tons of coal are held by a wooden partition. The pressure of the coal broke this partition and the boards together with fiveteen or twenty tons of coal poured down upon him covering him many feet beneath. Help was at hand and in about fiveteen minutes the coal was cleared away. Is was found that the boards had prevented the coal from crushing out his life and miraculously saved him. Barker was taken in a coal wagon to his home corner of Fourth and Erie streets where Dr. Bacon made an examination finding that no bones were broken. One foot is badly injured and he is severely bruised but there seems to have been no internal injury.

Insurance Rates Increased.

An increase in the rates of insurance, (exclusive of the mills) for Fulton went into effect on Wednesday last under the orders of the State Board of Underwriters. Persons that now take out a fire insurance policy will have to pay 30 per cent, additional to what would have to be paid, were the fire hydrants used.

Central Square has a new cornet band with ten members.

Rev. W. Dempster Chase exchanged pulpits with the Rev. F. M. Wheeler of Jordon last Sunday.

A new and larger water wheel is being put in the rolling mills of J. N. Whitman at Lower Oswego Falls.

The negro camp meeting which is to be held in Wilber's grove commences tomorrow and daily exercises will be held until August 8.

Three hundred German immigrants passed through here Saturday over the Ontario & Western road on their way to homes in Minnesota.

Large crowds attended the Spiritualists' meeting in both the forenoon and afternoon last Sunday. Mrs. Tillie Reynolds of Troy, N. Y., was principal speaker.

It is reported that Miss Mellie Royce, who has been teaching in Colorado has married a gentleman in the wide west and is to make her home in San Francisco. Her friends wish her much happiness.—Cor. Oswego Times.

Remember that on next Monday evening the Chinese students are to give their unique entertainment at the Presbyterian church in this village. They appear at the Congregational church, Oswego Falls on Tuesday evening.

Parties from Cortland were here last week Wednesday and Thursday endeavoring to buy out the Ventilating Stove Works in this village with the intention of moving the works to Cortland. The proposition made is under consideration and another meeting between the representatives will be held Friday.

Mrs. Tillie Reynolds, the Spiritualist of Troy, N. Y., had a meeting at the home of Edward Jones on Broadway Sunday evening and at the home of Andrew Jones on Division street Monday evening. At both places, it is stated, some strange revelations were made that caused surprise to say the least, to those that were non-believers in this faith. Mrs. Reynolds with Mrs. C. S. Osgood of Albany were the guests of the latter's brother, Ed Jones during their stay here.

OBITUARY.

The announcement of the death of Dixon VanValkenburg was made yesterday, the date of its occurence in this city. Deceased was born in Volney in 1822 and was therefore in his 65th year. The VanValkenburg family are one of the oldest in the county. Lawrence VanValkenburg came to Volney in the last decade of the last century. He kept a tavern at the lower falls in Fulton in 1812. He was a slave owner, and the last of what was his slaves died in Fulton some years ago. Lawrence had five sons, the eldest of which, Ephriam, was the father of Dixon VanValkenburg. He was raised and lived in Fulton until 1855, when he came to Oswego, where he remained the rest of his life.

He married Miss Elizabeth Willis of New Haven, N. Y., in 1851. She and her son Edward survive. There are three brothers ane three sisters living: Frederick, of Fulton, Rudolph of Syracuse, and John of Oswego; Mrs. Davison of Fort Dodge, Iowa, Mrs. Sabin and Mrs. Fuller of Fulton.

Dixon VanValkenburg was a man of fine physique and a frank and generous nature. His long life in Oswego county had given a wide circle of friends, among whom he was popular. He kept the Hamilton House in this city for several years during which it was quite successful.

He was a Democrat by birth, education and association and he was noted for his devotion to his party. Of late his health has been failing. A dropsical tendency developed some year or two since; he was for a time very ill. He never fully recovered and during the past six months he has been for the most part confined to his house. For two months it had been apparent that he could not get well. He died yesterday at his home on East Second street in the Eighth ward. The time of the funeral had not been fixed at this writing.—Palladium last evening.

Dixon VanValkenburg, a former resident of this village, died at his home in Oswego, Monday, July 25 aged 64 years. He has been sick for some time with catarrh consumption. He was the brother of Fred VanValkenburg, Mrs. H. N. Sabin and Mrs. L. R. Fuller all of this village.

Collector's Notice.

I, the undersigned, collector for the village of Fulton, will be at the store of G. C. Lathrop, First street, for the next thirty days between the hours of 8 a. m. and 4 p. m., to receive village taxes at one per cent. Dated July 20 1887.

11w2 P. O'GRADY, Collector.

[illegible] in this city. The last instance I have of proving the above statement, or better to say the instance which gave rise to this conclusion occurred the other evening. Music was to be the order of the evening at Paradise Park. To the uninitiated, this name might signify something beautiful, exquisite, unique in the way of a public breathing place; but it often happens that places receive their name more from what they do not possess than for what they may be justly accredited with. Yet Paradise Park is indeed a paradise to what it was a couple of decades ago. Then everybody knew it as the Five Points. Oh the unsavory, foul smelling, polluted significance of the very name! I presume to say that the name has all over the country, the reputation of being synonymous with all that is evil, degraded and vile. In the old days, it abounded with gin mills. Each of the five corners had a saloon; but one in particular was made more especially prominent by the title of the "Old Brewery." All sorts of debauchery were then to be found in this vicinity.

But missionary efforts were turned loose upon this locality. The public authorities of the city regraded its streets, properly repaired its sidewalks, and the entire locality was turned over to the Park Department. A band stand was built and here music by one of the excellent city bands is frequently given. So it may be said to be improved.

But the concert of the other evening called out the people who reside in the contigious streets. No longer do saloons abound on the corners, but handsome commercial buildings are the rule. Mulberry, Baxter and Worth streets furnish exits from the park. These streets are the homes of Italian, Chinese, German and French residents. How they teemed into the park! I presume there were 10,000 people, packed together around the band stand. But what an assemblage! Every nationality on the face of the earth had a representative. Turks and Prussians, Poles and Germanes, French and English, Chinese and Irish, Jew and Gentile were all mixed up in a generally good natured mass. And the music too, was different. There was none of that fine classical music which the public taste demands at Central Park. It was simply popular music; something decidedly cosmopolitan in character. A piece for each nationality and something in their new national character as American citizens (God save the mark) to unite on namely "The Star Spangled Banner." The student of national character has a fruitful field for research in this locality and under such circumstances as I have tried to describe the social scientist might find a theme for thought.

The "B. & O. deal" has been the talk of the financial world for the past three months and bids fair to be a theme for discussion for some months longer. The recent publication of a letter from Mr. Garrett of the B. & O. railroad in which he declared the deal off has caused a new turn of affairs. The history of this deal is interesting. Mr. Garrett has been anxious for years—in fact, it has been the aim of the B. & O. directory to obtain an entrance of their own to this city. Now and for years their business has been done over the Penn. and N. J. tracks. About a year ago plans were perfected for a bridge over the Kills, a stream, or arm of the sea, which separates Staten Island from the state of New Jersey, thereby making Staten Island the tide water terminus of the B. & O. The B. & O., besides its great railroad interests, has a telegraph system that rivals the Western Union and cuts deeply in that company's receipts, and express facilities which are by no means favorably viewed by the Adams Express Company. Early in this year, the management of a railroad syndicate operating through Virginia, Tennessee and neighboring states through a Mr. Sully sought a combination with the B. & O., thereby making a great railroad system, reaching from New York south westerly to New Orleans and ultimately to California through Texas and New Mexico. A majority, or rather a controling interest of 50,000 shares at a good round premium, of the B. & O. stock was to pass to the control of this syndicate. But Mr. Sully failed to get the money necessary to clinch this option and it may be reversed with certain additions and restrictions to to Henry Ives a young Wall street operator. After three or four months of talk, this deal has fallen through. But Mr. Ives now claims damages due to a failure on Garrett's part to fulfill contract, and a suit for damages has been begun agai nst the B. & O. A long and bitter legal struggle is expected.

This Henry I Ives is one of those men which the peculiarities of Wall street alone make possible. He is barely 30 years old, and yet is, perhaps, the most prominent personage in Wall street. He is a very mild mannered man, and has more the appearance of a theological student than of a Wall St. speculator. There is nothing, however, that is permissable under the code of business honesty as understood by the governing committee of the Stock Exchange, he will not assume to use in carrying out his plans. He first came into prominence in a corner on the market which he engineered so successfully that many old and experienced operators were caught. They refused to pay up on the ground of dishonest methods. These methods, however, were those which the Street and the Exchange sanctioned in times past. But for the sake of these operators, Ives was suspended. On coming into prominence again on this B. & O. deal, he was restored to favor. Gould has had his eye on the B. & O. road for years and it is generally thought that he was the real power behind Ives. The B. & O. is a family road, the Garrett family holding a very large share of the stock. Indeed, I believe there are less than thirty shareholders. These rapid rises into prominence in the financial world are rather balloonish—the fall is usually terribly swift.

[illegible] ly marked by costly and [illegible] attire. Nor was this simply true of the "bucks," "beaux," "fribbles," "macaronis" and "dandies," who represented in successive periods the extremes or the eccentricities of fashion. The neutral dress scarcely differing in shape or color which now assimilates all classes from the peer to the shop keeper was still unknown, and a mode of attire was in frequent use which survives only in court dress, in the powdered footmen of a few wealthy houses, in city pageants, in the red coats of the hunting-field, and in the gay coloring of military uniforms. The pictures of Reynolds and Gainsborough have made the fashionable attire of their period too familiar to need a detailed description, and it may be abundantly illustrated from contemporary literature. Thus, when Lord Derwentwater mounted the scaffold, he was dressed in scarlet, faced with with black velvet and trimmed with gold, a gold-laced waistcoat, and a white feather in his hat. Dr. Cameron went to execution in a light-colored coat, red waistcoat and breeches, and a new bag-wig. One of Selwyn's correspondents descibes a well-known highwayman who affected the airs of fashion as going to Tyburn dressed in a blue and gold frock and wearing a white cockade as an emblem of innocence. Dr. Johnson's usual attire was a full suit of plain brown clothes, with twisted hair buttons of the same color, black worsted stocking, a large bushy, grayish wig, and silver buckles; but on the night when his play of "Irene" was first acted he though it right to appear in the theater in a scarlet waistcoat, with rich gold lace, and a gold laced hat. Goldsmith went out as a physician in purple silk small-clothes, and with a scarlet roquelaure, a sword, and a gold headed cane, and he had other suits which were equally conspicuous. Wilkes wrote to his daughter in Paris, in 1770, asking her to beg Baron Holcach to purchase for him scarlet cloth of the finest sort and color to make a complete suit of clothes, and the most fashionable gold buttons for the whole. He is described by one of his friends, walking to town from a house which he had taken at Kensington, usually attired either in a scarlet or green suit edged with gold.—Lecky's History of England.

Presence of Mind.

"You want to marry my daughter, do you?" said the rich old parent to the gilded youth who had hovered about the front parlor persistently for the last three months, whether the gas was lit or not.

"Yes, sir," said the youth, apparently much relieved.

"Very well," said the old gentleman with a self satisfied chuckle, "you can have her. Here, by the way, are a few of her bills, which I may as well submit to you now as at any other time."

"Ah, yes," murmured the young man, not in the least abashed, "here are my bills too," as he pulled a handful of papers out of his pocket; "we'll just stack 'em up together and you can fix it all up in a lump whenever you feel like it."—Merchant Traveler.

A Few Amiable Delusions.

That our best girl is perfection personified.

That our children are phenominally bright.

That the man that does not share our political opinions is either an idiot or a rascal.

That we could edit a paper with great success.

That dullness is profundity.

That vulgarity is wit.

That our friends would get along a great deal better if they would only follow our advice.

That we possess unusual histronic talent.

That we can prevent our sons from falling in love with the first girl he meets, just as we did.—Tid-Bits.

News About Town.

It is the current report about town that Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs is making some remarkable cures with people who are troubled with Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis and Consumption. Any druggist will give you a trial bottle free of cost. It is guaranteed to relieve and cure. Price 50 cents and $1.

The greatest cateract in the world is Niagara, the height of the American falls being 165 feet. The highest fall of water in the world is that of Yosemite in California being 2,550 feet.

Abnormal Biceps.

Ex-Senator Conkling has been visiting Chicago and has made several speeches. And although he is a big man, he makes many errors, and perhaps the most ludicrous blunder of his life was committed during his oration at the Grant Club rooms. "I first saw Chicago thirty years ago," he said in his speech. "A strong nurse held me up in her arms and said: 'That's Chicago.'" Something is to be pardoned an orator in his fervor, but—thirty years ago Mr. Conkling was twenty-eight! A photograph of the nurse's arms would probably make John L. Sullivan turn pale.—Bradford, Penn., Sunday News.

Enough for Her.

"The Abstract and Brief Chronicle of the Time, to Show Virtue Her Own Feature, Scorn Her Own Image."

[illegible] Advance. FULTON, OSWEGO COUNTY, N. Y., WEDNESDAY AUGUST 3, 1887. VOLUME 20—NUMBER [illegible]

Single Copies Three [illegible]

The [illegible] Spot.

The [illegible] fiercely [illegible]
[illegible] the vivid whiteness of our tropic day;
And [illegible] flower and leaf its parched bosom [illegible]
In [illegible] mood away.
The palm frond's graceful spray
Droops moveless, ruffled by no breath of air.
There is a sense of rest, but such as flare
In flames that dazzle with a steady glare.

The heavy plantain leaves,
Broad fashioned, throw their shadows on the dusty ground,
And from each hanging ridge the rustic cottage eaves
Also in shade are bound.
No bird voice trills a sound,
Heat, clear white heat, that seems to rest with weight,
Falls on the window panes, upon the roofs of slate,
And sparkles on the low, white palings of each gate.

Here is a shaded spot—
A little calm, cool island in a world of light.
Now may the weary "eyelids close in rest," and blot
The silent swirl from sight;
While, half a doze, sweet thoughts in flight
Pass and repass, like mental music flowing;
Or echoes that rise and fall, now coming and now going
Over the border land, between knowing and unknowing.

JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE.

Samanthy Goes on a "Tower" to the Capital of the Nation.

Josiah and me done first rate last year, and so when he axed me to go off on some towers with him, two or three on 'em, I consented with alackrity. Towers are so elevatin' and upliftin'.

He proposed that we should go on our first tower to Washington. Says he: "We are all run behind in payin' visits, less go first and see Miss Bean."

Miss Bean is his favorite third cousin on his own side. He thinks a sight of her. But good land! so do I. I hain't a mite jealous; I like Miss Bean. She may be a little vain and gin to likin' her relation over and above well. But good land! that is a good fault. I like Miss Bean. And we owed her lots of visits; she had made her home with us before she married Bean.

So we set sail early one mornin' and arrived at Miss Beanses, Washington, D. C., just as sunset was lowerin' her purple mantilly and hangin' it in graceful folds over the settin' sun. The sun had gone out of sight, and the mantilly I speak on all lay in dusty crumpled folds right down on the horizon, but I have to flower off facts a little.

Miss Bean wuz glad to see us, and she and Josiah seemed almost overglad to meet again. But I see at first sight (and mentioned it to Josiah afterwards) that poor woman had failed dretfully, and pitied the poor thing, and seys I: "I am afraid that Bean hain't what he should be!"

And Josiah said: "He never had thought much of Bean," which may be true so far as as I know.

Bean was off a travelin' on the road for groceries.

Well, the next mornin', knowin' that this tower was a short one, we didn't lay out to stay more'n two or three days, and knowin' from our elevated positions a great deal would be expected of us by Janesville and the world in the line of knowledge, I seys to Josiah early the next mornin'—

"Josiah Allen, it stands us in hand to be up and a doin'," and seys I, as midellin' solemn events, "what shall we tackle first, Josiah?"

And he seys: "The Capitol."

And consequently we tackled it.

Immegetly after breakfast, a good one (though the steak wuzn't so tender as I have seen, and the bread wuzn't like bread in a certain stone churn, in a certain buttery, and so I mentioned to Josiah) still it was a midellin' good breakfast, and so we sot out in pretty good sperets and a street car. We thought we would ride around the city a little afore we tackled the capitol,

Miss Bean had to stay to home to tend to things, and though Josiah seemed to be despereted about her not goin' with us, I felt inclined to look on it as a dispersation and to be resigned to it.

I was dressed well and felt well. I had on a bran new parmethy dress and a mantilly of the same, with tabs, a long new green veil, a umberel, as good as new, and I also had a new pair of woosted gloves, the same color as my dress. I corresponded all through, and felt well, but not haughty.

And so we wended our way along the broad, clean, beautiful streets; why they wuz that clean that you could almost eat your breakfast offer 'em, and broad, why broad is no name for 'em.

And I says to Josiah: "What do you spose makes the streets so broad and clean?"

And he says: "What henders the streets from bein' broad when the Government owns the hull country. It would be a pity if it couldn't make the streets broad enough to spread itself out in." Seys he: "The law of American freedom is a wide one; it takes sights of room to roll round in, and it impresses foreign natives dretfully to see the wedth of its tracks. And as for their bein' so clean," seys he, "there is lots of able-bodied men here who don't have a thing to do only to make a law now and then, I spose mebby they lay hold and help sometimes."

"I don't believe it," says I. "They'd think it was demeanin' 'em. Not that it would be," says I. "For this is clean work compared to some they have to do. But, howsomever, they wouldn't do it."

"Oh, well," says Josiah, "I shouldn't [illegible] if they would, just to pass away [illegible] time, for exercise, you know."

[illegible] they didn't. [illegible]

And all along the broad, clean, beautiful streets, every now and then, and sometimes oftener, are little three-cornered parks, they call 'em reservations, full of green trees and flowers. Glossy leaved magnolias, one mass of brilliant rose color, and then trees bending down with pink and snowy bloom, a bendin' down as if to compare their beauty with the frequent beds of flowers of all colors underneath 'em. And birds a dartin' and a singin' over 'em both, as if they were dizzy with delight and couldn't settle the matter. And white statues a lookin' serenely down or up into the blue heavens, as the case might be, but either way a seemin' lost in a vision of rapped beauty. And the musical murmur of the fountains a tellin' somethin' about their own liquid language, well beknown to them, but not yet translated into ourn. And anon, or oftener, right out of the green velvet of the turf would be big, cool ponds of water, bound in white marble, with thousands of goldfish a darting in and out every way.

And all along the streets wuz houses, big and noble and grand looking, and little and clean and cozy looking, all a minglin' together and seemingly enjoying themselves first rate. And big churches occasionally, if not oftener. The steeples are very high, and so are the characters of the perfessers, as far as I know.

And then we went by some big tavern. Yes, Mr. Riggs and Mr. Willard keeps first rate taverns, so I wuz told, and so doz Mr. Arlington, too. But they don't do it all themselves; they keep help. Why, good land, Miss Willard and Miss Riggs and Miss Arlington couldn't begin to wash the dishes, to say nothin' of wipin'. They keep a hired girl, all on 'em, and mebby more than one.

And all along this beautiful and enchantin' highway, a good deal oftener than once, would be massive and impressive marble buildins'. Why I never see anything so impressive, and Josiah never did. They towered up and spread out as a magesty that made 'em fit for the name they bore, public buildins'. The public deserves it all. I like the public first rate, and so does Josiah. The public is a good old creetur a good deal of the time. And way up over our heads, wherever we waz, we could see the shinin' tall spire of Gen. Geo. Washington's monument, a seemin' to point up towards the heavens all the time a drawin' the minds of the law makers up where they ought to be. But though George's head is way up in the clouds, mists and mud are present with his feet. And that is the way with most on 'em I spose, lofty, towerin', ambitious, and mere grovelin ones, all in one monument.

Wall, anon, we see the walls of the capitol, like a poem in white marble, a risin' out of a billowy sea of green; waves on waves of beautiful green of every tint, and blossoms, white, pink and cream color.

We got out of the car nigh to the buildin' and walked afoot up through the broad paths, a leadin' under that verdant shade. Great masses of flowers wuz sot down in the green velvet turf borderin' them paths. Statutes looked out at us through the green boughs: birds sung to us—the posys nodded their perfumed heads at us—

And high up—up—over our heads, right out of that fairyland of beauty, riz the white walls of that most perfect and beautiful buildin' in the world.

And as I went up one of the broad flights of marble steps, as wide and high as from our house clear up the hill to Mr. Sewedy's, if not further—I nudged Josiah and seys:

"Josiah, I don't believe I ever had such feelin's towards George as I have to-day."

"George who?" seys he.

"That George," seys I turnin' round and pointin', to where he sot on his monument, calm and noble, though considerably thin dressed. "He who wuz first in the war first in the peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

I didn't say much more a goin' up the steps; not that I wuz put to it for emotions, not at all, but my breath had gin out long before I had got half way up.

But at last the steep ascent wuz climbed, and we stood in the lofty marble halls where justice and other things are administered to us. My feelin's wuz powerful, but I controlled 'em with almost marble firmness, for I felt that I musn't give way before 9 o'clock in the mornin', when so much wuz ahead of me. And anon, after roaming through lofty and majestical corridors as far, I should judge, as from our house to Janesville. I stood in the rotunda, that wonderful room, alookin' up in deep amase and dumbfounder, up, up, past the statues and pictures, alto and other reliefs, up, up into the high heavens of light that shine down through the many colors, I wuz fairly lost in contemplatin' the loftiness and grandeur and I don't care who knows it. And before I was found my companion had found sunthin' very mysterious. It wuz a kind of whisperin' block. You stood on a certain piece of the marble floor, and a man way out in in front of you will speak to you, and the voice will will seem to come right behind you, close to you. They said it was caused by some acoustik property.

And I said I didn't know anything about the gentleman nor how much property he owned. But, seys I, "If he wants to sell any of his property and don't ask too much I would be glad to buy a little, it would be so handy for [illegible] to have some when they were [illegible] their companions and want [illegible] still, small voice in their [illegible]."

[illegible]

oneasy, so I didn't say no more, and after feasting our eyes again on the pictures and alto and other reliefs that wuz ornamenting the walls on every side, we almost tore ourselves away, and wandered out in the other rooms. We went into rooms full and running over with books. They were piled up on shelves and on the floors and up overhead and in every place you can think on, and the man in charge (a perfect gentleman), he said they were going to have a new house to put 'em in.

And I seys: "It must be a good-sized one."

"Oh, yes," seys he, "it is goin' to be quite a buildin'." And I see for myself afterwards. Why, besides acres and acres of vacant land, they have tore down good houses—as many houses as there are in Janesville—to make room for that building to stand on. Why, I don't spose you will believe me, but it is goin' to be a sight to behold and built of bricks. Why, streets are goin' right under it—have got to, if they go at all; it is goin' to be that immense. Good land, good land, the idee on't.

Wall, we wandered round into other lofty rooms where justice (and other things) are administered to us. And after travelin' through wide halls and rooms—every one on 'em nobler lookin' than the last one; after goin'—as fur as we calculated—as from our house to Janesville and half way back agin—we at last found ourselves on the peaceful street in front of this stupendous and magnificent buildin'.

And then my pardner proposed that we should go and see the Smithsonian Institute.

And I seys: "I am ready, Josiah Allen, for if there is a man on the face of the earth that I honor it is Mr. Smithsonian.—Josiah Allen's Wife.

Advice to Husbands.

Never talk in your sleep unless you are sure what you are going to say.

Don't be discontented. It is much easier to make your wife feel that way.

Never tell your wife that she is a charming singer unless you happen to be deaf.

Don't flatter yourself that you know more than your wife until you have got home from her funeral. Don't be too friendly with your prospective son-in-law. He may think you intend to live with him after he is married.

Don't try to fool your wife about drinking unless you happen to marry an idiot. Then it isn't worth while to do so.

Never tell your wife how much better some other women dress unless you have more money than you know what to do with.

Never boast to your wife about the value of past experiences. Your mother-in-law may settle herself down on you next week.

Never find fault with the quality of your wife's cooking. You may possibly drive her to join some cooking club, which would be much worse.—Newark Journal.

THE PROPER THING.

Silk fans are no longer in fashion.

Collars still remain immoderately high.

Black French lawn is again used for summer dresses.

The old-fashioned fingerless silk mitts are in fashion again.

Sewing-silk grenadine is the favorite grenadine for mourning.

Dotted fabrics are as fashionable as plaided and barred stuffs.

Entire dresses of English crape over silk linings are made for widows.

Gold trimmings are used extensively, but they are made so dull that they do not strike the eye.

Double English crape covered by a long veil is the first bonnet for deep mourning. White caps inside are only worn by widows.

Thin wool fabrics and grenadines with very slight trimmings of English crape are worn as the deepest mourning in summer.

Handkerchiefs for mourning are solid black, with black embroidered edges, also with fine white embroidery. For light mourning the embroidery is black on white.

The frog has asserted his claims to be considered an article of personal adornment. Made of diamonds, with ruby eyes, and hanging by his mouth to a bar pin, he is quite effective.

In scarfs nearly every style now seems to be worn, including China crepe, India silk and cashmere, plain and embroidered. However, the Spanish lace scarf still continues not only staple, but the favorite.

Among the revivals for dressy summer wear are very deep turn-over collars in Recamier and Anne of Austria styles. These are made of costly lace, and there is frequently a vest or plastron of the same lace matching the collar.

Chinese Peculiarities.

The highest ambition of a Chinese gentleman is to have a nice coffin and a fine funeral.

Old women instead of the young are the idols of society.

Love-making is only done three days before marriage. It is not only considered the safest way to get ahead of a rival but the surest way to get a wife without losing muchtime.

A previous acquaintanceship between the male and female prevents them from marriage. For this reason a man seldon weds a girl in his own town.

A man can borrow money on the strength of his having a son, but no one would advance a cent if he had a dozen of daughters. The former is responsible for the debts of his father, for three generations. The later is only responsible for the debts of her own husband.

When a Chinaman meets another he shakes and squeezes his own hands, covers his head. If great friends had not seen each other for a long time, after the mutual hand-shaking they would rub shoulders until they become tired. Instead of asking each other's health they would say: "Have you eaten your rice? Where are you going? What is your business when you get there? How old are you, and how much did you pay for your shoes?"

Men wear long petticoats and carry fans while the women wear short jackets and carry canes.

Boats are drawn by horses; carriages moved by sails.

Old men play ball and fly kites, while children fold their arms and look on.

If a Chinaman desires the death of an enemy he goes and hangs himself upon his neighbor's door. It is a sure cure to kill not only that particular enemy, but members of his entire family will be in jeopardy of losing their lives.

When a Chinamen desires a visitor to dine with him he does not ask him to do so, but when he does not wish him to stay he puts the question: "Oh, please stay and dine with me!" The visitor will then know he is not wanted.

A rich man's servant gets no salary, yet many are the applicants, while big salaries are paid to the servants of the common people, but few make applications. The perquisities of the former, often more than triple the salaries of the latter, are the sole reasons of these differences.

When a Chinaman expects a present and it does not come, he sends one of lesser value.

To encourage honesty and sincerity confidential clerks and the salesmen in all branches of industries receive an annual net percentage of the firm's business besides their regular salary.—Wong Chin Foo in Goo Housekeeping.

There is no strong, disagreeable oder about VanWert's Golden Balm. It is delicately perfumed and pleasant to use while being at the same time efficacious in the highest degree in the treatment of Catarrh. Price 35 cts.

Something About the Bicycle

"You might think that only the legs would be exercised by riding a wheel, but it is a fact that a beginner feels the effects first in his shoulders and back. The muscles of the trunk, particularly about the sides and abdomen, are also used a great deal. Although the action of the legs appears to be similar to their action in walking it is found that six muscles in the calf not used at all in walking are brought into play. You can work those muscles by rising on your toes, but in walking they are not exercised. The speed attainable on ordinary roads in a ride of four or five hours, taking it comfortably and not trying to make a record, will average about eight miles an hour. It is a good horse that will keep up that gait. Expert riders can out-travel any horse that ever wore shoes in a twenty-four hours journey, but that, of course, is a feat of endurance. For practical, reasonable travel, the bicycle is superior to a horse on good roads, and is by no means a plaything or an athlete's apparatus. It is a business and pleasure vehicle, and ought to be so considered in the road laws.—A. M. K. in Western Newsman.

That tired languid feeling and dull headache is very disagreeable. Take two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring, and you will find relief. They never fail to do good.

Not Accommodating.

"I suppose this is a good neighborhood?" said a visitor, addressing Mrs. Pretense.

"Yes, in some respects."

"The Potworthies, across the street, are good people, I suppose?"

"They are very unaccommodating."

"I am surprised at that. Do they refuse to lend anything?"

"Oh, no; they do very well in that respect."

How, then, are they unaccommodating?"

"Well, you see, when my daughter's baby was buried, only three of them came to the funeral, although they knew that we were—were—well, bucking against those Pattersons that boast of having such large funerals,"—Arkansaw Traveler.

A Base Ball Sermon.

Rev. Mr. Woolcock, popularly known as "The Deacon," in his sermon in a Pennsylvania rural school house last Sunday, made a few remarks pertinent to base ball. Pointing out of the window at a game in progress on the adjoining Wilcox flats he said: "See that loafer with a bird cage on his head standing like a straddle bug behind the bat. He is not descerating the Sabbath day by playing ball, because he isn't playing ball. He can't play. He imagines he can, of course, and he goes through all the painful contortions of a real ball player; but in the devil's score book he is charged ten times over for every error and a nice record he will have when the time for his eternal rest should be at hand. It will be a sorry eternal rest for him."

Just then some one made a long hit, and a shout went up from the crowd.

"Yes, hoopla!" yelled the deacon, raising his voice above the din, "hoopla till the cows come home, but unless you raise your voices in hosannas to the Lord, you will never reach the shining home plate of everlasting life. That was a long hit to centre and I give his nibs there credit for taking it in, but the devil will take him just as slick on the last inning of all. You may send your curved balls, and smash the leather in the nose to the right or to the left field; you may steal from bag to bag and slide in home on your pantaloons, but finally you will get a goose egg in the kingdom come. Ay, pound on the pearly gates with a base ball bat, but if there is a shadow of a Sunday game on it, down to the eternal rest you go. Saint Peter careth not whether you belong to the Snapdragons or the Whangdoodles; if you swing your festive willow and pound the bags on Sunday, saltpetre will not save you. There goes another long hit to left, and another bowl goes up from the assembled multitude of dudes and loafers. Chase the ball, aye, leg it till yonr ungodly heels beat a tatoo on your coat tails, but my word for it, the devil will never get away from your elbow. Old Clootie is a base runner and a ball chaser himself, and he will stay with you till his own dominions freeze and have to be abandoned for an ice pond." The deacon made a few more remarks, exhorting his hearers to shun the seductive ball field and the trout pond on Sunday, and announced services next Sabbath morning at the red school house in Sugar Creek.

A butcher at Jersey City took his bed into an ice house the other hot night and two days later was dead. If these roasting ole nights were not good for humanity nature would not have made them.

ASTHMA

is a disease that in this climate afflicts many persons. It is characterized by the breathing, previously perfectly natural, becoming difficult and accompanied by wheezing and a distressed sense of tightness in the chest. Everybody afflicted knows of the struggles that they often have, and to them the following will be of interest.

In the winter of 1882 the town of Garland, Me. sent a worthy citizen, Mr. A. J. Farmer, to Bangor as a juryman. He entered upon his duties, and one day, being subject to attacks of Asthma, was obliged to leave the Court House and seek aid at Warren's drug store. While there he said he had often been driven from his bed in the coldest nights of winter to seek relief at the open door or window, while the sweat stood on him as it would on a hot day in haying time. He had no faith in it, yet the fact stands out to-day undisputed by those who know him that he was, by the use of it, entirely cured, and lives a walking, healthy testimonial of the healing power of Brown's Sarsaparilla over Asthma.

In the town of Sangerville resides Mr. F. R. Lewis, a leading citizen. He too has had Asthma. After various remedies had been tried, he was cured by Brown's Sarsaparilla. Do not forget Brown's Sarsaparilla enters into and works on the blood. Asthma is a blood disease. Poor blood driven into the lungs destroys the breathing powers; hence, Asthma.

Brown's Sarsaparilla

Eminent Authors of All Ages and All Countries.

The seventh volume of Alden's Cyclopedia of Universal Literature now published contains biographical sketches of about 100 authors, of all ages and countries, with copious extracts from their writings, all arranged in strictly alphabetical order. The following are a few of the names included in the volume:

Andrew J. Downing, the most famous writer on Landscape Gardening; Joseph Rodman Drake, author of The Culprit Fay; John W. Draper, the American scientist and historian; Prof. Henry Drummond, whose recent work Natural Law in the Spiritual World has been pronounced "almost a revelation"; John Dryden, the famous British poet; Paul Du Chaillu, the noted traveller in Africa and Scandinavia; Madame Dudevant, ("George Sand") the famous French author; Jonathan Edwards, the New England theologian; Ebenezer Elliott, "the Corn-Law Rhymer"; Ralph Waldo Emerson, philosopher and poet; Thomas Dunn English, author of "Ben Bolt" and other popular ballads and poems; Epictetus, Epicurus, and Euripides, Greek Classic authors; Erasmus, wit, scholar and reformer; Eusebius, "the father of Ecclesiastical History"; Marian Evans, better known as "George Elliot"; William M. Evarts and Edward Everett, statesmen and orators; John Evelyn, whose diary is one of the most famous in English literature; Faber and Farrar, both famous in Christian literature; and Faraday, the most Christian of scientists.

The scope of the Cyclopedia is broader than that of any similar work in any language. It embraces not only the names and works of writers in the English language, but also those of prominent authors of all ages and countries who have fairly made their mark in literature, Greek, Latin, Danish, Dutch, French, German, Italian, Portugese, Spanish, Swedish, Russian, etc., the works in foreign languages being given in translations into English.

The work of the editors is now so far advanced that volumes will hereafter be published at comparatively brief intervals. The publishers descriptive catalogue (64 pages) of standard books will be sent free to any applicant. John B. Alden, Publisher, 393 Pearl Street, New York, or Lakeside Building, Chicago.

NEWSPAPER LAWS.

Any person who takes the paper regularly from the post office, whether directed to his name or whether he is a subscriber or not—is responsible for the pay.

The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the post-office or removing away and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

I can't help telling the Truth as I view it and describing what I see. To describe it otherwise than it seems to me would be falsehood in that calling in which it has pleased Heaven to place me.

JAS. R. FAIRGRIEVE - EDITOR

The Republican caucus of Saturday, its workings and results, is the all absorbing topic of discussion on the streets. Two sets of delegates to the District, Assembly and County conventions appear and the seats will be contested.

We have had the matter laid before us by persons directly interested and by those that are not, by partisans of the two different factions and by those that claim not to be. We have interviewed men who were in no way interested other than to see a fair caucus and have the delegates elected that a majority of the citizens, represented therein, desired.

Our conclusions are that an attempt was made to carry the caucus without regard to the wishes of the majority, with a boldness that was never surpassed by the Tweed gang in its most flourishing days. With a chairman who was a ringleader in the move, and ready and prepared to do anything to gain his point, it can easily be seen that the only way that fairness and justice could be obtained was by the ballot. This, the faction that, through the fact of their having the chairman of the caucus, had practically the control, had no intention of granting. While the confusion was at its height and the cries for a ballot the loudest, a few collected upon the stage and with the chairman pretended to go through the form of electing delegates vive voce.

This voting, if it can be so called, was not participated in by those in the body of the hall, as no motion made could be heard ten feet from the platform. It consisted chiefly in the chairman handing a printed slip with the names of the delegates thereon to the secretaries with the statement that they were elected. This farce having been carried to completion, some forty withdrew from the caucus.

A ballot, which had been denied, was then taken with a new chairman, secretaries and tellers regularly sworn in by Selon Case, notary public. The result of this ballot was conclusive, 358 votes were cast and all but eight were for the Gardner delegates. Further than to see justice and the wishes of the majority respected, The Times has no choice in this matter. When an attempt is made to steal a caucus, we stand ready to make the fact known. If the delegates elected, or claimed to have been elected, while Mr. Bennett was chairman are given the contested seats at the coming conventions, a bold caucus steal, unprecedented in the history of Volney, will be sanctioned, and the wishes of the majority disregarded.

THE NEW HUMOROUS BOOK.

"Samantha at Saratoga."

BY JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE.

Everybody has read of Saratoga, but few comparatively know much of its peculiar ways. No summer resort enjoys a more cosmopolitan patronage or has a livilier round of enjoyments than Saratoga. Here the railroad kings and merchant princes have long been accustomed to gather, while, naturally enough, the lesser satellites which always evolve around these suns are clustered in the same quarter of the fashionable heavens.

The rich and those who would be thought rich, health seekers, money seekers, and matrimonial seekers flock to Saratoga and crowd its great hotels and its innumerable boarding-houses, making a concourse infinitely diversified and full of interest to every observant and thoughtful person.

Into this wild whirl of fashion Miss Holley's new book plunges the reader. But they enter, not as participants who are part and parcel of the great show, but as spectators, whose views, habits of life, and sympathies are all in other spheres. Josiah and Samantha Allen are from a retired and unconspicuous village of New York State. They represent the unsophisticated, but sound sensible people of that section, who have seen but little of the world, but who have keen preceptions and wonderfully clear judgments as to what is fit and proper.

Two such persons settled down amid the fashion and frivolity of Saratoga would see many startling sights, make many amusing blunders, and drop many a quaint expression. Josiah, for example, amid these surroundings is strikingly like the famous bull in a china shop. He is continously going wrong and Samantha is perseveringly trying to correct him, while both are [illegible] out of harmony with the life [illegible] them. This is the lead which [illegible] works in her characteristic [illegible] "Samantha at Saratoga," just issued [illegible] Hubbard Brothers of Philadelphia [illegible] among humorous writers [illegible] deservedly high, but [illegible] humorous [illegible] features of [illegible]

[illegible] the sweltering [illegible] heat [illegible] of growing.

I can picture the cool shadows it casts in the water these sultry days, and wish quite often that I was right in under that tree, and up to my neck in the placid flowing Oswego.

From the desk at which I sit as I pen these words I can look out on one side into a clean bare white washed alley, and the blank walls throw in through the open doors an intensified reflected heat almost stifling. In the cellar below is a big engine and boiler giving an incessant throb to the floor, and more heat. Through the open window at the left comes a breath of oven like tainted air from the burning pavements.

In front of the building is the ceaseless rumble of the elevated trains, and from all sides you are greeted with the roar of the heavy truckage incidental to a business street in lower New York. Add to this the cares and vexations of the work at a desk of a rapid pushing business, and you have and idea of the average position of the New York wageworkers. I present two extremes. To me one is pleasant to think of; the other disagreeable.

Every day I compare the advantages and disadvantages of life in the two places,—a small town or a great city, and conclude that the former puts forth the greater inducements for a home for the average man, but of course know that this brings up a point for discussion, and involves the questions social, physical, mental, and financial, which four really cover one's life.

People in circles desire country life, and vice versa. Well that's no doubt human nature. Never content. Always seeking some other sphere or state of living. Something that can't or don't exist. Like the quest of the couriers of a certain king sent through all countries in search of the shirt of a happy man, prescribed by the court physician to cure a malady possessed by the king. Under a tree in a far away town of a strange land was found the man who admitted that he was 'perfectly happy, but he didn't own a shirt.

People say that one's likes and dislikes to city life are due to the person, associations and successes. That's granted; but I'm sure after all there comes at times to every man a longing for the old home, be it town or country. This is feelingly described in a little different sense however in his latest novel, "Allan Quatermain:" "So when the heart is stricken and the head is humbled in the dust, civilization fails us utterly. Back, back we creep and lay us like little children on the great breast of Nature, that she perchance may soothe us and make us forget, or at least rid remembrance of its sting." And so he goes on in that line which voices the thoughts of many as regards the years spent in homes nearer to the "great breast of Nature."

I believe Henry George when he says that "all men have a right to a certain amount of land on which to build a home." To confirm this he vividly describes the homes of the poor in the the great cities, and this is the best argument for that portion of George's land scheme that I can offer.

Here the people are herded together like beasts in quarters not fit for cattle. The children, old in infancy, are brought up in vice and given no restraint at all. What good home influence they get is counteracted the moment they are free in their only play ground—the street. The food they eat is unfit to sustain life and the odors in which they live would blight the intellect of one brought up in the open air. The streets narrow and noisy, where carts rumble and roar at all hours, where the sun seldom shines and the fresh wind seldom blows and the white snow of heaven is turned at once into black mud. No grass, no flowers, nothing natural. The poorest people in the towns are rich in comparison to any of these pent up creatures.

Go a step higher. Clerks, salesmen and others of this class. What do they have. Work all day, usually in unpleasant places, and at night wander listlessly around seeking some new pleasure. Theatres and such places get to be old stories as do the trips to Coney Island (distorted miserable Coney Island) and resorts of that kind that makes one sick to think of and visions of which come to you afterward like an over colored nightmare. Places that one would care to go to are closed either in fact, or by the attending expense. Social life for this class is practically unknown. Evidence of great wealth on all sides and oppression to labor breeds discontent, while ever present alulrements, vice and wretchedness tend to discourage and dishearten.

Successes are abundant to be sure and so are the city's unknown dead telling miserably of the worst kind of failures. If one has great wealth or an extraordinary intellect or talent all gates fly open, and then the city is the only place in which to live. All other people are units; never missed if absent or thougut of when silent in death. Twenty-five lives were lost only three weeks ago by the upsetting of a yacht in Jamaica Bay and who to-day outside of the grieved families give these lost ones a thought.

Down through our streets nearly every day comes the cry, "Extra! Extra! Read the extra!" More lives quickly blotted out, but no one notices the fact next day. We live in one dwelling for years unknown to our next door neighbor. Crape flies from the panel of our neighbor's door and the daily papers tell us the name of the dead in the house of mourning.

A happy bride goes out on her new found husband's arm from across the street and we read of the joyous occasion over our coffee next morning. Sharp-eyed [illegible] watch the house just below for a day or so, and we read that Jim Roberts, the [illegible] breaker has been captured [illegible] from his pleasant home during [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] sight of the [illegible] gallery [illegible] watch the men [illegible] yelling, cursing, rushing here and there like demons at times. A break in the market comes and up goes one side, down the other. A fortune made, another lost. To-morrow the order is reversed, but in each deal the outside "lambs" pay their loses everytime and withdraw wiser to be sure, to make way for the yet unshorn. Friends "squeeze" friends, only to be "squeezed" in return. All the exchanges are alike but the "bucket shops" do most of the "fleecing." Outsiders go in to trade on margins expecting to to get fortunes for nothing, but they usually get left. The essence of gambling permeates all the exchanges and gambling is so uncertain. In legitimate trade the best man wins, but here it's all chance.

In trade the competition is so strong and the grind so long and steady that after a man has acquired the coveted fortune he is usually a physical wreck. If one's fortune could be gained elsewhere under less strain, and the health maintained, then a home in New York would be desirable, for there is surely everything here necessary for one's comfort and pleasure. All senses could be gratified and with good health there's no reason why one's cup should not be full. Perhaps though a man in this condition would envy his neighbor and go off globe trotting in search of the shirt of the happy man. Wandering Jew.

South Scriba.

Our usually quiet place was thrown into a fever of exciltment Monday by a telegram stating that Capt. O scar Haynes, master of the schooner Manitowne had fallen into the hol dof the vessel and was killed. The schooner lay at Milwaukee and the Capt. was walking her deck about five o'clock in the morning and accidently fell into the hold of the vessel a distance of about 22 feet, and died in a very few minutes. The remains arrived here Wednesday afternoon. The funeral was held Thursday morning. Capt. Haynes was 57 years old and has been a sailor since he was 16 years of age. He leaves a wife and one son who live at this place and one daughter in Canada who have the sympathy of the community at large.

A Case of Deafness Cured.

Office of Shaw & Baldwin's Wholesale }
Notion House, Toledo, O., Dec. 11, '79. }

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.—Dear Sirs: About three months ago, noticing a letter addressed to you in the Bee from Gen. Slevin, in reference to the cure of his son by the use of it for our daughter Nellie now fourteen years old, who has been suffering from catarrh for about eight years, during which time she has been treated by one of the best physicians in the city. We have also tried the use of almost all the known remedies for catarrh, with no more success than temporary relief. Many nights have we laid awake to hold her mouth open to keep her from strangling. Her hearing had also become affected. We were afraid that she would never recover. We have how used six bottles of Hale's Catarrh Cure, and we believe Nellie to be entirely cured. In a few days after commencing the use of it we noticed a decided change for the better, and from that right along she has improved, until now she breathes as easily as any one. She sleeps well and her hearing is perfectly good. We feel that the disease is entirely removed. We write this unsolicited letter, feeling that it is due you, and with the hope that others may be benefited in like manner. We can hardly realize that such a change could be effected in so short a time after battling with the disease so long. We are still using the remedy at intervals, as it seems to build up her system. You are at liberty to use this in any manner you see proper. We are yours, truly,

Mr. and Mrs. S. Baldwin,
220 Franklin Avenue.

Gilbert Mills.

Mrs. S. P. Mason of Oswego, is with friends here for a few days.

School closes on Friday, after an excellent term under the instruction of Miss Cole, who is a very successful teacher.

Remember the grand concert at the Free Baptist church Friday evening. It is to be a grand affair.

Farmers in this vicinity have their grain nearly harvested. It is a good crop in spite of the dry weather.

M. A. Blodgett is cutting considerable grain with his new mower and reaper.

Miss Etta Strong of Welton, Iowa, and Miss Grace Wiltsie of Hannibal are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Palmer of this place.

L. C. Bartlett has sold his farm in Dakota and returned with his wife to this village. They are stopping for a time with their daughters, Mrs. W. D. Johnson and Mrs. G. A. Cannain. Mr. Bartlett thinks of buying a small place around here and settling permanently.

Palermo.

At the Republican Caucus held at Palermo on Saturday last, the following were the delegates elected: County delegates H. F. Parsons, Augustus Thiebean, W. J. Ure, George Robbins, W. B. Ellsworth, Chester Keller, A. W. Green. They are divided on Sheriff. VanBuren, it is said will receive four, and Ailport three. They are also divided on District Attorney, Stowell and White, and are for Spencer for Superintendent of the Poor.

District Delegates—D. H. Trimble, Henry Mace, Addison Scudder, Fred Scudder, Earl Brown.

School Commissioner—Delegates were named by Mr. Havens of Palermo, who is a candidate for that office: W. J. Forsyth, Henry Davis, Fred Smedley, A. W. Green and [illegible]

[illegible] receive the [illegible] in the East room. After the neat and complimentary speech of Mayor Francis, the President replied in a few well chosen words, and accepted the invitation to visit St Louis at the time of the State Exposition and Agricultural and Mechanical fair. Stipulating, however, that his visit to St Louis should not interfere with his proposed trip to Atlanta, Ga., which is arranged for the first week in October. The Mayor replied that all would be managed to suit the convenience of the President, and, in conclusion reminded him that the invitation expressly included Mrs. Cleveland, whom the President must not forget to bring. Mr. Cleveland replied that "she would not let him forget her." Both speeches, that of the mayor and the President's reply, were continually interrupted by cheers and applause, and the Missourians departed jubilant over the success of their mission and the heartiness of their reception at the White House, and doubtless rejoiced that the President in no wise held the people of Missouri responsible for the reason of the withdrawal of his first acceptance.

On Wednesday the Chief Magistrate again received a delegation from Kansas City, to invite him to extend his trip West to that place. After a repitition of the speeches and applause of the previous reception, the President accepted the invitation. A committee from Lynchburg, Va., has also asked the President to honor that town. He has not yet given an answer. It will be seen by these proposed journeys, that Mr. Cleveland will make an extended tour in the South and West in the fall, including several States and most of the larger cities en route. This is conclusive evidence that there is no intention on the part of the Executive of calling an extra session of Congress. Certainly not in October, when he proposes to be absent from the Capital.

The son of an ex-president, the venerable John Tyler, lies in a critical condition at his residence here. Mr. Tyler is suffering from partial paralysis, and from the effect of the excessive heat. He was overcome by the sun, one day last week, and fell in the street. He was taken to his home in an unconscious condition, and though he is slightly recovered from the first attack, little hopes of his permanent recovery are entertained. The U. S. National Museum suffers a loss in the death of Dr. Chas. Rau, a prominent archaeologist and curator of the department of antiquities at the Museum. His death occurred in Philadelphia of congestion of the lungs.

Gen. Wm. McKee Dunn, late Judge Advocate General, died at his farm in Va. on Sunday last. Gen. Dunn has been suffering for several years with kidney trouble, but over-exertion during the warm weather hastened his death. His loss will be felt by the whole community as well as socially and in army circles, for he was largely interested in the development and prosperity of Washington, and has been greatly instrumental in the present prosperous condition of the Capital

The mortality among the very young and very old, in Washington has been very great and superinduced by the terrible heat of the last four weeks. The babies succumb oftenest, for out of a list of eight deaths in one day, seven were infants under one year. There is no prospect of relief either, for the sun continues to shine with unabated vigor and the frequent showers bring no change of temperature. Under such a stress it is impossible not to talk about the weather.

The press of business at the Post Office Departmennt is so heavy that the Postmaster General has been obliged to stop the granting of leaves of absence to employes until after the first of Sept.

The household effects of Oscar J. Harvey, the forger, were sold the other day by the Marshall of the District under peremptory orders by the Court. The sale will not realize enough to decrease the amount stolen by Harvey from the Government, to any perceptible degree. A very handsome pair of crimson portieres brought $3 and a rare vase was knocked down to the only bidder for fifty cents. The rest of the furniture was sold at the same ridiculously low figures. It seemed that Harvey had a passion for collecting rare and handsome furniture and bric-a-brac. It is said that he cultivated the criminal accomplishment of forging in order to indulge in his love for the fine arts. He obtained his position at the Treasury it is reported, through a forged letter from Sam. Randall M. C. from Pa. Indeed the man's whole history is a counterpart of "Jim the Penman's."

Cheese Market.

[From the Utica Herald].

AT UTICA.

Utica, Aug. 1.

The ⅝c. advance made one week ago was dropped again to-day, and the ruling is back to 9¼c. This is about what was expected. Advices from New York were very tame, and buyers were not at all sharp for cheese. The market started at 9¼c., but gradually crept up to 9½c. then to 9⅝c. and at the very last to 9¾c. for a few lots. There was not much competition. Factorymen generally sold light shipments, four or five days make and the July cheese is now sold down to the 13th on an average. There was little complaint of shrinkage, which is less than it was last year at this time. Altho' dairymen are very well satisfied with these prices, they have an idea that cheese will not be much lower. At all events, they are content to wait and test the market a week or two longer. Sales were as follows:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price
13	690	9cts
60	5,856	9¼
16	1,353	9⅜
11	870	9½
14	1,616	9⅝
3	300	9¾
117	10,958
	2,545	Com.
Total	13,503

Ruling price 9¼c. Transactions of corresponding day in 1886 were 13,356 boxes, ruling price 7⅜c. In 1885 they were 14,000 boxes, ruling 6⅞c.

AT LITTLE FALLS.

Little Falls, Aug. 1.

Cheese—Last Monday's market proves to have been pushed too far, and a reaction has come. Trade has been quite dull, to-day, and prices are off nearly one cent upon the average. Buyers say they lost money last week, and so are naturally timid in taking further ventures on hot weather cheese. Factory men have not sold quite as freely as usual, to-day, which will doubtless be better for the stock and also for the market. Considerable cheese is reported having arrived in New York last week in poor condition, owing to the excessively hot weather, and as the temperature still remains high, they know they are taking similar risks this week. Pastures are fine in this section, and the production is all that conld be reasonably desired. Following are the transactions:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price
46	2,941	9cts
43	2,677	9¼
22	1,774	9½
4	200	9¾
1	114	p. t.
8	425	com.
124	8,451
Farm dairy	710
	9,161

Farm Dairies—The sales amount to 710 boxes, and prices continue to run considerably under those paid for factory cheese. Rates are 7¾@9c, with the ruling at 8¼.

Butter—There were sales of 15 packages of creamery butter at 22c., and about the same quantity of farm dairy at 20c.

AT FULTON.

Twenty three factories were represented at this market on Monday evening and 2,110 boxes sold. About one-third sold at 9 cents the balance on commission. Utica ruling 9¼ cents. One year ago 7¾ cents, two years ago 6⅞.

Average Price of Cheese.

In response to a request from some of our readers, we have compiled from the files of the Utica Herald the following table giving the average price of cheese on the Utica market for the whole of each season during the last eleven years. We should be glad to go further back with the record, but cannot, for the reason that no tables were made previous to the year 1876. Cheesemakers and dairymen will find this a good thing to cut out and preserve:

Year	Average price.
1876	.107
1877	.1107
1878	.09717
1879	.09227
1880	.11633
1881	.111818
1882	.115181
1883	.105497
1884	.100

(Special to THE TIMES.)

It's funny how things change. What strange flotsam and jetsam come up on this rapid running stream—life. Here is an event. It happened the other day, and is particularly suggestive because of the old time prominence of the person. Everybody recalls that sad time in American history when the lamented Garfield was shot. It will be remembered that one of Guiteau's counsel was Charles H Reed of Chicago. The other day while crossing North River on a ferry-boat he tried to commit suicide, but through the timely keep given by the harbor police, he was rescued and now awaits trial for attempted suicide. Strange what ends men come to! Reed was a very close and intimate friend of the late Emory A. Storrs of Chicago. He was not Storrs' equal as a lawyer, nor did he give promise of ever equaling him in the day when his mental powers had reached their ripest period; but he is a better politician than his friend. On this account he succeeded in being elected State's Attorney of Cook county, the county in which Chicago is located. No one could say ought against his administration, but the money he made during his term was of little value. He spent it rapidly and as rapidly fell back in professional reputation in Chicago. He became Guiteau's counsel, mainly because of the prominance it would give him and as a result possibly bring him practice. About that time, he obtained a divorce from his wife and then married a Baltimore lady whose family possessed both wealth and position. For some cause they live separately, and Reed has been rapidly going down hill. He has been in this locality for a year or more, but practice seems to be denied him. He got into difficulty over in Jersey and this attempted suicide is the finale. I heard say that Storr's death—that singular cutting off of a most useful and brilliant man, has had something to do with Reed's downfall. There is of course a "hace fabula docet," but we refrain from giving it.

Uptown the other day, I ran across a rather singular way of making a living. It is illustrative of city life. Presents, in just, another phase. At the northern terminus of the Elevated road at 155th street the engines are relieved of the ashes that have been accumulated during the trip to the Battery and back. Hard coal is used in these engines and owing to the necessities of the case, it is not fully burned. Huge piles of ashes ever on the increase are to be found beneath the structures where the cleaning process is carried on. Here an Italian with his wife gleans the half burned pieces of coal. For this privilege, he pays the management $150 per year. I asked him how profitable it was. He gave me to understand that his weekly gleanings were from three to seven tons, and for it there was a constant demand among his countrymen, they paying $3 per ton. A ready calculation will show that this man had a really good thing.

Here is another instance. The privilege of trimming the scows that receive the refuse of the city is sold to an Italian for $326 per week. The ashes and refuse are collected during the day and the night in carts and drawn to the river front, where it is dumped into huge scows. In order that these may ride smoothly to sea, three miles from shore, it is necessary to trim the boats. The city, formerly paid men to do this but for some years back it has been under the contract of an Italian who pays the sum mentioned above for the privilege. In return he has men, sorting over the cartloads of stuff and extricating therefrom the bits of rag bottles, bones, etc. He gets his workmen for low wages and his profits are not inconsiderable. As lowly as this monopoly is there considerable competition for the privilege. They tell of finding strange things and not unfrequently a sorter will find something of more than usual worth and this he fails not to appropriate.

The theatrical season is rapidly approaching. Managers' offices are thronged daily with ambitious ones seeking employment. The neighborhood about Broadway and 14th street has been dubbed "The Rialto" because of the number of theatrical men who congregate there on business connected with the "profesh." From what I can hear the coming season is to be a brilliant one. Daly is to revive Shakesperian comedy in the shape of "Mid Summer Night's Dream." He is very secret over it but I had a chance to see some of the scenery. It is now being painted by the genial H. Hoyt, the scenic artist and is elaborate, exquisite, beautiful. Daly does nothing by the halves. You can' judge that by his last year's performance of "Taming the Shrew." Beautiful, chaste, charming as that was, the coming season will show the new comedy in a beautiful presentation. Great things are expected from the new management of Wallacks and Dixey in the Bejou is spending a considerable sum ornamenting the interior. The Kiralfys are preparing something astonishing in the way of the spectacular. We must be amused and the comedy as usual takes by a very large majority the possession of the theatres.

Speaking of this I see that the management of the Lyceum have sent by special messenger the souvenirs of "The Highest Bidder" to London. There were forty-seven in number, to friends on the other side and a mutual district messenger boy will have the pleasure of delivering them. Officially he is known as 1499 and will have a month's trip to England and back for the purpose. [illegible] "Highest Bidder" [illegible] that the 47 represent some well-known newspaper and theatrical men and women now in England. It is the first time a mutual district messenger boy has been sent out of the country to deliver a message.

Chinese Village Entertainment in the Presbyterian Church.

The Chinese Students appeared in the Presbyterian church on Monday evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, and in spite of the exceedingly warm weather the church was filled. The party is composed of Shu Sum Sen, his and two daughters, aged respectively seven years and eighteen months, Chu Sing Tuke.

They are of the highest caste of Chinese Society. Mrs. Shu Sun Sen is said to have been the belle of her native town. If small feet tended to place her in that enviable position, there would seem to be no reason why she should not be as they are only three inches long. According to her native custom these members were bandaged when she was a babe and thus prevented from developing. Ah Fong, the baby, is very cute and received much attention at the hands of the ladies and gentlemen present.

During the entertainment proper in the church, Chu Ling played selections on the Ngetcom or moon instrument and the Chinese fiddle. He also sang several selections among which was the "Sweet Bye and Bye." The vocal music was about on a par with the instrumental and a little of either undoubtedly goes a great ways with most Americans. Shu Sun Sen explained the manner and mode of idol worship in China, burned joss paper and showed the prayer machine. The habit of opium smoking and the manner of eating with chop sticks were illustrated and explained. A conversation in the Chinese language was carried on and a poem of Longfellow recited Shu Sun Sen also gave some very clever tricks in magic or slight of hand.

A portion of the three days' ceremony constituting a Chinese wedding was given as follows: Salaam (bow) to ancestral tablet, unveiling the bride; tea drinking (good luck and fortune telling); wedding supper and ancestral tablet reverence.

The entertainment was certainly unique and for this reason was pleasing to all present. The curio-art exhibition was very good, containing Chinese curiosities and nicknacks which were on sale at prices ranging from five cents to two or three dollars. A number of the ladies dressed in Chinese costumes attended to the sales in the Bazaar. Cream, cake, Chinese tea and other delicacies were served and liberally patronized. The whole was a very enjoyable affair.

H. H. Freeman has received his annual installment of conscience money. The sum this time was $20 and it arrived in an envelope with no letter or signature. These mysterious remittances have been received regularly for five years and the amounts aggregate more than $200. Mr. Freeman is as much at a loss as ever to explain the curious affair and has no idea when it will end. He rather likes it.—Syracuse Standard.

Michael A. Martin and Miss B. F. Frawley were married at the church of the Immaculate Conception at nine o'clock this morning by the Rev. Father Kearney. A reception was held from 9-30 to 11-30 at the home of the bride's sister, Miss William Mattison at Lower Oswego Falls. The newly married couple took the train east for a short wedding trip.

James W. Martin, a brother of the groom acted as groomsmen at the wedding ceremony, and Miss Mary Murphy of Oswego Falls as bridesmaid. The couple were the recipients of numerous and valuable presents. The present of the groom to the bride was $50 in gold. Among those from out of town were Miss Maggie Killeen of Buffalo; Mr. and Mrs. J. Martin of Oswego; Miss Burns of Utica; Mrs. B. F. Martin and daughter of Rochester.

OBITUARY.

Henry A. Harris died this morning at five o'clock after a lingering illness, age 46 years. The funeral services will take place at his late residence on Oneida street, Friday August 5 at 1.30 p. m. and the remains taken to Cleveland in this county for interment beside those of his wife in the family lot. Mr. Harris had been sick for several months with nervous prostration and a complication of diseases. Everything was beginning to look bright for his recovery until Sunday night when he had a relapse which terminated in his death. He is the eighth member of the family that the widowed mother has buried.

He came from Cleveland, to this village some fifteen years ago. Four years later he buried his wife.

For a number of years he had been permently connected with his late father in the manufacture of wagons. He was industrous and enterprising in his habits, and took an active part in village matters. He was many years a member and officer of the Fire Department, an active member of the G. A. R. and Commander for one year—Possessed of studious habits with a love for reading he had accumulated a fine library of valuable [illegible]

Saturday's Caucus.

The Republican caucus which was held at Stephens opera house hall last Saturday afternoon was far from being harmonious or at all satisfactory in its termination as far as the unity of the party is concerned.

Long before 2 o'clock a crowd began to collect in the vicinity of the hall and when the caucus was called to order by F. A. Gage, chairman of the town committee, the hall was packed.

Fred Bennett was made chairman without opposition, G. C. Webb and C. A. Miller secretaries and Dr. C. M. Lee and C. R. Nichols, tellers. The motion that the list of delegates to the school com. convention named by candidate Baldwin be elected was carried unanimously. A motion by George M. Case to proceed to ballot for delegates to the district, assembly and county conventions was followed by an amendment by H. C. Howe that as there was no contest on assembly that they vote vive voce. A motion was then made by Mr. Dilts to lay Mr. Howe's amendment on the table but it was declared out of order by the chairman. The hall then presented the appearance of a bedlam. For half an hour the din and confusion continued with continuous cries for a ballot. It was evident however that the parliamentarian that was placed in the position of chairman for a purpose had no intention of allowing a ballot.

A few of the Howe faction in the mean time crowded around the chairman and during the confusion went through the farce of electing the following delegates:

County—H. H. Kendrick, Ed. P. Cole, E. A. Waugh, C. S. Murphy, G. W. Morton, S. B. Mead, John W. Distin, A. A. Rowley, Harvey L. Bowman, W. W. Loomis, Henry Owen.

Assembly—C. R. Nichols, J. F. Palmer, N. H. Gilbert, D. M. Perine, Amos Youmans, Virgil Rowley, Zadoc Austin, George B. Kellogg, Amos Baldwin, W. C. Newton.

District—W. G. Gage, Fred Bennett, H. Hulett, N. N. Stranahan, F. C. Mosher, Delos Distin, L. H. Drake, John Moore, John Ireland, A. L. Beardsley.

They then, forty or fifty in number, left the hall. After order was restored Dr. C. M. Lee was made chairman, J. D. Lasher and C. R. Nichols tellers and R. Phillips and Andrew Hanna secretaries a vote was taken and of the 358 votes cast all but eight were for the Gardner delegates. The following delegates were declared elected:

District—Geo. M. Case, H. S. Gardner, F. A. Emerick, Frank Dilts, Thos. D. Lewis, Anson J. Osborn, George M. Ward, Austin Looker, Henry Owen, Wm C. Baldwin.

Assembly—Oren Henderson, Cameron C. Benedict, A. G. Gilbert, Elmer E. Morrill, J. D. Lasher, Joseph LaPrairie, John Hill, Fred Vant, Franklin Chesebro, Amos L. Woodworth.

County—J. H. Merton, Abram Emerick, Hugh Sherman, C. R. Nichols, Nicholas Lester, J. R. Loomis, John Porter, Z. B. Austin, C. W. Hastings, John VanBuren, W. H. Bowen.

On motion the following town committee was chosen: E. R. Redhead, C. R. Nichols, L. B. Babcock.

G. M. Case offered the following resolutions, which on motion of Prof. B. G. Clapp, were adopted unanimously.

Resolved, That we, the Republicans of the town of Volney in caucus assembled, hereby assert our inherent and inborn right to settle our preferences and convictions by the only method that honest men recognize—the ballot.

Resolved, That we further declare that the action and purposes of Henry C. Howe, S. B. Mead, Fred Bennett, and F. Gage, to nullify and thwart the action of a large and intelligent Republican caucus, are hereby denounced as worthy only of Tammany in her palmiest days and also be it

Resolved, That we further hereby put ourselves on record to always abide by an "honest ballot and a fair count" as the only arbitrament of all honest and decent men.

The caucus then adjourned.

Next Tuesday afternoon and evening a grand temperance mass meeting will be held at the Free Methodist camp ground. A number of prominent speakers are expected to be present. All are invited.

The Waugh Bros. are to open a cigar store in the Goman barber shop corner of Oneida and First streets, having taken the lease of O'Brien and Bache who have been running a barber shop there for the past six months. The former goes into partnership with C. C. Hewes under the Citizen's Bank and the latter to Syracuse.

At a special meeting of the Howe Ventilating Stove Works of this village held last Friday it was decided by a majority of the stockholders to sell out their interest in the works to the Cortland firm previously mentioned, provided the inventory could be made satisfactory to both parties. The inventory is now being made.

The negro camp meeting which is being held in Wilber's grove has drawn large crowds. The meetings are conducted in an able manner. Rev. D. E. Mason of Ithaca is a particularly able divine and a strong advocate of temperance. It is expected that he will give an address here soon by special request. The meetings at the camp grounds will continue until Monday next.

Charles Reeves, a carpenter employed in raising the floor in Partrick's saloon on First street while assisting in moving a large ice box fell between the newly laid joist striking his side against one of them and severely injuring him. He was taken on a stretcher back of the building and Dr. Pardee summoned, who found that two ribs were broken and that he was otherwise badly bruised. He was afterward taken to his home in Oswego Falls.

Among the important laws passed by the last legislature, was an act to authorize and empower a husband to convey directly to a wife and a wife directly to a husband. The law reads as follows: "Any transfer or conveyance of real estate, hereafter made by a married man directly to his wife, and every transfer or conveyance of real estate hereafter made by a married woman to her husband, shall not be invalid because such transfer was made directly from one to the other without the intervention of a third person."

[illegible] with the united [illegible] of our comrades of the different posts, the coming reunion at Mexico may be rendered an occasion to be long remembered as a notable and joyous event in the history of the G. A. R. of this county. Let each post and every comrade earnestly resolve to contribute their active energies toward the accomplishment of the desired result.

The necessary committees have been appointed and are doing their duties with dilligence and fidelity.

The program of exercises and entertainments will soon be definitely arranged and announced.

Reunion of the several regiments and organizations will be held, and as this feature proved so interesting and secured so large an attendance last year, we believe it will be made even more attractive and satisfactory at this encampment.

Comrades, render the various committees all the help in your power; invite all honorably discharged soldiers and sailors of the late war to rally with you at Mexico on the 24th, 25th and 26th of August. Bring with you on that event your family, friends and your neighbors, and one and all we can revive the ever glorious recollections of the long-ago and bind more strongly together the ties of comradship.

KEEP COOL!

if you want to keep cool this hot weather when trading, go to Frank Bacon's as the thermometer of prices is kept remarkably low so that a pleasant breeze comes to you from every [illegible]

[illegible] director, and a person deemed as competent to undertake the management of it. But it was objected that he was already overburdened with work. "Then he is the very man we want," said the Earl; "the busiest man has always more capability and spare time than any other. I want none of your loiterers." This shrewd remark shows a deep insight into human nature, for it has always been the most occupied men who have done the most work and have been the most useful to their fellow-men. On the farm this knack of business is most important for the farmer who is employing labor. He must keep the men busy at profitable work as well as keep busy himself. The busy farmer, too, is the one who can most easily discharge his business from his mind and in the evening, with his family around him, can engage in a variety of useful studies and find recreation as well as benefit from them.—N. Y. Times.

Farm Notes.

Clover is one of the greatest consumers of lime among farm crops, and this explains the marvellous effect of sulphate of lime or land plaster in making clover catch. On heavy soil a dressing of 100 pounds of gypsum per acre rarely fails to bring good clover.

Be more vigilant than ever during hot weather as to filth and feed. Especially guard against feeding green corn, wheat or any other grain not matured, as in quantity they will produce cholera or its symptoms much the same as in human beings. Give tonics and keep on hand the Douglas mixture.

Farmers everywhere should make it their special business—as it is their right—to see for themselves that the proposed gift of $15,000 a year to each State for the institution of experiment stations by the agricultural colleges, is applied strictly to that purpose, and that the outcome shall be as practical and serviceable as able and faithful men can make it.

During the summer a good use for house slops and wash water is in using them to water plants. Utilize tin cans old fruit cans will answer.—Punch a very small hole in the bottom. Set near the tomato, cucumber and melon vines, or any other variety of plants that need plenty of moisture, and keep them supplied with water. This furnishes the moisture and at the same time adds good fertilizing material.

More cases of sick headache, biliousness, constipation, &c., can be cured in less time, with less medicine, and for less money, by using Carter's Little Liver Pills, than by any other means.

Opposing Canal Improvement.

A conference of alleged farmers was held at Rochester last week to oppose canal improvements, and it was determined to hold a state convention at Syracuse on August 25. The movement was started by the railroads, and those corporations will pay the expenses. Beman Brookway, an old newspaper man (of whom it used to be said that Horace Greeley liked him because he wore a dirty shirt and wiped his nose on his fingers), presided over the conference, and that marked it once as a dodge on the part of the railroads to scotch or kill the canals. Every farmer in the interior knows that the canals are his only protection against railroad monopoly, and to destroy their usefulness would be to place him in the power of the railway corporations, who would carry his produce at their own price and at their own convenience. For farmers to oppose the widening and deepening of the canals and to propose the reimposition of the tolls is a depth of folly which can only be accounted for by knowing that they are unwittingly allowing themselves to be made the tools of railroad emissaries.

White House Carpets.

At last the East room is said to have a new carpet, and President and Mrs. Cleveland will have the pleasure of seeing the American people enjoy it to their heart's content. The old one having been worn to the floor in several places, a new one has been purchased, which is of a rich cream ground, relieved by a bewildering profusion of woven flowers and vines, rich in color. The East room, where Mrs. John Quincy Adams used to dry her clothes on Mondays, and where, in a later day, gallons of rum punch were partially consumed and partially spilled and partially trampled into the carpeted floor, is eighty feet long and forty feet wide. The carpet, which yields up the unequal contest of 1887, weighs 1,980 pounds, or nearly a ton. It was cleaned by machine process in 1886 for the first time, the machine having a breadth of forty-two feet. All previous cleanings have been done by hand. The State dining room, which is forty feet long by thirty feet wide, uses 200 yards of carpeting.—Washington Hatchet.

The End of the French Revolution.

Thomas Carlyle ends his famous history with the last attack of a French mob on the convention. The convention was sitting. A general of reputation had been sent out to disperse the mob but had returned without accomplishing anything. It was proposed to put [illegible] in charge of the defense. Some [illegible] young artillery officer, who [illegible]. It was decided at [illegible]

[illegible] whom he wooed so ardently. So one bright day he called the would be son-in-law to him and told him bluntly that he was not averse to the marriage, but that when it was consummated he must take care of her himself and not expect her to take care of him; or in other words, that he could not support them. This was done solely as a blind, for the pater familias doubted not that the boy was sincere in his affections.

And so they parted, the fond lover avowing his unalterable attachment and his entire willingness to shoulder the responsibilities of his prospective new life. But the old gentleman's experiment worked like a charm. The young lady and her father are congratulating themselves at the narrow escape the bank account has made, and the booby is looking around for a hole to crawl in. Meantime, another fellow, with good hard horse sense, came along and married the girl, and the generous father-in-law gave them a good pile.—Washington Letter.

Changes in the School Law.

The department of public instruction has issued a circular containing a digest of the fourteen new laws relating to the State educational system enacted by the last Legislature. The Albany Journal epitomizes the matter as follows, which will be of interest to commissioners, trustees, teachers and others interested in the schools. The circular shows that the work of the Legislature so far as the public schools are concerned, was altogether praiseworthy. Provision has been made for maintaining the full quota of the State scholars at Cornell University. A law has been passed requiring school officers or school boards to give written contracts for salaries to the teachers they employ, and the superintendent of public instruction has been authorized to prepare and keep on hand plans for school houses, ranging in cost from $400 to $10,000 for the use of communities which contemplate the construction of new school edifices. Library moneys are hereafter to be apportioned to school districts by school commissioners in proportion to the aggregate number of days of attendance of children between the ages of five and twenty-five years and the fund which is to be distributed by the Regents among the academies and academic departments has been measured to $60,000. Besides these, other changes in the law have been passed to make the public school system of the Empire State as it should be, the best in the country.

Dyspepsia in its worst forms will yield to the use of Carter's Little Nerve Pills aided by Carter's Little Liver Pills. They not only relieve present distress but strengthen the stomach and digestive apparatus.

French Matrimonial Agencies.

There are over one hundred matrimonial agencies in Paris alone. The first establishment of the kind was set up shortly after the Revolution of 1793. Some are public, some are private. The latter are rather suspicious, and even the public ones are occasionally caught making dupes. One agent was sentenced to two years' imprisonment for swindling clients. Over forty keepers of these offices are women, who seem to make a good living out of them. One agency effected 202 matches during the last eight months. The customers are enriched cooks, elderly maids and so forth, pensioned soldiers, functionaries who have lost their places though the change of government and desire to be supported, Government employes and others of the lower classes. There are no statistics as to the happiness resulting from these marriages.

News About Town.

It is the current report about town that Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs is making some remarkable cures with people who are troubled with Coughs, Asthma, Bronchitis and Consumption. Any druggist will give you a trial bottle free of cost. It is guaranteed to relieve and cure. Price 50 cents and $1.

Cost of Solomon's Temple.

The talents of gold, silver and brass used in the construction of the temple amounted to $34,399,112,500, says an exchange. The jewels are reckoned to have exceeded that amount, but let them be estimated as equal to $2,446,730,000, the vessels of gold $2,726,481,015, the silk vestments of the priests $50,000, the purple vestments of the singers $1,000,000, trumpets $100,000, other musical instrument $200,000. Ten thousand men were engaged in hewing timber on Lebanon, 70,000 were bearers of burdens 30,900 men were overseers, all of whom were employed seven years. Solomon bestowed on them $33,668,885. Food and wages, estimated at $1.12½ per day, $469,385,440; the cost of the stone and timber in the rough, $12,736,480,000.

ASTONISHING SUCCESS.

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 80,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it. Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all druggists and Dealers in the United States and Canada. eow

An American tourist who has been traveling in Russia says there are districts there in which people wash their [illegible] says that his little girl is troubled with malaria very severely, and that since he gave her Sulphur Bitters, he never thinks of leaving New York for his summer resort without a few bottles, for they always cure his family and are far superior to quinine.

REV. C. F. BROOKS

When a man wants to find fault he will do so if he has to spend all his time looking for it.

The remedy which most successfully combats malarial troubles, is Ayer's Ague Cure. It is a purely vegetable compound, and contains neither quinine nor any other dangerous ingredient. Warranted to cure chills and fever.

It cannot be truthfully said that the fraudulent coffee dealer doesn't know beans.

Greatly Excited.

Not a few of the citizens of Fulton, have recently become greatly excited over the astounding facts, that several of their friends who had been pronounced by their physicians as incurable and beyond all hope—suffering with that dreaded monster Consumption—have been completely cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, the only remedy that does positively cure all throat and lung diseases, Coughs, Colds, Asthma and Bronchitis. Trial bottle free at R. E. Phillips' Drug Store, large bottles $1.

[illegible] Cured. My eyes are now in a splendid condition, and I am as well and strong as ever.—Mrs. William Gage, Concord, N. H.

For a number of years I was troubled with a humor in my eyes, and was unable to obtain any relief until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine has effected a complete cure, and I believe it to be the best of blood purifiers.—C. E. Upton, Nashua, N. H.

From childhood, and until within a few months, I have been afflicted with Weak and Sore Eyes. I have used for these complaints, with beneficial results, Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and consider it a great blood purifier.—Mrs. C. Phillips, Glover, Vt.

I suffered for a year with inflammation in my left eye. Three ulcers formed on the ball, depriving me of sight, and causing great pain. After trying many other remedies, to no purpose, I was finally induced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and,

My daughter, ten years old, was afflicted with Scrofulous Sore Eyes. During the last two years she never saw light of any kind. Physicians of the highest standing exerted their skill, but with no permanent success. On the recommendation of a friend I purchased a bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which my daughter commenced taking. Before she had used the third bottle her sight was restored, and she can now look steadily at a brilliant light without pain. Her cure is complete.—W. E. Sutherland, Evangelist, Shelby City, Ky.

"That ain't no runaway," said an old resident carelessly. "It's an umpire getting away from the base ball game. The boys must have got beat."

Washington Critic: "Was your husband on the stand yesterday?" asked a lawyer of a woman in a case in which both husband and wife were witnesses. "No," she answered with a snap; "he wasn't on the stand. He was on the set. That's the kind of a man he is, whenever there's anything to set on, from a satin sofa to the top rail of a worm fence."

David Davis used to explain that he never lost his dignity but once. "When she returned she found the money gone," is a sentence which is stirring up all the good and bad grammar in Chicago. "If it was gone how did she find it?" is the query asked by one side, and, "If she hadn't found it gone, why wasn't it there?" inquires the other. Why not let the matter drop and hunt for the thief?

VOLUME 20—NUMBER 14

FULTON, OSWEGO COUNTY, N. Y., WEDNESDAY AUGUST 10, 1887.

Single Copies Three Cents

August.

By Frank Dempster Sherman.

August, month when summer lies
Sleeping under sapphire skies:
Open all the windows wide,
Drink the orchard's fragrant tide—
Breath of grass at morning mown
Through the leafy vistas blown—
Hear the clinking of the scythe
Sound mellifluent and blithe.
August, month when everywhere
Music floats upon the air
From the harps of minstrel gales
Playing down the hills and dales;
August, month when sleepy cows
Seek the shade of spreading boughs
Where the robin quirks his head
Contemplating cherries red;
August, month of twilight when
Day half goes, and comes again;
August days are guards who keep Watch while summer lies asleep.
—St. Nicholas.

THE PROPER THING.

The polonaise has once more attained high fashionable rank.

Old-fashioned deep blue calico is made up into becoming dresses.

The striped Scotch ginghams make pretty dresses for morning wear.

The belted waist is in great favor for summer toilettes of all fabrics.

There is a return to very long corsages many of them too long for beauty.

Satin bands and cords along the edges are seen on the neatest ribbons.

Capotes in lace and silk gauze are the prettiest of all bonnets for young women.

The white toilettes so conspicuous this summerr will continue to be worn in the winter at home.

It is believed that the fashion of going bonnetless to the theatre will be firmly established by fall.

The broadest sashes are fourteen inches wide but the popular widths are nine to eleven inches.

Yokes are in such great favor this summer that even vests have yokes or yoke-like pieces at the top.

Old-fashioned white barred muslins are revived and amateur dressmakers can fashion pretty gowns of them.

Lace jabots are again in favor for the fronts of dressy basques, and are especially liked with single revers of velvet.

Changeable wool stuffs of very light weight are the novelty introduced for summer dresses at the seaside or country resorts.

Jerseys are more numerous than ever, and of greater variety; plain and close fitting; with silk vests; braided and beaded; with wide box-pleats down front and back a la Norfolk jacket, and even made like a blouse.

Wraps will be sharply divided the coming season, as they were last winter, into protecting cloaks, which will be very long and dress wraps which will be very short and very ornate, much embroidered and extremely varied.

When sashes are worn with basques they follow the outline of the front of the basque, being folded narrowly and flat or left wide, as is most becoming to the wearer, and the loops pass under the postilion, making the back very bouffant.

Large doses of harsh cathartics are injurious. Do not use them, but instead take Van Werts's Liver Pellets, which are more effective and at the same time perfectly harmless.

Important Rules.

Pasted over the desk of the city editor of a Georgia paper are the following instructions:

"All brides are lovely, beautiful and accomplished, except they be old and tough widows, and then the are amiable and cultivated."

"All merchants who advertise are enterprising, wide-awake and a credit to our city. The names of those who do not advertise must not appear in our paper.

"All old lawyers are able and worthy of a place on the Supreme bench. Young lawyers are promising and silvery-tongued.

"Conductors on passenger trains are gentlemanly an courteous.

"Doctors are eminent.

"Farmers are intelligent.

"Candidates who put their announcements are gaining ground every day. Those who do not announce are likely to be defeated.

"Under no circumstances must these rules be broken. E. Meddleton Pryor, editor and proprietor."—Arkansaw Traveler.

Notes From the Streets.

(Written for The Times.)

Time—Tuesday evening of last week.

Place—A Greenwich street sidewalk at the junction of the Sixth and Ninth avenue elevated roads.

Dramatic personal—a company of Germans. Motive, music.

Audience—Emigrants of various nations, street urchins, pedestrians, shop people, a blind horse, a sick dog, and the Wandering Jew.

Tune is the Blue Danube waltz and the band is the characteristic kind. Plenty of heavy bass, (very loud) first and second cornets, a picalo and clarinet.

The big brass horns take the lead at the start, closely followed by the cornet team, and the two wood instruments follow on as stragglers.

At the quarter mile post all are running neck and neck when a snorting engine above, drawing a long train rushes into the melody, and the field breaks away into a road gallop. As they sweep past the half mile post all are trotting steady again, with the big brass in the lead which they manage to hold until they run under the wire, winners of the first heat. The field straggle in one by one, and as the last notes die away, the noisy street resumes its hum, and people return to every day life.

But hark! Above the din is heard the notes of the clarionet, playing the waltz as a solo. The young man at the business end of the instrument, is leaning against the iron pillar asleep, but his notes run smooth, and none are lost.

He plays from force of habit no doubt, but as a smile overspreads his Teuton face I imagine that he is floating through the waltz with a golden haired fraulein on the distant banks of the Danube. The leader looks at the player in astonishment, but lets him float with Kathleen to the end of the waltz, when he begins again.

The man with the back action, double barrel trombone is weary, so he crawls into the three brass twists of the horn, and the blast that he blows, startles the blind horse. The sick dog runs yelping up an alley, and the sleepy clarionet awakes. His pleasing smile recedes 'til its lost in the gutter, and the young man realizes that its not his fraulein in his arms as he dances in the moonlight, but instead he is holding a yellow clarionet, and blowing notes for the dimes and nickles of Uncle Sam in a miserable neighborhood in lower New York. His pretty dream is spoiled, and the band adjourns to the near by saloon, where clarionet looks for the fall of his darling through the dim end of a green glass beer schooner.

That's the German band, and as I continue the walk down through Battery Park to the ferry I think of the different strolling musicians that travel through the city, I feel that a chapter of them would no doubt interest the readers of The Times.

I'm not much of a musician even though I do own a patent tin flute, but I can appreciate music as much as the young man who sits in the drawing room gazing abstractedly at the ceiling with a sickly, far away, do-so-some-more look in his azure eyes, as Amelia flounders through "White Wings," or "Erminie." "Now just play that delicious bit again. Exquisite! Delightful!" But say we go out in the street; that drawing room is over heated.

* * * * *

The list grows as I think, so I doubt that I can do justice to all the players, but I'm sure that all don't deserve justice. A dark alley, and a stuffed club would be more in keeping with some of the music twisters that torture indulgent New Yorkers.

The German bands have had their say, so we will turn the hand organs for a moment.

Barrel organs with one leg. A strong, healthy Italian at the helm. The sickly looking woman, and miserable baby make up the crew. This combination is without number, "Yankee Doodle," "Rock of Ages," and "William Tell" all get the same time at regular intervals. Costs ten cents to choke this kind off.

Piano organs on four wheels. Two strong Italians work this, and play mostly dance music. At a a distance of four miles the tunes are acceptable. Once in a while, you meet a new instrument, and a man with some idea of time, and then one can afford to stop and listen. When Columbus first visited this country (3,497 I believe) 'tis said he brought some three tuned hand organs. These organs are still here, and any rainy night you can see them on the street corners. An old crone sits on the pavement bent over the old music box grinding away at "Rock of Ages" in "Dead March in Saul" time without a stop or change. She thinks not of the rain, or tune, but grinds, and grinds, and mumbles to herself. I never saw anyone drop a penny into the little tin cup on the organ, but the woman sits there lonely, and unnoticed by the crowd, hurrying past to homes where perhaps the white haired grandmother of their family sits in the pleasant circle in such contrast to the poor old hag on the street corner. She must be some one's grandmother——but you can't think of those things in the city, and although the rain soaked tune sometimes haunts the memory it will fade away until you again see her bent form over the legless organ. Like the useless [illegible] of an Indian tribe she is left alone to die in the desert.

[illegible] and blind man with [illegible]

But here's some more pleasant music. The Spanish quartets (from Hoboken) that wander around at night, are mostly all experts. Mandolines, guitars, violins, and clarionets. They play selections from grand operas, and manage to pick up considerable money. Then follow the negro singers, who travel over stated routes also at night. Their voices, though not cultivated are pliable, and in harmony, and the constant practice they have produces some pretty effects.

Faletto, tenor, baritone and base, and occasionally a good soprano. These men follow the variety stage in winter and manage to live nicely the rest of the year on the collections that come to them on the street.

* * * *

All the excursion boats around New York carry regulation Italian bands: Harp, first and second violins and clarionet. All these people are clever musicians, and seem to be able to play any tune mentioned, with original variations.

* * * *

One of the best known wandering minstrels of our streets is an American cornetist. His face is the banner of the rumshop, and the rags on his back are the wages of hard drink. The pretty silver cornet and the music he can produce from it are the redeeming features. How he manages to keep the instrument is more than anyone can understand, but he no doubt realizes that its his life, and drink (life without drink to him would be worthless) and so he clings on to his pet. Above the chatter of a busy street his "Home Sweet Home," (what mockery) or "America" attracts the passer by, for its played in a manner that would do credit to Levy, or other more famed cornetists. Not many know the man's name or from where he came, but it is rumored that he has played in some of the grandest orchestras in this country. You may see him some day among the moving trucks in the middle of the narrow street, playing with so much feeling. After you have heard the music, and get a close look at the man you no doubt will turn away in disgust. Another inconsistency of unnatural New York.

* * * *

At night the streets resound with the notes of the banjo or accordion in the hands of amateurs, but as they only play for their own amusement I won't devote any space to them. I Can hear two of those "accordion fiends" at this moment, and am willin that they share with Cleveland a part of the Fairchild palsy.

* * * *

Shortly after I came to New York I had occasion to take a trip to Staten Island, and came home on one of the late boats. Was half asleep in the cabin when I heard a sweet strain of melody coming from I know not where, but the notes were soft and low, and they filled the cabin and seemed to grow in sweetness as the harmony progressed. I compared it to what the bird notes of the tropics must be, and when I located the source of the melody was surprised to find that the tropics were responsible. Somewhere in the wilds of Africa several generations back a gay plumaged bird must have sung those notes into the ears of a listening black man, and they through the descendant who stood there on the cabin floor by transmission were reproduced for the entertainment of the mixed crowd of every day New Yorkers. There was music in the man's soul. It showed in his face and in his whole being. Another-erwise repulsive form was made pleasing by nature's gift, and I felt at the time that many left the boats with lighter hearts than when they came aboard. And the notes remain in my memory like the "Lost Chord," that may return at some time to accomplish its mission. This whistler I have since learned, is well known, and is always welcomed, not only by pleased faces, but with a goodly share of coin current in the U. S.

* * * *

Occasionally a hearty Scotchman attached to a bagpipe will blow barelegged through the streets till you think for sure "The Campbells are comin."

Then there's the "Multum in Parvo" brass band with the one man power. Would this fellow stand any chance in a Hannibal Band tournament? I always want to consign him to Hannibal, or some other place of higher temperature. When the machinery is in motion this creature works the hardest for the smallest pay of any musician I have met. His notes are written on sheets of brass with a chilled steel pen, and the note foundry runs by steam. No! I won't describe it, but if the Fulton Band wants a few selections I think I can trip theman and steal from the tangle a dozen copies. It will carry the boys back to the time when they first began to practic in the little room over McCully's harness shop.

The other day I saw a faded woman in faded attire, standing in the gutter of an up-town street. She was singing a song popular in the parlors all over the land, not many years ago. Her voice was broken, but showed past culture, and I tossed a coin to her I tried to imagine the various steps she would have to bring her there in a public street singing for food to keep alive her physical being, and the bitter memories of the past. New York is full of just such singers, and each no doubt can tell a story of their own lives that rival the fictions of our climbing writers. They come and go with each generation, and [illegible]

Bother the Book Agent.

A rather prepossessing young lady entered the office of a well known lawyer the other day and inquired:

"Is Mr. Brief in?"

"Won't be in for two hours," said the dapper young clerk whom she addressed, surveying her from head to foot with an approving glance. "Anything I can do for you?"

"Yes," was the reply; and the lady produced from beneath her wrap a handsomely bound volume. "I have here—"

"I thought so," interrupted the clerk with a deprecating gesture. "I sized you up as soon as you came in. But it's no use. We never fool away any money on subscription books in this office. Didn't you see the sign outside, 'No Peddlers Allowed?'"

"Sir," began the visitor, "this book—"

"Oh," laughed the flippant clerk, "I've no doubt it's the biggest thing out, but we don't want it. History of the United States, ain't it, from the mound builders up to the present day. Big thing, I've no doubt, but we've no use for it.'

"If you will allow me—"

"Really," said the youth, who was greatly amused, "I'd like to, but it's against the rules of the office to yield to the blandishments of book agents, no matter how young and good looking they are. Couldn't think of looking at the book, my dear. 'Life of Napoleon,' ain't it? That's a chestnut. One of our clerk's bought one last month for $4, and yesterday he traded it off for a yaller dog and then killed the dog."

"I wish to say—"

"Or it may be a humorous work, with wood cuts that look as if they'd been engraved with a meat ax. No, we don't want it. We keep a humorist on a salary to amuse us."

"I—"

"Say, you're awfully persistent, my dear, but it won't do any good. If old Brief were here you might be able to talk him around, because he's a susceptible old duffer and thinks every pretty young woman who looks at him is in love with him. But I am not that kind.

"Sir, if you will—"

"Say, I hate to refuse you, 'pon my soul I do, but I'm broke, and that's the truth. Come around in about six months, after the old man has taken me into partnership, and I'll subscribe just to reward you for your stickativeness. I, say you're a mighty pretty woman to peddle books for a living. I—"

Just then the attention of the loquacious youth was attracted by the frantic gesticulations of a fellow clerk in another part of the room, and he paused.

"You are Mr. Freshleigh, I presume?" said the lady.

"I—er—yes, that is my name," was the reply,

"I have heard my husband speak of you. I am Mrs. Brief. Will you please hand that book to Mr. Brief when he comes in, and ask him to take it to the binder's. Good morning."

The lady left the office; the mercury in the thermometer crept down out of sight, the office cat had a a fit and young Freshleigh fell in a faint.

The next day Lawyer Brief advertised for a new clerk.—Tid-Bits.

A VERY BAD CASE

of Scrofula, cured by Brown's Sarsaparilla, has excited the people living in and around the town of Lee, Me. It appears that a son of Mr. Nathan Averill, of that town, a prominent citizen and Trial Justice, had a son, Wm. H., who was seriously afflicted. Mr. Averill writes as follows: "I wrote you some time ago about my son. He has now taken fourteen bottles of Brown's Sarsaparilla, and I am sure it has completed a cure. In my first statement I described his case which was the worst I ever saw. His face was covered with what seemed to be scales or scabs, and the itching was so intolerable that he tossed about in agony through many a sleepless night. He commenced some weeks ago to use Brown's Sarsaparilla in connection with the salve you sent to allay the irritation, and now, as I first mentioned, he is so far recovered that we consider his complete cure as certain." Mr. J. W. Burke, of Lee, who was at the time the chairman of the Penobscot County Commissioners, is cognizant of the facts and said at that time, and says now that "it is wonderful what Brown's Sarsaparilla has done for young Averill." In this case Brown's Sarsaparilla threw open the bowels and pores of the skin, at the same time entering the blood, beginning a vigorous warfare on the impure matter found there, and which was a constant source of supply for the scrofulous humor on the outside. In time this was expelled from the system, and only pure matter entered the blood. The disease, deprived of material on which to thrive, died and disappeared, leaving the body clear and clean.

Brown's Sarsaparilla

is for sale everywhere. Ara Warren & Co, Proprietors, Bangor, Me.

Burdette's Advice.

Why does a young man wear a single barrel, center-fire eyeglass, my son? Well, because that kind of a young man never understands more than half he sees, and by shutting off one-half the spectacle he manages to keep about half way up with the show. Does thee savy. Well, keep on savyin', and if you must wear a minocle, keep both eyes wide open and wear your minocle over your mouth and you'll know more and look prettier.

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.

2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures hitherto unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

OVER WORKED Women

For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, seamstresses, housekeepers, and over-worked women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "Cure-all," but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most potent Specific for all those Chronic Weaknesses and Diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful general as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. [illegible]

NEWSPAPER LAWS.

Any person who takes the paper regularly from the post office, whether directed to his name or whether he is a subscriber or not—is responsible for the pay.

The courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the post-offic for moving away and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

I can't help telling the Truth as I view it and describing what I see. To describe it otherwise than it seems to me would be falsehood in that calling in which it has pleased Heaven to place me.

JAS. R. FAIRGRIEVE - EDITOR

HON. D. E. Ainsworth has been renominated for Member of Assembly by the Republicans of the Second Oswego district. Mr. Ainsworth is certainly worthy of the honor thus conferred upon him as he has clearly shown himself to be an able man in the assembly.

THE death of W. A. Wilkins editor of the Whitehall Times occurred on Tuesday August, 2d. Mr. Wilkins was one of the best known newspaper men in state and was president of the New York State Press Association. The paragraphs and witticism from his pen have been quoted far and wide while the "Wilkins' Star Proverbs" gave the author and paper a national reputation.

AS was anticipated, the recent Republican caucus has caused a great stir, throuhout county. The final result will be looked forward to with interest. The Oswego Times suggests the settling of the question by the county committee calling a new caucus. In response to this a paper is being circulated about town asking that a new caucus be called. This, with 119 names attached, appeared in the Oswego Times last evening. Whether it will result in anything or not, remains as yet to be seen.

The Sewerage Question.

MR. EDITOR—

Throughout the civilized world sewers have been adopted as a solution of the sanitary problem. It seems to have been reserved for some of Fulton's citizens to discover that they are instead a pestilence breeding device.

The writer doubts that the sentiment of a thinly attended meeting should be accepted as the verdict of an intelligent community, and believes that the owners of a large majority of the property, chiefly subject to assessment for this purpose, would favor rather than oppose a judiciously constructed system.

The building of the whole system as contemplated by plans may not at present be advisable, but the village board are entitled to great credit for procuring that which we so lack in other departments, notably streets, a complete plan by competent authority, making it practicable to construct in sections, with harmonious result and perhaps no greater expense,

I would suggest that the Board adopt some plan by which the wish of those who would be called upon to bear the great proportion of the expense, may by signature be obtained.

The August Cosmopolitan.

A handsome portrait of Charles Sumner by H. Velten forms the frontispiece of the August Cosmopolitan. It accompanies interesting and valuable reminiscences of the great statesman, by Arnold Burges Johnson, for years his private secretary. Geo. H. Fitch's profusely illustrated article on "The Millionaires of the Pacific Coast" is a vivid and picturesque account of how these men acquire their great fortunes. "Pilgrims and Shrines in Canada," by J. Macdonald Oxley, is a timely description of one of the most striking and interesting features of Canadian life, since it is at this season of the year that Ste. Anne de Beaupre attracts so many visitors. Gail Hamilton's vigorous article on "The Domestic Money Question" is an attempt to solve one of the greatest difficulties encountered in married life. The conclusion of Charles C. Welman's "Monte Carlo: Its Games and Gamesters" is even more interesting than the first article. "The Resurrection of Siddhardta" by Aug. Giardonis a powerful Hindoo story, while Mrs K. B. Foot's story of "The Hard Money" is a thrilling tale of life in the South during the war. "A Door Must Be Either Open or Shut" by Berr de Turique is a very amusing domestic comedy. "The Young Folks" department is filled with interesting stories and sketches for the younger members of the family.

There is to be a professional regatta on Seneca Lake, Watkins, N. Y. on August, 24 and 25 under the auspices of the Watkins Regatta Association for a grand purse of $700. Bubear, (Champion of England,) Teemer, Hamm, Ross, Lee, Ten Eyck, McKay, Hosmer, Conelly, and others are already entered.

Parish.

More fires have occurred in Parish. The Kirch House, Houghton's store and the dwelling house of Douglas Snell and J. R. Richards, and the barn and shed of the Kirch House were consumed by fire Sunday morning. The fire was discovered in the Kirch House, about 1 o'clock a. m., in the basement. The contents of the Kirch House were burned, but the contents of the other buildings were nearly all saved. The new Richards' block was badly scorched and the lights in the front windows all broken. There was an insurance on the buildings and contents, but we do not know the amount. The loss is estimated at $8,000.

There was also another fire in town occurring in the eastern part. The horse barn belonging to R. L. Slawson burned and Mr. Slawson was severely burned so that he required the attendance of a physician to dress his wounds. This fire also occurred Sunday morning.

It has been ascertained that the cities do not contain all of the boodlers. Cheese factories are afflicted with them. It has been discovered at the Colosse cheese factory that thirteen of their patrons have been watering or skimming their milk. Efforts are being made to bring the guilty parties to justice.

A Case of Deafness Cured.

Office of Shaw & Baldwin's Wholesale Notion House, Toledo, O., Dec. 11, '79.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.—Dear Sirs: About three months ago, noticing a letter addressed to you in the Bee from Gen. Slevin, in reference to the cure of his son by the use of it for our daughter Nellie now fourteen years old, who has been suffering from catarrh for about eight years, during which time she has been treated by one of the best physicians in the city. We have also tried the use of almost all the known remedies for catarrh, with no more success than temporary relief. Many nights have we laid awake to hold her mouth open to keep her from strangling. Her hearing had also become affected. We were afraid that she would never recover. We have now used six bottles of HALL'S CATARRH CURE, and we believe Nellie to be entirely cured. In a few days after commencing the use of it we noticed a decided change for the better, and from that right along she has improved, until now she breathes as easily as any one. She sleeps well and her hearing is perfectly good. We feel that the disease is entirely removed. We write this unsolicited letter, feeling that it is our duty, and with the hope that others may be benefited in like manner. [illegible]

[illegible] a resident for 40 years. For many years he worked at his trade that of carriage making and repairing having his shop on Second street. He also was for a number of years a partner of the late John V. Boomer. Of late years however and until his death he has been in the grocery business.

Mr. Robinson was a generous and kind hearted husband and father. He leaves a wife and two children. Before his death he requested that the following act as his pall bearers: Job Bennett, Reuben Bradshaw, Geo. Kellogg, Abram Emerick, C. H. David and H. C. Gardner. His two surviving brothers are George Robinson conductor, on the Grand Trunk railroad and Martin Robinson who lives in Canada.

The funeral services will be held at his late residence at 4 o'clock to-morrow, Thursday, at which the Rev. W. Dempster Chase will officiate.

Mrs. Maria S. Hanchett, relict of the late Reuben T. Hanchett of Palermo, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. S. O. Woodruff on First street in this village Sunday, Aug. 7, at the age of 77 years. Short service, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Towne of the Universalist church, were held at the house yesterday at 11 o'clock. There mains were then taken to Rosevelt where the regular services were held and interment made.

Mrs. Martha Kirkland died at her home in Austin, Minn. Monday Aug. 1, at the age of 75 years. She formerly lived in this vicinty and married her husband, A. P. Kirland at Gilberts Mills. The funeral services were held at the residence of her relatives Mr. and Mrs. O. Ayers on Wednesday Aug. 3.

Nellie May, infant daughter of Myron and Addie Cooter died Thursday, August 4, aged seven months and four days.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Newton died on Thursday of last week.

Board of Trustees' Proceedings.

FULTON, N. Y., Aug. 2d, 1887.

Board met at Opera House Hall pursuant to adjournment.

Present—President Waugh and Trustees More, Nichols, Rice, and Pardee.

The Resolution offered at last meeting of the Board of Trustees authorizing the construction of a system of sewerage and the motion to lay the same on the table till this meeting was read by the clerk.

Trustee Pardee addressed the meeting explaining the plan and advocating a system of sewerage

Fred Bennett inquired if it was not necessary to have waterworks in operation before a system of sewerage could be made effective.

Dr. Woodbury stated that in his opinion a system of sewerage would soon become a nuisance without waterworks.

Joseph Palmer asked that the resolution be submitted to the meeting and a viva voce vote taken thereon.

The President stated that the meeting was not held for the purpose of taking a vote.

D. M. Perine asked if it was not necessary to have waterwoks before the sewerage could be of any use and stated that he favored a system of sewerage, to be paid for by bonding or in some way by which the money to pay for the same could be gradually raised.

D. W. Gardner said that personally he favored the plan of sewerage providing it be properly built. He thought it desirable that the people be generally interested and that perhaps we were not yet ready to adopt a system of sewerage.

Samuel Green said that some people lived on streets where there was no water and that for that reason could not use the proposed system, but he favored that which was for the good of the village.

Dr. I. C. Curtis said that he thought if the people on First St. who were draining into the canal in violation of the law were prevented from so doing there would be a sentiment in favor of sewerage.

Mr. Nelson made a motion that the house be divided, those favoring sewerage take one side and those oppose the other.

The President declared the people opposed to be in the majority.

On motion of Trustee More the Board adjourned to August 3rd, at 7½ o'clock p. m.

N. N. STRANAHAN Clerk.

Board of Trustees' Proceedings.

FULTON, Aug. 3rd, 1887.

Present—President Waugh and Trustees More, Nichols and Rice.

Minutes of last two meetings read and approved.

Marcus Crahan asked that a bill for work done by him on Engine house which had been audited by the old board at less than its face be reconsidered and audited at its full amount. Mr. Crahan also asked that the cross walk formerly existing opposite his building on First Street be restored.

On motion of Trustee Rice the matter of cross walk was referred to Street committee and the matter of Mr. Crahan's bill was on motion referred to Trustees Rice and More.

On motion of Trustee More the action of the Board in voting to give the two extra electric lights to the company that would furnish them the cheapest was recinded.

Mr. Crahan stated that he was a committee from the fire council to confer with the Board in reference to a bill for wardrobes in the Engine House. On motion Trustee Rice, referred to committee named by the chair. The chair named Trustees Rice and More.

Committee appointed to settle with collector reported.

That of the balance due from the collector April 13th 1887 to-wit: $317.62, he had collected and taken receipts from the village Treasurer for tax collected $241.15 and for poll tax $3.00 and re turned tax uncollected $76.47

On motion Trustee Nichols report received and and committee discharged.

On motion Trustee Rice, Board adjourned to Aug. 17th, 1887 at 8 o'clock p. m.

N. N. STRANAHAN, Clerk

[illegible] with his family, passing the summer there and Mrs. Cleveland and her party are his guests.

The President staid behind at Oak View, not even coming into town on the morning of his wife's departure to see her off on the train. One cannot blame him for preferring his country home to the White House, for Oak View is doubly attractive at this season by contrast to the official residence of the President, which is more a public office than a home at all seasons. On Tuesday a Cabinet meeting was held at Oak View instead of the Executive Mansion. The Attorney General and the Secretary of State were the only members absent. Secretary Lamar and Post Master General Vilas drive out every evening and are the President's guests for the night during this protracted warm spell. Secretary Bayard with one of his numerous daughters, has gone to Rehoboth Beach, a sea-coast resort in the Secretary's native state, Delaware.

There has been no nomination made for the Postmastership here yet. It does not appear that the President has so far given the subject his direct attention. The widow of the late W. S. Hancock has been nominated in connection with the place, but it is not thought likely it will be offered or that she would accept if it was. In the meanwhile, Frank B. Conger continues to act as postmaster of Washington. He has been a most efficient and painstaking officer, and has made many improvements in the local service, and has handled the immense Governmental mail matter that arrives at the Washington office every morning with wonderful accuracy and dispatch. His successor would do well to imitate his example, but Mr. Conger is too young a man to waste his talents by remaining in office. He has capacities that ought to win for him personal benefits. It may not be generally known that all the immense mail that comes in and goes out of Washington, for the U. S. Government has to pass through the city post office. Such is the case, and when one reflects on the great amount of work done by the several departments almost entirely by means of the postal service, an idea of the quantity of matter handled in the post office may be conceived. There is very little personally conducted business transacted in the departments. Specially when Congress is not in session. It is all done by correspondence and by attorneys who are in correspondence with their clients. Any one who lives at a distance from the seat of government, having a claim, a grievance, or money or lands to redeem, can have his business negotiated just as well by letter, as he could by being present in person.

The widow of the late Senator from Illinois, Gen. John A. Logan, has returned to Washington from that state and is at her residence on the hills, at the northern edge of the city. She is still suffering from the accident, she met with during her recent visit to Chicago, where she went to consult about the final resting place of her husband. To-day she is reported as being much better.

Eugene Higgins, chief of the appointment division in the Treasury, is away at Long Branch on a three weeks' vacation, and is enjoying himself with his usual sang froid. Mr. Higgins is at present the best advertised, and the most abused man of the Administration. He takes it all very coolly and was never known to complain of the indiscriminate and unproven charges that are brought against him. Once he was heard to say, "why don't somebody say something good about me, when I am so much abused. I have served a great many people a good turn in my time. There are some who ought to remember me kindly." And so there are. Many a timid, frightened applicant for office does remember Mr. Higgins with kindness. His cheerful good nature and easy pleasant manners have often restored confidence and awakened hope in the heart of many a downcast man and woman. He has the knack of making a refusal seem a benefaction and no one can say he ever answered them roughly or rudely. He is a fine looking man and does not look his fifty-seven years in spite of his grey hair and moustache. But the public are more interested in abuse than in praise, so Higgins gets more than his share. Between being the Barabas of the civil service league, and the scape goat of the Democratic party he has had a very unpleasant sort of greatness, since now-a-days greatness means notriety, thrust thrust upon him. But his friends know him to be by no means as black as he is painted.

The Siamese Princes and suite arrived in Washington this morning. The princes are quite young, their ages ranging from nine to fifteen years. There are eight brothers of them, but they won't be missed at home for eleven other brothers remain in Siam to keep their parents from feeling lonely. They are sight seeing at the Capital and appear to enjoy it.
